HUSBAND AND WIFE WILL FLY ATLANTIC

Mollisons Start Monday West Flight to N. York; Three Records Sought

Flight From New York to Bagdad For World Honors

PLANE TRIED OUT

South Ireland and Newfoundland Route Chosen

London, June 1.—(AP)—If present plans culminate satisfactorily, Mr. and Mrs. James A. Mollison propose taking off from Croydon Monday on a non-stop flight to New York as the first leg of a flight which, it is hoped, will establish three new world records.

With only one day's rest in New York, they plan to fly non-stop to Bagdad and thence back to Croydon a total distance of 12,000 miles.

Success would mean that they would make the first London to New York flight, and the first two-way North Atlantic crossing, and would break the world's long distance record.

Mollison and his wife, the former Amy Johnson, had a successful try-out yesterday in their new plane "Seafarer" in which they will make the attempt. The ship is equipped with two engines, estimated to give a maximum speed of about 135 miles an hour, and carries fuel sufficient to give a flying range of 6,000 miles.

The route to New York will be over Ireland and Newfoundland, with the return via the Azores, Spain and the North African coast.

ALL PRECAUTIONS TAKEN BY CREW

Finding of Jury to Investigate the Deaths At Ardens.

All precautions were taken by the crew of a Canadian Pacific Railway train which struck an automobile and killed four persons near Ardens, a coroner's jury here found.

Those killed were Rev. and Mrs. J. A. Leslie, Marmora, Ont., and A. B. Carson, and his son Asa of Bancroft.

The only eye-witness was Sidney Barlow, engineer of the train, who said he just caught a glimpse of the car coming onto the track before the engine struck it. Members of the train crew testified the usual precautions had been taken when nearing the crossing, known to be a very dangerous one.

HEALTH CERTIFICATE BEFORE MARRIAGE

Regina, June 1 (CP)—Prospective Saskatchewan bridegrooms must now procure a health certificate according to an order-in-council days prior to application for marriage licenses. The new marriage act came into effect today.

ODDITIES IN THE NEWS

Montreal, June (CP)—Here's a seller who knows his horses as well as his hawkers. He is T. Hackett, who during the following bets with a "bookie" he completed with the 1932 Derby; Epsom shilling on Hyperion, to win, two shillings in Derby (fulness, second and one shilling on Statesman, third. The horses ran in that order.

Milwaukee, June 1.—(CP)—William Samuelson, grocer, put the family jewels in an emergency several weeks ago.

The crisis disappeared. Detectives learned it had been picked up by the driver for a commissioner, and passed on to a customer whose identity is unknown.

MADISON, Wis., June 1.—(CP)—A gentleman in Dane, Wis., neatest the police department because he didn't get the letter he first mailed to him last August 21.

She mailed it in a fire alarm box.

Fire department electricians found it after day when they gave the box an inspection.

CHICAGO, June 1.—(CP)—"Tommy" a high-tone wire-haired terrier belonging to a socially prominent resident was cut on fashionable lake shore drive for his constitutional.

So was King Levinsky "King-fish" of the prize ring. Irked about something, Tommy took hold of Levinsky's trousers, the seat of which gave way Levinsky retired.

Bdt He Just Missed It

To have $62,876 in your grasp only to have the news come that you didn't win it, is a tough break in the truest meaning of the phrase. Harry Fry, Torchio bread salesman, was notified last night he held a sweepstakes ticket on Empyrean in the Epsom Derby. Since no one of them came in the money May 31st last, collections amounting to $60,958.96. April's collections were $38,006.76. A failure to occurred however, compared with May 1932, when returns showed as $52,181.06.

April's collections were $38,006.76. A failure to occurred however, compared with May 1932, when returns showed as $52,181.06.

PARTNERSHIP AGREEMENT OF FIRM PUBLIC

Morgan Partners And Their Interest Will be Withheld

PROBERS VOTE

Three Senators Vote to Publish Every Detail

It was shown that the Morgan firm could have made more than $122,000,000 profit if in 1928 it had sold stock acquired by it in forming the United Corporation; but George Whitney, partner, insisted this was a "surmise of what could have been done but wasn't."

Washington, June 1.—(AP)— The United States Senate Committee investigating J. P. Morgan & Co., decided today to make public part of the partnership agreement under which the great banking house operates.

In close session for over an hour after the usual time for starting the public hearings, it was determined that the parties of the partners and the percentages of their interests in the firm would be omitted from the partnership articles to be placed in the public record.

Senator Byrnes (D-SC) divulged this to newspapermen, while J. P. Morgan and various of his partners were awaiting resumption of examination of Ferdinand Pecora, Committee counsel.

Mr. Pecora, as counsel for Morgan, had been allowed to recall any official for the committee against publication on the ground that the information was strictly private.

The committee voted 11 to three in favor of publishing the original partnership agreement made in 1916 with subsequent collateral agreements.

Chairman Fletcher said Senators Couzens (R-Mich.) Norseck (R-SD) and Costigan (D-Colo.) voted to publish everything.

MOTHER KILLS 3 CHILDREN

Suicide of Unbalanced Woman at Springfeld, N.H.

SPRINGFIELD, N.H., June 1.—(AP)—Mrs. Alice Cox, 35, wife of a prominent lumber dealer, killed the three of her three children as they slept late last night and then committed suicide in their home here. The bodies of the children were discovered by the husband when he returned from a meeting.

The children were Edith 11, Nathaniel, six, and Walter Jr., 10 mos. Mrs. Cox died with them.

She died while being taken to a hospital at Newport.

Grief because of their last child Mrs. Gardiner had suffered from melancholia, but her husband generally been despondent. The husband and friends of the last two weeks she had been sleeping in her parents' home, directly across the road in order to have undisturbed rest from the children during the night. Both of their throats had been cut. Rushing upstairs he discovered the elder children dead in their beds.

Doom in Cadet Movement in City of Hamilton Said to be Sealed

HAMILTON June 1. — (CP) — The cadet movement in Hamilton is likely to suffer the same fate that befell it in Toronto where it has been discarded. School Trustee Agnes Slaghar has moved for the abolition of school cadets, but in the opinion of some trustees the movement is goosned anyhow. Last year the government discontinued its grant for cadet training and this year the school board made no appropriation for that purpose.

MISSING MAN TO SEE PRESS

Somewhere in New Jersey" Site of Meeting With Sherwood

New York, June 1 (AP)—Russell T. Sherwood turned his face toward the light of publicity today for the first time since he disappeared almost two years ago when he was wanted as an important witness in the investigation of the embezzlement of James J. Walker, who resigned as mayor of New York City during that investigation.

Announcement was made for him he would see the press "somewhere in New Jersey", the guide to the undesignated spot being none either than collector of United States internal revenue, William Duggan. The government has a $49,000 income tax claim against Sherwood and it was believed in part because of this that Sherwood had got in touch with Duggan and had him arrange the interview.

New York, June 1.—(AP)— An announcement was made this morning that Russell T. Sherwood, missing witness of the Seabury legislative investigation and reputed friend of James J. Walker, who resigned during the investigation, would be at the office of the collector of internal revenue today.

ONCE ACQUITTED BUT FINALLY IS CONVICTED

Norman Joseph Pitre Hanged for Killing Storekeeper

Bathurst, N.B., June 1.—(CP)— When Norman Joseph Pitre, 23, was pronounced dead today at 12.28 a.m. just 15 minutes after Arthur Ellis had sprung a pallow, and under him he had paid the supreme penalty for the murder of George Smith, 86-year-old storekeeper of South Tetagouche, N.B.

Pitre, known familiarly as "Rufus" died for a crime of which he was once acquitted, but a precedent was established in British Law when Pitre was convicted of murder following a successful crown appeal against a first verdict of acquittal.

ARMISTICE IN EAST AROUSES POLITICIANS

Nanking Said to Have Made Contribution to Canton Troops.

Hong Kong, June 1 (AP)— Although politicians of the Canton government still protest that the armistice with Japan, it appeared today that the military authorities had decided to avoid provoking the National government at Nanking which conducted the truce.

There were reports this attitude was encouraged by a contribution of $500,000 from Nanking for the maintenance of the Canton troops. As well as a stock of munitions.

MUNICIPAL CHEQUES MUST BEAR STAMPS

Premier Bennett Makes Statement After Interview

BANK LOANS

No Objection Raised to Direct Relief in Cash

Ottawa, June 1 (CP)—Immunity from the cheque stamp tax could not be granted municipalities, Prime Minister R. B. Bennett told a delegation to-night that it was the duty of Canadian municipalities here today.

The delegation, headed by S. Baker, London, Ont., Secretary of the union also asked the Prime Minister if it could not be arranged to secure lower interest rates from the banks, for municipalities. While Mr. Bennett could give no assurance of government intervention he informed the delegation that it was the understanding the banks would give municipalities a rate of 5 1-2 or possibly five per cent.

On the question of unemployment relief, which was also brought up by the delegation, Mr. Bennett referred his visitors to the Minister of Labor, Hon. W. A. Gordon.

The Minister of Labor announced that all provinces except Alberta, Saskatchewan and Prince Edward Island were personally represented in the party, and those three had covered the representations made to the government.

Recovering Quickly And is Bright and Cheerful

POONA, India, June 1 —(AP)— Even though the three weeks fast he completed Monday brought his weight down to 84 1-2 pounds, Mahatma Gandhi was said today to be recovering satisfactorily from the ordeal.

Gandhi, who weighed 93 pounds on the third day of his demonstration against untouchability, was described as bright and cheerful by those attending him.

Mr. Gandhi now is permitted to have boiled vegetables, fruit juice, honey and water.

SUMMER WAGE SCALE CHARGE IS MADE

Board of Conciliation Dealing With Wage Dispute

Winnipeg, June 1 (CP)— A charge that the Winnipeg Electric Company had acted in direct violation of the Industrial Disputes Act was made today by Union officials who charged the company violated this act when it refused to put the summer wage scale into effect, when it four cents an hour advance over the winter rate, according to wages agreement.

A board of conciliation—appointed under the act, is now considering a wage dispute between the men and the company.

Three Sailors Missing When British Steamer Collides With Stentor

River Ebbe in Germany Scene of Early Marine Disaster

CARGO DAMAGED

37 Passengers on Guildford Castle Rescued From River

Cuxhaven, Germany, June 1 (CP)— Three members of the crew of the British steamer Guildford Castle were reported missing today after a midnight collision between their vessel and the Stentor in the River Elbe.

The collision occurred during a dense fog and both ships were considerably damaged. Fear was expressed most of the cargo of the Guildford Castle, an 8,000-ton ship owned by the Union Castle Company would be lost as her forward parts filled through a 30-foot gash in the side of her bow. She is resting now on the bottom with her stern high in the air.

The Guildford Castle, in trade between England and South Africa, carried 37 passengers, 34 English and 6 German, all of whom were rescued. There appeared to have been no casualties aboard the Stentor, a 6,000-ton steamship owned by the Holt Company of Liverpool. The Stentor was not seriously damaged.

CANOE ADRIFT IS RESCUED

Occupant Saved After Brother Lost in Lake Winnipeg

Winnipeg, June 1 (CP)—Far from land and at the mercy of the treacherous waters of Lake Winnipeg, Russell Bulled, 19, was rescued last night after he had drifted on a canoe for seven hours, following the drowning of his brother, William, 21. The body has not been recovered.

On a holiday, the brothers were paddling from Winnipeg to Victoria Beach, 30 miles north of here, when a sudden squall overturned their canoe. William started to swim for aid to a lighthouse a short distance away but shortly after two boatmen rescued Russell, clinging to the overturned craft. After an unsuccessful search for the brothers, they found Russell had left again in the same boat.

After a seven-hour search of the lake, Russell was found, Winnipeg Beach, in the bottom of the boat, exhausted and nearly unconscious.

BENNETT TO LEAVE FRIDAY

Busy Day Spent by Premier on Eve of Departure For Britain

Ottawa, June 1 (CP)—Prime Minister R. B. Bennett had a crowded day as he made his last minute preparations for his departure for London to attend the world monetary and economic conference.

The opening session started in delegation of representatives of union of Canadian municipalities who discussed unemployment relief questions. The party was headed by S. Baker, London.

A cabinet council was held this afternoon, last one with which the Prime Minister will preside until his return. Dinner tonight, followed in about six weeks.

The party will leave Montreal tomorrow on the liner Duchess of Bedford.

Hon. E. N. Rhodes is the only cabinet minister accompanying Mr. Bennett and Mrs. Rhodes will also make the journey. Others on the delegation include W. C. Clark, Deputy Minister of Finance, L. D. Wilgress, Director of the Commercial Intelligence Service, Department of Trade and Commerce, N. A. Robertson, Assistant Under Secretary of State, and R. K. Finlayson, Prime Minister's chief private Secretary.

98 P. C. GROWTH IN BUSINESS SHOWN

OTTAWA, June 1.—(CP)—Another bright spot in the business horizon of Canada comes with the report of the Dominion Statistical Board Ltd., of Gatineau. A gain of 98 per cent. for May over April in business is reported for May as compared with 1932. The gain for the past two weeks is regarded as an indication that the building industry is swinging back to normal.

Princess Takes to Air Before Dawn to Show That Love Still is King

New York, June 1 (AP)—A Princess soared into a black sky before dawn today in a flying feature, that showed the world she and her royal husband are still sweethearts.

Irked by rumors of a separation, the Duchess of Aosta, wife of Prince Girolamo Reopoldino of Italy flew from Roosevelt Field to Boston to meet the incoming liner Rex, leaving her husband to his chores.

The Princess, 21 and pretty, told airport attendants she would land alongside the liner at quarantine, when she could wave her handkerchief to the Prince at government regulations prevented her from getting aboard immediately.

The Duchess is the former Marion Snowden of Minneapolis, Newport and New York. She is the daughter of the late James H. Snowden. Her mother is now Mrs. Walter S. Davidson of Newport.

When he heard the good news he broke down and cried. That happened to Joe Lewis, a dishwasher in a large Trenton hotel who held a ticket in the Irish Sweepstakes on Stateman, the horse that finished third in the Epsom Derby. The ticket will yield the grand sum of $42,000, but Mr. Lewis promise to stick to his job—for a while yet. There are apparently no hitches to this lucky break.

City and District News

BUILDING PERMITS FAIL TO RALLY

Building permits issued by the office of city engineer failed to rally during the past month in any appreciable degree and still are far behind in numbers and amounts over those issued in the months of other years. During the month of May just ended a total of six permits were issued, all for repairs or alterations and private garage construction. The list comprises an actual estimate of $1726. For the month of May, 1932, a total of $18,800 in permits had been issued.

TONS OF SAND PLACED IN ARENA

Tons of sand are being unloaded from trucks at the side doors of the local arena today to be used as the first of the floor covering which will be put in the building on the occasion of the Liberal Rally being held next Wednesday. Over the sand which will be raked smooth a floor covering of new lumber will be placed to support the banquet tables.

OPEN HOUSE AT O. S. D. TO BE HELD

Pupils of the Ontario School for the Deaf will hold an open exhibition of their work at the school on the evening of June 8th, during the evening a public demonstration of school work and rythm exercises will be held to which all residents of this city and district are cordially invited.

LOW FIRE LOSS IN MAY MONTH

In spite of unfavorable conditions and the potential fire threat of hot and dry weather May 24th celebrations, during the past month, members of the local fire department report a very low record, a lower fire loss during the month of May than other years months, and a considerably lower average than any May since present time. Only one fire loss was reported, that of the small house which was destroyed on Purdy Street earlier in the month. The majority of alarms were of minor nature. Grass fires are reported unusually scarce.

WARMS UP AFTER DAYS COLD SPELL

Cool east winds which blew over the district resulted in a sudden drop in temperature late Wednesday evening and Thursday morning, and brought a chill to residents who had been basking in midsummer heat during the past week or so. From a high of above 80 during the few hot days earlier in the week, a drop to slightly higher than 50 degrees on Thursday was marked. Strong sunshine was evident throughout the day.

RETURNS TO OTTAWA AFTER INSPECTION

Mr. J. W. Mackay, acting district inspector of Agriculture, Ottawa, returned there Thursday morning after spending several days in Belleville, accompanying the local inspector Mr. J. Leonard Johnston on his trip throughout the rural sections of the Bay of Quinte and Peterboro district.

WARNING ISSUED TO DOG OWNERS

Local dog taxes are long over-due according to information handed out by the police department this morning. Warning has been issued by the local dog catcher, Thomas Thorne and also the police department, relating to the purchasing of 1933 dog tags with the result, that all dogs found wandering the streets without the proper dog license will be picked up and lodged in the city dog pound, where the usual procedure will follow. The purchases of local dog licences have fallen off considerably this year which prompts the department to make a thorough check-up along these lines at once.

FRED NEWMAN IS DELEGATE

Accepts Invitation to Represent Chambers of Commerce at London

In a letter to the local Chamber of Commerce which has been received by Mr. Fred Newman, of Preston, urged by the local Chamber to represent them in the British Empire Congress held in London in July, has signified his acceptance. Mr. Newman will leave on June 22nd for London. He will be accompanied by a grandson, Fred Jr. This year Mr. Newman will be the sole representative of the Ontario Associated Boards of Trade and Chambers of Commerce, of which he has past presidency to the Congress of the Boards of Trade and Chambers of Commerce of the British Empire. The Congress will open in Guild Hall, in London, on July 3rd, and will be attended by representatives from throughout the British Empire. At the last Congress, held in 1930, Mr. Newman accompanied his late wife Elinda, of this city, and Mr. G. C. Copley, of Hamilton. Belleville Chamber of Commerce will present one third of the number of nine resolutions which will be read and presented from the whole Empire.

ADVOCATES COMPLETE DISPOSAL OF STALKS

Corn Borer Inspectors Addressed Weed Meeting

At a meeting of the Agricultural Committee of the Hastings County Council held in Belleville on Wednesday, Mr. Chas. J. Marvin, Corn Borer Inspector for Hastings County presented a verbal report on conditions in the district relating to the work of Borer control. In the report to the agricultural committee, Mr. Marvin stressed the need this year of more complete disposal of corn and weed stalks. The use of sharp toothed rakes or mechanical drags to destroy stalks was condemning by him. This, he explained, tended to drag the roots of the corn to the surface, thus revealing an ideal condition for borer propagation. Further discussion among the members of the committee centred on methods of close making in the county, school rants and other related subjects.

EXPANSION OF LOCAL PLANT

Mr. W. S. Trask Paints Optimistic Picture of Trend

Mr. W. S. Trask, superintendent of the American Hardware Corporation of Canada Limited returned to the city the first of the week after spending a week at the plant of the parent company in New Britain, Conn. He found a decided improvement in industrial conditions in New England which was general in all branches of trade since his last visit there. He reports an optimistic view is now taken by manufacturing executives of that great industrial section.

Expansion of the Belleville plant which is becoming absolutely necessary was taken up with the executive heads of the parents company, Mr. Trask told a reporter. Plans for further buildings have already been approved and the contemplated expansion will become an actuality as soon as the unsettled state of general business warrants. Several new lines manufactured here in the near future and new machinery must be erected to house this growth in the firm's business.

An increase in the working hours of the plant in the foundry and production departments has already taken place, and orders are coming in that will necessitate a further extension in the artisan's working time. Mr. Trask was optimistic in regarding the growth of the plant of which he is superintendent and the renewal of activities in the manufacture and manufacturing life of Ontario and Canada in general.

ALREADY 600 TICKETS SOLD

Liberal Convention One of "The Largest to be Staged in East"

One of the largest, if not the largest dinner ever held in Belleville will be held at the Central Ontario Liberal Association, Wednesday evening next in the Belleville Arena. The Dominion Liberal leader, Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King and the Ontario leader of Liberalism, Mitchell F. Hepburn, are to be the chief speakers at the occasion. The public are inviting to attend the meeting subsequent to the banquet when the speaking will take place. Mr. D. Harold Hollis, secretary of the Central Ontario Liberal Association, reports today that over 600 tickets have been sold for the dinner and he is expected that over 700 will dine with the two Liberal leaders Wednesday night.

BOARD OF JUDGES IN NICKEL ESSAYS

Brig. General C. H. Mitchell, C.B., C.M.G., Dean of the Faculty of Applied Science and Engineering, University of Toronto; Mr. Nathaniel Mossop, editor of the McLean's Magazine and Dr. C. W. Drury, Chairman of the Toronto Branch of the Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy, constitute the board of judges for the essay competition being held among high school students in the schools of the Province of Ontario on the subject "What Nickel Means to Canada."

This was announced today by C. H. Mansfield, manager of the Toronto office of The International Nickel Company of Canada, Limited, which is offering a first prize of $100, a second of $50 and the two additional prizes of $25 each to the winners of districts.

The essay competition is being run as part of the celebration of the Fiftieth Anniversary of the nickel industry in the Province.

PETES' SECOND SACKER OUT FOR SEASON

Sustains Fracture of Skull When Hit by Pitched Ball

Frank Schily, captain and second baseman of the Waterloo Ball Club who was hit at the base of the skull and sustained a slight fracture during Wednesday's ball game, when hit by one of Alex Weir's pitches, is resting quietly in the Belleville General Hospital, according to information from Dr. R. A. Flynn, club physician of the Nationals, who is attending Schily.

Upon advice of the club doctor, Schily did not accompany the team mates to the Lift Lock City, following Wednesday's game but entered the hospital. It is thought he will be confined to the institution for four or five days, and it is feared that his baseball playing for this season is over. Frankie Fraticco, a slight one of four days and in his length.

The loss of Schily is a severe blow to Coach Knotty Lee as the Peterboro captain has contested his one of the best infielders in the Central Ontario League. He has been a member of the Peterboro club for the past three years coming to that city from Toronto.

ANNUAL RE-UNION OF BOYS FOR CAMP HELD

Social Evening is Followed by "the Eats"

Some forty youthful members of the Boys' Camp which is sponsored by the Y.M.C.A. at Moira Lake, met in an annual re-union at the "Y" last evening and after enjoying ball games, races and later a swim in the pool repaired to the auditorium of the building to enjoy a supper provided by the association.

J. E. Short, camp director, was the chairman of the evening and outlined the proposed programme for the 1933 camp. The Boys' Camp will open three days later this season than in 1932, on June 5th with the opening day set for July 6th and continuing until July 19th days altogether. The camp is open for boys ranging in age from 10 to 15 years. The daily programme of sports, study, religious education and manual training will be presented.

During the programme last evening Don Sexsmith filled the position as song leader with Frank Hichon at the piano. Boy Scout Eighan Joe Hichon and Chris Warring delighted the boys. After a consensus of opinion had been taken it was found, that a larger number than in previous years intended availing themselves of the privileges of the camp this year.

Fight Card at Airport One of Best Staged in District

1,200 Fans See Four Knock-outs in Well Matched Card

Trenton, June 1 (Special) — 1200 raving fight fans witnessed one of the best boxing cards in this district last night in the R.C.A.F. hangar at the airport. The show was put on by Relief Project No. 28 with the permission of Wing Commander L. S. Breadner, D.S.C.

Three boys from the relief camp are heroes today as they triumphed over their opponents from the air force at Camp Borden.

In the main bout, Jimmy Leonard of the Legionaires K.O.'d Art Sproulon of Camp Borden in the fourth round of their five round encounter. Both fighters started very cautiously and cagey, the former champ at 125 lbs., started to let out and had considerable the best in the third, finishing the fight in the fourth.

Real Upset

The biggest surprise of the evening was when Cole was forced to retire from the ring in the second round. Cole spotted Cable nearly thirty pounds, and had shown up for a count of six in the first and through the second was coveg ag he sell sounded. In the second Cole delivered hard blow to the stomach, forcing Cable who landed on his back for the count.

Bobby Vlan of Trenton, won a decision over the Vancouver Kid after going an extra round to decide Vlan, making his first appearance before a crowd was handicapped in the first round but came out strong to gain the decision.

"Speed" Patterson of Sidney, making his second appearance in public, was matched with Green of Camp Borden. Green had Patterson down twice in the first round, but the final started the second round with a bang and a hard blow to the chin in the second. Patterson stayed down to receive the count of nine. Lieut. Parker, the referee, was booed unanimously when he called Patterson out. It is thought Patterson judged by the count of nine. Referee claim Parker counted too fast but the boys were with Green during the entire round.

"Sunfish" Anderson of Trenton, landed a K. O. in the first on Steve Stively of Belleville and Green won via the knock out route over Jack Thompson after the boys had finished even in the first round. The final bout was coming in an extra round.

Toss in Towel

Dobson's second tossed in the towel after Duffy had literally hammered at with all the fight out of Dobson. This was Duff's second win on card. Ted Marsh of Point Anne, drew with Arnold of Winnipeg after going six extra rounds.

Watts outpointed Burnett in the opener as Mooney scored two decisions in the second fight of the schedule.

W. A. Fraser, M.P., W. H. Ireland, M.P.P. and Mr. E. Rowsome of Belleville, officiated with Lt. Parker of the R.C.R. as referee.

Sgt. Major Wibberly was timer, with L. E. Wray, sports editor of the airport, announcing the fights.

W. Adams, former Ontario middleweight champion was trainer and manager of the lightweights.

Summary of Bouts

Watts, decision over Burnett, 150 lbs., 3 rounds.

Mooney, decision over Simmons, 140 lbs., 3 rounds.

Jack Green knocked out Thompson, 135 lbs., 4th. round.

Duffy technical knock out over Dobson, 135 lbs., 3 rounds.

Anderson knocked out Stively, first round, 155 lbs.

Marsh and Arnold drew, four rounds, 126 pounds.

Green knocked out Patterson, second round, 125 lbs.

Cole knocked out Cable, 2nd round, catchweights.

Vlan decision over Vancouver Kid, 3 rounds, 125 lbs.

Leonard knocked out Sproulon, 4th. round, 160 lbs.

Leg Broken

An unfortunate accident occurred yesterday afternoon after school when Herbie Bulpit had his leg broken between the knee and ankle after a collision on the ball diamond at the High School. Dr. Farley was called to attend the youth, who was later taken to the office of Dr. Johnson where an X-ray was taken.

According to the doctor Herbie will be laid up about two months.

PETES' SECOND SACKER OUT FOR SEASON

Sustains Fracture of Skull When Hit by Pitched Ball

Frank Schily, captain and second baseman of the Waterloo Ball Club who was hit at the base of the skull and sustained a slight fracture during Wednesday's ball game, when hit by one of Alex Weir's pitches, is resting quietly in the Belleville General Hospital, according to information from Dr. R. A. Flynn, club physician of the Nationals, who is attending Schily.

Upon advice of the club doctor, Schily did not accompany the team mates to the Lift Lock City, following Wednesday's game but entered the hospital. It is thought he will be confined to the institution for four or five days, and it is feared that his baseball playing for this season is over. Frankie Fraticco, a slight one of four days and in his length.

The loss of Schily is a severe blow to Coach Knotty Lee as the Peterboro captain has contested his one of the best infielders in the Central Ontario League. He has been a member of the Peterboro club for the past three years coming to that city from Toronto.

ANNUAL RE-UNION OF BOYS FOR CAMP HELD

Social Evening is Followed by "the Eats"

Some forty youthful members of the Boys' Camp which is sponsored by the Y.M.C.A. at Moira Lake, met in an annual re-union at the "Y" last evening and after enjoying ball games, races and later a swim in the pool repaired to the auditorium of the building to enjoy a supper provided by the association.

J. E. Short, camp director, was the chairman of the evening and outlined the proposed programme for the 1933 camp. The Boys' Camp will open three days later this season than in 1932, on June 5th with the opening day set for July 6th and continuing until July 19th days altogether. The camp is open for boys ranging in age from 10 to 15 years. The daily programme of sports, study, religious education and manual training will be presented.

During the programme last evening Don Sexsmith filled the position as song leader with Frank Hichon at the piano. Boy Scout Eighan Joe Hichon and Chris Warring delighted the boys. After a consensus of opinion had been taken it was found, that a larger number than in previous years intended availing themselves of the privileges of the camp this year.

Frank Edison Born in House to be Moved to United States

Oshawa, Ont., June 1 (CP)—When the old Edison homestead is moved from its century old site in Vienna to the United States as the property of Henry Ford one man at least will be reluctant to see it go. The man is Frank Edison, cousin of the famous inventor who was born in the old frame building 59 years ago and spent the first 21 years of his life there. He is now a resident of St. Thomas, but often returns to visit the historical building which was his birthplace.

FATHER TO PAY THE COSTS BY DECISION

Lays Theft Charge Against His 23-Year-Old Son

KINGSTON, Ont., June 1.—(CP) —Charge of theft of a horse laid by Robert E. Harpell, Calcasqui, against his 23-year-old son was given instead by Magistrate D. J. Rankin in County Police Court here today by the elder Harpell.

Mr. Harpell was unable to meet the cost and the Magistrate gave him until Friday to get the money or spend seven days in jail. Mother of the accused appearing as witness told the court the horse in question belonged to her and she had instructed her son to take it.

Charge of theft of an automobile tire made by Mr. Harpell against a younger son resulted in one year suspended sentence against the 16-year-old lad.

Convicts Suspected of Killing Policeman in Robbery

McALESTER, Okla., June 1 — (AP)—Fugitives from two United States prisons left reckless trails across four southwestern States today.

Violence flared at scattered points along the routes of flight chosen by the 11 desperadoes who fled in two groups from the Kansas State Penitentiary at Lansing Tuesday bloodhounds sniffed at the heels of two convicted killers, one of the group of northern convicts and dashed away from the Oklahoma Penitentiary here late yesterday, holding for a time a guard hostage.

Harming Tom Baskin, guard, who was escorting them from repair work at the prison women's ward, the two Oklahoma fugitives, Jim Stribling, an Indian, and H. D. Bradbury, sped away in Baskin's motor car after throwing the guard out and later abandoned it on a rocky mountain road 12 miles from the prison. A dozen guards and a pack of bloodhounds beat the bush throughout the night.

Fleeing to Mountains

A gunfight at Mount Springs, Ark., between Chief of Police Bob La Follette and three auto thieves who abandoned a Kansas car seemingly that taken by one group of fleeing fugitives, and the robbery of a motoring couple by two prisoners near Seneca, Mo., bore out officers' opinions, that the Kansas convicts were gaining the Ozark mountains and hills in the area where Oklahoma, Arkansas and Missouri converge.

Officers also suspected the Kansas convicts of killing night policeman, Otto Durkee, who tried to prevent a tire shop robbery at Chetopa, Kas., early yesterday.

The two convicts who hitch-hiked a ride with B. J. Bair and Miss Allee Braithwaite of Joplin, Mo., threatening them and driving them two hours before releasing them, told they were Jim Clark and Clifford Dopson. One of them, Blair said declared he was in the group which kidnapped the women in Kansas.

He also said, according to Blair, "I had to kill a bull."

SEVERAL NOW IN RUNNING

Choosing of Moderator Important Business of Assembly

Peterborough, Ont., June 1 (CP) —Numerous matters of considerable importance await the attention of delegates to the 58th general assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Canada which opens in St. Paul's Church here on June 7.

Several names have been brought forward for the moderatorship to succeed Rev. Dr. Robert Johnston, Ottawa, who will be in charge of the opening service. Among those mentioned for the honor are Rev. J. S. Shortt, Barrie, Ont.; Rev. H. R. Grant, Port William; Rev. R. G. MacBeth, Vancouver and Rev. S. Banks Nelson, Hamilton. Dr. Nelson however has resigned his pastorate in order to attend the council of the alliance of reformed churches, which meets in Belfast, Ireland, this month.

The retiring moderator who will deliver the address at the opening service on Wednesday is also leaving for Belfast and will be unable to attend the general assembly for more than two days.

The docket of business will be heavy this year. Report of Knox College with the recommendations of the board of management regarding the principalship of the college is expected to come up for discussion on June 8 to enable Dr. Johnston, the retiring principal, to report before he leaves for Ireland.

Thursday evening will be devoted to home mission and the speakers on this subject will include Dr. Margaret Strang, medical missionary from the Peace River district. Other reports on foreign missions will be presented the following night.

James Dutton, Peterborough, convener of the budget committee of the board of administration, will present the budget on June 12.

The only ideal basis for world unification is the idea of human fraternity.

Weed Inspectors Discuss Conditions and Methods to Combat Weeds in County

Hastings County Shows Little Loss From Rapid Growth

LANTERN SLIDES

Farmers Asked to Submit Sample of Seed For Testing

Small attendance featured the annual meeting of Weed Inspectors of this central district, which was held in the Shire Hall Wednesday afternoon. Present, however, were a number of inspectors from points throughout the district, who received first hand knowledge of the work carried on during the past year by the Ontario Department of Agriculture of combatting the various pests which have made their appearance in this district within the past year or so. Inspectors and members in attendance were warned to be on guard against new varieties, which have been spreading through the district from the west, particularly.

District Inspector Present

The meeting was in charge of Mr. J. D. McCloud, of Dunnegan, Glengarry County, District Inspector of Eastern Ontario, assisted by Mr. R. G. Smith, New Hamburg, Weed Inspector of Western Ontario, and Mr. Jos. Wilson, Keating, agricultural representative of this section. Colored lantern slides supplied a pictorial lesson to the attendance of the various classes of weeds and methods of control.

Hastings County has shown little loss of farm land by the increasing growth of weeds on the whole, it was noted by Mr. McCloud, but considerable work lay ahead of the weed inspectors of the district to keep abreast of the ever increasing of many new varieties of noxious weeds, which are spreading from the west. In this the Wild Carrot during the past year or so has made most noticeable gain, increasing at the rate of about ten miles per year. Many farmers in the district do not weed even when observed, and considerable missionary work was necessary in his opinion on the part of the weed inspector to point out the west and the danger of its increasing.

Should Check Seed

In the work of keeping the farms free of noxious weeds, it was said the first move necessary on the owners part is to submit seed samples each year to the Department of Agriculture in order to check up on the percentage of weed seeds in the sample. This was most valuable to the farmer.

Sow thistle was cited by Mr. McCloud as the "world's worst weed" with the only redeeming feature being its inability to stand much hardship. It was declared to be an easy weed to kill, but its ability to reproduce itself was the cause for other kinds.

Mr. R. G. Smith, of the western Ontario district, commented upon the apparent freedom of the local district from many varieties of noxious weeds, that were so difficult to control in the western sections.

All weeds, he declared, which were listed in the Weed Act have been imported into Canada, except the Canadian Thistle. Rotation of crops, however, in his opinion has done much towards killing off this particular type. The weeds themselves have been more noticeable in recent years due to the fact, that motor cars have replaced horses in many sections, and have forced farmers to keep their side off the roads, where they formerly grazed and kept the weeds under control. Now, with no grazing being permitted at the roadsides, the weeds have spread noticeably. Cows and sheep in many western townships and counties provide one of the best means of keeping weeds under control if they are permitted to graze alongside the roads.

The freedom of cemeteries in this particular county from all sorts of weeds, and the clean condition they are in favorably impressed the speaker. In this matter the central district was in his opinion farther ahead than other section west of Belleville.

Mr. Black followed up his address with a talk on the many varieties of common and noxious weeds, which were shown on the colored lantern slides. Twenty years experience at his present work had equipped him with considerable knowledge of all sorts of weeds.

Varieties Found

Following are some of the varieties of weeds found in this section, and also the recommended manner in which they may be controlled.

The following recommendations are made chiefly for the destruction of small patches of weeds. The cost of destroying large areas of most weeds would be too great.

Perennial Sow Thistle—Give two or three applications of a chlorated weed killer at the rate of 2 pounds per gallon of water per 100 square feet. Make the first application when the flower buds are well formed but before any yellow color is showing. Give a second application three weeks later if new growth appears. In exceptional cases a third may be necessary.

Field Bindweed—Give three applications of a sodium chlorate solution of the strength of 1 pound per gallon of water, applied at the rate of 1 gallon per 200 square feet, or a chlorate weed killer at the rate of 1 pound per gallon of water per 100 square feet. Give the first application when the Bindweed is in full bloom, the second three weeks later, and the third a month later.

Canada Thistle—Give one application of 200 pounds of sodium chlorate per acre, after frost in the fall. Apply the sodium chlorate crystals in the dry form. This treatment has given a one hundred percent kill for two years.

Twitch Grass—Two weed requires three applications of a chlorate weed killer at the rate of 1 pound per gallon of water per 100 square feet, or three of a solution of sodium chlorate of the strength of 1 pound per gallon of water, applied at the rate of 1 gallon per 200 square feet. The first application should be given just as the Twitch is coming into ear, the second when two inches of new growth are present, and the third when growth appears later.

Wild Mustard—Spray the daisy in full bloom give one application of a chlorate weed killer at the rate of 1 pound per gallon of water per 100 square feet, or a solution of sodium chlorate of the strength of 1 pound per gallon of water applied at the rate of 1 gallon per 200 square feet.

Wild Carrot—Give one application of a chlorate weed killer at the rate of 1 pound per gallon of water per 100 square feet, or one application of a sodium chlorate solution of the strength of 1 pound per gallon of water, applied at the rate of 1 gallon per 200 square feet. The application should be made just as the Wild Carrot is coming into bloom.

Poison Ivy—Give one application of a chlorate weed killer at the rate of 1 pound per 2 gallon of water per 100 square feet, any time during the growing season. If new growth appears give a second application. In exceptional cases where the Poison Ivy has been very vigorous and large woody growth existed, an additional application may be necessary the following spring. When working with Poison Ivy gloves and rubber boots should be worn.

EASY WAY TO KILL BURDOCK

If you are troubled with the old-fashioned burdock in your back garden, take the advice of an expert on how to kill it easily and without trouble.

"Just take common table salt," declared Mr. J. D. McLeod, District Weed Inspector of Eastern Ontario. "Cut the burdock at the stem and then make a little salt on the cut. The burdock will die quickly."

INNOCENT MAN IN PEN SINCE 1929 STATED

Detroit June 1 (AP)—"Has the prisoner anything to say before sentence is passed?" intoned the Judge in perfunctory routine at the case of Leroy Brown convicted of armed robbery, drew to a close.

"I have your honor," said Brown, "I want to say that an innocent man has been serving a prison sentence since 1929 for a crime, that I committed."

Brown said he committed the robbery for which Martin Murray was sentenced in Michigan State prison for from 13 to 20 years. An investigation was ordered, and Brown's sentence suspended pending its outcome.

SOON RELEASED

LaPorte, Tex., June 1 (CP)— A gypsy band, nine adults and four babies, was lodged in jail after vagrancy charges had been fyled against the elders.

As the inner door of the jail was locked, the children started crying. The wails echoed through the jail's gratuitous iron walls until a crowd of citizens gathered.

The gypsies were released.

WHAT VOCATION ?

There may have been a time when the large numbers of young persons selecting vocations did not have a serious concern, but that indifference has entirely passed today since the economic aspects thrusts itself into every occupation and every profession. Today in Long Island University there are evidences that many college students are not wise in their choice of vocations for several reasons.

The most crowded professions are medicine, teaching, dentistry, and the law and the crowd is still growing. Dr. Edward J. Sparling, research graduate at Teachers' College, Columbia University, says: "Men expect to earn four times and women two times as much as the workers in their respective sexes actually earn in the field. Men expect to make three times as much money on the average as women expect to make."

That is not the only mistake these young students are making. Seventy-seven per cent. of the students are preparing to enter vocations involving subjects in which their grades are low. Of those who intend to be physicians, fifty per cent. do not have grades high enough to admit them in a medical school in the United States.

These are sober disquieting facts that in spite of the racial and religious prejudices which will surely be used against them and in spite of social, economical and cultural handicaps, seventy per cent. are seeking entrance to three of the most crowded vocations in the United States and 98 per cent. are desiring to enter four of the most overcrowded vocations in the metropolitan district. Dr. Sparling blames many parents for exerting their own ambitions children's abilities and chances of success. Instead they press them into one of the four professions because of the fancied social prestige.

RADIO-WISE

Canadians who own their radio broadcasting system or will own it shortly are to be given the real test shortly. CKGW is to disappear and will be replaced by CRCT by the leasing of the Toronto and Bowmanville plants by the commission.

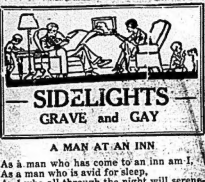
CRCT will take over most of the features of CKGW and a number of distinctive Canadian features. Here will come a real test.

CKGW to people in this part of Canada was the favorite station because of the clearness with which its broadcasts came in and of the high quality of the programs. CFRB reception was not so good, but recently the strength of the station has been increased so that its programs come through clearly. It would seem that CRCT will maintain the leadership of CKGW in public favor here-about remains to be seen. Many fine programs have been given on CFRB and other Toronto stations and have been heard there clearly, but in the line of Canadian talent these have not been so well received owing to the lack of power of the stations.

Canadians must not expect suddenly a full development of the system. The Commission's work is to develop steadily programs which will best satisfy the demands of the people of Canada.

SEVEN-DAY-WEEK CHURCH

Open churches seven days a week are advocated by Bishop Lyons of the diocese of Ontario, so that people may cultivate the disposition to enter a quiet prayer and meditation. That the churches should remain open on Sunday for worship was the uncommonsing view of the bishop who referred to the crowd in comparatively recent years of closing down, especially for the holiday season and on other occasions, "which has grown to unwarranted dimensions, so much so, that the very health of the church's life is impaired. Pastors, masters and others who assist the clergy, have made it possible to discontinue this pernicious habit. Seven days a week without a respite in these strenuous times severely tests a man's strength. With the full co-operation of the Clergy and laity, arrangements have been effected whereby no clergyman need go without his holiday, or any congregation without its services."



When Lyons makes his pronouncement in such clear terms as to the value of the continuance of public worship on Sunday, the press issue with numbers the more the best interests of all are served with the closing of churches, say on Sunday evenings and during the summer months. There is a tendency in the United States to eliminate the Sunday evening service in some sections.

A MAN AT AN INN

As a man who has come to an inn am I,
As a man who is avid for sleep,
And who all through the night will secretly lie
In rest which is dreamless and deep.

As a man at an inn who must rise and go forth
Through the toil of another day,
Who must journey to eastward or north
Or south,
Such am I, as through earth I stray.

And at many an inn there is ruddy fire
Ablaze on the hearth for me,
With the meat and the wine that I most desire
And my host's jollility.

As a man who must travel from inn to inn
Such am I as through life I roam;
But deep in my heart hope dwells still; to win
In some day, at last, to a home!

JOHN BULL IS DEAD, or to be strictly accurate the founder of "John Bull," a politically scurrilous weekly of a decade ago, is dead, Horatio Bottomley. Tragedy dogged the footsteps of this noted journalist who reached great popularity, and considerable wealth, only to come a cropper with a jail sentence of seven years on a fraud charge. In 1922 at Old Bailey Court, Bottomley met his Waterloo when he was sentenced to seven years' imprisonment for converting to his own use funds he had helped raise for benevolences committed with the Great War. Released from prison in 1927 Bottomley was a broken man. He appealed for a shilling per week old age pension of a few shillings a week and was refused. Expelled from the House of Commons after his conviction of fraud he said that the worst punishment of all. "It is the very refinement, the apotheosis of torture," said he. His speeches in the House of Commons and his editorials in John Bull kept him in the limelight for years, and he was a bitter hater of the United States. He blamed President Wilson for the sinking of the German warships in Scapa Flow, and generally thrived on sensational stunts. It was charged at his trial that there was a shortage in the public funds he handled of about one million dollars, including Victory Bond Clubs, of which he was an enthusiastic supporter. He was also connected with a publishing concern for which stock to the extent of two and a half million dollars was sold. Many poor people lost their savings in this, but he promised to make good their losses. He went away for three years and returned with more than half of the money lost which he paid back to poor investors. Now he is dead, at the age of seventy-three, unmourned, unhonored and unsung.

G. B. AIRHART (Bruce to his intimate friends), manufacturer of Hastings, Ward Warden of Hastings County, on a recent visit to Belleville, stated that there was considerable activity in gold mining circles in the vicinity of Marmora. Timber was being purchased for stoping and for new mine buildings, presaging a renewal of activity there. In a list of residents of Hastings County published not long ago, the name of Mr. Airhart did not appear. As a matter of fact he was one of the most active and popular wardens ever to wear the insignia of office, and as County Councillor served on the most important committees. In 1923 County Councillor Airhart was chairman of the Publicity Committee of the Hastings County Council, associated with A. Walsh, Warden and W. H. Nugent, County Publicity Commissioner. This committee was responsible for the publication of "Over the Hills of Hastings," which has had a very wide circulation and is still in active demand, being virtually a text book on all that pertains to Hastings County in a commercial way, under the ground and over the ground with brief historical sketches of each township.

The story is told that when Joseph Priestly discovered oxygen in 1773, he was so struck by the fact that flames burnt vigorously in the gas, and that the "rate of living" of animals was much increased when they breathed it, that he asked himself why a Benevolent Deity had not provided mankind with an atmosphere of pure oxygen. He ultimately concluded that we probably got as good an atmosphere as we deserved!

EUROPE'S MONEY CZARS MEET

Looking at this picture, one can almost hear the clank of big money, for the men in the photo play with finance like more humble mortals play with tig-a-zar pennies. AT LEFT is Dr. Schacht, president of the German Reichsbank, as he was greeted by Montagu Norman, governor of the Bank of England on his arrival in London from the United States, where he had a series of economic talks with President Roosevelt.

DEVELOPMENT OF TREATMENT IS ANNOUNCED

Body Immunity Course to be Taken in Case of Arthritis

EARLY DIAGNOSIS

Control of Cancer Depends Largely on Early Diagnosis

Hamilton, June 1 (CP)—Development of a new treatment along the lines of body immunity which "offers a better outlook" for victims of arthritis was announced today before the 84th annual meeting of the Ontario Medical Association here.

In an exhaustive discussion of the ailment which he described as "this crippling and disabling disease" Dr. W. S. Barnhart by Ottawa said it still constituted one of the most baffling problems of specialists in internal medicine.

Metabolism and food infection factors seemed to be the most common causes, the doctor said, Dr. Barnhart who said much work had been done in trying to determine which particular streptococcus or group of streptococci might be factors.

Treatments under development has on one treating along the lines of body immunity offered a better outlook to sufferers than this disease which Dr. Barnhart said was a terrible affliction people as among the people of today.

Use All Powers

Advice to doctors to use "all your powers" in the diagnosis of cancer was given by Dr. John W. S. McCullough, chief inspector of health in Ontario, secretary for the cancer committee appointed recently by the Ontario government, Untimely control of this scourge, the doctor said, depends on earlier diagnosis; education of the public to prompt use of present methods of treatment; development of better methods of treatment and clinical and fundamental research.

Radium, X-ray and surgery offer the best results in present-day treatment, Dr. McCullough concluded.

One of the most difficult problems to be faced by the general practitioner, said Dr. H. B. Logan of Lindsay in "acute abdomen," is that in which the mortality could be reduced only through a better knowledge of the cure and skill in operating."

"History and pathology" was presented in a paper by Dr. George B. Wharton of London, Ont., who spoke on the basis for theories, methods of treatment and prevention of disease. Diabetes mellitus can be controlled today, he said, after a condition in the pancreas but much work remains to be done for its complete understanding," said Dr. Wharton.

POISON IVY LOOKS LIKE VIRGINIA CREEPER

Even Amateur Gardeners Are Fooled by Weed

"Poison ivy is still not very well known by many residents of this section" declared Mr. R. G. Smith, of New Hamburg, Weed Inspector of Western Ontario, at the annual meeting of weed inspectors of the district, held in the city on Wednesday. Even many amateur gardeners are fooled through its resemblance to the "Virginia Creeper". he added.

Mr. Smith also recalled that he secured a lot of the ivy and carefully trained it to grow up the side of his house. When it did start to grow, it looked very nice. Visitors to the house admired the vine, and Leon Company was in the city today.

Gilmour and Co's drive sailed through Belleville on Saturday.

TRIPLETS WELL NAMED

Potsun, Okla, June 1.—(CP)—Franklin, Delano and Roosevelt are named here in quick succession today. They are triplets born to Ed and Virgie Evans farmers, married 11 years and now possessed of 10 offspring, including a pair of twins.

JUDGE STUBBS IS REMOVED

Found Guilty of Four Charges of Misbehaviour

Ottawa, June 1.(CP)—Found guilty on four charges of judicial misbehaviour, Judge Lewis St. George Stubbs of Winnipeg has been removed from his position as county court judge in the eastern judicial district of Manitoba. An order-in-council issued yesterday recommended to His Excellency the Governor General that Judge Stubbs be removed from office. With cabinet concurrence in the order-in-council here (terminated at least one phase of a "cause celebre."

The government's decision has followed a long study by Hon. C. H. Cahan, acting Minister of Justice, of the voluminous proceedings in connection with the investigation conducted by Mr. Justice Ford of Edmonton into the complaints which originated in disabling "disease" Dr. W. S. Barnhart by Ottawa said it still constituted one of the most baffling problems of specialists in internal medicine.

Metabolism and food infection factors seemed to be the most common causes, the doctor said, Dr. Barnhart who said much work had been done in trying to determine which particular streptococcus or group of streptococci might be factors.

Little Benny's Note Book

Saltday afternoon ma took me with her downtown shopping, and after supper she asked me to go, Benny, Wilburn, you can buy things so cheep these days that i think i can manage for the whole family on what you have got left. Now, pa, you and ma said, Anywy I have you 3 neckties, and if I see you what they cost you wont bleeve me.

Then one day when I dont want me to lose my beef in you, pop said, and ma said, Well they cost a pretty penny, dont you think of them, I couldn't bleeve my eyes when I saw the enormous sum, ma casts for it. Of corse I know you have too many ties now for one man, but you know, anybody els to choose your ties, and anyway this is no time to be buying unnecessary things, but I just feh I couldn't miss that opertunity to buy any of expecs she said.

Yes, pop, and G, maybe there wasn't a fearse gang of ladies around that thursday, I said. I bet there was a million all pushing, I said, and ma said, Now Benny how many times do I half to speak to you about exaggerating? It would be more like a dozen, I said, a million people, so far mercey sakes measure your words a little, ma said, Willyum, I've seldom been in such a state, ma said, when I'd get out alive, she said.

O, ma, do you mean you thawt you'd die rite there and they'd half to send a ambulance to take you home? Why no, I never said, Of course I don't you crazy thing, and I said, Well then, Benny, what you was just exaggerating yourself.

Honors are even, pop said, At all events I'm prepared to bleve there was quite a crowd around that counter, and if you dont mind I'd rather not inspect those ties just at present. I'd strongly advise you morning just after my coffee, so let's postpone it till the sale.

Meening he had his doobts.

Personals

Mrs. William Dempsey of Victoria, B.C., is visiting Mrs. W. Hodgen at Foxboro.

Mrs. Charles McMartin of Scotland, a sister of the late Mr. Frank Berkeley, attended the funeral on Monday.

Mr. Allan Turner and family of Hamilton are renewing acquaintances in the city after an absence of ten years.

Miss Marjorie Patterson of the University of Western Ontario, has returned to her home at Bayside for the summer.

Mrs. James McC. Potts of Stirling has returned home after spending the winter in Montreal with her son, Ned, who just graduated from McGill University in electrical engineering.

The many friends of Mr. Fred Panter will be pleased to learn that he is recovering at his home on Murney street from the results of the accident of which he was a victim Sunday morning last.

Miss Ivy Ruston, bride-to-be, was honored by the staff of the Walker Store of which she is a popular member at a dinner and shower last evening. Dinner was served the guests at the Globe Cafe and Miss Ruston was the recipient of lovely gifts in china, silver and linen. Later the gathering took the form of a theatre party at the Belle Theatre.

A pleasant event arranged by the wives of the letter carriers of this city honoring Miss Myrtle Andrews, a bride-to-be, took place at the home of Mrs. P. Pitcher on Tuesday. After an evening of cards the prizes being won by Mrs. Jeffs and Mrs. Burton, Miss Andrews was presented with a silver basket of flowers. A delicious lunch prepared by the ladies was served and every good wish for their future happiness was extended to Miss Andrews and her fiance.

A large number of guests were present yesterday afternoon at the bridge party given by the women members of the Country Club. The club house had never presented a more charming appearance than it did yesterday with its wealth of white lilacs and tulips. Mrs. R. J. E. Graham who provided and arranged flowers was warmly praised for her artistry. Fifteen tables of bridge were in play and many guests dropped in later at the tea hour. Mrs. Wilson, president of the women's section poured tea. The funds realized are to be devoted to providing prizes for the golf section.

Dainty white spirea and bridal decoration of white streamers and bells made the home of Mrs. Harold Weese, Yeomans street, most attractive yesterday on the occasion of a kitchen shower arranged in honour of Miss Lillian Baldwin, bride-elect. The decorations were completed by a doll bride and groom beaming from the radio. About thirty guests were present and Miss Baldwin was the recipient of many pretty and useful articles. Miss Baldwin and Mr. Taylor, who was also present, made gracious speeches thanking their friends for their kindness. A lovely lunch was served by the hostess before the interesting afternoon came to a close.

The charming home of Mrs. F. S. Anderson, John street, was the scene of a most successful afternoon tea yesterday when the members of the Benvolent Society of St. Michael's Church entertained in honor of the ladies for their valuable work. The guests were received by Mrs. Anderson, who is president of the society, Mrs. A. P. Hughes and Mrs. Jos. Potts and were invited to the tea room by Mrs. A. E. Hilling. Spring flowers of many kinds were used in profusion in the prettyrooms —the colorful blossoms adding a gay note to the gathering. Tea tables with its beautiful lace cloth and handsome silver appointments was entered with a basket of deep toned tulips while tapers in pale shade carried out the color scheme. Mrs. F. Fitzpatrick and Mrs. J. Fitzgerald poured tea. Mrs. P. J. Lee was in charge of the tea table and was assisted by Mrs. Harold Barrett and Miss McMahon. Those who presided in the serving were Mrs. D. F. Doyle, Mrs. L. M. Howe, Miss Margaret Hayes and Miss Kate Dolan. The popular home cooking table was in charge of Mrs. F. Corrigan and Mrs. J. Lynch while Mrs. T. Daly was treasurer for the tea. Tickets had been sold on a pretty tray cloth by Mrs. W. Milne and when the draw was made, Miss Agnes Cunningham was the lucky winner. A splendid sum was realized at the afternoon's affair and will aid greatly in carrying out the Benevolent Society's program of activities. The ladies are most grateful to those who assisted at the tea and those who patronized it, for their co-operation.

Pope's Nieve in Films

Mlle. Sandra Ratti had to go to the head of the Ratti family, none other than her uncle, Pope Pius XI, for permission to pursue her career in a film actress. Permission was granted on the condition that her name be changed and again it was the Pope himself who chose for her the name Ravel. Now it is as Mlle. Sandra Ravel that she has met with tremendous success in a new Italian film in Rome. She is hailed as the newest of continental stars.

Weddings

MacNAY—LONGWELL

With smiling sicles and warm, caressing spring sunshine as beautifully decorated St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Pozboro, on May 24th, at 2.30 p.m., the marriage was solemnized by the Rev. Mr. Hill of Fredericia Gerridine Longwell, A.T.C.M., daughter of Mrs Nettie Longwell and the late Donald Longwell, to Lieutenant C. Graham MacNay, B.A., son of Mr. and Mrs Peter MacNay of Lucknow, Ont. Against the sweet strains of Lohengrin's Wedding March, played in a masterly way by Mr. George Ketches-ter on the charming bride entered the church on the arm of her brother, Lieut.-Lorn, who gave her away in marriage, she was exquisitely gowned in soft white taffeta and tulle, her graceful figure enveloped in a beautiful trailing lace and tulle veil and carrying sweetheart roses and lily of the valley.

The winsome bridesmaid, June, sister of the bride, was gracefully gowned in powder blue silk organdy and white picture hat. She carried a shower bouquet of sweetheart roses.

The groom was supported by his brother, Mr. Keiso MacNay of Lucknow.

The guests were ushered to their seats by Grant and Ronald Longwell, brothers of the bride.

During the signing of the register, Mr. Morley Anderson, cousin of the bride, sang "I Love You Truly," in his usual good form.

The guests left the church to the wondrous strains of Mendelssohn's Wedding March.

A reception was held at the bride's home, Elm Hurst Farm, the bride receiving with her mother; the room was prettily decorated with lyra, lily of the valley, tulips and wax lilies.

A delightful buffet luncheon was served, the bride's table centred by a beautiful cake of the many girl guests added greatly to the beauty of the scene.

The happy couple left by motor amid showers of confetti and best wishes of all for the groom's home at Lucknow and other western points.

The bride's going-away costume was a smart ensemble of Oxford grey tweed with accessories in the Nile shade.

The bride received many beautiful gifts, testifying to the high esteem in which she is held by her friends.

The bride was the recipient of a number of costly presents, including a cheque from the groom's father.

The bride's table was centred by a beautiful wedding cake, the work of the groom's mother, and was flanked by two handsome candelabra holding white tapers.

Mr. and Mrs. MacNay will reside in Ottawa where the groom has a responsible position in the Entomological Branch of the Department of Agriculture.

Easy to Keep Hair Beautiful

By HELEN FOLLETT

From the day when the bob first unsettled the universe and tons of human wool flicked the floors of beauty shops, women have been able to give their hair more beauty by massaging it than by any other method. Even the most elaborate permanent wave is not a substitute for massage. Nor is any amount of brushing. Massage is the only thing that will keep the hair in perfect condition.

Massage is the only thing that will keep the hair in perfect condition. A vigorous shampoo is a form of scalp treatment, stirs up blood streams, urges glands to function normally. The weekly hot oil treatment has become an established custom, which wasn't possible in the time of the prehistoric pigtail.

Reducing the bust measurement calls for vigorous exercises, the kind that will lighten up slack tissues. Massage will do the hands tighter, extend them straight forward from the shoulders till high, swing backward over the head, bending the body back. Return to first position by sending the arms downward. No lazy work, remember. There must be muscle pull.

Cheeks hollow? Slap them with soap and water, rinse with cold water dry. Apply a heavy massage cream. Place thumbs and thumbs outspread, draw up the temporary muscles. Follow along with a brisk patting.

Finish up each meal with a film of milk and cream half and half, down a bowl of crackers and milk, eat heartily. Then rouge. Rouge casts a shadow, makes hollow cheeks look fuller and rounder.

Tell Adeline or Jeanette to go slow on the hair dyeing or the finger wave. Quick drying, especially when a waving fluid is used, is likely to make the hair crisp and brittle lose lustre. Better to prolong the shadows with a manicure, even to put on the chic chapeau. Nothing is lovelier than wave take its own sweet time for drying and don't forget that treasure like a change now and then, a ruffle, a flower that they get a thorough airing.

What causes fingers to appear upon a woman's face nobody knows exactly. Sometimes they come early, sometimes late in life. Fine lines not at all. Glandular disturbances are considered a likely cause. And the blemish is often inherited. There are various means of getting rid of the ugly blemish. Certain rays are used, depilatories beneath it, the electric needle goes burning down to the very heart of things, electrolysis the latest, whose business it is to grow a new hair when the old one is extracted.

MUSIC FESTIVAL HELD AT MADOC

MADOC — A most pleasing and interesting musical festival was held in the Masonic Hall on Friday evening under the auspices of Mrs. Alexander, L.T.C.M., who has been instructor of music in the rural schools of Madoc and Huntingdon during the past two years.

The decorations consisted largely of Union Jacks and Canadian Flags and bunting. The platform was well lighted and the various schools vied with each other in the neat pretty appearance of the pupils. Mr. Geo. West acted as chairman for the evening in the absence of the Reeve, Walter Whytock, who was unable to be present. Music, he said is one of the important element in the education of the boy or girl and in future life, many of these boys and girls will be very thankful for the opportunities they are receiving. In social life, music will be a wonderful asset and through it many have gained friends and have found their place among strangers.

The programme was as follows:

Chorus—"The Maple Tree" by schools No 4, No. 6 and No. 9 Madoc and No. 2 and No. 8 Huntingdon.

Solo—"O come all ye faithful", S. S. No. 7, Madoc.

Duet—Herbert Harris and Geo. Love from No 4 Madoc, "Evening Bells."

Song and March: "Tra-lira-lira", No. 2 Huntingdon.

Two-part song, "Old folks at home". The five schools.

Two part song—No 6 Madoc and No. 2 Huntingdon.

Duet—Hilda Kilpatrick and Betty Hagerman.

Songs of Great Britain—Wales—All through the night; Scotland—Bonnie Dundee; Loch Lomond; Ireland—Wild Irish Rose; England —Rule Britannia.

These were given by the massed schools. Each number was represented by a group dressed in National costume who quietly placed themselves in the foreground while those retiring took places in the rear. All were lustily sung and showed the great value of the training given. Particular mention should be made of the "Rule Britannia" for never among varied audiences have Canadians heard the "Never, never," more forcibly enunciated. Good reception and alert attention to the conducting of the instructress marked every number, and all were delighted with the progress shown, and the great enjoyment with which the children gave their parts, especially in the case of the small-er children.

At intermission of a few minutes tea given for social chat and greetings of friends and neighbours.

Beginning the next part of the programme the schools gave the chorus "Star of Bethlehem" and "Welcome the Springtime." Next came a delightful trio "Take me back" and the Senior Class of White Lake School sang, "Merrily sings the Lark".

No 4. Madoc school gave a round and motion song, which was splendidly rendered.

Next came "Sing a song of golden wheat" by the schools, followed by a trio given by Misses Holland, Betty Hagerman and Tillie Wickens, "One Sunny April morning", and the Senior Class "I'll try again" and "Stand, firmly stand".

Then came the smaller children we were given a motion song, in costume which was very enjoyable.

"A Frog he would a-wooing go", in the little performers entering into the spirit of the number with great glee.

Mr. Maguire, Inspector of Public School for Centre Hastings, being invited by the pupils, parents and trustees for their part in making possible the instruction of pupils in the schools and for the splendid numbers given. The cost is small for each school, he said, when the Department Grant is received. The speaker referred to twenty-five schools taking this inspection then twenty-two, now fewer schools but it is hoped next year will see the original number in the instruction.

A grioeful Minuet was then given by the Ivanhoe school children to the accompaniment of their own singing.

Mr. West, the chairman, then thanked the children and all who had taken part in the evening's entertainment, and Mr. Wood moved a hearty vote of thanks to Mrs. Alexander for her capable and thorough work in the schools during the year, which was duly seconded and presented to Mrs Alexander.

The White Lake Junior and Senior classes then sang "Crown and the glad to-morrow."

The programme closed with splendid tableau of Canada and the provinces and "God Save the King".

Where each and every number was made you say that this is the best yet, one can only say it was all very good, and a credit to teacher and pupils.

START MONTH WITH BUYING

Early Selling by Timid Holders Replaced by Buying

Toronto, June 1 (CP)—Mining stocks started the new month with firm prices steady and volume up above the 2,000,000 mark. Early selling by timid holders was replaced by buying which continued through the afternoon. Profit taking reduced prices a little.

Big gold shares, which had sold off moderately in the early session recovered only part of the loss. Lake Shore dropped about $1, Dome 25 cents, Hollinger 15, McIntyre 25 and Teck and Hargreaves a few cents.

Base metal shares closed with advances. Nickel getting up 30 to 17.40, Noranda 85 cents to 33.00 and Hudson's Bay 35 to 23.00.

Silver shares were quiet.

BUYING SENT C. P. R. UP 2

Raft of Orders Pour in From London Through Montreal

Toronto, June 1 (CP)—A raft of buying orders through Montreal from London sent C.P.R. up more than two points this afternoon on the Toronto Exchange. The whole market firmed and broadened out in the late trading with about a dozen new highs for the year.

Utilities as a group featured. Bell Telephone added at 100 and the Quebec power stocks moved into new high ground. In the foods, Canners "B", B. C. Packers and Laura Secord were up and most of the distillery and beer issues recovered earlier losses. Walkers closing at 17 7-8. Industrials also advanced to 4 points.

Brazilian gained ½ to 14¼, Ford ¼ to 12½, Smelters more than 6 points to 131½ and Nickel 25 to 17.30. In the implement stocks Cockshutt Plow at 16 was up ½.

Oils were slightly off at the close except International Petr which added ½ to 16¼ and Superiest ordinary which held unchanged.

HEAVY TRADE IN THE METALS

Additional Strength Through Late Demand For Rails

New York, June 1 (AP) — After early irregular, stocks firmed today under heavy buying in metal shares. Additional strength was also imparted to the list in the late dealings by renewed demand for rails. Number of the industrial leaders finished narrowly, with such issues as American Tobacco, Allied Chemical and General Motors up but slightly. Gains advanced to fractional points while other gains of 1 to 5 were registered by Union Pacific, Dupont, Du Pont Leal, Associated Libby-Owens-Ford Glass, National Distillers, Delaware and Hudson, Pennsylvania and New York, Ontario and Western. The turn-over approximated 4,300,000 shares.

GRAIN PRICES

Winnipeg, June 1 (CP) — Grain prices at 10:30 a.m. today were:

Wheat—July, 1 lower at 64¾; October ¼ lower at 66⅝; December, 1 lower at 67⅛.

SAGGING WHEN SUPPORT GONE

No Buying on Wheat Market Sends Prices Down

Winnipeg, June 1 (CP)—Without support from any evidence, wheat futures on the Winnipeg grain market, influenced by sharp declines at Liverpool and disappointing floor trade at Chicago, sagged more than a cent in early trading today. Continuing their decline from start, values neared the session's half-way mark 1 1-8 to 1 1-4 cent under yesterday's finish. July at 64, October 66 1-8 and December 67 1-4 cents.

Trading was slow on the setback and operations were made almost entirely of local traders' transactions.

Export wheat opened lower due to the reaction in North American markets from start, values neared the session's half-way mark 1 1-8 to 1 1-4 cent under yesterday's finish. July at 64, October 66 1-8 and December 67 1-4 cents.

Trading was slow on the setback and operations were made almost entirely of local traders' transactions.

Export wheat opened lower due to the reaction in North American markets from start, values neared the close were 1 1-4 to 1 3-8d lower. Liverpool opened 3-4d cent lower in all futures today.

Second Ticker is Installed in Broker's Office

To accommodate the firm's customers, Captain P. H. Wills, local manager of Biggar and Crawford, stock brokers, has had installed in the company's branch office at 28 Bridge street east, a second ticker. This machine will record directly, from the floor of the Standard Mining and Stock Exchange, Toronto, transactions taking place there. The renewed interest the investing public of this city and district has shown in the gold mining shares has caused Captain Wills to increase the additional service in their behalf. New York and Toronto stocks are dealt in quotations, as heretofore, will be received soon after transactions occur in those markets.

The new direct service from the Standard Exchange will relieve greatly, the wire that has conveyed sales, bids and buyers' enquiry and supply the local interest with as prompt information as obtainable in any Toronto stock brokerage office.

Butter, No. 1, solids, lb. 18½c; butter, No. 2, solids, lb. 18¼c; potatoes, per bag, 80c.

Hand-picked beans, in car lots per bushel, wholesale, 85c; retail $1.00.

LIVESTOCK

Toronto, June 1 (CP)—Early trading was quiet on the Toronto Live-stock Market today with very few fresh receipts offered. Prices were unchanged from yesterday's general level. Cattle trade was quiet; hogs steady; lambs steady; sheep slow.

Receipts were: hogs 1,000; cattle none; calves none; hogs 76; sheep and lambs 30.

Cattle left over from yesterday's trade was to 11.00 a.m. to make a market.

Hogs opened steady selling at 4.10 to 4.15 for choice hogs at $3.30 off truck and at $3.60 off cars.

Lambs brought 6c per cwt. for choice and $7.00 to $8.00 for culls. Sheep sold 50c per cwt. lower for the week ranging from 50c to $2.50 per cwt. according to quality.

FOREIGN RATES

New York, June 1 (AP) — Prime commercial paper 1¾ per cent; foreign exchange irregular. Demand rates: Great Britain 3.95½; France 4.87¼; Italy, 6.16⅞; Germany 27.69¼; Canada 88.56⅛.

HANGS SELF IN CELLAR

Toronto, June 1 (CP)—Alex Molson, 59, was found hanging from a rafter in the cellar of his home today. The discovery was made by his wife who went to look for him when he failed to show up after breakfast. A doctor was summoned but found that he had been dead for some time. Police believed that the man had been unemployed and suffering ill health.

$10,000 ROUNDHOUSE LOSS

Hamilton, June 1—(CP)—Damage in the fire which partially destroyed the C.P.R. roundhouse here last night will not exceed about $10,000 it was learned today. While the building itself was not demolished the loss is chiefly suffered in the three locomotives which were pro to the flames.

HAIRDRESSERS DRIVEN OUT

Toronto, June 1 (CP)—Twenty-five women, customers and hairdressers were driven into the street today when fire and smoke swept through the Yonge street Parlors on downtown Yonge street. The blaze was delayed 45 minutes as firemen fought to subdue the stubborn blaze.

MAJ. MURRAY IN NEW YORK

Director of B. B. C. Will Not Discuss Radio Report

OTTAWA, June 1.—(CP)—After placing his final report in the hands of the government, Major W. E. Gladstone Murray, Director of Public Relations for the British Broadcasting Company left today for New York where he will spend the weekend before sailing for England. Major Murray first visited Canada since the end of April acting in an advisory capacity with regard to the nationalization of the Dominion's broadcast services. He declined to discuss the report which he has made.

Some of Major Murray's recommendations have already been implemented, it was said, but there is much yet to be done to place the operation of a national system on a sound basis. A distinction should be drawn between the licensing and executive functions of the commission. The commission should act solely as the legislative body as trustees for the public, and should not be required to make decision, he stated. These, in his opinion, should be carried out by the executive staff.

LONG JOURNEY FOR LOVE OF SON IS FUTILE

San Jose, Cal., June 1 (AP)—A 65-year-old mother's weary journey of love was futile.

Knapsack on back, Mrs. Nancy Molyneaux trudged into the hamlet of Morgan Hill 300 miles away, to attend the funeral of her favorite son. She arrived two days after his burial in the Potters field.

The son, James Berry, 20, was stabbed during a fight among itinerants May 16. He died May 18.

With aching heart, blistered feet and the knapsack, Mrs. Molyneaux begins her walk back to her home in the mountains.

JAMES HAWTHORNE IS CHOICE OF LIBERALS

Candidate in County Chosen Standard-Bearer at Meeting Here

Peterboro, June 1.—Liberals of the new provincial riding of Peterboro County yesterday nominated ex-Alderman James Hawthorne as their standard-bearer in the next provincial election campaign. He succeeds the choice of the county Liberals at their nomination meeting held in Peterboro during the ridings of Peterboro' City and Peterboro' County were combined for election and nomination meeting.

Mr. Hawthorne for years has taken a keen interest in municipal affairs. Several others were placed in nomination, but withdrew, leaving the convention to Mr. Hawthorne.

TEN MILLION DOLLAR APPEAL REJECTED

Newfoundland Wins Suit Before the Privy Council.

St. John's, Nfld., June 1 (CP)—The Privy Council has upheld the declaration of the Newfoundland Supreme Court rejecting claims of the Reid-Newfoundland Company for about $10,000,000 damages from the Newfoundland government in connection with timber grants.

A message to this effect was received here today from Hon. L. E. Emerton, Newfoundland's Minister of Justice, who is now in London. "Judgment for us on all points," stated the Minister in his despatch to the government.

NO INFORMATION

London, June 1.—(AP)—The House of Commons failed again today to pry from Neville Chamberlain, Chancellor of the Exchequer, a statement of the British policy in regard to the $75,250,000 war debt instalment due the United States June 15.

WOMAN LOSES 28lbs.

Trips Upstairs Like a 2-Year-Old

A woman writes:—"Three months ago, after much argument, I was persuaded against my will to try Kruschen Salts to reduce my weight, which was 222 lbs. I had tried other things, but all to no avail. After three weeks of Kruschen I had lost 7 lbs. 2 ozs., and I felt five years younger. I really must say I feel a different woman, in fact 10 years. I have now lost 28 lbs. to date, and while before, to go upstairs was a great effort, now, as my husband says, I trip up like a two-year-old."—(Mrs.) S.G.B.

Kruschen Salts keep the system free from the unwanted waste matter. Unless this wastage is regularly expelled it will give rise to rheumatic and other body poisons. And Kruschen is known to take definitive measure of storing this poison-breeding waterfall out of the way in the form of fatty tissue. Unlike most salts, Kruschen is not merely a laxative. It is a combination of six salts which have a tonic influence upon every organ, gland, nerve and fibre of your body.

Why hunters and trappers find no fox fur bearing animals some years is accounted for by one government biologist, who is convinced that diseases of epidemic proportions sweep the animal population some years.

DIAGNOSIS AT EARLY STAGE FOR ANAEMIA

Medical Association of Ontario Hear Experts

Hamilton, Ont., May 31—(CP) — Dealing with the part played in the treatment of pernicious anaemia through the use of liver and liver extracts the full benefit of such treatment is denied by failure of proper diagnosis in the early stages, Dr. A. G. McGhie of Hamilton told members of the Ontario Medical profession today.

Speaking before delegates to the 54th annual convention of the Ontario Medical Association, which opened today, Dr. McGhie urged doctors to take the greatest of care in early diagnosis through more care in history taking and the making of blood tests in routine health examinations. The practice of taking liver in "a haphazard way for all types of anaemia" was condemned by Doctor McGhie.

Technical paper of numerous other subjects were presented and discussed by the delegates, in attendance from all parts of the province. One of the distinguished guests was Dr. Louis H. Clerf, Professor of Bronchoscopy and Esophagoscopy of Jefferson Medical College, Philadelphia, who spoke on "Bronchoscopy in the diagnosis of pulmonary disease."

The bronchoscope, he said, is largely responsible for the diagnosis of bronchial carcinoma, previously seldom diagnosed during the patient's life.

Delirium

Suggestion that the term psychiatry should be substituted by the word "Delirium" was made by Dr. G. H. Stevenson, of Whitby who described the former term as a "bogey, implying a specialty which should be avoided." He said it is very ill defined, vague type of pseudo medical practice." He thought it should be considered as a large part of the general practice, and under the suggested term would include "deranged-all-thingual mental symptoms.

"Delusions and delusions of the mind, the endocrine glands and the sympathetic nervous system as observed in the neuroses and psychoneuroses" was the title of a paper by Dr. Goldwin W. Howland, of Toronto. Dr. J. J. Williams, Medical Superintendent of the Queen's Hospital at Hamilton spoke of "The chronic effects of epidemic encephalitis."

Another Hamilton delegate, Dr. J. Meurner Mullin stressed the potential dangers of influenza even in mild cases both in early and late stages and urged the public to use the clinical thermometer so that a physician might be called immediately any danger was indicated. The x-ray, he said, will demonstrate definite changes in the lung not revealed by other forms of physical examination.

Blood Pressure

Clinical and insurance aspects of blood pressure were described by Dr. J. M. Livingstone of Kitchener who spoke of the ailment both low and high as "a familiar trait regarded as associated with special constitutes. Constitutional low blood pressure shows no tendency to become progressively lower, he said, but so, called constitutional high blood pressure is liable to become permanently higher.

Speaking on surgical obliteration of pulmonary cavities Dr. E. C. Janes, of Hamilton, said if the presence of such a cavity lay undiscovered it would lead to a fatal issue within a few years. Such a person was not only a menace to himself but also to the public if left at large. Public health measures, aiding at lowering of the death rate and incidence of tuberculosis fail if such people are not effectually dealt with, he said.

Through patients as a rule come to operation at a later stage of disease in the smaller town than in the urban centre, Dr. G. F. McFadden, of Strathroy, said he was able to report the mortality rate in the former case as satisfactorily low.

Other subjects dealt with were the mortality of appendicitis, by Dr. W. C. Doyle, of Windsor; the diseased gall bladder, by Dr. Herbert B. Mof, fatt, Ottawa; Diagnostic Methods Employed in Urology, by Dr. N. E. Berry, Kingston; Skin Lesions of the face and their treatment by Dr. E. J. Trow, Toronto and Treatment of varicose veins by Dr. T. A. J. Duff, also of Toronto.

The injection treatment of varicose veins was safe, effective and the treatment of choice with very few exceptions, said Dr. Duff. By this treatment, he said, patients were able to continue their occupations and were relieved of operation, hospital and other expenses, and could be given successfully by anyone experienced with intravenous technique. The injection treatment of hemmorrhoids was also scientifically sound, he concluded.

Not a Chance in a Million at Sing Sing

Intuition That is Almost Uncanny, Enables Warden Lewis E. Lawes to Sense Any Movement For a General Jail Delivery And Nip Plot in The Bud

River-Sharpshooting Prison Guards — Gas Bombs and Most Prisoners' Desire to Play Game Square With Author of "20,000 Years in Sing Sing" Forestalls Any Abortive Attempt to Beat Law of Averages

By
HAMILTON THOMPSON
(Personal Representative to Lewis E. Lawes Warden of Sing Sing Prison)

Not a chance in a thousand! Nor in Twenty Thousand! Any day or week—month or year—of the "20,000 YEARS IN SING SING."

Not a chance in a million for a wholesale jail delivery in Sing Sing prison.

It is not because Sing Sing's population is safeguarded by barriers of stone and steel—and by walls of brick and masonry; patrolled night and day, by an alert battalion of determined men armed with weapons of vicious—bullets of steel—and by gas—

There is something else—far more potent and devastating to the wiles of the most dangerous and cunning of the 3,200 criminals inmates of Sing Sing. There is the morale of the three hundred or more uniformed men who are sworn to their duty of guarding the most famous prison in the world.

An Unwritten Rule

There is the psychological thing—the mental make-up of the average prisoner—the element which is an unwritten tenet observed religiously, although it may be unconsciously, by even the most desperate of prisoners—unless he be a thoroughly depraved yet because of Innoculated with Sing Sing ethics—and that is "Play the game square —and the Warden will give you a break."

And then there is the Warden at Sing Sing! He is one of the important reasons why there is not a chance in a million. And it is because of the almost uncanny perspicience of the one who has been described as "the man with a thousand eyes—a thousand senses" — Lewis E. Lawes, who rules over Sing Sing with the velvet hand, which is a veritable hand of steel.

One of the oldest "habitants"—and most experienced—a lifer, in fact—prisoners "inmitty." He is always two jumps ahead of us."

It is a matter of record that the intuitive instincts of Warden Lawes have on several occasions served to quell trouble in its embryonic—seeming to pick the symptoms out of the blue sky, as might have been, sensed if the Warden's prescience, or whatever this faculty may be called, had not come early into the breach, can be left to conjecture.

But, despite all these factors, there is always the one man in a million—one man doing a small fraction of the "20,000 Years in Sing Sing", who takes that one chance in a million. The Warden himself is ready. He knows it is bound to happen. He has counted on the subject, and the Warden's face goes blank. It is bad luck. Do not mention the possibility of trouble in his presence. Perhaps it is his intuition that has made Warden Lawes' reign in Sing Sing comparatively peaceful. Who can tell? Perhaps it is the one thing—this constant looking for trouble—that gives the Warden his prestige.

The Warden's Intuition

What is the secret—source—this intuition, if you will? Is it born of some mental development—a training, or instinct? Or is it a combination of both, with the collaboration of the under-born instincts existing in even the lowliest, of the bad men of the prisons—to be square with "a square guy?"

The Warden has reasons for his superstitions—that is, if he has them. Witness the day when a guest remarked on the quietness of the prison. The Warden agreed, and knocked on the wards out of his mouth, when pandemonium broke loose. Pistol shots sent the Warden scrambling to the outside. Years in Sing Sing" who knows all about that gun. But he is in the peculiar position of being unable to go near it—a hiding place. And, perhaps, he has become inoculated with the belief that he has no use for it, anyway. Let sleeping dogs lie.

It may seem odd to the uninitiated that the guards inside Sing Sing's walls are unarmed. They do not carry as much as a stick. Walking about—mingling freely with the prisoners—it might appear at first thought, as dangerous. But how much more dangerous if the guards did carry clubs—and one day, one was overpowered, and a gun fell into the hands of a prisoner, who ran amuck?

Armory Carefully Guarded

However, high up on top of those walls, are weapons enough to create respect in the minds of anyone thinking of trouble. In those many cornered towers are stationed eagle-eyed officers, ever watchful of all going on below and about them. Where he was met by a pointing guard. "Four men in 'A' Block, with guns—shooting their way out." The one chance in a million — that failed.

It was over in a few minutes. Tear gas bombs completed the subjugation of the four desperate men. One of them committed suicide.

The most serious factor of the incident, was the question. Where did they get the guns? Were they smeaked in by visitors? That seemed impossible. Yet there they were—and with tragic results.

The Warden came to a decision; he solved the problem in his own mind. The decision was that he himself had brought in the guns. That is, they were concealed, without his knowledge, of course, somewhere about his automobile by some one on the outside; by someone who knew of the Warden's route to the city and back, and who worked cleverly and fast. That sense of knowing was knocked—so that there can be no repetition.

Just how many guns were in the hands of those men was questionable, too. The Warden had reasons for believing that, there was, at least, one gun that had not been turned in. Nor was it ever located definitely.

One gun—loose in a prison—in the hands of a desperate man—is a terrible menace. Where is that gun?

The mystery gun! The Warden has his idea. Perhaps, it is intuition again. But he believes he knows just its whereabouts. How he knows is not important. The important thing is that the missing gun is where no prisoner can get it—without someone detecting him in the act.

One Gun Still Loose

There is one man—if not more—of the 3,500 men on the "20,000 Years in Sing Sing" who knows all about the gun that failed.

It was over in a few minutes. Tear gas bombs completed the subjugation of the four desperate men. One of them committed suicide.

The most serious factor of the incident, was the question. Where did they get the guns? Were they smeaked in by visitors? That seemed impossible. Yet there they were—and with tragic results.

The Warden came to a decision; he solved the problem in his own mind. The decision was that he himself had brought in the guns. That is, they were concealed, without his knowledge, of course, somewhere about his automobile by some one on the outside; by someone who knew of the Warden's route to the city and back, and who worked cleverly and fast. That sense of knowing was knocked—so that there can be no repetition.

Just how many guns were in the hands of those men was questionable, too. The Warden had reasons for believing that, there was, at least, one gun that had not been turned in. Nor was it ever located definitely.

One gun—loose in a prison—in the hands of a desperate man—is a terrible menace. Where is that gun?

The mystery gun! The Warden has his idea. Perhaps, it is intuition again. But he believes he knows just its whereabouts. How he knows is not important. The important thing is that the missing gun is where no prisoner can get it—without someone detecting him in the act.

Quick Relief for Women

Women need not endure periodic pains and headaches. They can spare themselves this suffering by taking ZUTOO TABLETS. Mrs. Allen Wright, of Fulford, who was relieved in 30 minutes of severe pain and headache, states saying: "Every woman in the land should know about ZUTOO TABLETS and what they will do." Just try the tablets and know for yourself how quickly they stop the pain.

CHAPTER XXXIX

"I SUPPOSE," Rolf said, "I couldn't persuade you that I didn't intend to do that—I mean that wasn't what—oh, hang it all, I'm sorry!"

Janet did not answer. She had drawn away from him and in the darkness he could not see her eyes. Only the shadowy oval of her face.

"Well, I guess you don't believe me," he went on, "but it's true. It's just like everything else lately. Everything goes wrong. Oh, Janet, I'm in such a mess!"

"What's the matter, Rolf?"

"Everything."

"You mean there's something wrong at the office?"

"I mean there's something wrong everywhere! At the office. At home. Everywhere I go. I had a row with McPhail this morning. Well—almost a row. Blamed me because we lost the Liberty job and because Horner's wouldn't come through with a contract. Can I help it if they change their minds? Oh, what's the use! It's the same thing all the time—"

"But why should he blame you for that? Did you handling contracts?"

"Well, you see," Rolf began awkwardly, "after we got back from White Sulphur Springs Betty thought I should have a more important job. She talked to her uncle and he agreed that I could take charge of the better contracts—on commission. But with times the way they have been it's only natural we'd lose a little business, isn't it? Everyone else has."

"Yes," Janet said doubtfully, "I suppose it is."

"That's what I wanted to talk to you about!" His tone was eager now. "Do you think I better get a job at 'Every Home'? They've never taken on anyone in Hamilton's place have they? I'd like to cut loose from the Atlas Agency. That would show them! Because I came here without much experience no-body will listen to me. If I could get a job like Hamilton's—I"

"I don't know," Janet put in doubtfully. "They've cut down on the staff. Of course I don't know how things are going lately but when I left Mr. Hamilton said they were going to try to get along without taking anyone else on."

"But they can't do that!"

"You could try, of course. Mr. Chambers would be the one to see."

"Chambers! I'll remember. That was another thing I wanted to ask you. Oh, boy, I hope I can put this over! I'll show those birds yet."

"I'm afraid they wouldn't want to pay very much."

ROLF'S laugh was bitter. "Well, I'm not getting so much now! That's another thing that makes me sore at McPhail. It takes an awful lot to go around with this crowd of Betty's."

"Yes, I should think it would."

"It takes a lot of dough—and we I don't know! Sometimes I get pretty tired of it. Parties or something going on every night. I'd rather stay home lots of times but Betty always wants to go."

"I shouldn't think you could do much work and go to parties every night."

"I can't. I've tried to tell Betty that but she won't listen. Betty and I haven't been getting along so well the last few weeks. You see she—"

"Please!" Janet protested. "I'd rather not hear about it, Rolf."

"All right." He moved nearer. "It's like old times talking to you, Janet. Helps a fellow to get things off his chest. You always understand about everything."

The moonlight on the patch of grass had shifted and was coming nearer to them. Janet said, "I think I'd better go in now, Rolf."

"What's the hurry? I haven't had a chance to talk to you for weeks. Don't go yet!" He caught her hand.

"Oh, but I must. Really—it's getting late and somebody will be looking for me or the telephone might ring. Lucy isn't here tonight."

"All the more reason to stay!"

She shook her head. "No. I can't. You're not mad about anything, are you?"

"No."

"I mean—about what happened?"

"No, Rolf. I'm not mad. And I hope you get the job at 'Every Home' only I can't stay any longer to talk about it. I—I really must go!"

"Please!"

"But I must!" She pulled her hand from his. "Good night, Rolf," she said and fled up the walk toward the house.

Inside the hall was dark and she stood for a moment, leaning against the door. She closed her eyes and pressed her hands over them as if to shut out the memory. Nothing could do that! Nothing!

Slowly she made her way up the stairs to her room.

Painful Piles

(Is Quick—No Cutting—No Salves

Thousands who have Itching Piles or protruding piles have not yet learned that quick and lasting relief can only be accomplished with an internal medicine. Neither salves nor suppositories remove the cause.

Bad circulation of blood in the hemorrhoidal veins is responsible. These hemorrhoidal veins are flabby, the bowel walls weak—the parts almost dead. To get rid of Piles an internal medicine must be used to stimulate the circulation drive out the stagnant blood, heal and restore the affected parts.

Dr. J. S. Leonhardt after years of study, has found such internal Pile remedy. He called his discovery HEM-ROID tablets and guarantees that if money refunded if they do not rid you of Pile misery.

MRS. CURTIS put down the letter she was reading. She said, "Janet, you're looking pale this morning. Don't you feel well?"

Morning sunlight streamed through the bedroom window. Mrs. Curtis, wearing a negligee of orchid silk, sat near the window and looked up at her accusingly.

"Why, yes, Mrs. Curtis. I—I didn't sleep very well but I'm feeling all right."

"You don't look it. I think you should see a doctor."

"Oh, but it's nothing. Really, I feel perfectly all right!"

Mrs. Curtis said, "Hm! Well, I'm sure I don't want you getting sick. If you don't look better tomorrow I want you to telephone Doctor Roberts."

An hour later Janet slipped into her own room, brought out a box of rouge and touched her cheeks with color. She was careful to do the same thing next morning and noth-ing more was said about a visit from the physician.

Rolf telephoned Wednesday afternoon. He said, "Got something to celebrate, Janet. The boss came across with a raise. Do you suppose you could go to dinner with me?"

"I'd love to but I'm afraid I can't get away."

"Well, then, how about seeing a movie? That's about all there is to do in town."

She said she thought she could manage that and agreed to be ready at eight o'clock.

It was promptly at eight that the little roadster appeared before the door of the brick house. Janet answered the ring, wearing her hat and coat, and a few minutes later they were off.

THE movie proved to be only middling entertaining. It was a gangster affair with a great deal of shooting and underworld warfare. As they came out of the theatre Jeff said, "Where'l I think I need air after that. What about you?"

"Let's drive out on the hill road," Janet suggested. "I like it out there."

They got into the roadster and headed for the hill road. But this time when they came to the turn overlooking the lights of the city Jeff did not stop.

Janet said, "Tell me about the raise. How did it happen?"

"Nobody could have been more surprised than I was," Jeff told her. "The boss just called me in this morning and said that from now on I was to take charge of the department and the salary would go up $5. Honestly, for a minute I thought he was kidding."

"I'm awfully glad, Jeff. You work hard and you deserve it."

"Well, I'm going to try to." He patted her hand where it rested on her.

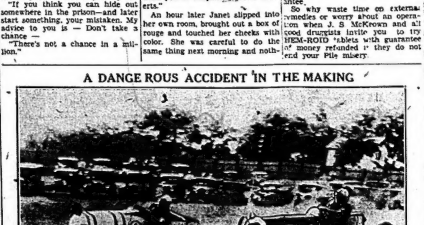
"I'm going away from Lancaster," Janet announced.

"I know."

She nodded her head affirmatively. "I've thought it all out and it's the only thing for me to do. Should have gone long ago. I'll stay a few more weeks so that I'll have more money and then I'll be leaving."

"But where will you go?"

"I'll settle that later. There are lots of places to go. I'm sick of Lancaster and everything in it. The people—"



"Do you mean that?"

Janet turned and put a hand on his arm. "I don't mean a word about you, Jeff. You're the one real friend I have! No matter where I go I'll never forget you."

There was silence between them. All at once the young man let out a muffled exclamation and his foot on the brake. On the road ahead Janet saw two figures—a man and a girl. There was something dark behind them.

"Let's see what this is." Jeff said as the car came to a halt.

Russ Kitchen and Petes' Bats Bats too Potent for Nats Locals Losing Game 9-1

Petes Now on Top Rung in Loop Race Without a Loss

SCULLY HURT

Hit on Head With Pitched Ball And Has Slight Fracture

Behind the superb pitching of Russ Kitchen, their fire-ball hurler, the Peterboro senior baseball club defeated the Belleville Nationals at the local ball yard by the score of 9 to 1 in a game that literally rang out with Peterboro base hits and revenge, the swatsmiths of the Petes blasted out sixteen juicy hits from the offerings of Ernie Holmes who started on the hilltop for the locals and Alex Weir who assumed the mound for the first time this season. Kitchen, on the other hand, pitched a steady game and limited the local batters to but six hits, six of which bob one Scully Smith's double, was of the extra base nature.

Errors of omission rather than errors of commission spelled defeat for the Belleville crowd who reped to the cellar position in the C.O.B.L. while the Petes assumed the league leadership following the tilt. Manager Mills elected Ernie Holmes, ex-Petes' moe hurler, to strike out his last year's team mates but he was forced to give way to a pitch hitter in the fifth inning after which 'Alex' Weir came to the locals' relief as a hurler and pitched a creditable four frames.

Every Player Used.

Manager Mills injected every available player on the bench into service to evade defeat but without avail when Kitchen started to settle down in the pinches. Coach "Knotty" Lee of the Petes was justified in toeing Kitchen against the locals as the fire-ball hurler assumed command of the game early in the tilt and literally coasted home to victory.

Of the six stingy hits passed out by Kitchen, Manager Mills collected two, with Sonny Green duplicating his leader's efforts by blasting out a brace of hits. Scully Smith and Ken Chambers were the only other two Nationals to connect safely. Ike Batten, at third for the Petes, led the visitors when he entered the hall of fame by having a perfect day at bat as well as in the field. Tommy Foley, another classy fielder of the Petes, led the visitors to the total number of hits when he hit safely the first four times he faced the local pastedrumen. In fact every Peterboro player collected a hit with the exception of Fred Ashton, their lanky second baseman, who tended to the hurling duties rather than the collecting of base hits.

The locals' lone score came in the fifth inning after Roy Smith had walked, went to second as Chamber's single and to third on Morgan's sacrifice out later to score on Ukrank's long fly to right. Again in the sixth the locals threatened but their punch was stopped in the bud when Umpire "Shiner" Johnson called Sonny Green out at the plate on a close decision for the final out. In the ninth the locals again rose to combat Kitchen's efforts but failed after filling the pathways to the limit.

Petes Run Wild.

The Petes scored a brace in the initial frame when Burton scored on Foley's double and after advancing on Scully's single Foley crossed the plate on a passed ball. In the fifth the Lee-couched crew added three more, when Burton walked, Hollingsworth singled, the former scoring on Foley's subsequent single and Hollingsworth crossing the plate on Scully's single. Foley later counted a run after Rogers had flied out to centre, Rogers and Batten scored for the Petes in the seventh on Burton's double while Calladine, running for Scully, who had been hit and forced to retire, scored on Batten's hit in the eighth and the ninth run coming when Kitchen, after being safe at first on Weir's error, scored on Hollingsworth's single.

A rather unfortunate incident occurred in the eighth when Frank Scully, classy second baseman of the Petes, sustained a fractured skull when hit on the head by a pitched ball at the hands of Pitcher Weir. Scully was later rushed to the office of a local physician where medical attention was received and is now resting nicely in the Belleville General Hospital.

The Nationals, after having completed nine of the heaviest schedules of their career during the opening part of the season, journey to Kingston on Friday to meet the champion Ponies.

SANITY TO BE STUDIED

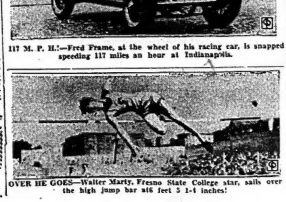
BOWLING GREENS DECLARED OPEN

Mayor Tice Officiates Before Large Number of Bowlers

Mayor Tice officially opened the new Belleville Bowling greens at the Exhibition Park last evening when a large number of interested lawn bowlers and interested spectators were on hand.



Six rinks participated in the opening night ceremonies with President L. E. MacLean's rink winning the honors of the evening. Over 40 members of the club were on hand to usher in the season, which promises to be one of the most enthusiastic ever enjoyed locally.

Parks Commissioner R. E. Colling represented the local Parks Board at the inaugural opening and spoke on behalf of the commission. The greens are reported to be in excellent condition with the result that keen bowling was in evidence all night.

The local 'bowling greens, now situated at the Exhibition Park, consist of 12 new and adequate greens, which have been weathering for the past 20 months and now present a cushion-like appearance, which adds considerably to the assurance of good bowling. But six greens are being used for the first half of the present season, however, with the remaining six being pressed into service later in the year so as not to over-work the young grass the first season. Lawn bowling will be enjoyed by the members of the local club nightly this summer. New and adequate quarters have been afforded the members in their club house.

Play-off Arrangement Should Make Interesting Series

(By Hugh S. Fullerton, Jr., Associated Press Sports Writer)

The first experiment with the playoff system devised by the International League magnates last winter still is a long way off—so far that most of the fans haven't even begun to think about it—but if the clubs keep on going at their present pace it ought to make an interesting series.

Two clubs from each division, Newark, Toronto, Rochester and Baltimore are filling the four first division berths and the distance between first and fourth place is only a game and one-half. This alone would bring a prospect of a stiff battle for the pennant if the teams were to start it now, but further interesting light is thrown on the subject by a glance at the records. This reveals that the fourth place Baltimore Orioles have by far the best record against the other first division clubs and none of the others have been able to break even against their strong club.

The standing of the games played among the four first division clubs goes like this

	Won	Lost	P.C.
Baltimore	15	7	.682
Newark.	9	10	.474
Rochester	10	13	.435
Toronto.	10	14	.417

Toronto and Rochester, in addition, have been carrying on a lively rivalry between themselves with second place in the standing at stake. They wound up their last series all square with two victories apiece and Toronto holding second by a half-game when the Leafs came through with a garrison finish yesterday to win the final game 5-4.

Toronto scored all its runs off Tony Kaufman with one out in the ninth. Ike Boone, Bill Lawrence and Murray Howell hit successive singles. Bill Brubaker drew a walk and then Bob Smith cracked a triple that tied the score. Ervin Brame followed with another two bagger to win his own game after he had been nicked for 13 hits.

The only other game yesterday saw the last place Buffalo Bisons add another to Montreal's string of defeats, winning 7-4 behind Bill Gould's six-hit pitching.

The Baltimore-Newark and Jersey City-Albany games were postponed because of wet grounds.

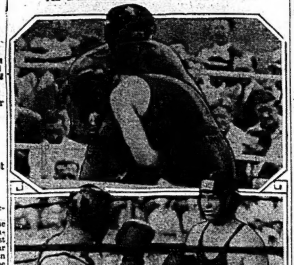
Carey Drops Out of Charmed Circle by Failure to Hit



(By the Canadian Press)

Only two members of the International Big Six were in action yesterday and one of them, Tom Carey, Rochester shortstop, lost his place in the charmed circle. Getting only one hit in four trips, Carey dropped three points to .322 and the tie for sixth place was broken. Ike Boone, out of the sextette Boone the only other member in action, got one hit in four tries and eased five points to .423.

Both Cubs And Cards Strike Their Stride And Are Dangerous

YANKS DIVIDE

With Senators Engage in Slug-fest at The Capital

(By Hugh S. Fullerton, Jr., Associated Press Sports Writer)

With the improvement in the form of their western rivals, the St. Louis Cardinals and Chicago Cubs, the league leading Pittsburg Pirates have found the going considerably tougher in the National League.

In the past week of so the Cubs and Cardinals have struck what looks like their best stride and at the same time the Pirates have been more or less in a slump.

Pittsburgh couldn't do a thing with the pitching of Charley Root yesterday and today Chicago handed the Pirates a 5-1 defeat. Took the series two games to one and left the losers in a virtual tie with St. Louis for the league lead. The Cardinals, having played two more games, were five points to the rear. They were idle yesterday. The triumph, the seventh in the last eight games for the Cubs, left them only a game and a half behind the third place New York Giants. Root gave the team his 11th hit pitched shut-out ball up to the eighth while Pirate errors started the Cubs rally to an easy victory.

The other National League games scheduled yesterday, Brooklyn at New York and Boston and Philadelphia, both were halted by wet grounds.

American League

The leading American League struggle, the New York Yankees against the second place Washington Senators, remained unchanged as they broke even in a double header that concluded their series. Washington came through with five runs in the eighth inning to take the opener after slugfest 12-7 and the Yanks came back in the second clash, piling up eight runs in the first two frames to win 9-7.

The two teams accumulated 49 hits, good for 75 bases, in the two games and 11 pitchers saw service, eight in the first game. Herb Pennock, who pitched the second contest for the Yanks, was the only pitcher to go the route. Lazzeri socked his eighth home run in the opener and Gehrig connected with one in the second game.

Only one other American League clash had an open date.

Knocks and Boosts

Although the Nationals were unsettled with but three errors of omission. Although errors of omission do not appear on the box score they are felt on the field and during the game to a degree that is sometimes astounding. Last evening's performance proved to be one of those performances.

Before any alibis are tabulated one must give Ross Kitchen the Sen's share of the win for the Peries. Kitchen hurled a masterful game and proved his worth in the pinches. Cosch Knotty Lee had his charges "on their toes" from the drop of the hat and take it from us that spirit of initiative goes a long distance towards winning ball games. A team that won't be beat, can't be beat, and that's the spirit in which the Peries presented themselves last evening.

Failure to hit with men on the paths has been the downfall of the Nats for some time past. Of course Kitchen relieved the pressure first hitter every inning but two, which again puts a club in the hole. On the other hand Manager Mills' charges are rather young and inexperienced and we feel that they will make things tough for most of the teams they meet later in the season. Just last season the Nationals lost their first few starts, but they finished in the money, so we're far from being discouraged as yet. Remember the locals have one in the bag already. Here's hoping they can make it two when they battle the Ponies in Kingston on Friday.

Umpire "Shiner" Johnson came in for more than his share of the well known "frozen cheer" when he called Sonny Green out at the plate in the sixth but following the decisive victory the incident was forgiven.

Stepping up their schedule some the local Senior Men's Softball League opens this evening at the Meadowvale Park when Eddie Shapiro's McNabbs meet the South End A. C. In the league opener the McNabbs have taken over the franchise at first vacated by the Cities Service Oil Company. The Wall Street play-off game has been postponed until Friday evening.

Apparently something went amiss regarding the local athletes who performed under the banner of the B.C.I. down at Kingston the week. Instructor Partridge, who incidentally did not accompany the team to the town, received communication from the Ontario Athletic Commission registering as to why some of the local winners had not been registered previous to the meet. The answer was quite simple as far as Mr. Partridge was concerned — the majority of the local athletes had not attained the proper percentage in their examinations to allow them to qualify. Those who did qualify during their school term failed to make the standard at the Kingston meet and therefore are not eligible to compete in the final provincial meet in Toronto.

The only local members of the team to equal the standard at Kingston, Dick Philp and Jack Morgan, were never entered and will not represent the B.C.I. at Toronto. Mr. Partridge is up in arms over the actions of the local athletes following his qualification, and a few of the juniors and intermediates did not equal the standards set up by the commission, there is a possibility that they may be afforded special dispensation and be allowed to compete in Toronto. Only scholars who have attained their average marks during examinations will receive any recommendation from Mr. Partridge providing this special dispensation is granted.

With the resumption of the Hastings County Junior League on Saturday when the B.A.A.A. kids play the Wellington juniors, junior baseball will take its proper place in the local sport world. The Moose kids are practicing this evening at the Fair Grounds while the Trenton Y. C. Cyclones are hard at it up at the Alemite Field.

Letters to the Sports Editor

Ontario Intelligencer:
St. Winnett Ave., Toronto May 30.
Dear Sir;

We are looking for out of town softball games and would like to play a game in your city if we could meet up with one of your teams there, and not knowing any team Managers there we wonder if you could oblige us by putting this notice in print. If you could we would be very much obliged.

C. Oliver,
Royal Arcanum Softball Team.

Royal Arcanum Softball team of Toronto, would like to hear from a fast Intermediate or Senior softball team from Belleville in regards to playing in Belleville on a Saturday night, date to be arranged. Anybody interested please write to C. Oliver, 81 Winnett Ave. Toronto.

B. C. I. JUNIORS WIN MILE RELAY

O. S. D. Anchor Man Collapses Near Tape And Does Not Finish

Six relay teams faced the barrier yesterday afternoon in the annual junior school relay race which was run at the fair grounds. The race, which was of the one mile nature with each team using four runners each running 440 yards, was won by the B.C.I. and V.S. relay team in a struggle which saw the anchor runner of the O.S.D. team who had led the parade of sprinters the majority of the mile, collapse when within a few feet of the finishing tape and was unable to complete the distance.

The B.C.I. juniors with Edgar Muir, Howard Kerr, Jack Dickens and Don Wood were the day with Queen Mary finishing second. St. Michael's Academy, Victoria fourth, Queen Alexander fifth and the O.S.D. last. The O.S.D. team, which led the runners the majority of the distance, was composed of Gordon Evans, Jim Spencer and Dalton Storring, while the second place O.M.S. team ran Arvold and Jack Dracup, Tom Sherry and Wade Tripp running.

The time set up was rather fast for juniors when the B.C.I. team crossed the tape in 4 minutes and 39 seconds with the second team finishing in 4 minutes 47 seconds the time made up by the Y.M.C.A. with Ralph Morden as the official of the day.

The remaining three teams were composed of:

St. Michael's Academy — Frank Dwyer, Ted Kenny, Harold Davis.

Queen Victoria School—G. Daffoe, W. Williamson, N. Yerrow, and J. Peoples.

Queen Alexander School — James Stone, Ralph Rushlow, James Johnson, John Knott.

FIELD DAY ON FRIDAY

Women Members of Belleville Golf Club to Hold Annual Contests

The annual field day for the ladies of the Belleville Golf Club will be held on Friday over the nine hole course and an excellent day of the sport is expected. In the morning a medal play of eighteen rounds will be conducted and the draw has been posted on the bulletin board at the club house. It is the wish of Mrs. A. H. Keichesan, the ladies captain, that all intending to compete be conversant with the time at which they are to tee off so as to have the event run off before luncheon. The first draw will leave the tee at sharp nine o'clock and the others will be served at noon and in the afternoon there will be approved driving and putting competitions for all flights. The course is in perfect condition at present and some good scores will likely be turned in at the end of the day. This is one of the big events of the season at the popular east end course and all the lady members of the club are anxiously looking forward to the competitions.

TARZAN AND THE GOLDEN LION. No.

(Metropolitan New spaper Service) By Edgar Rice Burroughs.

Swarming down the jungle trail came the long awaited Gomangani reinforcements. "JUST IN TIME!" exclaimed Tarzan of the Apes. "Hasten!" he shouted, "the Bolgani are upon us. Come and avenge your wrongs." Gliding the other blacks about him, the ape-man leaped forward to meet the oncoming gorilla-men. Behind him, wave after wave of Gomangani rolled through the east gate of the Palace of Diamonds, carrying everything before them.

The shouting and the fighting worked Jad-bal-ja into such a frenzy that Tarzan with difficulty restrained him from springing upon friend and foe alike. And so frantic were the Gomangani with the bloodlust of revenge and so enthused with the first fruit of victory that they went fully as mad as the golden lion himself. The wavering wall of Bolgani was hurled back. No quarter was given and the fighting ended only when the last gorilla-man lay dead.

The battle over, Tarzan with his followers returned to the throne room from which the Lion of Diamonds had been disappeared. He summoned the headmen of each village to appear before him as "Gomangani of the Valley of the Palace of Diamonds," he addressed them, "this night have you won your freedom from the beast-masters that have oppressed you for so long. You have no leader capable of ruling you wisely and well. Choose one now."

"YOU! YOU!" cried voice after voice as the head men clamored to elect Tarzan their kind. "That may not be," replied the ape-man, "but there is one who has lived among you, knows your customs and hopes. He will make you a good kind," and Tarzan pointed to the old man. But he of the grey head looked at Tarzan in bewilderment. "Surely you will not desert me," he cried, "back would I go into the world of civilization from which all these years I have been buried."

Robert Montgomery and Madge Evans in "Hell Below" coming to the Belle Theatre soon.

To keep the sequence of events straight it now becomes necessary to follow the lawyer and the kangaroo into the dressing room. The Limey was completely outfitted with the kangaroo suit, except for the headpiece. He took a look at the kangaroo and then peeked out through a slit in the tent to the ring and became aware that his adversary was the "pellican"—the Yank with the moustache. The kangaroo made a leap for the Sergeant Major and was restrained with difficulty by its keeper who chained the animal to a post. With gestures and hopeful glances he urged the Marine to get into the ring

TUDOR VETERAN NOW AGED 96

Edward Tapp Still Maintains Good Health

Marmora—Edward Tapp of Glanmire, Hastings county, quietly celebrated his 96th birthday, Monday, at the home of his brother-in-law, William Dalton. Though able to be around as for former anniversaries, his health is not quite so good this year. When visited Sunday he complained of a pain in the back.

Born in London, England, in the year of Queen Victoria's accession to the throne, he has ever held her name in high regard. One of his cherished possessions is a framed biography of that beloved queen which, while recent years he has been able to read without the use of glasses. He has spent well over seventy years in Canada, forwarding and is its most interesting characteristic. For thirty years he was the assessor of that district.

"Ned," as he is more familiarly known, has the wishes of a wide circle of friends that he may reach the century mark.

Mr. Douglas Marett was in Toronto for a couple of days last week.

Announcement

Dr. and Mrs. Orazmie Mackechnie announce the engagement of their elder daughter, Helen Marjorie, to Travers Austin Carey, only son of Mrs. Gary of Ottawa and the late Archdeacon Carey of Kingston. The wedding will take place quietly the latter part of June.

Mr. R. Bloomfield of Toronto was in Marmora a couple of days last week.

REALIZE FINE SUM ON QUILTS

Frankford—Two of the parishioners of Trinity Church, Trenton, in the persons of Mrs. Albert Casey and Mrs. Arthur Osterhout, conceived the idea of making a quilt for a quilt to aid in reducing the debt on the Parish Hall. The result was a gorgeous piece of work. The centre of the cover was in the shape of a star consisting of 517 pieces placed on a rose ground and was very striking.

Names for the chances of being the lucky one to possess this work of art were sold, the proceeds amounting to over $30.00, a very substantial contribution indeed.

At a meeting of the Ladies' Guild held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Casey on Thursday evening of last week the lucky name was drawn. The names were all placed in a large can and the list securely fastened. The can was rolled about the room and tossed about so that the names should become well mixed. Then Miss Ruth, small daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Casey, was called on to draw out of the can a single slip of paper, which on scrutiny had inscribed on it the name of Mrs. Harry Turley. Mrs. Turley was delighted and prizes the cover very much.

The Wardens of Trinity Church wish to express their appreciation of the splendid work of Mrs. Casey and Mrs. Osterhout and the generous support of the many who purchased names as aid of the work.

The entertainment was so well carried out that when the people entered the church they found a table of the twelve represented the months of the year, in time of which the table was spread. On these tables a table in the centre of the decoration, a three-layer birthday cake beautifully decorated in pink, with 12 burning candles. The teacher, Mrs. William Montgomery and her class are to be congratulated on the success of the evening in their tasteful decoration by their guests. Rev. A. Poulter was chairman of the evening and was assisted by a choir and also for the opening chorus. Miss B. Bragg favored with a piano solo, and accompanied Gwendoline Elford in a vocal solo. A vocal trio was given by the Cole sisters, accompanied by their mother, Mrs. Calea Cole. A vocal solo by Laura Vosbourgh, accompanied by Mrs. L. H. Rowe. A play, "The Ladies' Aid Meeting" taken from the book, "Second Chance," by Nellie McClung, was given by teacher and the class. The old fashioned costumes added the humorous character of the play. Refreshments were served by the young ladies clearing dainty frilled aprons and at this time the president of the class, Irene Cole, thanked one and all for their presence. In response suggestions were made to the effect that this evening might be repeated.

Mr. and Mrs. William Easton and son, William of Rochester, N.Y., were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Terrill over the week end.

Sunday morning in the United Church was "Mena's Service." A men's choir and a special message given for the men by Rev. A. Poulter.

On Monday evening the basement of St. Andrew's church was beautifully decorated with spring flowers, it being the occasion of the last meeting of the season. The gathering was presided over by Mrs. Harper Rollins and the meeting opened with a hymn followed by prayer led by the pastor, Rev. J. A. Koffend. After a rollicking time spent in community singing, Mrs. Roger Meiklejohn, president of the Guild expressed her heartfelt thanks to the committee for the splendid co-operation shown by the members of the Guild during the past year in carrying out their work. Reports of the chairlady stated that in her eleven year membership in the Guild, she could not recall a more successful season than the past number. Mr. Koffend soon endowed a number of entertaining comic lantern slides. The only feature of the program was a novelty number presented by Mesdames H. Rollins, R. Williams, E. Ward, C. Baker, J. M. McGee and Miss Lillian Rollins which was accompanied by music played by Mrs. J. A. Koffend, Mrs. Roy Eggleston and Mrs. A. Murdoff then favored the audience with a duet. Mrs. Koffend again presiding at the piano. A number of old-time songs were sung after which a dress contest was staged. This proved very humorous and was won by Miss Nathan with Mr. Wm. Rollins a close second. Mrs. then put on several which were followed by a dance which served by the ladies of the guild. The meeting was brought to a close to end a most successful season. The Guild will not reopen until September.

CURE FOR WORLD BANKING PROBLEM IS ONE OF CHIEF AIMS SOUGHT IN LONDON

Highly Technical Problems of International Financing And Foreign Exchange Methods Will Confront The Delegates to Conference

MAY SET UP FUND TO STIMULATE LOANS

This is the last of a series of five articles, in which the Ontario Intelligencer and Courier Press Canada-wide survey the problems to be considered by the World Economic Conference opening in London on June 12. Today's article deals with capital movements and plans which have been suggested for a new international credit institution.

By H. K. REYNOLDS
Copyright by Ontario Intelligencer and General Press Canadian

London, June 1—The re-establishment of international financing, one of the highly technical problems to be considered by the London conference, is basically a banking problem, having to do with capital movements between nations and the handling of accounts of indebtedness.

To restore capital movements on a normal scale, the conference will consider the establishment of special credit institutions, such as a monetary normalization fund, as the establishment at the London conference.

The purpose of such a fund would be to stimulate lending, and might be administered by the Bank for International Settlements.

In the preliminary discussions of the necessity for breaking through capital inertia, it was thought by the experts at Geneva that progress could be made by creating an international credit institution, which would get its funds from banks of issue or from private sources.

Supported by the governments concerned, such a banking institution of this kind would get capital moving by granting new credits, it was argued.

Before the way can be cleared, however, for the operation of a new credit organization, the conference will have to consider the abolition of foreign exchange restrictions, which many countries, confron ted with adverse balance of accounts adopted artificial means to balance imports and exports of foreign currency.

Economists have found that such restrictions have not had the desired effect of improving balances, those exports from each country were up against similar barriers erected in other countries.

Existing indebtedness, of course, remains a prime factor in dealing with capital movements, and it has been set out in the draft agenda of the conference that arrangements relating to foreign debts would have to be made between the parties concerned when it became evident that balance of payments could not be restored owing to the threat of mass withdrawals of short-term deposits, or owing to the heavy charges resulting from the service of long-term debts.

Obstinate Cases of Hemorrhoids (Piles)

A well-known physician in a hospital and private practice discovered that the prescription now known as Moone's Emerald Oil diluted with equal parts of ordinary Olive oil, will help to relieve the most obstinate case of piles with but few applications, and stop all itching, burning, bleeding, and distress.

Sufferers should get a bottle of Moone's Emerald Oil and begin the treatment at once. It is a remedy that is easily applied, and the first application gives immediate relief and comfort. All good druggists have it, or can get it for you on short notice. For sale by Doyle's Drug Store and Dolan The Druggist.

EXPLOITATION IS CONDEMNED

Bay of Quinte Conference Hears Reports of Progress

Bowmanville, June 1—Dr. Hall, ph. Principal of Albert College, at Belleville, in presenting his annual report to the Bay of Quinte Conference here, said that the college which was in financial difficulties a year ago, has made a remarkable recovery, due to drastic economies and the response to his urgent appeal of a year ago. Dr. Hall reported that credit Bishop also reported. Donations at the college had materially improved thru' the Oxford Group Movement, which had made a highly found impression upon a number of the students.

To encourage a larger attendance, special scholarships are offered to young men in the Conference who pass their high school entrance examinations with honors.

The Conference rose and paid tribute to the work of Dr. Sterling, retiring President, at the close of the morning session.

At a layman's session in the afternoon Claude A. Winter's, President of the Conference Laymen's Association, speaking on the present liquor situation, took to task those members who placed their politics before principles. "There are many of our so-called temperance laymen" he said, "who would rather vote for their party than stand by their principles with regard to the liquor question." Mr. Winters highly commended the Ontario Government and Opposition on certain features of the regulation of beer and wine by the glass, put forward by the liquor interests. The laymen will voice their stand on the liquor question when it presents a resolution to the Conference. James Arden of Toronto, also addressed the laymen on Canadian Prayer League.

Committee Reports

At the afternoon session of the Conference, with the new President presiding, the reports of various committees were presented. One report included a debate when the Settlement Committee brought in a resolution giving its interpretation of duties with regard to lay supply. It was the opinion of the committee that where ordained and effective ministers were available that no lay supply should be placed in any charge. On the ground that a congregation had a perfect right to select a lay preacher if finances did not permit it to have an ordained man, the resolution met considerable opposition.

Rev. A. E. Robinson, explaining the stand of the committee, stated that where men were educated and trained for the work of the ministry it was not fair for laymen to take their positions. At the present time, he added, there were more ministers than there were charges, and the committee was of the opinion that ministers should be considered first. Despite the opposition the Conference carried the resolution by a large majority.

At the evening session, world service might, addresses were delivered by Rev. Peter Bryce, D.D., and Rev. D. W. McLachlan, D.D.

Dr. Bryce said they viewed with mis-ivings the large number of deportations and the secrecy surrounding them. Many immigrants were compelled to leave Canada to go to a land where poverty was grea-ter-ing. He declared the Dominion believed in free speech, said that prosperity could not return until the farmer received a fair price for his products, as a church, are against exploitation in any form, he said.

IN 60 MILES THIRTY LANGUAGES SPOKEN

Rev. R. Heine in Charge, Master of Ceremonies at Pageant

LONDON, Ont., June 1.—(CP)—Between London and Windsor, within 60 miles, there are no fewer than 30 languages spoken, according to Rev. R. Heine, himself master of 22 tongues. Mr. Heine is enroute to Winnipeg to take his work under the British and Foreign Bible Society after a 12 month tenure among immigrant residents in the border cities. On Sunday he spoke in four Border churches and in four different languages.

Here is the scene of snowbound planes at which a rescue party in wilderness on a remote slope of Mount Stevens, all of Grand Junction, Col. shown working. The occupants of Dr. De War, and Mr. and Mrs. Harold the plane were Dr. and Mrs. Victor De War and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Dr. De War, a licensed pilot, was called the "Flying Doctor of the Western Slope."

WHAT IS HOME WITHOUT A GARDEN?

Annuals for Window Boxes

The window and porch box season is approaching and the annual problem of plants for these decorative additions to the home arises For the sunny box, nothing is finer than petunias. The Balcony strain has early rapid progress and now has a finer color range, the Princess blue or purple type being a favorite because of its velvety texture. These are admirable plants, because of their long stems, which droop gracefully from the boxes.

Tall nasturtiums, to make long festoons of color, are excellent material for any sunny box. The dwarf, compact types of salvia will furnish brilliant scarlet all summer, and sweet alyssum will make a mist of white to droop over the edges.

Dwarf and half dwarf snap-dragons have been used with excellent effect as window plants, furnishing brilliant spikes all season. The fragrance nothing can displace the purple clusters of the heliotrope, easily raised from seed and always available in plants.

A plant or two of the night-scented stock in a corner of a porch box will prove a delight on summer evenings. It has no claims to beauty and looks like a bedraggled weed during the day, but at night it picks up and has a fragrance acts of a very spicy scent.

There are few annuals that will flourish in shady window boxes, will stand shade well.

For brilliant colors the fancy leaved caladiums have proved one of the most satisfactory and brilliant plants with tuberous begonias to add their huge and brilliant blooms. Both these must be purchased as bulbs, but they solve the problem of color in the shady window box which proves a problem as most of the annuals demand sun to give a good crop of bloom.

For vines the trailing vince, with its spring blue English ivy hold the place of favoritism A handsome annual vine to trail from the window box and furnish handsome leaf flowers is the thunbergia. It will stand shade well.

HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY OF TWEED DOES FINE WORK

Tweed—Full use is being made of the softball diamond at the park. Games are in progress between local organizations practically every night with beneficial results to the players and spectators alike.

The Horticultural Society has again planted annuals in the beds at Memorial Park. A marked change has taken place in the appearance of the residences and their surroundings since this Society was organized a few years ago. Perhaps no new without at least a bed or two of annuals and a number of residences would not suffer by comparison with those cared for by professional gardeners. Well-kept lawns, beautiful shrubs and borders of perennial and annual flowers are to be seen in all parts of the village.

Mrs. T. E. Moffat, B.A., is supplying on the High School staff during the absence of Miss E. Stuart.

Rev. R. S. Nicholson, minister of Tweed United Church and Mrs. W. S. Gordon are attending the annual session of the Bay of Quinte Conference at Bowmanville this week.

Mr. W. J. Austin of Fort Hope, spent the week end at his home.

Mr. G. E. Kerr was in Toronto on business.

Undoubtedly the finest display of tulips ever seen in Tweed is to be found at the United Church parsonage Rev. R. S. Nicholson, who is a lover of flowers has approximately two thousand tulips in bloom. Some of these are the finest tulips that have been produced. There is a wide range of color and the sight is one not soon to be forgotten. Visitors, who are many are gladly welcomed by Mr. Nicholson, who, incidentally, has also fine flowers in bloom.

Mr. G. H. Kerr has a display of tulips in bloom, while not as numerous as those of Rev. Nicholson, they are equally fine and a pleasure to see.

Miss E. Stuart, B.A., of the High School staff, is visiting examinations in Peterboro this week.

Mrs. D. Johnston and Mrs. S. Johnston, who have been spending some months with Mrs. J. M. G. Dales have returned to Bellwood.

EARLY BANKING DAYS IN WEST RECALLED

G. A. Weir Guest Speaker At Elm Hall Gathering Club.

At Wednesday evening's meeting of the 21st Battalion Club of this city, Mr. G. A. Weir, manager of the local branch of the Bank of Montreal, gave a most interesting and entertaining talk on the establishment of banking facilities of the early days in the Canadian Northwest. In the course of his remarks he related some of his own experiences in Saskatchewan and Manitoba in the early 1900's in which he and other members of the club were delighted with Mr. Weir's address and appreciation of it was voiced by the club's president, Captain F. H. Wills.

The club will not again meet until September, unless some unusual occurrence happens to necessitate its members being called together.

Denmark's moratorium law is reported to be reducing the number of forced sales of farms.

ROW 140 MILES TO SAFETY

One Fisherman Struck on Head With Top Mast

St. John's Nfld., June 1.—(CP)—A band of 23 hardy fishermen who rowed 140 miles in dories from Nain, Labrador, to safety after the vessel on which they were fishing was crushed by ice floes and sank in Hebron Bay, Labrador, with the loss of their dories.

One of the crew, Charles Crandell of Nain, was drowned, but the hospital reporting from hitherto unheard when he was attacked by the main rigging but the other 22 were.

The trip was a terrible experience. The boat was overcrowded, with 300 quintals of fish on board and a fresh breeze blowing before dawn Monday, when the vessel was on the lookout. Her main rigging suddenly crashing on the deck, killing Crandell instantly.

For two days the Newfoundland men pressed their dories southward, encountering Eskimos and finally reaching safety in the vessel would be among the 10 dories launched.

Rowing for two days and a night the men landed at St. John's last night.

NEW JERSEY STRONGLY IN FAVOR OF REPEAL

Out of 226 Delegates, Only Two Are For Dry

TRENTON, N.J., June 1.—(AP)—New Jersey wants the 18th amendment (United States Prohibition Law) out of the Constitution and says so today.

A definite wet sentiment growing in recent years for repeal was supported by both major state party organizations, resulted in election of 224 wet delegates of a total of 226 to a repeal convention. Through election technicalities, two dry, Samuel Iredell, of Bridgeton and W. S. Thomas of Milford, were elected.

Both states on record as favoring repeal are Delaware, Nevada, New York, Rhode Island, Wyoming, Wisconsin and Michigan.

WELLAND, Ont., June 1.—(CP)—After consultation with County Crown Attorney T. D. Cowper, K.C. it was decided not to hold an inquest into the death of Miss Elsie Storrow, Toronto Parachutist, Coroner Dr. Duncan Allison announced yesterday. Miss Storrow was killed in the course of a parachute jump at the Welland Airport Saturday.

"LOOKING FORWARD" IS A DRAMA OF FAMILY LOYALTY

The invigorating acting of Lionel Barrymore, the discerning direction of Clarence Brown, and a fine story by Sidney Howard, the author of the millions who have found their lives altered by the depression, make "Looking Forward" coming at the Capitol Theatre, matinee and evening, one of the most profoundly stirring photoplays we have seen for some time.

It is reported that this picture, before being released to the general public, was unveiled at the White House before President Franklin D. Roosevelt, who was so impressed by the inspiring story of hope and courage, that he permitted its producers, Metro Goldwyn Mayer-Cosmopolitan to use the title of his recently acclaimed book, "Looking Forward," for the picture. This feature will be really understood by those who view the new film drama and we recommend by its tremendously human theme.

Simple, direct, it tells its story in terms that everyone can understand. The background is a great London department store. Lewis Stone is the autocratic boss who owns the store; Barrymore is the old, faithful bookkeeper who has served almost a lifetime to his humble work. The woman in the life of each man affected by the drama is Stone's wife, Constance Bennett, and Barrymore's daughter, Phillips Holmes. Complications in his world crashes about his head.

Interwoven is a romance between Elizabeth Allan and Colin Clive as well as the story of Stone's son, Lyon as Henry Gibson, as Peggy Shannon as Daisy, and later turns into the love of Gibson for Allan Dale played by the incomparable Mary Boland of the dark locks.

Here are a few of the sensational features of the program, a wedding night escape of the bride to a place which is followed by a murder, the tampering with the automobile of the love-young sportsman, discovered by two ex-chorus girls, who have been chosen companions of the hero, the frustration of the plot to wreck the automobile, and the success of a plan by the publication of the news of the death of the bridegroom to bring the runaway bride back into the picture. There is also a strikingly melodramatic series of scenes in the police office when the bridegroom is under the threat of a revolver in the hands of Kay Curtis played by Glenda Farrell who says she is not going to be railroaded, nor is the innocent hero to be blamed for a murder which he did not commit, without an effort to save them on her part.

The cast is a fit vehicle for the melodramatic comedy and does very creditable work.

The second of the features on the bill was "The County Fair", a story of love and the race track, plots of gamblers, melodramatic events bordering about the winning horse, sensational escapes from the gamblers just as the last ring to start the entries off in the forty thousand dollar turf event. The story is packed with action, with love and clean play running out on top, of some dangerous plotting of gamblers. Hobart Bosworth is in the role of the impecunious horse owner who seems to gamble and who is so hard-pressed by money before the race that he has to permit his daughter to act as waitress and entertainer and has a horse feed account and plays it sympathetically. Marion Shilling plays the part of special heroine and Allen Ainsworth, William Collier as Jimmie Dolan is in his usual form.

FIRST NIGHT IN FILMLAND

Double Bill at Capitol Provides of Action, Thrills and Love Scenes.

"Girl Missing" comes tonight to the Capitol Theatre on Wednesday a series of thrills wrapped up in a plot melodramatic in the extreme and yet flowing with comedy through the clever acting of Glenda Farrell as one of two ex-chorus girls. It is an intrigue story, but with a clever solution that no one alone could make, for it has also brought in Guy Kibbee as Kenneth Van Duzen, Preston Gontschalk as Alvin Bradford, HelenWay, as Mrs. Bradford, and Louis Beavers as Julie. The love story is first written around Ben Lyon and Peggy Shannon as Daisy, and later turns into the love of Gibson for Allan Dale played by the incomparable Mary Boland of the dark locks.

Statistics of an insurance company show that fewer children are being killed by automobiles now than at any time in the last 10 years.

Benjamin Franklin's proposal for an Academy in Philadelphia written in 1749, embodied the most modern of educational ideals.

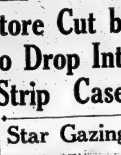
THIEVES CARRY OFF THOUSANDS IN JEWELS

Ceiling of Store Cut by Thieves Who Drop Into Room to Strip Cases

Diamonds and Watches in Loot in Successful Burglary

THIEVES ESCAPE



Largest Haul in Hamilton by Thieves in Many Years

Hamilton, June 2 (CP)—One of the largest hauls of jewelry made here in many years was taken today from the Harris jewelry store after thieves had broken their way into the shop situated beneath the Lyceum onic hall. Diamonds and watches valued at thousands of dollars were included in the loot. The show cases and even the windows facing on James street north were swept clean by the marauders.

Ascending the fire escape in the rear of the Masonic Temple building the thieves entered through a second floor window. They cut an opening in the floor over the jewelry store. The metal ceiling of the shop was then shattered. The thieves then was then shattered. The thieves then dropped into the room and stripped the display cases of watches and gems.

Extent of the loss has not yet been estimated but the proprietor, Benjamin Harris, believes it would run into several thousand dollars.

PRICE RISE LOWER TARIFF WALL SOUGHT

British Objects Outlined by Chamberlain in Commons

CURRENCY PACT

Three Objectives May Mean Solution of World Problems

(By George Hambleton, Canadian Press Staff Writer).

London, June 2 (CP Cable) — Neville Chamberlain, Chancellor of the Exchequer, announced in the House of Commons today objectives of the British delegation at the World Economic Conference which meets here June 12 would be:

(1) Increase of prices to a more satisfactory level.

(2) Currency understandings leading eventually to a return to a stable international money standard.

(3) Abolition or reduction of barriers to international trade.

"Revival of trade" Mr. Chamberlain declared, "depends in my opinion on the achievement of the objectives of these three main objectives."

The Chancellor declared a world driven by distress and necessity to positive action "cannot be denied." he said, had dropped to one-third of what it was four years ago, prices had fallen one-half and the results were disastrous. Agriculture, he continued, had been a severe drop in the standard of living, with a consequent reduction in their purchasing power, that had reacted on industrial countries. It was reflected in the world's 30,000,000 unemployed. "The first objective therefore, Mr. Chamberlain said should be to raise world prices to a more reasonable level and if possible, to maintain them there.

Revival of Trade

Revival of international trade, he said, was essential to increase in prosperity and that revival was bound up largely with securing political tranquility and general restoration of international goodwill and confidence.

Under the second objective, he continued, the aim of the British government was to bring about a stabilization of the relative purchasing power of currencies of the world from fluctuations having no relation to their intrinsic values.

Fluctuations of that kind, he said were fatal to ordinary progress of trade. The United Kingdom, he declared, was ready to join in one of sterling by creating an exchange equalization fund.

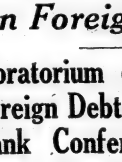
With reference to the third objective, Mr. Chamberlain said Germany were now 40 countries with exchange control. These hampered international trade he characterized as symptoms. To get the symptoms removed, he said, the causes must be removed. At the same time measures must be taken to avoid a international lending he did not see much chance of the exchange controls removed.

Regarding quota restrictions of imports, Mr. Chamberlain said he thought he saw "some yielding" in rigidity of views on'their necessity.

Moratorium on German Foreign Debts Expected; Bank Conference Ends

Recommendation, By Dr. Schacht Made to Reichstag

ACTION NEXT WEEK



Germany Will Not Allow Further Shortage of Gold

Berlin, June 2 (A.P.)—Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, president of the German Reichsbank, indicated today that early next week a moratorium would be declared on all German foreign debts, both long and short term.

At the conclusion of a five-day international conference with bankers, Dr. Schacht said in newspaper correspondents: "This puts the decision for further action straight up to the Reichsbank. Our decision, which is irrevocable, is that we will not permit further shortage of our gold and devisen (bills of foreign exchange)."

This was taken by everyone present as an announcement that Germany will declare a moratorium, at least until the decision of the World Economics Conference is made known.

FATHER BURNS SON INJURED AFTER BLAST

Celluloid Film Used in Preparation of Cement Catches Fire

DIES IN AGONY

Son Able to Rush From Blazing Building Although Burned

TORONTO, June 2.—(CP)—Trapped in his leather-cement factory by a blast which aroused the entire district, Arthur Butterworth, 61, today was burned to death, screaming in agony. Immediately after the first blast a second split the district and Arthur Butterworth, Jr., working with his father, plunged from the building with clothes in flames. He was badly burned but will recover.

Celluloid film used in the preparation of cement was being melted in the workshop and when it ignited the flames leaped through the building. Butterworth, Sr., was only able to move a few feet before he died.

Sections of the roof of the factory were blown high in the air and the fire which following instantly was so hot firemen were unable to remove Butterworth's body for some time.

Loss is estimated at $2,000.

FIND CANOE UPSIDE DOWN

All Hope of Students Being Found Alive Abandoned

Buffalo, N.Y., June 2 (AP)—The canoe of the two Canisius College sophomores missing on lake Erie was found floating upside down today 14 miles west of Port Colborne, Ont., by a coast guard boat.

No details were given in the brief radio message, which reported this. The coast guard boat was one of four which have been sweeping the lake since the two boys, Albert H. Abendroth, Jr., 19, and William E. Shepard, Jr., 18, both of Buffalo vanished Wednesday afternoon after putting out from Long Beach, Ont., near Port Colborne.

One of the most intensive searches ever made on Lake Erie had been going on since they had been kept alive because the canoe had not been found.

It was learned however, after a false report last night, that a lake steamer had come up in the same chunks. The boat, the Liberty, docked several hours later at Detroit. She carried no wireless.

Abendroth and Shepard went canoeing, while picnicking at Long Beach with other members of the sophomore class at Canisius.

SECOND DEATH IN PLANE CRASH OCCURS

At One Time Believed to Have a Chance of Recovery

Brantford, Ont., June 2 (CP)—William Brown, injured in the plane crash, which cost the death of his cousin, Ralph Brown, died today in hospital here.

Brown was terribly burned by gasoline, which caught fire after the plane struck the ground, and it was believed then he would never recover. He put up a remarkable fight for life and medical attendants this week had expressed the belief he might recover.

A coroner's jury Tuesday night brought in a verdict of accidental death in the case of Ernest Avery.

Wilbur, who died today, was 29 years old. His widow and a five-year-old son survive.

HUSBAND IS RECOVERING

WINDSOR, Ont., June 2.—(CP)—Jacob Hoff, who allegedly shot his wife and killed her before pointing a bullet in his own head is making favorable progress towards recovery in the hospital here, but will be totally blind, doctors say. No charge has yet been laid against Hoff.

DICTATOR IN CANADA SEEN

Member of Federal House Says Change is Coming

Hamilton, June 2.—Undesirable as it would be, a dictatorship may yet be set up in Canada, W. H. Moore, M.P., of Ontario warned last night when he addressed the Ontario Medical Association at a public meeting in the Royal Connaught Hotel.

"A dictatorship is coming. They have it in Germany and it is developing in the United States. If our Parliament is overloaded, we will have it here," declared Mr. Moore. He added that he was opposed to M.P.s, a system of government. "I don't believe in dictatorships — they end freedom. I don't believe in the superman," he said.

Today the world was crying for a man, God sent in Biblical days dictatorships proved a failure, the speaker said. We have been living on false gods. We have been following will-o'-the-wisps and in banned Utopian combines for its own profits."

Mr. Moore said he admired the economist for he had a definite plan but was trying to go some place. He did not think the same could be said of any of the three parties in the House of Commons. The political parties were saving the ship and had no time to chart its course, he declared.

WANTED MAN WHO COULD PAY LICENSE

Pittsburgh, June 2—(CP)—There she sat, in the marriage license bureau: impatient, tapping her foot. Then she walked over to Clerk Edgar Howe and told him she was going to marry whom—not to get another dollar, (A license costs $1).

"I won't marry a man who hasn't enough money to pay for a license," she told Howe decisively. "When he comes back tell him I've changed my mind."

And out she went.

AGED MAN CHARGED WITH CHILD MURDER

Hull, Que., June 2.—(CP)—Charged with the murder of a two months' old infant, Andre Riopel, 60-year-old Lauvitte, Que., farmer appeared before Magistrate Roland Millar here today. The charge was read and the accused who was not asked to plead and the case adjourned until June 8, a further adjournment may be made before the hearing begins.

Mr. Millar's charge followed a coroner's jury verdict holding Riopel responsible for the death of the infant.

LIBERAL RALLY ON AT OTTAWA

Twentieth Century Liberal Club Discuss Policies of Day

OTTAWA, June 2.—(CP)—The Government of Canada "gives evidence through its inactivity and procrastination," John P. Madden, of Ottawa, chairman of the Men's section, Twentieth Century Liberal Association asserted today at the opening of the First National Convention. The Canadian people lost lost confidence in the ability of the government to cope with the problems of the age in an effective manner, he declared.

Mr. Madden, with Miss Odette Lapointe, of Quebec, chairman of the Women's Section opened the two-day convention of the Association. Hon. Vincent Massey, President of the National Liberal Federation, also addressed the gathering. Interesting speeches will be given at a luncheon meeting by Rt. Hon. Mackenzie King, Liberal leader, Hon. Ernest Lapointe, Quebec leader and Senator Guthrie Wilson. The convention concludes tomorrow afternoon.

Financial statements presented showed the Association to be in good condition with a balance to its credit.

Mr. Madden told the meeting the Liberal Party had concrete plans for the financial, industrial and economic reconstruction of this country.

"No doubt," he said, "we shall help to relieve the country in future from the unfortunate policies which are throttling her trade and involving her in financial bankruptcy."

News Flashes

Ottawa, June 2 (CP)—A "Liberal Summer Conference" will be held at Port Hope, Ont., from September 4 to September 9 inclusive, Hon. Vincent Massey told the first national convention of the 20th Century Liberal Association here today. The conference would be non-partisan and its objects would be discussion of present day problems.

Washington, June 2 (AP)—Representative Tinkham (R. Mass.) on the House floor today charged that Norman H. Davis, "American Ambassador-at-large" had "dealt in duplicity and fraud for his own benefit" and demanded his recall as United States representative at Geneva.

Montreal, June 2—The Royal Commission which will investigate Canada's banking and credit problems, and report on the advisability of establishing a central bank, will probably be named within two weeks.

PARTISANSHIP TRUCE NEEDED

Hon. Vincent Massey Says Present Policy is "Drift"

Ottawa, June 2.—(CP)—"Let's have a truce to partisanship all round. I would say that it is the duty of every political party or group or movement to unite to concern itself with its positive honest plans for our salvation rather than with efforts to discredit the plans and motives of others," Hon. Vincent Massey, former Canadian Minister to Washington of the first national convention of the 20th Century Liberal Association here today.

The secret of honest politics, said Mr. Massey, "is to look on all political organizations not as an end in itself but as a means to an end. We will then not forget the supreme job in hand."

Mr. Massey asserted it was increasingly apparent that the present administration "had no policy at all." For such an absence of policy, he continued, the country must wait .for some "far-off miracle to arise out of the World Economic Conference" was simply to abandon Canada to its fate, Mr. Massey declared.

Canada must begin now on constructive measures for the application of big ideas. Two plans were necessary, an emergency plan for immediate application, one similar to that which the United States was undertaking, and a low-term plan for the reconstruction of the political and economic life of the country.

THROWN OUT OF WINDOW

Bell Boy Appears as Crown Witness Against Dr. Wigle

Toronto, June 2 (CP)— Charges of procuring and assault on John Riley, former bell boy in a Toronto hotel, Dr. Charles Wigle of Wiarton, Ont., appeared before Judge C. H. Widdifield (Toronto) today to the Crown a drinking party was going on in one of the hotel rooms and that, during which the doctor allegedly threw the boy out of a second storey window. C. L. Snyder, Crown Attorney, told the court the boy's arm he had been picked up bodily and thrown from the window.

Riley said he and the doctor were in the room when the latter's nose started to bleed. Pushed for wet towels, witness said, and while he was applying them to the accused he was picked up, carried to the window and dropped. He didn't remember any other details, Riley said.

The ball shares with the doll the distinction of highest antiquity among toys.

DINOSAUR BONE FOSSILS IN WEST?

TORONTO, June 2.—(CP)— In hopes that the fossilized bones of dinosaurs may be beneath the bed of Reg Deer District in Alberta, an expedition from the Royal Ontario Museum of Palaeontology left for the West today under direction of Levi Sternberg assisted by Ralph R. Hornell and John Rickets, all members of the museum staff.

Valuable discoveries are anticipated in the expedition which will cover the bones of a perfect specimen of a carnivorous dinosaur.

GOV'T BLAMED FOR LACK OF INITIATIVE

Labor Says U.S. has Taken the Initiative in Parley

London, June 2 (AP)—The Labor Party opposition Wednesday blamed Neville Chamberlain, Chancellor of the Exchequer, and the government in the House of Commons today for allowing the World Economic Conference initiative "to go to the United States."

Sir Stafford declared the British people would dat one time have to up their hands in horror at the idea of repudiating the war debts in order to find a complete equanimity of not paying on June 15th."

Bon Voyage Said to Premier and Party at Montreal Today

Montreal, June 2—(CP)—Headed by a large contingent of parliament, a large crowd of Montrealers gave Premier R. B. Bennett a noisy "bon voyage" send-off as he left for London to attend the World Economic Conference in London prepared to sail for England aboard the liner Duchess of Bedford.

The Prime Minister and Hon. E. N. Rhodes, Minister of Finance were busy in their cabins aboard the Duchess of Bedford, which had already sailed, cleaning up last minute business.

Cabinet colleagues and officials from Ottawa late last night, accompanying the Prime Minister and Hon. E. N. Rhodes to England are W. C. Clark, Deputy Minister of Finance; J. D. Wilgress, Director of the Commercial Intelligence Service of the Department of Trade and Commerce; N. A. Robertson, Assistant Under Secretary of External Affairs and R. K. Finlayson, Chief Private Secretary to the Prime Minister.

George P. Laurin, Conservative member of parliament for Jacques-Cartier and chief Conservative organizer for Montreal district was in charge of the informal reception for the Premier. The pier was fringed with a dense crowd of people many of them from the

'Tired of Being Robbed' Says Z. Marx After Robbers Make 2nd Ha vl in 5 Mos

Los Angeles, June 2 (AP)—Zeppo Marx, of the brothers Marx, comedians, figures too much robbery is too much.

He was shy today the following articles of jewelry: A platinum ring set with a 12-carat stone and valued at $12,000; a platinum bracelet with rubies and diamonds, valued at the same amount; a pair of platinum cuff links, diamond-set, worth $4,000 and a $200 platinum pin set with diamonds.

That was the haul of a brace of thieves men, who politely invaded the sumptuous Marx apartment here last night, covered Zeppo, his wife, a guest and a maid with weapons and gifted Mrs. Marx's jewel cases.

It wouldn't have been so bad if the same stunt hadn't been pulled on the Marx' absence about five months ago when the loot was $27,500.

"I'm tired," said Zeppo, "tired of being robbed."

WARMER WEATHER IN THE OFFING

Warm sun and clear skies brought a return of fair weather to the district on Friday and some relief from the coolness of the day before. Temperatures rose in a ten point jump during the morning to the highest point of 76 above at noon. During the early morning a bare 60 had been reached. Fair and warmer is forecast for Saturday.

CHILDREN ROLLER SKATING DANGEROUS

Children on roller skates who have been practising on paved streets in the city have been responsible for several near accidents within the past day or so. On East Dundas street early Thursday evening, while a local motorist was driving along the street his car of small children mounted on skates dashed from an intersecting street almost in front of his car. Quick application of the brakes averted an accident. On North Front street hill yesterday and other children on skates have been giving motorists considerable concern on the steep grade.

SAW MILLS WHINE NEAR BANCROFT

Better times are forecast for the lumber trade in the north section of the county. During the past month or so lumbering operations have been active in the district of Bancroft, and according to Mr. J. Hubbel, of that village, 22 cars of lumber products have been shipped during the past two weeks. Mr. Hubbel, one of the larger dealers of the north, is employing 25 men and men manufacturing his winter's cut into lumber at the present time.

CUTS HAY IN MAY SETS NEW RECORD

Hay cutting in May is not so improbable, points out the Stirling News Argus. First honors in the district for the operation goes to Mr. Arnold Wannamaker, proprietor of the Sterling street hill market, for the week on a nearby farm, and declared the growth to be of fine quality and thickness. This is three weeks earlier than previous dates.

VIGIL IS KEPT ON GARDEN PLOTS

Stray canines have been bothering the unemployed gardeners of the city during the past few days. Rows of carefully tended produce, just peeping above ground, have been laid to waste and trampled over, they claim. Considerable damage is said to have been done, and on some attainment of his 72nd. anniversary.

PAPER ISSUED AS USUAL SATURDAY

The Ontario Intelligencer will be issued as usual on Saturday, June 3rd.

73 YEARS OLD ON SATURDAY

Alfred Campbell, Resident of City For 72 Years is Celebrant

June 3rd., on Saturday, will have added significance for one resident of this city. On that date Mr. Alfred Campbell, 18 Catherine Street, well known citizen, will have attained of his 73rd. birthday.

Still sprightly and with memory clear, Mr. Campbell reminisced briefly on the occasion of his 72nd. birthday of the old days in Belleville when many of the still well remembered business men who have since passed on were active along the business streets of the city.

He remembers distinctly his years of service as many of the leading hotels where he was employed as cook and chef. He had the distinction of having worked under the late Tom Powers at the Queen's Hotel, for Mr. T. Baird at the old Hotel Quinte, and other well known hotel men. Mr. Campbell was known as one of the best cooks in the city and had a wide circle of friends and acquaintances gained through intimate relationship with them.

Born in Midoe seventy-three years ago, Mr. Campbell came to Belleville when he was but a year old and has resided here ever since. At present he resides at 58 Catherine Street, but for many years has lived in The Grove on the corner of Centre and Grove Streets. All his life he has been a bachelor, Mr. Bert Campbell and Mr. George Campbell of this city are nephews, while Mrs. Webb Knox, also of Belleville, is a niece.

A wide circle of friends in the city extend their felicitations on the

Letters to The Editor

MY DREAM OF TWO CITIES

Editor Ontario Intelligencer:

My concern for the welfare of my fellow men, many of whom are going hungry in a land of plenty, induces me to relate a very vivid dream.

Seemingly, I looked down from a great height, and saw two great hills, rising from a great sea of jungle and marsh. So vast were these hills, that I was able to observe them, and the activities of their populace, but one hill at a time, and I cannot describe them in detail.

The first great hill up which the people struggled, was of shifting sand, which as they ran up the hill for short distances, carrying those who happened to be climbing at that particular place, upward, but engulfing those on the outward edges or the upgrade.

Day and night the great masses of the populace struggled upward with no apparent time for rest and the stronger thrust aside or climbed over the heads and shoulders of the weaker.

As they advanced further up the hill, some of the stronger enslaved the weaker children, whom they compelling to bear them upward on litters.

Each climber seemed bent only on gratifying his own ambition to climb, and cared not for the fate of neighbor, even at times placing obstacles in the path of those who sought to follow in his footsteps.

What, thought I, can be the object? What is on the top of the hill which these people strive?

As my gaze travelled farther towards the summit of this hill of shifting sand, I saw the city, located on a hillside plateau. It was towards this that the great mass of the people struggled.

At first glance it appeared a fair city indeed, with its spacious streets paved with beautiful marbles, spacious cozy cabins with trees, and at the farther side a beautiful lake dotted with pleasure boats.

Upon reaching the top of the city gathered about a great dias in the centre square of the city where they gamboled and revelled and worshipped a small GOLDEN CALF.

Slaved hither and yon carrying great trays of food, fruits and gallons of wine to the revellers until they became surfeited with the revelry and rumbled beneath the palms, only to awaken and join again in the revelry.

But as I gazed, I saw all over the city small trap doors spring open in the streets and swallow up the worshippers, some to emerge from the shifting sand to the bottom of the base of the hill, to start once more the upward struggle, and some never to re-appear.

Far above the city in great letters of fire, which I recognized, loomed down and consumed its inhabitants, were set its name — CITY OF GREED.

Second City

As my gaze wandered to the other great hill, I observed that its slope was more gradual, and green verdure and fertile fields grew upon it, whereas while many roadways and great sets of stairs were being constructed, it was a great multitude, which also climbed.

But the weak were assisted by the strong and those far up the hill threw down silver cords to assist those below.

Places of rest and refreshment occurred at frequent intervals and angels of mercy passed among the climbers, bearing great pitchers of the milk of Human Kindness, to refresh them in their labours.

Along a great walk, which divided this from the hill of shifting sands, uniformed guards prevented the toilers from being enslaved by the stronger climbers on the other hill, and guarded their rest by night.

A great city also appeared far up this green hill and spread far towards its top, which disappeared in the clouds.

Even more beautiful than the City of Greed, all roads converged upward towards it. It was lighted by night and beautified by day, by a great wooden Cross, which also in brilliance far down the hillside and over a great arch at its entrance, appeared in letters of silver, which reflected the light of the Cross — CITY OF PROGRESS.

On the slopes of the hill beautiful villages were at frequent intervals, each bearing the same title, VILLAGE OF BROTHERLY LOVE.

As I awoke I prayed that the response would be, all those who go to gather at our International Economic Conference, might have my dream vision to guide them in their deliberations.

"ONE FOR ALL."

OBITUARY

JOHN A. ARCHIBALD

John Andrew Archibald of Canniffon passed suddenly away Thursday afternoon at his home in that village. The late Mr. Archibald was born in Corbyville 62 years ago the son of the late Andrew and Catherine Archibald; all his life, had been spent in this immediate neighborhood. For a number of years he had been an employee of the Marsh and Henthorn Company, and during the Great War was engaged there in the making of shells for the armies of the Allied nations. Of late years he has followed gardening as an occupation.

The late Mr. Archibald had many friends in Belleville and their sympathy and that of the friends of his family remaining, is extended to those left to mourn his loss. Immediately surviving are the widow, two sons, Percy in San Francisco, Calif., and Willard of this city; two daughters, Miss Myrtle, an employee of the Gem Drug Store, Belleville, and Mrs. Harry Bradley of Thurlow, four sisters, Mrs. H. Collard of Toronto, Mrs. Lou Johns of Belleville, Mrs. Jessie Dundas of Albion, N.Y., and Mrs. J. Smallhorn of Corbyville.

The remains will rest at the Tickell and Browne Home, 268 Church Street, until their removal to the Canniffon United Church for funeral service there at 2.30 o'clock, Saturday afternoon next.

NO HOLIDAY IN CITY ON KING'S BIRTHDAY

Government Offices, Banks And Post Office Closed Saturday

While offices of the County Court Buildings, including Shire Hall, have announced their intention of closing for the day on June 3rd on the occasion of the King's birthday, there will be little noticeable holiday air in other sections of the city on Saturday. As far as is known business will still be carried on in the majority of civic and private offices. At the city hall the usual office hours will be observed in all departments. Schools will close as usual on Saturday, and it is not expected by school principals, who were questioned, that Monday will be observed as the official holiday. Merchants report business as usual on Saturday, with no indication that any holiday will be observed on Monday.

Right of Appeal to Privy Council May be Swept Away from Constitution of Free State

Thin Edge of Wedge Placed on Statute Books by De Valera

COULD HINDER

May Also Abolish The Office of Governor General

(By Joseph Dennigan, Canadian Press Correspondent).

Dublin, Irish Free State, June 2 (CP Cable)—Now that Governor-General Donal Buckley has signified the Royal assent to the anti-oath bill by signing on the dotted line, the small but powerful body known as the Southern-Irish Loyalists is wondering when Eamon De Valera's Republican Government will launch its next offensive on the "safeguards" which Britain imposed in the constitution of the Free State 10 years ago.

Indications are that Mr. De Valera will next sweep away that clause providing citizens of the Free State with a right of appeal to the Privy Council. William T. Cosgrave, who now emerges as a champion of commonwealth status for the Free State, five years ago declared he himself would wipe out that clause but following protests desisted.

Nevertheless, the former President proceeded to implement his promise in another way and while leaving the clause in the constitution enshrined in every bill passed by the Free State parliament a declaration, that on all matters relating to the particular bill the decision of the Free State Supreme Court would be final and conclusive.

Further, it was declared by Ernest Blythe, then a member of the Cosgrave cabinet, that in the event of any citizen of the Free State taking steps to appeal to the Privy Council the government would see to it that any decision given would not run in the Free State.

Against Constitution Article

Mr. De Valera also claims that article of the constitution providing for the reservation of the Royal assent, which the constitution declares may be reserved "following the practice of the Dominion of Canada in all cases." Republicans regard it as "Archaic" and assert that a hostile Governor-General or Seanassal as he is now called, could hinder the wishes of the people if he so desired.

This is seen as the first step to abolishing the office of "Seanasal" altogether, because Mr. De Valera has expressed himself in favor of "assimilating the duties with those of President of the Republic."

To get these bills through the legislative machine without delay, Mr. De Valera may find it necessary first to abolish the Senate. He is taking initial steps in that regard this year, by introducing a bill enabling him to ignore the 20 vacancies which occur in the second chamber next fall.

Well informed observers here, believe Mr. De Valera may submit it to extremist pressure by introducing a batch of bills, including one abolishing the Senate altogether, and put his fortunes to hazard by dissolving parliament this year or early next, to appeal to the country for a fresh lease of life.

FRENCH BUDGET IS APPROVED BY HOUSE

This Year Carries a Deficit of 145 Millions

Paris, June 2.—(AP)—After seven months wrangling, the French parliament today finally approved the 1933 budget carrying a deficit of $145,000,000.

That Premier Edouard Daladier weathered the fiscal storm with a comfortable majority was interpreted as strengthening his hand in the world economic conference, on which the cabinet will soon determine its policy.

Expenditures of 49,270,710,242 francs were anticipated in the budget of this 3,196,000,000 francs will be for the compulsory amortization of the National debt. The estimated revenue was 45,843,831,301 francs. (The franc currency is quoted at about 4 1-3 cents).

Since constitutionally the obligatory appropriation for the amortization fund reduces the National debt, the government considers its real operating deficit at only $28,000,000 francs.

TWO CONVICTS NOW BEHIND STEEL BARS

Caught as They Board Train 20 Miles From Prison

HOLDUP BANK

Eleven of Party Still at Large in Oklahoma Hills

Chelsea, Okla., June 2 (AP)—Scarred by more bullets and a bank robbery, the trails of 11 Kansas prisoners and fugitives twisted anew today through the Oklahoma-Arkansas hill and mountain country, but two escaped Oklahoma convicts were back again behind bars.

The reckless killers and robbers who broke from the Kansas State Penitentiary at Lansing during a baseball game near Sunday are blamed for killing a Chelsea, Kas., officer; have stolen and commandeered numerous motor cars; held a half dozen men and women as temporary hostages, escaped in a running gunfires with manhunters and climaxed their contempt for the law late yesterday with the $2,-100 robbery of a bank here.

Not so elusive were the two convicted killers, Jim Stribling and W. D. Broadfoot, who were fired from the Oklahoma prison at Mcalester late Wednesday with the arms and automobile of a guard. They were caught last night at Kansas, 25 miles west of the penitentiary by two marshals, who suspected them trying to board a train. They had abandoned the guard's motor car on a mountain road. The trail of one group of the Kansans seems but several miles northeast of Siloam Springs, Ark., where three auto thieves shot it out yesterday night with the police chief, Bob La Follette. A posse started a new search over the steep foot trails in that section after three fishermen in the early night reported seeing three armed men making their way along Flint Creek.

FUGITIVES IN WOODED AREA

Police Close in on Forest Near Siloam Springs, Ark.

Siloam Springs, Ark., June 1 (AP)—Officers today were closing in on a densely wooded section near here in the belief some of the Kansas State prison convicts had taken refuge in the hills after exchanging several shots with Chief of Police Bob La Follette here last night.

An automobile stolen here shortly before the shooting and bearing bullet marks was found abandoned in a lane five miles north of here by a posse today. Another car bearing Kansas license plates was found abandoned near the city last night.

Officers said the car found today was the one from which the group of men exchanged shots with the police chief. La Follette, driving with one hand and firing his automatic pistol with the other, engaged in a running gun battle with the group for a considerable distance.

CAUGHT SMUGGLING

Plattsburg, N.Y., June 2 (CP)—Charged with smuggling 600 Swiss watch movements from Canada in a spare tire, Leo Root, 43, of Brooklyn, is in Clinton County jail here today in default of $20,000 bail awaiting examination before customs commissioner C. Great Morgan is Stern When Midget Mounts Lap

Washington, June 1 (AP)—J. P. Morgan had the surprise of his life today.

All of a sudden a little touch of femininity, a circus midget, sat on his lap.

Piloted by an enterprising press agent, Miss Lya Graf—who has seen 21 years but grown hardly a mite—gave a real circus touch to the investigation. Miss Lya headed through the crowd for the Morgan group, while it waited for the hearing to begin, shook hands with several and then walked to the dignified head of the firm.

Laughing, he rose, took her hand and sat down again.

Then unexpectedly, the press agent placed the midget on the banker's lap.

He looked non-plussed but submitted gracefully at the start. Soon his face became stern as pictures were taken.

Notified quickly of the incident, the senate banking committee warned photographers that if the photographs were used, those taking them would be barred from future hearings.

After once being on the banker's lap, the midget slid slowly down and then climbed back. The spectators roared with laughter, and before long Morgan also was in good humor again chatting with his partners.

The circus agent finally piloted the diminutive Miss Graf away.

"Oh, yes, I like Mr. Morgan," she squeaked as she left to rejoin her circus comrades.

T. M. CAYLEY LAID TO REST

Both Parties of Federal and Provincial Parliaments Represented

Norwich, Ont., June 2.—(CP)—The funeral of the late Thomas M. Cayley, Liberal, M.P. for South Oxford today had been held to rest in the Little Church Cemetery of this village.

The funeral took place yesterday under the auspices of the Masonic Order. Federal and Provincial Parliaments and the Senate sent representatives.

Hon. Donald M. Sutherland, Minister of Mines, a life-long friend of Mr. Cayley, R. S. Ryerson, M.P., Brantford and Franklin Smoke, M.P., Brant, represented the Federal Government. Hon. E. S. Little and Hon. Dr. Hankin represented the Senate and R. A. Baxter, M.L.A., Oxford South, the Ontario Legislature.

The Liberal Party in the House of Commons sent as its representatives, Hon. J. C. Elliott, M.P., West Middlesex; P. C. Sandercock, M.P., South Perth; Dr. W. A. Mail, M.P., South Bruce; Hon. Grey M.P., West Lambton; Dr. James W. Rutherford, M.P., Kent and Hugh Allen, ex-M.P., North Oxford.

Rev. M. Haith conducted the service at the United Church.

TREATY POWER TO ROOSEVELT

President Will Not Require to Receive Senate Approval

Washington, June 2.—(AP)—Speaker Rainey told newspapermen that the proposed tariff bill, as last drafted, would give the President power to negotiate and put in operation, without first receiving Dudley States Senate approval, reciprocal treaties with Canada and other nations.

"Under that Bill," Rainey said, "the President would have authority to make reciprocal tariff treaties. They would become effective upon his proclamation and remain in effect unless the Senate rejected them.

"It's the same plan as was following in the reorganization authority we gave to the Chief Executive." He referred to shifting about of government bureaus.

However, before Chapman could reach the United States city, he was notified the body had been identified as that of a different person.

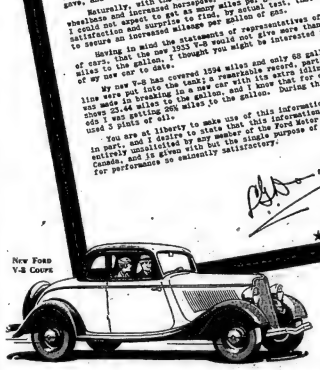
Praises Economy of the New Ford V-8

Unsolicited letter from Ford owner tells of low oil and gasoline consumption

Ford Motor Company of Canada, Limited
East Windsor, Ontario

As you are aware, I recently exchanged my 1932 V-8 for a 1933 V-8 and thought you might be pleased to learn that my car (the Fourth Ford I have owned) has more than met my expectations.

It has always been a matter of peculiar interest to me to ascertain the mileage per gallon which I was getting and this has been my practice since I first began to drive a car. I received much pleasure in keeping a record of the performance of my cars, and in comparing the results obtained from time to time.



Naturally, with the new 1933 V-8, with its larger body, longer wheelbase and increased horsepower, I was not expecting quite as much gas mileage per gallon as I had been getting with my 1932 car, but I was somewhat surprised to find that I was able to secure an increased mileage per gallon.

Having in mind the statements of representatives of other makes of cars, that with the new 1933 models they would give more than 10 or 15 miles per gallon, I thought you might be interested in the record of my new car's performance.

My new V-8 has covered 1594 miles and only 68 gallons of gasoline were put into the tank; a remarkable record, as it would show 23.44 miles to the gallon. During this period I added 3 pints of oil.

You are at liberty to make use of this information in whole or in part, and I desire to state that this information has been entirely unsolicited by any member of the Ford Motor Company of Canada, and is given with but the single purpose of giving credit for performance so eminently satisfactory.

HON. MR. RHODES' ADVICE

Words of gold were uttered at Toronto on Wednesday by the Hon. E. N. Rhodes, Canadian Finance Minister, when he urged governments to save for slump times.

These words ought to be driven home into the hearts and bosoms of individuals, municipal councils and business executives, so that they will not be aggarried away on the crest of a boom which will leave them stranded high and dry in the event of a break. Such saving as the minister advocates might tend to make slumps more rare. He who prepares for the rainy day to a large extent removes the fear of a rainy day.

That governments should spend less upon public construction in prosperous times is his view, in order to permit construction in depression times. This would meet the chaotic results of trade stagnation. The minister merely had to tell the people that heavy expenditures in recent years were such as to make impossible in one day the lowering of taxes, to make them realize that there is truth in this, so likely to be forgotten. He makes a merited attack on the menace of countless deputations in prosperous days asking Government for this, that and the other thing just because some other place is getting it. Many municipalities which helped to create a fevered debt could remember these things in these days and in the better days to come.

Hon. Mr. Rhodes in stating that he did not believe slumps could ever be entirely eradicated though future ones may not be as severe as this, in so many words told the people to prepare against the rainy day, for there is always war or at least a threat of war, and there are always pestilence, famine, and floods, somewhere and in prosperity there is ever the danger of acceleration of expenditure. But it needs all the ability and eagerness of a minister of finance to drive this message home so that people will not forget. When prosperity comes again, they must not be knocking at the door of Ottawa demanding and demanding; they must be saving something.

GOOD NEWS BROUGHT HOME

Additional proof of an actual business improvement is on the way is furnished by the expressed opinion on the part of Mr. W. S. Trask of the American Hardware Company, who has returned from a trip to the United States. Not only tells of a new sense of optimism which is manifest among executives in the United States but also points to a very bright future of the hardware manufacturing business in Belleville, with expansion which have been under contemplation for some time now coming to the turn of conditions to warrant the new development.

ACCIDENT CAUSES

Roads and weather conditions are not the real factor in accidents—it is human error. This is clear from the report of the Department of Highways for the month of April of this year showing seventy per cent. of accidents on dry roads, though April is a month of showers.

This point must be remembered. The total of accidents was increased for April over the same month of 1932 though the number of cars in use was 25 per cent. 28. Property damage was down fourteen per cent. but the total of injured persons increased from 545 to 548.

The increase of but fifteen accidents with an increase of 83 in the total of injured is a disappointing result. The Department finds the increase explained by the location of the accidents, more accidents occurring on ity streets and fewer on country roads.

Pedestrian accidents increased 31 and bicycle 22. In non-collision were six fewer persons injured in April, 1933 than in April 1932.

Railway crossing accidents were four less in the month.

A striking fact is that twelve out of the 25 persons killed in the month were pedestrians. Playing in the streets cost four children their lives.

The department points out the increasing danger at this season of children playing on roads. The motorist is urged to remember that the bicycle is an inherently unstable vehicle and the fact that many riders are young and reckless adds to the hazard. Bicyclists also must remember that they are subject to the same laws as other users of highways. They have no special privilege. Safety and comfort demand observance of the traffic rules.

Work is a great blessing; after evil came into the world, it was given as an antidote, not as a punishment.—A. S. Hardy.

Those who are commended by everybody, must be very extraordinary men, or what is more probable, very inconsiderable men.—Greville.

CONTENTMENT

What is there to regret or to desire
In this green valley where we dwell today?
What ash of any burnt-out passion's fire
Can blow on any wind down this calm way?
What is there of remembrance that could bring
The faintest pang for pleasures not to be
Or cast its shadow on this ardent spring,
To veil the glowing hue of field and tree?

Here is the region for which all men long,
Although by devious routes they wander far;
The home of peace is here, the home of song,
And beauty tranquil as the evening star.
For these green slopes with flowers overgrown
A king might gladly leave his crown, his throne.

J. PIERPONT MORGAN, one of the world's greatest financiers, hitherto regarded as upright and righteous as Washington's picture on Yankee money, has lost much of his halo as the result of President Roosevelt's probe into the methods of big bankers and financiers generally upon whom the public depend for a square deal. Morgan admitted that the firm had a preferred list of prominent people to whom favors would flow, who were able to buy stock below the current market price.

Will Rogers says that this preferred list as really a "sucker list," because all of the preferred ones "held the stock too long and it died on their hands."

GAZING AT THE ACTIVITY at the government airport on the West Road, and noting similar activity in various other parts of Canada, it begins to look as if air traffic would be a mite brisk before long—and the next war, if such there should be, will be a hum-dinger for the fuss and muss which aerial warfare will be capable of. Looks as tho' we would have to aid dig in now, and dig in deep, to get a really safe place in case the aerial armadas are used for a rain death and destruction on all the earth.

Residents around Rehoboth Beach, on the Delaware coast, are greatly excited over hundreds of old copper coins washed ashore by recent storms. The old English coins bearing dates between 1300 and 1600, and with likenesses of King Edward II and Queen Edward III, are in a bushel of these coins, about the size of present-day pennies were gathered up within a few days. Stories handed down from generation to generation tell of treasure hidden along that coast by Captain Kidd.

It is thought these coins are part of this pirate loot, washed up by the sea. Another theory is that they came from an ancient treasure chest washed ashore from a sunken vessel.

HEADS UPPER CANADA BIBLE SOCIETY FOR 1933

Roslin, June 2—The annual meeting of the Roslin Branch of the Upper Canada Bible Society was held in the United Church, Roslin, Thursday evening, May 25th. The attendance of about thirty-five might be considered very small, as there are two complete pastoral charges and part of two others included in this branch. Namely:—North Bethel, Thomasburg, Roslin, Plainfield, Zion and Mount Pleasant. Roslin was the only one of these having a Bible Association in the work of this society during the past year.

The President Mr. Harry Foster occupied the chair and the meeting was opened by singing "Jesus Shall Reign wherever the sun" and his successive journeys run" followed by prayer led by Rev. D. C. Hill.

The minutes of the last annual meeting and the financial report for the year were read by the secretary treasurer Mrs. W. Wright, after which the following officers were elected for the coming year.

President Mr. Harry Foster (Thurlow), Secretary Treasurer, Mrs. W. Wright, (Roslin). Vice Presidents Mr. Albert Gibson, (Mount Pleasant and Plainfield), Mr. Percy Waterley (Zion), Mrs. H. Chisholm, (Roslin), Mr. Silas Prindle, (Thomasburg).

Collectors to be appointed later by the executive. After the business had been concluded, the representative Mr. Wadland gave a very interesting address basing his remarks on the third and fourth chapters of Exodus, particularly the 12th , 1st, and 12 verses and Matthew 28th chapter and part of the 20th verse.

Rev. Hill moved a very hearty vote of thanks to the speaker to which motion one responded by standing.

The following hymn was sung—"I Am so Glad that Our Father in Heaven tells of his love in the Book He has Given."

The President closed the meeting with prayer.

The Women's Missionary Society of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church Roslin, held their regular monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. Hayman and Mrs. Chas. Grills, on Wednesday afternoon.

The Roslin girls' ball team organized for the season on Tuesday evening when the following officers were elected.

President—Mrs. Horace Palmer, Vice President—Mrs. Annie Johnson.

Secretary Treasurer — Miss Ena Kerr.

Captain—Miss Mary Grey.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Kincaid and Mr. and Mrs. Willis Wilson spent Sunday evening the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Grills, Thomasburg.

Rev. E. N. Grant, former rector of the Anglican Church here and now rector of Bancroft accompanied by Rev. Pepper, curate of Bancroft made a number of calls in Roslin and Tuesday visited Orono, enroute to Kingston to attend the meeting of the Anglican Synod of the Ontario Diocese.

Miss E. Whitehouse is again confined to her home.

Miss Audrey Parks of Belleville, spent the week-end at home here.

Mrs. Thomas Emmons visited her sister Mrs. Wm. Ketcheson, Plainfield on Wednesday.

Improvements have been formed and plans are being made to have the Roslin Anglican cemetery levelled and fenced. Financial assistance is being sought from those who have friends buried there, levelled there, and it is hoped that before the year is over may show a decided improvement.

LARGE GRAIN SHIPMENT

Calgary, June 2 (CP)—Largest shipment of grain ever to be made from the inland ports of Canada, wheat, is being loaded at Victoria for export to the United Kingdom. It was announced here by the Alberta wheat pool. The pool sold the grain to United Kingdom millers.

The time required to see and realize a danger signal and begin to apply the auto brakes is around one-fifth of a second; in that time, at 40 miles an hour, you could travel nearly 20 feet.

Hon. W. H. Hearst. Minister of Mines, recently addressed the Canadian Club at Niagara Falls. He also visited the D. and D. Institute.

The board of directors of the Y.M.C.A. will have supper together at the association building on Monday evening after which an engagement committee will be held.

The Y.M.C.A. camp "Wawyanda" will open about the 15th of July 10th, for two weeks and from present indications it will be bigger and better than ever. The addition of a large war canoe will be welcomed by many boys who is planning to go. It is large and seaworthy and will hold about twenty.

Tomorrow will be a big day in Belleville—namely the Celebration of the King's Birthday. There will be two aeroplane flights by America's greatest aviators; hair raising motor cycle races; thrilling military manoeuvres — infantry, cavalry, artillery; speedy horse races; fireworks and thousands of thousand school children in one grand procession, making a gorgeous street parade. It will be absolutely the greatest celebration in Canada. Special excursions on all railways and steamboats.

STAR GAZING

The smuggling racket whereby 25,000 to 35,000 aliens are shipped into the United States each year for fees ranging from $25 to $1,000 is exposed in "I Cover the Waterfront," starring Claudette Colbert (above) and the late Ernest Torrence. Armed drive on evil has been undertaken along the 3,200 miles of Canadian border, especially in the Great Lakes and St. Lawrence areas.

Accounts of the volatile climate reached Constance Cummings, the American film star, before her arrival in England to appear in British pictures but, since her work in "Sleeping Dog" she is prepared for the worst in weather conditions. In this film, she takes the prospects of a legacy to spend a holiday in Deauville and arrives on a stormy night without the precaution of making a reservation. The scenes which show her introduction to the famous French seaside resort were shot in a violent rainstorm, this sequence alone taking two days.

An ancient French fiacre was the vehicle in which Constance and Neil Nie Barnes, who plays the part of her confidential friend, toured the pensions in search of lodging. There were times when the rain fell with more than the director required and it was with mixed feelings that the two girls heard orders to the property men to assist nature by adding an artificial downpour to strengthen the weakening showers.

The Aldwych Theatre Players, who were seen in Canada this season, gave Londoners interesting taste of undiluted English farce. It was not hard to understand why the Two Travers farces had held the boards at the historic Aldwych Theatre with practically the same cast over a decade. Neither is it difficult to see that the Aldwych school of acting has produced some of the finest comedians now appearing in British pictures. Already well known to Canadians are Tom Walls, Ralph Lynn and Robertson Hare. Winifred Shotter, one of the most charming English girls in films, graduated from the Aldwych school. All are now appearing in British and Dominions pictures.

Once again the producers have gone to the Aldwych Theatre, this time to sign up Mary Brough. Unlike so many actresses who enjoyed success in the past century and saw it wane, Mary Brough has not feared to face the years. As she has grown old gracefully, the characters she portrays have grown with her and her brand of humor on the stage and screen as it was when she first stepped before the footlights when she was a slim girl of seventeen.

The life story of this grand old lady of the stage, now the grand old lady of the screen, since her film performances for British and Dominions pictures, represents two generations of theatrical history. She has played in every variety of part, in the famous thrillers presented years ago at the Drury Lane Theatre and in the works of Shakespeare, Shaw and Dickens. She made her stage debut in 1881 at Brighton and her London debut in the same year at the Haymarket in "She Stoops to Conquer." In which Lily Langtry made her first star debut. Since that time, she has been under the management of such veterans as Beerbohm Tree, Charles Frohman and Cyril Maude.

And the room is covered with those golden thawts and compiled that generous men have set they spend their leisure moments making card houses or passing with open mouths and vacant minds up their files on the ceiling? No, they grasped eagerly at those precious moments to add to their store of knowledge and prepare their minds for the work of future years. The clock ticks at the same rate of speed for everybody, but only the wise ever learn to extract the honey from the flowers of time before they wither and die each hour of our lives. The question is are you going to be one of those wise ones? Yes, I said.

G, pop, sure, I said, I'm going to start rite away, I said, and he said,

No Quarter in World Economic Warfare to Countries Adverse to Britain Says Chamberlain

Will Continue as Long as Countries Unwilling to Reparate

CLEARLY DIRECTED

Move Believed Aimed at Soviet Russia and Free State

London, June 2 (AP)—Neville Chamberlain, Chancellor of the Exchequer, announced in the House of Commons today that Great Britain will give no quarter in world economic warfare to countries which have taken an aggressive stand against her.

"Much as we regret the economic warfare which has arisen between us and other countries," he said, "we must maintain that warfare as long as the other countries have taken the aggressive and are unwilling to make any reparations or restitution for the wrong they have done us."

The Chancellor's statement was believed aimed at Soviet Russia because of the two-way embargoes resulting from the trial in Moscow of six British electrical engineers recently, and at the Irish Free State, because of a tariff warfare.

Stand on Eights

"Great Britain must stand not merely for the legal and commercial rights of its people," the Chancellor asserted, "but also for the right of security for their persons.

"We cannot view with indifference the attacks now made upon nationals in other countries when these attacks are clearly directed toward internal conditions."

During debate on foreign affairs he again refused to disclose Great Britain's war debt policy, but intimated the government is awaiting some new move from Washington.

The Chancellor asserted that the United States government was in full possession of the British views on the subject.

"We should do well to assume our difficulties are fully appreciated by the United States government," he continued, "and there is no desire on its part to do anything which would emphasize those difficulties or be prejudicial to the success of the World Economic Conference."

CONVENTION ENDS TODAY

Mrs. Etherington, Kingston Gives Cost of Administration

Calgary, June 2 (CP)—Their work nearing completion, delegates to the 40th annual convention of the National Council of Women will end their sessions here today and the gathering will adjourn late this afternoon.

After lengthy sessions yesterday when National Committee reports and resolutions were considered, the delegates were guests of the Calgary business and professional Women's Club at Dinner. Miss Winnifred Kidd, Montreal, President of the council, spoke to the gathering on development of the Women's Clubs headquarters in Geneva.

Mrs. R. E. C. Mason, London, Ont., submitted a survey of education. Mrs. A. J. Holman of Niagara Falls, Ont., cited the duties of citizenship in another report.

According to the report of the convener of finance, Mrs. F. Etherington, Kingston, Ont., the cost of executive administration of the council for the past year was $4,000. The main items were executive secretary salary, $1,200; office rent, 400; office expenses, $1,000; railway fares to annual meeting, $1,410; other travelling expenses, $1,000; offices $500 and incidental expenses $150.

MUST WATER LAWNS IN TIME STIPULATED

Homes on Meters Not Affected By This Ruling

Water consumers of the city, unless using a metered supply, must govern their lawn sprinkling and car washing at hours stipulated, according to the department of waterworks. At present a survey is being made by employees of the department to discourage the practice.

Under by-law No. 2409 regulating the summer use of water, it is an offence between May 1st and October 1st to use a hose or lawn service for watering lawns or washing cars, except between the hours of 7 to 9 in the morning and 5 to 9 in the evening. This does not apply to the number of homes in the city now using metered water service. Washing of automobiles during the prohibited hours, unless done with the aid of pails of water, is frowned upon by the department, who point to the waste entailed when a running hose is used. Several residents of the city have often made application lately to the department to be allowed the use of their hose outside of the regular hours, but no permission has been given. Offenders are being checked.

CARDINAL BOURNE IS STRICKEN SUDDENLY

London, June 2 (AP)—Francis Cardinal Bourne, who was gravely ill with bronchitis in March, was stricken with acute pulmonary oedema today. An official bulletin described his condition as serious.

Cardinal Bourne was taken ill in Rome this winter and had a recurrence of the illness in March after returning to England.

Today's bulletin said he had consulted the eminent specialist Sir Thomas Lewis on May 16 and it was agreed the Cardinal might visit Liverpool as the Papal Legate for ceremonies over the coming week-end in connection with the laying of the foundation stone in the new Catholic Cathedral, provided his condition were unchanged.

Until today he had been in satisfactory health, but the illness took a serious turn this morning.

Oedema of the lungs is an effusion of fluid into the air cells.

RELIEF WORK IS FINISHED

Ann Street School Committee Will Become Active in Fall

Under the direction of the committee of the Ann Street School Relief Club, formed last winter for the purpose of assisting needy children of the school, Mr. C. C. Stewart, member of the committee has distributed ten pairs of running shoes to as many pupils this week, and three pair of stockings. This will finish the relief work carried on by the club for the season, but a resumption of activities is expected with the commencement of the school term next fall. A sum of money, which still remained from that raised by the club during their winter entertainments has been given the school to buy baseball equipment and school games.

SWEEPER WILL RESUME ROUTE

Taken Off, When Broom Fibre Delayed in Arriving

Numerous complaints which have been received at the office of the city engineer during the past week will be stilled with the resumption of the sweeper on its regular route throughout its various residential streets. During the past week the department has been waiting an order of broom straw from manufacturer. Owing to the delay in transit it became necessary for the sweeping work only the business sections of the city in order to conserve the brushes. With the arrival of the new sweeper fibres, however, the old route through the residential sections of the city is now continued ending the complaints lodged by numerous residents who believed the machine had been re-routed from their particular sections.

THAT DEPRESSED FEELING IS LARGELY LIVER

Wake up your Liver Bile

—Without Calomel

You are "feeling punk" simply because your liver isn't pouring its daily supply of liquid bile into your intestines. Digestion and elimination are both hampered, and your entire system is being poisoned.

What you need is a liver stimulant. Something that goes after the liver and makes it do its duty. Something like Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets which help move the bowels—getting the real cause of trouble, your liver.

Take Carter's Little Liver Pills. Purely vegetable. No harsh calomel (mercury). Safe. Sure. Ask for them by name. Refuse substitutes. 32

NEARLY ALL TRAFFIC LANES LAID DOWNTOWN

Truckers Now Have Better Vision Coming Out of Gangways

Nearly all parking lines have now been laid out and repainted in the downtown section of the city by the crew, who have been working nights and early mornings during the past few days. With the completion of the business section, other traffic lines will be laid out in the more important intersections in the residential parts, it is expected. Solution of the difficulty experienced by many drivers in entering Front street from downtown gangways, formerly handicapped by the fact, that with the old method of parking cars they were unable to see the flow of traffic, has been met this year by the city engineer in laying out parallel parking lines on Front street for one car only near each gangway crossing. While this will result in slightly less room for other cars the system is declared by business men and delivery truck drivers to be entirely favorable.

ENGAGEMENT NOTICE

Mr. and Mrs. Robt Bell announce the engagement of their second daughter, Luella Kathleen, to George Francis Flower, of Massassaga. The wedding will take place quietly the latter part of June. 22-1t.

Mr. William King of this city, is spending a few days with friends at Oshawa.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Hoff and children are moving shortly to take up residence in Philadelphia, Pa.

Mrs. Vincent O'Neill or Latta, was able to return to her home after undergoing a serious operation at the Belleville General Hospital.

Mr. F. S. Gibbons has been spending a few days this week at his home in Fergus, Ontario, owing to the serious illness of his father.

The staff of the Ideal Stores honoured Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Harker at a delightful party at their home, Moira street, on Wednesday. An enjoyable evening was spent in card game. An interesting part of the evening was the presentation of a beautiful service and a cut glass to the bride and groom. A delicious lunch was served before the party came to a close.

At the home of Mr. George Spracklett, a number of friends of the Alpha Ladies' Wesleyan Class met to Rev. A. E. McCutcheon, for the last part of six years. Rev. McCutcheon has been the leader of this Club. Mr. Keller, on behalf of the group expressed appreciation of services rendered, and of good will, as a remembrance of the comradeship and good fellowship they presented him with a gold-headed walking stick suitably engraved.

Friends of Mr. Clifford G. McCormick, organist at the Belle Theatre for over a year will be interested to learn that on the completion of his contract here he will resume the position at radio station CFCO, Ottawa. Mr. McCormick gives his final program at the theatre tonight and leaves tomorrow for his new duties. While in the city Mr. and Mrs. McCormick have made a number of popular friends who will greatly regret their departure. Mr. McCormick has been a member of Holloway Street choir since his arrival in the city and was also a member of the Rotary Male Chorus and his going will be a distinct loss in musical circles.

WHAT PRICE ATHLETIC GLORY?

Dad, who is to blame because your boy prefers to shine as an athlete rather than as a scholar?

You display more interest when he wins a ball game or secures the necessary touchdowns than you do when he submits high percentages in the school report card, and naturally, the area of endeavor of your turn to the athletic field for victory.

It is discouraging to a boy who has worked hard in his academic work to have his father accept the high marks as something to be expected.

It is still more discouraging to the boy to deprecate his achievements by intimating that with what you have endowed him of natural ability he should have made even better marks.

But how you do beam when the gala commendation in athletic stunts.

The Secret of Lasting Beauty

By HELEN FOLLETT

There are so many sorts of being charming and attractive that even the plainest woman need not despair. Believe it or don't, but the kind of beauty that has magic in its composition is created by intelligence. The pretty girl is a pleasing eyeful, but she hasn't lasting qualities, true beauty grows more beautiful with the years. Successful business women are as a rule good looking. If they have style enough to make good in arts or industries, they have sense enough to look after their health. grasp every possible means of improving appearance, build up personality that is vivid, compelling ingratiating.

The Irish type of beauty—blue-eyed, brown-haired, white-skinned —throws the wrong note into the color composition of her portrait when she smears her pretty lips with vermilion. What she needs is an ivory pink powder, no rouge on cheeks, dim orange-red for the lips. A hat of old blue will be favorable to her eyes and complexion. Iris is one of the few types of gals that can wear a white frock without draining the color from her skin.

Huge neck bows, seen on smart frocks and coats, are the delight of little, svelte girls. Chuck a bow under the chin of the plump round-faced baby, and just behind her. And that reminds us that there is an excellent rule that holds good as to gross decorations. It is "when in doubt, take it off." Fuss-stuff and fluff are trying.

A pinch of borax added to the shampoo suds will help correct excessive oiliness of scalp and hair; it does no harm to hair shafts if there are several rousing old rinsings. Use a bath spray. It is the only means of completely removing soap deposits from brain tendrils. Ammonia is not a safe water softener. It has a tendency to burn the hair, make shafts weak, and to redden the grey locks.

Live the outdoor life as much as possible. Lap up oxygen. The outdoor girl has bright eyes and a springy step, beauty assets seldom possessed by the lady who moves slowly, loves her soft pillows, and her traveling is the family bus instead of bowling it. Fresh air puts the red tulip blooms on cheeks, cheeks because it washes out the poisons, stimulates the blood supply. Be up and about your golf or tennis, lazy lassie.

FRONT ROAD LADIES' AID CONVENE TO BEAUTIFY CHURCH

Something of a change took place from the ordinary meeting of Front Road Ladies' Aid on Tuesday afternoon, when the members convened at the church for their annual church cleaning bee.

A good representation of members were present and soon the interior of the church showed the results of a faithful afternoons work. After the necessary cleaning the walls was given a fresh coat of paint, which certainly added materially to the beautiful appearance of the whole.

Owing to the laziness of the hour after the work was completed only a short business meeting was held dispensing with the usual formalities and opening exercises.

A number of mite bags were handed in each showing a liberal contribution.

Mrs. S. Snider President; Miss Doris Reid, Secretary-Treasurer and Mrs. A. Clare were appointed delegates to attend the final Ladies' Aid convention to be held at the Tabernacle Church, Belleville, in the near future.

Other matters of a business nature were likewise dealt with and Mrs. J. Reid invited the Aid to meet at her home for the July meeting.

A tasty lunch was then served provided by Mrs. D. Grass Mrs. E. Purdy, Mrs. A. Clare and Mrs. S. Snider and was soon disposed of by the hungry workers.

A very pleasing incident took place in the afternoon when Rev. R. B. Harrison of Perth on passing on route to Bowmanville, and seeing the activities engaged in stopped for a call, had lunch and met a number of old friends.

While attending Albert College about eleven years ago Mr. Harrison very acceptably occupied the pulpit at this appointment for some time, afterwards leaving for the mission fields of Africa, but owing to Mrs. Harrison not being able to stand the climate they were obliged to return to Canada some three years ago.

Very glad indeed were the old friends to welcome even for so short a time one who has endeared himself to the people here and proved himself of such sterling worth.

Correct Manners

By CONSTANCE CAMERON

The young mother said with a relieved sigh: "Well Bruce is playing. I don't have to watch him any more."

No, we don't have to watch a child at his play, as a rule, but if we take that trouble, we can inform ourselves valuable data as to his growth both physical and mental, his adjustment socially, and his reactions to other children and to his own achievements or lack of them, and to his character as a whole.

Regarding the physical angle of this data, we know that each year of the child's life is marked by interests and games which are a prevision of that child's neuro-muscular development. The toddler who hasn't achieved very far in muscular control doesn't throw or catch a ball when another toddler of the same age may do so. If our child happens to be the one who can't interest in this particular form of exercise and prowess and he is at the age when he should be, we can help him by equipping him with slides, climbing apparatus, large blocks and other toys which tend to develop this control of muscle.

Control of Temper

We can determine whether the child is adjusted to contact with his fellows, by observing them at their play. Does he share his toys taking turns about, or does he run off with playthings and howl at the thought of relinquishing any of them? If so, we can provide toys for group play, toys which depend upon manipulation by several children for their transmutation into a pleasurable activity.

Does your child fly into a rage when he cannot make toys try his wishes, cannot build just the house he has in mind or knot the ball into a certain place? If he does, you can help him by suggesting simpler forms of activity until he has mastered them. For his temper is but a mask for that feeling of failure which has come to him.

You can gauge your child's development and in so doing be of material help to him if you take the time and interest to unobtrusively watch his play period. For usually he, at play, he is utterly himself, utterly without guile or fear. If he is angry he shows it; if he is successful in his projects he LOVES to show it. And you cannot help to discover whether or not he is understanding self or sinning in the insidious mire of frustration.

CAR SALES JUMP BY 2,500 IN APRIL

OTTAWA, June 2.—An increase of more than 2,500 was shown in the sales of new passenger automobiles in April last when 5,484 cars were sold as against 2,747 sales in the previous month, and an increase of 75, as against 3,131 sales in April 1932, according to a report issued by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. The retail value amounted to $5,423,091 in April last as compared with $3,756,859 in the previous month and $5,804,702 in April of last year.

Trucks and buses sold in April last numbered 593 against 275 in March and 1073 in April, 1932. The retail value was $586,291 in April last as compared with $379,288 in the previous month and $930,017 in the corresponding month last year.

Fashion Flashes

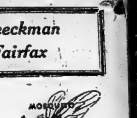
OUT YOU GO wearing those practical but pretty dresses of dotted Swiss that are ideal for a warm day in town or country. A new one is in red and white dotted Swiss with a double organdie collar that extends over the shoulder to form short sleeves. The white collar is decorated with cut work embroidery the same decoration being used for the pockets on the bigbelted frock.

A COOL DELIGHT is an evening frock of pale pink tulle. The shirt is marked by cascade draperies falling from large shirred discs of the material at the waistline. There is a frothy jacket of the same material, the long sleeves also held by shirred discs.

A COMPLETE CHANGE marks the back and front of many a frock. A charming evening frock of misty gray tulle, has a perfectly plain front, on an princess lines. But the back, from the base of the deep decolletage is marked by a cascade of tiny self-ruffles that extend into a train.

BE SEATED and show off the brief little evening jackets that are part and parcel of the smartest frocks. With black red or blue, one woman wears a brief but beautiful little jacket of white brocaded satin. The short puff sleeves made entirely of rows of Valenciennes lace. The lower part of the jacket is also of the lace in rows.



A NICE TOUCH on white organdie frocks is waxed black satin ribbon. A frock of white organdie cut on tailored lines, has a tucked bloom front, relieved by a bow of the black satin ribbon. The girdle is also of the satin.

NO MATTER how many coats you have you will find that a white coat is essential to the smart summer wardrobe. Useful is a swagger coat of three-quarter length, well done in a smooth white crepe. It has large patch pockets.

The Fascinating Butterfly Flower

The schizanthus, which has become so popular for greenhouse decoration in winter because of its great mass of bloom in striking colors, is a fine garden annual. It is known appropriately as the butterfly flower, from the dainty appearance of the winged and slashed flowers poised above the ferny foliage. It comes in a variety of colors from deep purple to pink and white, all handsomely blotched with a deeper color and with the characteristic slashing of the petals.

While seldom possible to equal in the garden the compact pillars of bloom on display in greenhouses during the winter months something like it can be accomplished by careful attention. Greenhouse plants are hand-trained for months, the branches pinched back often to produce the well-developed plant of wide spread. They are also well fed.

In the garden it is an airier, more graceful plant flecked with its spattractive bloom, but inclined to sprawl. It can be trained upright, but this isn't worth the effort. So is it worth while to bother to pinch it back outdoors as it branches freely enough naturally.

There are several strains of fine hybrids of this dainty annual, all of which are fine. The Garsway, Badger and Wisteriensis hybrid are commonly offered. The last named appear in a series of lighter shades. There are also selections of rose and amber shades.

This is a fine annual to try as an edging plant in small colonies, as it is a little beauty for close observation. The foliage is also decorative and ferny in character. Its main demand is for a good soaking occasionally in dry weather. It shrivels during drought. It prefers a fairly heavy soil and will not do well in light sandy soils. It germinates readily and the plants should be set about eight inches

30 NEW HIGHS ARE RECORDED

Gains Largely Held in Spite of Late Selling

Toronto, June 2—(CP)—The Toronto market got up more steam this afternoon and marched up 30 new high prices for the year but some of the top prizes were given by a week of profit-selling in the last half hour. Interlakes Pulp held up well and most of them had good gains at the close.

Oil shares were hit by profit-taking and Imperial, British American and Superior ordinary closed or wiped out the gains. Walkers Consumers gained back 10 1-2 and Distillers Seagram to 8 1-2.

Most of the activity included the Quebec Power group and Bell Telephone finished with advances. Intact, Goodyear and Lakes advanced to new high ground.

GOLDS TAKE MINING LEAD

Silver Stocks Strong on Standard Board

Toronto, June 2 (CP) — Golds shares took the play from the coppers in the afternoon trading today on a rush of buying that lifted the whole group of yellow metal stocks into higher levels. Dome, one of the biggest Pioneer advanced about $2 to $60. Hollinger, Teck Hughes and Wright Hargreaves about 20 cents each and Lake Shore picked up about 50 cents. Renewed interest in other gold shares firmed with the sentiment.

Base Metal shares had a strong move in the early session. Nickel, Noranda and Mond, Base Metals and Coast Copper gaining between 10 cents and 50 cents and Falconbridge advancing $7 to 133.

Trading in the stocks Mining Corporation gained 10 to 235, Eldorado 7 to 7.02 and Nipissing was up a few cents.

Oil stocks continued firm.

SHARES PUSH TO NEW LEVEL

Low-priced Issues Rise in Whirl on New York Board

New York, June 2—(AP)—Stocks pushed up into higher ground today in heavy trading. Early strength in utilities spread to rails and other industrial groups. Numerous issues were given a whirl. Homestake Mining soared 30 points while Allied Chemical gained more than 8. General advances of 1 to 3 or more points included U. S. Steel preferred, Coca Cola, Consolidated Gas, Dupont, Alaska Juneau, Western Union, International Telephone, Montgomery Ward, Dome and Case. Higher also were American Telephone and American Can pared earlier gains of around 2 points. Trading was over approximated 6,800,000 shares.

Groups Join a New Highs Today

NEW YORK, June 2.—(AP)—Stocks stormed upward in extraordinarily active trading today, piling up many gains of more than $3 under the force of fresh buying orders.

Turnover at noon approximated 3,000,000 shares, or at the rate of 7,500,000 shares for the full five hour session. The volume was more than 7,000,000 shares on April 20.

Utilities, which had been lagging behind other groups, were taken in sharp hands. Consolidated rallied early. Most commodity markets were also in a buoyant mood with the rise in stocks.

U. S. Steel common made a new high for the year above $54, for a net gain of nearly $2.

LIVESTOCK

Toronto, June 2 (CP)—Trading on the Toronto livestock market was dull during the week with some heavy steers unsold at the close. Total receipts of livestock were heavier than for last week, and the quality was on the whole lower than last week's closing levels. Cattle receipts were 2,000 cents per dozen, calves closed 50 cents lower, hogs 15 cents to 25 cents lower and sheep closed 50 cents per cwt. for the week.

The opening run of cattle was two heavy. While handyweight butchers and steers held steady to 15 cents per cwt. lower, weighty steers cows and bulls were down 50 cents. Sheep and lambs met the same movement with about 50 head still unsold at the close. There was a scarcity of good steers throughout the week.

Cattle sold at the week ended were: $4.50 to $5.25 with common downward to $4.25. Choice butcher cattle were brought $3.00 to $3.15 with a few making $3.25. Medium to good butchers sold at $4.25 to $4.65 with a few common as low as $3.50.

NO STOCK TO ROYAL BUYERS

Morgan Partner Denies British Royalty Secured Shares

Washington, June 2 (AP) — A suggestion that some of the bargain price stock offered to clients by J. P. Morgan and Company went to British royalty and French politicians drew denials by George Whitney, partner in the firm, today before the Senate banking investigation.

Senator Reynolds (D.-N.C.) asked about disposition of bargain stock blocks allotted to Morgan's Paris and London offices.

"Have you found that the allotment to your London office was distributed to members of royalty?" he asked. "I never heard that suggestion before," Whitney replied.

"Have you found some was distributed to politicians in France?"

"I never heard it in any connection it is not so," Whitney said smiling.

Questioned further, Whitney said he had not heard that some of the stock went to King Albert of Belgium.

Washington, June 2 (AP) — The Senate-House Senate investigation of J. P. Morgan and Company will probably recessed for the week end today after John W. Davis, counsel for the firm, had completed answers to a question directed at Thomas S. Lamont, junior partner, appearing relating to his income tax return.

CRUSADERS SET OUT ON 700 MILE TRECK

Church Army Sends Forth Seven Young Men

TORONTO, June 2.—Along the highways of Ontario and Quebec yesterday afternoon the sun shone down on an unusual and colorful scene as traffic halted momentarily before a parade of the Church Army Crusaders, sponsored by the Church of the Holy Trinity to the steps of the Parliament where they were introduced by Bishop C. W. Hiltz, head of the Church Army, to His Worship Mayor Stewart, who delightfully later dubbed these young men who were finally set forth as "The Seven Days" by Lord Bishop of Toronto.

The personnel of this group of Crusaders who will be "witnessing for Christ" throughout some 700 miles in the next three months is as follows:

Captain Edwin Allsopp, leader, assisted by Captain William Chambers, Cadets Norman Bugg, William Lambert, Cecil Johnson, William Hall, Douglas Pilcher and Claude Hunter.

TESTING ROBOT PLANE

Los Angeles, June 2 (AP)—Captain Frank Hawks flying a Robot-controlled, 14 cylinder aeroplane took off from the Municipal Airport at 5.31 a.m., here on a non stop flight to Floyd Bennett Field, Brooklyn, N.Y. He planned to fuel the automatic pilot was not necessarily seeking a speed record.

ANTHRACITE COAL PRICES ARE REDUCED

Reduction More Than Summer Cut Say Dealers in Ontario

LOCAL REDUCTIONS

Mining And Transportation Costs Ease Making Cut Possible

Price of United States anthracite coal has been lowered in Belleville, according to local dealers, and the reduction was selling at $15.00 is selling at $14.50. Welsh coal is selling at one dollar a ton. Retail dealer states, at $15.50 per ton.

"Is this seasonal?" one dealer was queried by a reporter.

"On United States anthracite the reduction is about the same as usual at this time of year and is larger than usual was the reply of a Belleville dealer.

TORONTO, June 2—A sharp drop in the price of Canadian anthracite characterized as "much more extensive than the usual summertime price reduction," was recorded in Toronto and other Ontario centres yesterday.

The principal factors contributing to the fall in quotations, it was reported, were a slump in prices paid at the mines and lower rail transportation costs, both the favor, able trends being passed along to the consumer, it was said.

The extent of the reductions per ton locally ranged from 50 cents on Scotch and Welsh blower coal to $1.25 on anthracite, in addition differings of various sizes. Prices quoted by one large Toronto dealer on anthracite for the nut and egg sizes dropped from $14.25 to $13.00 per ton, while the stove size coal dropped from $14.50 to $13.25 a ton.

Quotations on Welsh coal of the respective sizes mentioned, it is stated were $15 to $14.25 a ton, while the price of Scotch coal was reduced from $13.50 cents downward to $10. No reduction was announced on coke prices, the quotations prevailing locally for some time past having been unchanged, it was explained.

The usual scaling down of prices for the advent of Summer had been withheld, it was stated by one dealer, until an official of one company said, in anticipation of lower rail movements would make it possible to effect reductions more extensive than usual, in addition to the usual summer reduction in coal prices.

Commenting on reports that prices in Kitchener had dropped as much as $3.50 a ton, Toronto dealers said that $1 per ton for coke the same official pointed out, was previous prices there had been much higher than in Toronto, and that when new per levels to strictly cash customers.

CONVICTS AND POSSE MEET

Engage in Running Gun Fight But No Details

Miami, Okla., June 2 (AP) — A posse led by Sheriff Carl Curtis of Ottawa county engaged a group of men, thought to be fleeing Kansas convicts, in a running gun fight in the hilly country nine miles south of Jay today, Curtis reported to Sheriff Dee Myers here.

Sheriff Curtis said the posse routed the fugitives from their automobile and they fled on foot. No one was wounded, he said.

Curtis sent for reinforcements and Sheriff Walters arranged to leave immediately with all available Delaware County officers.

It could not be learned how many men were in the fleeing group.

Walters said the men apparently were those who escaped from a Siloam Springs, Ark., posse last Wednesday night after a gun fight.

The point where Curtis said today's encounter occurred is a few miles west of Siloam Springs in an extremely rugged and remote section.

CARDS OF THANKS

From Parliament Hill

Review of Business of Fourth Session of Seventeenth Parliament of Canada

House of Commons, Ottawa, June 1—The Fourth Session of the Seventeenth Parliament has just been prorogued, and the following memorandum as to the business passed upon to the Legislators passed during the Session.

Attention has been called to the fact that the Federal Government with all the money it could get from taxes and other revenue sources was behind to the extent of $156,000,000. On ordinary running account — current expenses as against current revenue—it paid out fifty-three millions more than it took in. In addition, it had in order to certain capital expenditures, had to make special expenditures, had to take care of the deficit of the Canadian National Railways. By the time it finished paying for them all it was down $156,000,000.

This was the reason because the Government was extravagant. It was because the bulk of the Government's expenditure was inescapable. The Government couldn't escape paying $136,000,000 interest on the national debt. It couldn't escape paying fifty millions for veterans' pensions. It couldn't escape paying to help keep people from starving or freezing. And it couldn't escape paying over fifty million dollars for the deficits of the railways. That is after how much the Government's income fell, no matter how it tried by what it tried to do about economizing, these payments, so far as last year was concerned, had to go on. They were fixed, unavoidable.

With some modifications they will be unavoidable next year. The railway position is improving, the pension payments may be slightly reduced, and there may be less need for relief. But, the main interest, and particularly in regard to the national deficit—remains. Money outgo will continue.

What, then, confronted the Government? It could do any one of these things, namely:

1. It could go on failing to balance its budget, borrowing more and more, piling up national debt, destroying the national credit.

2. Or it could try to balance its budget by repudiating the interest on the national debt or by abandoning pensions, or by wholesale lopping its budget down to the National Railways—all of which was unthinkable.

3. Or it could decide—as it did decide—that the only way out was to have the country try to pay its way, this to be done by economy wherever economy could be had, plus new and increased taxation.

1933 Estimates

According to the estimates laid before Parliament, expenditures of the Government of Canada for the present year will be $364,884,000, apart from special cost. To this total, the item to be voted for the civil service is $56,546,096. The corresponding figure for 1929-30, the year before the present one, when the national power was $11,869,000.

Considerable expenses have been reduced to the amount of sixty-seven millions dollars between the last three years and a further cut of fourteen millions has been provided for in the Budget. Furthermore, for the past two years, through action of the Civil Service Board, promotions and increases of salary have been held in abeyance and as vacancies have occurred in the Government service the positions have been abolished. These and other restrictions have resulted in the saving of $4,500,000 per annum and a reduction of over four thousand employees. This is in addition to the saving of $4,500,000 per annum affected by the ten percent deduction from all salaries and wages.

Customs Duties

Cigarette Papers, in imported or domestic, in the leaves or in portion thereof.

Cigars or Tubes, imported or domestic, 4c per 100 or fraction thereof.

Toilet Articles and Cosmetics, 15 per cent.

Toilet Soaps—5 per cent.

Sugar and Syrup—2c per pound (except maple sugar).

Glucose and Grape Sugar—1c per pound.

Unwrought Wort—(For use in the manufacture of beer) 10c per gallon.

Malt Syrup, Extract of Malt etc—20 cts per pound.

Rubber Tires for Automotive Vehicles—2c per pound.

Inner Tubes—3c per pound.

These taxes became effective March 22nd, 1933.

Cheques under $100., 3c; over $100, 6c.

No Stamp Required

An amendment to the section of the Special War Revenue Act dealing with the stamp tax on cheques was brought down in the House of Commons on May tenth, as a result of which the following cheques shall be exempt from the tax imposed by this section, under regulations to be prescribed by the Minister or deputy minister of money not exceeding five dollars.

(1) Cheques issued for payment for milk or cream to individual producers thereof;

(2) Cheques issued in payment for eggs or poultry by egg and poultry exchanges to individual producers;

(3) Cheques issued by co-operative associations of wool growers in payment for wool to individual growers thereof;

(4) Cheques issued by municipal co-operative to persons in receipt of unemployment relief.

There is a similar exemption in the case of money orders, post office money orders and postal notes.

Conversion Loan

For the purpose of providing for maturing bonds and in order to accomplish a reduction in interest reduction the Federal Government proposes to issue a conversion loan in appropriate form to be underwritten and seventy-five million dollars of the loan will be available to small investors in one hundred and two hundred dollar bonds. Further issues made during the war will mature this year. They amount to $387,271,000. The proceeds of these maturities will be given an opportunity to subscribe for long-term investments at a low rate of interest. In addition to this there is a sum required to make up a deficit in the Unemployment Relief Survey, and Unemployment Relief, making a total of approximately $500,000,000 which will be used for refunding, at a lower rate of interest, bonds which will mature.

The date for the conversion campaign has not been set but it is thought that the conversion loan will save approximately five million dollars in interest. The said conversion loan reduced the interest rate from five per cent. one-half per cent. to four, and one-half per cent. which is a little more than six millions per year in interest.

Many new bonds will be payable in Canadian funds only so that there will be no exchange to the maturity.

Stabilization Fund

The Stabilization Fund is a creation of the most drastic taxation program enumerated by any Federal Government in Canada. There will be exemptions for nobody. It offers the most extensive scheme for the payment of improved prices for big products of the country. It is to be financed upon the Dominion. It provides what has been specified by co-operating interests as the most suitable to any economic recovery by the Government. It is a restoration of the purchasing power of the agricultural community. It is to be done by establishing a stabilization fund which is for the purpose of providing better returns and relief for the farmers of Canada. It will enable producers to find a profitable market to secure payment not in depreciated currency but currency on the basis of the British pound sterling which is 4.86. There will be relief to producers of tobacco, cheese, milk products, canned goods, canned vegetables, maple products, eggs and honey.

This provision of the stabilization fund is to be given an equal importance in the Budget with respect to new taxes. The taxes that are included in the list neither is it extended to Nickle Resolutions—the Province of Parliament representing apple producing Districts in British Columbia, Ontario, Quebec, New Brunswick and Nova Scotia urged that apples and canned apples should be included in the commodity for which the stabilization fund will apply.

The explanation given by the Government for leaving the apples out of the group of commodities was the large amount of production the Canadian apples enjoy in the markets of the United Kingdom as a result of the Imperial Trade Agreements, whereas Canadian apples under the United Kingdom free, while foreign apples meet a tariff of approximately 25 cents per box. Producers of thirteen other Canadian products asked to have their commodities included in the list.

Has Unlimited Powers

In view of the possibility that the various Provinces may require further relief from the Federal Government during the days of continued depression, a Bill was passed by the House of Commons entitled "RELIEF ACT OF 1933" to permits the Federal Government to enter into agreements with any of the Provinces respecting measures of relief which may be adopted and to grants guarantee financial assistance.

It further enables the Federal Government to take such measures as will prevent the credit and financial position of the Dominion or any of the Provinces, or of any public utility being impaired.

The Bill is wide in its scope in that when Parliament is not in session it permits the Governor-in-Council to take all such measures as in its direction as necessary to maintain peace, order and good government in Canada. It provides for the Federal Government to pay out of the Consolidated Revenue Fund all such monies as may be deemed necessary for the operation of the Act, but it provides that the amount paid for direct relief for the year ending March 31st 1934 shall not exceed the sum of twenty million dollars.

Dominion Relief

In September, 1930, after the present Government came into office, a Special Session was called and the Unemployment Relief Act was passed. This Act came into force in September 1930 and continued until August, 1931, when the Unemployment and Relief Act became effective and gave the Government unlimited power for the preservation of "peace, order and good government."

For all Canada, during the past two and one-half years, the Government has spent approximately $115,000,000 to relieve unemployment and for direct relief.

British Trade

When Premier Bennett was in the United Kingdom last year he asked the Ottawa Conference agreement as to between the United Kingdom and Canada could not affect the making of agreements with the United States.

If Mr. Roosevelt wants to do business with us he can do so, but the move is up to the United States. In 1930 we bought from the United States goods to the value of $547,142,000 and sold to that country $336,688,000 worth. In 1931 we bought $340,426,000 worth of goods while the United States bought from us goods valued at $149,595,000. Of these sales were wealthy of raw products required for United States' industries while our purchases were chiefly of manufactured or semi-manufactured goods.

Each publicly and privately the Canadian Premier has expressed his desire to accomplish a fair and mutually beneficial trade agreement with the United States. In fact, at recurring intervals since 1911 he has insisted that his opposition to the past offered Canada in that year was predicated solely upon his belief that its provisions were unacceptable to Canada, that it was not a treaty, but an agreement that could be voided at a moment's notice. The present policy of Canada's nationals of established trade and merchandising rather than helping the Canadian producer. The present rate of 25 per cent. preference on apples over about $3.00 per hundred pounds and the indications are that the United States is willing to meet that rate at least in half if not more. They regard Canadian cattle as the best quality in the world.

British Trade

British trade returns for the first three months of 1933 show a remarkable increase in the importation of wheat, cereals, flour and tobacco. In some cases Canada has, under the Anglo-Canadian trade treaty, an "earmarked" market of two hundred and eighty million pounds annually.

Canada in 1932 occupied fourth place among the nations with her products in the British market. In 1931 this Dominion was in twelfth place.

Serkau Deal

During the Session much discussion resulted from what is referred to as the Serkau arrangement for the export of Canadian cattle to Russia in return for Russian products. There is nothing to prevent any individual dealing in private barter with Russia but there is an embargo on the importation to Canada from Russia of coal, pulp (wood), woodchips, timber and raw furs. There is nothing to prevent the importation of crude oil, which is countenanced by the Government on the ground that it will give employment to the thousands workmen at Canadian refineries. The Canadian Government is invited by Mr. Serkau's proposal to import Russian products in exchange in 1933 to the tune of four millions maximum. At the same time the Dominion is invited to protect the Canadian sellers of cattle, or their banks, against breach of contract by the Russian Government.

Federation

The Right Honourable Mackenzie King stated that the formation of the C.C.F. in no unmistakable terms. He does not believe that the socialization of all means of production is practicable, or that any intelligent man can believe that he'll ever be to be, and proceeds to say that the C. C. F. policy would dry up the lifeblood of industry and would require a change in the constitution of the country. And furthermore, Mr. King very properly represents his Co-operative Commonwealth Federation, or rather its leaders. Woodsworth et al, for endeavouring to exploit the prevailing conditions of distress in order to promote the interests of their party.

Unlawful Assembly

The annual Bill proposed by Mr. Woodsworth to repeal that section of the Criminal Code which prohibits seditious utterances and unlawful assemblies, was again given the six-months hoist. Each year it is passed by the House of Commons and killed in the Senate. The clause which it is sought to repeal prohibits persons from publicly uttering seditious words, from publishing seditious writing expressing forms of government. It permits of the publication of books, literature and other property belonging to such association or assembly. The Minister of Justice, Hon. Hugh Guthrie, six-months hoist, stated that conditions in Canada have become such that now, more than ever, Section 98 is justifiable.

Law And Order

The Canadian Labour Defense League has taken the place of the Communist party in Canada—since the latter was declared an illegal organization—and those who endeavored to establish Communism in Canada by force, need not look to the present Government for leniency in regarding the inviolability of their acts.

Premier Bennett told a delegation from the Labour Defence League, that while they were entitled to free speech and order would be maintained.

Redistribution

The Redistribution Bill which governs the representation in the House of Commons was declared in the Senate on May 10th, and by a vote of 48 to 24 was referred to a committee of the whole. The Bill will be given the

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Leavens and baby Carl spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Annie McCullough of Lonsdale.

STIRLING BOARD OF EDUCATION HAS MEETING

Stirling, June 2—Miss Phoebe Mumby R.N., of Toronto, is visiting in town, the guest of Mrs. Bridge and Mr. Eric Mumby.

Mr. and Mrs. Bridge and son Donald of Hagersville are spending a few days with Mrs. A. Murdoff.

The services of Mr. Tom Ward may be recently been enlisted by the Springbrook softball team.

Mr. Clarence Juby of Toronto, is visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Juby.

Mr. Charles Fargey was a week end visitor in Toronto.

Miss Helen Jones has been fortunate in securing a position at some three miles east of Corbyville for the term of the year.

Mr. Frank Gould of Warkworth is holidaying with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ted Gould.

The Tennis Courts are being well patronized and every evening finds a crowd of youthful tennis enthusiasts chasing the balls of tennis.

Mr. Moore of Toronto, was a Sunday caller on Mr. Jas. Wilson, R.S.A.

The local high school students are now in the throes of their last set of test examinations. These will determine whether a student will be granted his certificate on his year's work or whether he must try the June examinations set by the Ontario Department of Education.

Col. D. Green of Bayside, was a Stirling visitor on Monday.

Councillor Thomas Cranston has greatly improved the appearance of his apartment house situated on the corner of Front and Station streets by laying a new sidewalk along the Station Street side of his residence.

Another outstanding improvement in the town has been the painting of the exterior of the post office and the McKelvey & Harris store. Mr. Oakley Gough was the painter.

Mr. Donald Morton motored to Oshawa on Tuesday.

It will be gratifying to the congregation of St. Paul's United Church to hear that their pastor, Rev. E. W. Rowland has declined the accept a call to Bowmanville Church and will remain in Stirling for another year.

Mr. E. J. Spinks, B.A., principal of Norwood District High School, formerly of Stirling high school has resigned to accept the position of principal of Wroxeter high school.

In the Rawdon softball league Springbrook defeated Zion 9-6, Bonariaw defeated Hoard's 11-5, Bonariaw defeated Bethel 15-3, while the Mount Pleasant-Glen Ross game ended in a 5-5 tie. At present the league standing is as follows.

	W.	T.
Springbrook	3	0
Bonariaw	3	1
Mount Pleasant	2	0
Glen Ross	1	1
Hoard's	1	1
Zion	0	3

Mr. and Mrs. M. Pedley of Brasilia is holidaying this week with her son, Dr. W. H. Pedley.

Mrs. Thos. N. W. Sweet (nee Lilian Wickens) and daughter Margaret, of Belleville, Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Sutton (nee Stella Sweet) of Toronto, visited Mr. and Mrs. Percy Palmer, Glen Ross.

Mrs. S. Simmons of Wainwright, Alberta, is visiting her brother, Mr. George Lowry.

Mr. Thomas Chard, Edmonton, Alta., visited his grandfather, Mr. Thomas Heard this week.

Miss Ruth Brigden who has been attending Varsity, is home for the summer vacation.

Mrs. J. McPotts and son Ned have returned from Montreal where they spent the winter. Ned was among the successful 1933 science graduates of McGill University.

Mrs. R. F. Coulter has returned from Grimsby where she spent the winter with her daughter, Mrs. "Dick" Hall.

Miss E. Heath R.N. of Toronto, is holidaying with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Heath of Harold.

The regular monthly meeting of the Board of Education was held on Monday night with Chairman Ross Bleecker in the chair. E. G. Bailey, E. W. Bailey, C. R. Basteds, H. C. Bateman, J. Emory, H. C. Mattin, J. S. Morton, Dr. C. F. Walt and W. Wright in attendance. After the usual preliminaries a controversy was raised concerning opening for the swings at the public school. The result of this will be the substitution of chain swings for the present penitable rope swings. It was also thought advisable to offer prizes for manual training and household science not for their intrinsic value but as an incentive to the students in this branch of study. The Board also felt that a grant should be made to cover prizes for the art exhibit at the annual championship school fair.

The official opening of the lawn bowling season on Wednesday was an outstanding event with thirty two bowlers present. The green were in perfect condition for the occasion and each of the six mixed rinks played one game of fourteen ends. The results of the night's play were as follows:

Rink skip J. C. O'Donnell defeated ring skip Thos Holmes.

Rink skip Mr. Wright defeated rink skip Dr. E. A. Carlton.

Rink skip W. J. Whitby defeated rink skip R.W. Meikle John.

After the play was finished, the ladies served a dainty luncheon to their guests and a social hour was spent in the club house. The membership of the club has been practically doubled this year and all indications point to a most successful bowling season.

STOREKEEPER HANDLES 600 DOZ EGGS ON BARTER

Provisions of All Kinds Given for the Eggs

Barter, even in spite of advancing prices for farm produce lately, is not wholly forgotten by many rural storekeepers in this and other sections of the district. In Prince Edward County farmers are still willing to trade eggs and butter for other groceries. Wm. Jones from the city of Bloomfield, near Picton, that Mr. Moore, proprietor of a Red and White grocery now handles from 500 to 900 dozen of eggs weekly, these are turned in by farmers of the section for canned goods, provisions and clothing materials, and the full market value of the eggs is given.

What's this world coming to? You can't even trust a smart platinum blonde any more. Maude Jones, vampet, of Weston, Ontario, is a case in point. Smartly dressed, she entered many small stores in about half a dozen Ontario cities and towns, purchased some small article, then handed her "pay" cheque. In looked nice, all neatly rubber stamped with the name of the firm, and correctly endorsed, and ladies, we could resist such a winning personality? But the cheques bounced, maximum blonde or not, and Betty gave the police a nice run for their money before she was caught in Toronto after doing up three scores in succession. She's now looking out from inside the reformatory where she'll remain for another year.

MATE CLAIMS BEING FRAMED

Major Issue Whether Course of Boat Was Changed by Mate

Houghton, Mich., June 1.—(AP)—Two inspectors for the United States Bureau of Navigation today were weighing the testimony of several score witnesses as they sought to fix responsibility for the wreck of the Steamer George M. Cox on fog-shrouded Duck Island Lake Superior Saturday while enroute to Port William, Ontario, with a cargo of two hundred Canadians going to Chicago.

One of the major issues is whether First Officer Arthur Kronk changed the course of the vessel while in temporary command after leaving Portage Lake Ship Canal for the Canadian port. Capt. George E. Johnson and Wheelsman John Nelson testified he did.

Kronk, reiterated in his denial in yesterday's concluding session of the inquiry, caused a flurry by shouting he was being "framed by a dirty bunch of crooks". He wept as he shouted the accusation.

Previously he had exchanged blows with Capt. M. L. Gilbert, vice-president and general manager of the Isle Royale Transit Co., owners of the Fox, two vessels during a recess. Kronk claims the crew members were "framed" on him and Capt. Gilbert retorted that "if anyone is lying it is you".

Several witnesses testified Kronk was one of the first crew members to leave the ship after she hit the reef and that when he had only a woman passenger in his boat. Kronk has denied both the First Officer who said he helped load the boats before he left the disabled steamer and that he took 17 women to shore.

Capt. John H. Hansen and A. C. Knights, of Marquette, the inspectors who conducted the inquiry have not said when they will make their report. They were joined on yesterday's session by Capt. F. J. Mero, of Detroit, supervising inspector for the Eight District, who took an active part in interrogating witnesses.

Spying on Sports

BY
William Ritt
Central Press Canadian

Not since Jack Dempsey and Gene Tunney climbed into a Chicago ring for their second brawl in 1928 has the pre-fight guessing been as close as it is in regard to the Max Baer-Max Schmeling affair. He'll put up a satisfactory scrap.

But Baer—the California Max—faces his first big chance. In lesser tests he has proven aggressive, courageous and fairly smart. He bubbles with confidence but is not temperamental. He can stand the gaff—having been through a couple of 10-round affairs. And nowhere in the record is any evidence that he has been knocked out of his feet.

The German Max is a methodical, plodding type but a first rate fighting man. He wears the enemy down with his short-range siege gun—the left—and when the ramparts begin to crumble Schmeling touches off his right. That battery blasted such boys as Johnny Risko and Bill Stribling right out of the picture and made Jack Sharkey look awfully foolish last summer.

The California Max likes to shoot the works and he has bowled over enough foes to prove that, for him, it isn't a bad idea. He packs a punch in either hand. He is only 24 and in the last year or more has been coming along at top speed.

The German Max is in his prime and cannot afford to be careless in this fight. He hasn't the years ahead of him that Baer, barring a disabling injury, has. He was outcoasted toward the end of his 1932 bout with Sharkey—that could ruin him his title. The German fighter learns—and never forgets.

A paradox of this bout is that the promoter is almost as interesting a figure as are the principals. The fight looks like a good one and it should sell itself on its own merits but the fact that Jack Dempsey is promoting the show is selling a lot of tickets.

The old champion is proving a first class promoter. He learned his lesson well from the master, the late Tex Rickard. Those test "bouts" between Dempsey and Schmeling and Dempsey and Baer were clever ballyhoo.

An angle that hasn't hurt the bout's prospects a bit is the strange coincidence that both fighters resemble Jack a bit but in a different way. Schmeling has a physical resemblance to the old champ and is about Dempsey's height and weight. Baer's method of shooting the works is reminiscent of Dempsey when he was in quest of the title and during his tenure in that office.

The German Max probably will be the favorite—as he now is—on the night of the fight. However, there is a growing belief that Baer is going to surprise.

That the bout will be close is the best guess.

The one man who must be the best informed on the chances of the two Maxies is Dempsey and he, of course, could not afford to make any predictions at this time.

SOUTH END A.C. WIN GAME 18-3

McNabb's Allstars Had 13 Runs Scored Against Them in One Frame

Scoring thirteen runs in the first inning the South End A. C. team defeated the McNabb Allstars by the score of 18 to 3 in the opening game played in the local Metal Sector Softball League at the College Field last evening.

After getting the first inning out of their system the Gilmour-managed crew settled down to play like South Enders a rather close game for the remainder of the pastime. Manager Knott used all of his available material after his club secured the lead and then went on to coast home to victory. The line-ups:

McNabb—Cooke, Sero, Siringer, Champagne, H. Day, T. Day, Murphy, Martin, Gilmour and Argent.

South End A. C.—Carter, Kiser, Henn, Burley, Palmer, W. Knott, Ethier, Beare, Barriage, A. Knott.

Score by innings:

South End A. C...	13	0	3	1	2	0	—	18
McNabb's	0	0	0	0	3	0	—	3

Umpires—Clapper and Keys.

VANITY SENDS HIM TO PRISON

Dallas, Texas, June 2 (CP)—John J. Vay was sentenced to 20 days by Federal Judge W. H. Atwell for impersonating an army officer and obtaining money falsely by that means. Vay told the court his wife's vanity in presenting him as "Captain" proved too much for him and he never denied the rank because, he said, that would have been unchivalrous.

Southern California Track Team at Bloomfield for Next Ten Days for Rest

Sixteen in Party And Will Take Only Light Exercises

GREAT TEAM

Personnel Includes Stars of Track And Field in U. S.

Under the leadership of Coach Dean Cromwell the crack University of Southern California track and field team is strong arrived in Belleville yesterday afternoon via the C.N.R., where they were met by bus and later transported to Bloomfield, where they will be the guests of Mr. C. W. Praleigh, an uncle of Jack Praleigh, the business manager of the team for the next ten days.

After touring the eastern part of the United States in a successful barn-storming tour, which brought them into competition with the best athletes in their country, the members of the S. C. team will relax for the next ten days and enjoy a well earned holiday in and around the Bay of Quinte section where they will golf, fish and generally relax every other day despite the fact, that a certain routine of exercises and training rules will be observed.

According to Mr. Cromwell, who is in charge of the party, the team, especially the track men, will have to keep in perfect condition as they are scheduled to appear at a three-star track and field meet in Chicago which is being staged in connection with the present World's Fair in that city. The Southern California team won a decisive victory over all competitors in the recent meet held in Boston and expect to face stiffer and more experienced opposition in Chicago.

May Train at Picton

When approached by the Ontario Intelligencer relative to the possible training quarters at or near Bloomfield, Mr. Cromwell stated that the track team would either workout at Picton or Belleville tracks, with Picton being the more likely, it being nearer to Bloomfield. Due to the fact that the field team will be afforded rather inadequate training facility at Picton Bill Graber, their star pole vaulters, Houston Harper, their giant champion 16 pound shot put star, and Duncan McNaughton, of Vancouver, who represents the team in the high jump, may train in Belleville with the others, providing proper facilities can be procured. Graber's paraphernalia for the pole vault has been shipped direct to Chicago but it has been suggested that adequate equipment along these lines would be available in Belleville providing the scheme functions. Mr. Cromwell would make no definite statement relating to these problems, however, McNaughton was not with the party, when they arrived in Belleville from Montreal, he having stopped in Cornwall to visit relatives.

A set programme of golf, fishing, hiking and motoring has been arranged by Jack Praleigh, their manager and nephew of their host at Bloomfield. Numerous members of the party were observed carrying fly casting outfits with which they intend participating in some of that excellent Canadian fishing, which they asked of soon as they embark, ed from the train. All of the members of the party seem to be in the best of physical condition, while Coach Cromwell stated, that he was more than delighted with the showing made by his athletes during their tour of the east.

The entire party was transported to Bloomfield in Frank "Duke" Smith's bus, where they will remain until on or about June 10th, according to their schedule. They have completed arrangements to be in Chicago to start heavy training one week before the huge athletic meet opens. The meet at the World's Fair is June 16th and June 17th, when athletes from all over the world will compete on a common level. The visitors seemed highly impressed with the Canadian surroundings and their reception in Canada.

Yesterdays Stars

Bob Seeds, Reg Sox—Clouted a triple with one on in the 13th, and scored on squeeze play for runs that beat Senators.

Leo Durocher, Cardinals—Led attack on Cubs with double and two singles.

Wesley Ferrell, Indians—Held the Browns to three hits for 3-1 victory.

Homer Peel, Giants—Hit three singles and drove in two runs against Phillies.

Lynwood Rowe, Tigers — Outpointed Ted Lyons in five hit duel to beat White Sox 3-1.

THE BIG SIX

With Baltimore idle there was little action among the six big batters of the International League yesterday. Ike Boone of Toronto, the leader, got one out of four times up, and dropped to 4th Barbee, his club mate, remained stationary in fifth position. None of the other members saw action. The leaders:

"SCHOOLBOY" ROWE, DETROIT HARD TO BEAT

With Tom Bridges is The Mainstay of Hurling Staff

FERRELL WINS

Cardinals Now on Top Rung of National League

Detroit's chances of getting out of the second division in the American League look very slim indeed so long as five teams are in the fight for places in the upper half of the standing but as long as they can pitch faith on Tommy Bridges and Lynwood "Schoolboy" Rowe, the Tigers are a hard team to beat.

Bridges already has two one-hit games to his credit this season while Rowe, 21-year-old "freshman" right hander, appears to be living up to the training camp ballyhoo which labelled him as another Dizzy Dean. Rowe would appear to have taken his place as one of the mainstays of the Detroit mound staff.

The six foot, four inch, 205-pound schoolboy pitched a one hit game against Ted Lyons and the slugging Chicago White Sox yesterday to win 3-1. He gave only five hits, issued five, and pitched shut-out ball after the first inning.

Wesley Ferrell, Cleveland's ace, put more brilliancy into the Indians season's records as he came through with a three-hit game to give the Indians a 3-1 triumph over St. Louis Browns and increase their margin over the White Sox to five games.

The last place Boston Red Sox, after yielding to Bill McAfee for six innings without a run, rose up in the eighth to score four times and tie the count, then added two more runs off Al Thomas in the thirteenth to beat Washington, 7-5. A triple play by Bob Seeds was the deciding blow. The Yankees and Athletics had an open date.

National League.

St. Louis Cardinals climaxed an almost uninterrupted climb from seventh place in the National League to first with a 6-1 victory over the Chicago Cubs. It put them just four points ahead of Pittsburgh Pirates, who had an off day.

Dean's six-hit pitching was the most important factor in the Cards' seventh straight triumph but his mates pounded Guy Bush hustily, received the benefit of five errors and got the game away with a four-run rally in the seventh.

New York Giants continued their unbroken string of victories over the Phillies by winning the other National League game 7-2 as Fred Fitzsimmons settled after a bad start and yielded only five hit in the last six innings.

Cold weather forced postponement of the Brooklyn-Boston doubleheader.

Letters to the Sports Editor

Belleville Ontario Intelligencer,
June 1, 1933.
Dear Sir:—

In reply to statements in your Current Sport column in the edition of June 1st regarding the participation of certain athletes in the Kingston District meet I would like to correct you on certain points and clear up others.

First you stated, that the athletes who qualified in their school work for the meet, but failed to make the standards set, were not eligible for competition at Toronto. This statement is entirely wrong. Any student who placed first, second or third in any event at Kingston, may compete at Toronto by paying his own expenses to the meet there, provided of course, that he is eligible as to academic standing.

Secondly, a statement that Jack Morgan was never registered at the Kingston meet is unfounded. The athlete in question had an entry form sent to T. A. McGinnis at Kingston previous to the meet, accompanied by a letter from Dr. Bishop of Albert College, explaining his position clearly. There was absolutely nothing underhand in his entry, as the instructor at B.C.I. would have found out had he accompanied the track team to the meet as is his job.

As for a statement apparently quoted from Mr. Partridge, "that there were only two boys, who could honestly qualify as the entire team," there are no grounds, and the speaker would do well to be more honest in his statements. Ten of the twelve local athletes at the meet were eligible in every way, and I am prepared to produce proofs of this statement.

The statement that a few of the juniors and intermediates may be given special dispensations to enter the Toronto meet is also wrong. No special dispensations are needed for those who placed first, second or third.

In closing, I will ask why Mr. Partridge did not accompany the team to Kingston in order to ascertain, that no athletes who were not eligible would compete?

Thanking you for your valuable space, I am,

Yours sincerely,
A Student

Editor's note—The information referred to in the above letter was received in this office and supplied by Mr. Partridge, physical instructor at the B.C.I. to V.S. Since that time, however, it has been ascertained that all of Dick Philp's masters and Principal MacLaurin signed a qualification and guaranteeing the eligibility on the basis of his academic standing. As far as this column is concerned this matter is now closed.

BETWEEN INNINGS

Al Simmons is one of the soundest sleepers in the major leagues. He usually gets 10 hours or so of slumber per day. Says it not only rests the eyes as well as the body, but enables him to avoid the boredom of hanging around a hotel lobby.

Gordon (Dusty) Rhodes, Boston Red Sox hurler, is the champion hard-luck twigler of baseball this season. He has been nicked out in one run in five games. Had his outfit won, he would have been the leading pitcher of the circuit.

Holy Cross' alumni could each other in major league ball recently when Blondy Ryan of the New York Giants batted against Owen Carroll, Brooklyn pitcher. Both attended the Worcester, Mass., school.

Wally Berger will lead the National league in home runs this year—according to the prediction of Al Lopez, Manager Bill McKechnie of the Boston Braves.

Lefty Grove isn't a bit sore—physically or mentally—as a result of his superhuman stunt of pitching relief in consecutive games. "My arm isn't a bit tired or relief work."

John Salveson, youthful right-hander recently recalled by the Giants from the Dallas, Texas League team, is owned by Manager Bill Terry to win eight or more games for the New York's this season.

Mule Haas, the least mentioned—since the season began—of the trio of Athletics who were sold to Chicago, has been picking up lately in his hitting and is slamming his way toward a .300 average.

Chuck Klein is now leading the National League in doubles with Sam Leslie of the Giants and Babe Herman of the Cubs trailing the Philly star. Klein has been left behind by Wally Berger, Braves, in the home run race.

ARRANGE FOR GAME SERIES

No Church League For Softball in Madoc This Year

Madoc, June 2 (Special)—Last year there were in Madoc village four teams of softball players, each team affiliated with one of the churches, Trinity United, St. Peter's Presbyterian, St. John's Anglican, and the Roman Catholic Church team. These formed a church league of teams, and the generosity of Rev. R. Bertram Nelles donated a silver cup for the winners and for champions o f the team for the season of 1932.

Regular games were played, one each week to decide the victors, with the result that the Trinity United team were declared champions for the year, having won twenty four games without losing one.

This year, the Trinity United team is the only one that has 16 regular players intact. Church league and other causes, each of the other teams has lost valuable players, so energetic, efficient and optimistic, Mr. Dave Pullman, of the Pullman Family Outfitters clothing establishment, has organized, financed and outfitted an All-star team from the other players in the village.

The uniform consists of Forest-green shirts, Khaki trousers, dark green caps, green shades. This snappy uniform has been donned by the All-stars, who have become the challengers for a series of games, which will decide the championship for this year.

The championship Trinity United Church team have accepted this challenge, and the first of the series, of games was played in Madoc on last Monday evening. The series will conclude each Monday evening until the championship for the season is decided.

Mr. Pullman expresses the belief that he has recruited some of the best players to be found in Madoc and vicinity, and a smart, well-played series is expected.

The Pullman team defeated the Trinity soft ball players by a score of 8-5 last week, while on Tuesday evening, in Madoc, the United Church team suffered defeat 16-13 in favor of the Pullmans.

On Monday last, the play went 11-6 in favor of the United team, and it is going to be interesting to watch the ebb and flow of the results. An excellent little band was Monday deserves mention, and the boys with green are ready and willing to put up a first class brand of baseball. Every evening and will doubtless receive the whole hearted support of all the sport lovers of the community.

20,000 YEARS IN SING SING PRISON MOVIE THRILLER

Seldom, if ever, has the human side of prison life, with its laughter and tears, its romances, its thrills and its grim tragedies been dramatized in such vivid and dramatic colorings as in the First National picture, "Twenty Thousand Years in Sing Sing," which opens at the Capitol Theatre today.

This screen drama was taken from the book by Lewis E. Lawes, Warden of the Sing Sing prison, who unquestionably is more about the criminal mind and criminal as well as the technical side of prison affairs than any other man in the country.

Spencer Tracy is the star of the picture. It is a document of facts and truth which are stranger than any fascinating than fiction.

The story deals with the life of a "lie shall" gunman, who, when finally convicted, believes he can rule the prison as he ruled his political gang. His personal attachment for the victim becomes so strong that he voluntarily returns to the prison and the chair when on parole, rather than let the warden down. Besides the many thrills, including a prison riot, there is a glowing underlying romance, made inspiring by the looming bryaly of convicts' women for their misguided husbands and sweethearts.

Spencer Tracy has the leading role, with Bette Davis playing opposite him. Others in the cast include Arthur Byron, Lyle Talbot, Grant Mitchell, Warren Hymer, Louis Calhern, Edward J. McNamara and Sheila Terry.

Striking Picture

One of the most striking scenes in "Twenty Thousand Years in Sing Sing," is a prison riot, a sequence made somewhat familiar to the readers of the news columns because of the many riots which have occurred in the penitentiaries of the country recently.

The spectacle of convicts battling with their keepers and trying to escape, only to be driven eventually to be moved down by the guards, is something that will not soon be forgotten.

The picture is a realistic depiction of the human side of prison life, with its humor, its pathos, its romance and its thrills, as well as its tragedies. No such authentic document could have been written by other than the former authority on prison systems, Lewis E. Lawes, of Sing Sing, warden of the noted penitentiary at Ossining, New York, who has lived on the lid of a volcano of human passions for many years.

The book was dramatized by Wilson Mizner and Brown Holmes and adapted by Courtenay Terrett and Robert Lord.

The program also includes episode 8 of "The Devil Horse," cartoon and News. The gift of gab nervaes on Monday & Tuesday.

Tonight

Glenda Farrell, Ben Lyon and Mary Brian appear in "Girl Missing" tonight at the Capitol Theatre.

"The County Fair" will also be shown on the program.

RINGLEADERS OF RIOT SENTENCED TO DEATH

Six Others Implicated Given Long Prison Terms

Altona, Germany, June 2 (AP)—Four ringleaders of the bloody Red-Communist riots here on July 17, 1932, today were sentenced to death and six others to hard labor from three and a half to 10 years.

Twelve persons were killed and 24 injured in Altona when 6,000 National Socialists (Nazis) clashed with Communists in a battle that fought savagely in a public that finally was stopped by police. The riot was the most severe of several in Germany that week end in which 18 were killed.

TRAVELS LONG WAY

Clarksburg, W. Va., June 2—(CP)—Victor Copenhagen has a high school education. He had to hand in 10,560 miles to get it. He walked most of the distance, in four years of summer vacation, but travelled part of it by bus.

"HELL BELOW" LONG-AWAITED CINEMA EVENT

"Hell Below", thriller of submarine warfare, with Robert Montgomery, Walter Huston, Madge Evans, Jimmy Durante, Eugene Pallette and Robert Young in the cast, opens today-tomorrow at the Bella for three days, as one of the most anticipated photoplays of the year. Based on Commander Edward Ellsberg's famous book, "Pigboats", the picture unfolds a terrifically movingd romance set amid thrills under the sea, on the water and in the air, in a vivid narrative of fighting in the Mediterranean off the coast of Italy.

A Selfless Cad

Montgomery was given his most difficult acting assignment in this picture in which he plays a lieutenant on a United States submarine who is at constant odds with his commander, Walter Huston, who reluctantly receives critical laurels for his work in "Gabriel Over the White House," enacts the commander. His daughter is played by Madge Evans. The riotous ship's crew who is also a student of mail-order dentistry is none other than Jimmy "Schnozzle" Durante himself. Eugene Pallette is the chief torpedo man, and Robert Young, as Montgomery's pal, has a role even more effective than his naval officer of "Today We Live". The picture was directed by Jack Conway who has produced a number of outstanding hits for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

The stirring and offtime breathtaking incidents of "Hell Below" revolve about a young naval lieutenant who in an effort to save his closest friend, almost brings about the death of an entire submarine crew when, due to his flaunting of the commander's orders, the submarine is forced to the bottom of the sea with its engines disabled. He is discharged from the navy. Meantime, he has won the love of his commander's daughter who is married to a hopelessly wounded aviator. After a series of compelling dramatic incidents, the young lieutenant is brought to the realization of what he owes to the husband of the girl he loves and makes amend to the futile romance by insulting the girl in a powerful scene which he pretends to be drunk. Having nothing further to live for, in the end, he sacrifices his life in an heroic submarine in which he blows up a fort by ramming it with a submarine loaded with explosives.

Fort Blows Up.

Probably no marine picture ever made before is so permeated with hair-raising episodes as is "Hell Below". These include an air raid over an Italian town which interrupts a festive outing and sends the inhabitants running madly for shelter in alleys and hideaways; the dramatic moments in which the crew is doomed in the submarine which cannot rise, and the sensational escape; the battle between the submarine and four destroyers, and the final terrific climax in which the fort is blown up and its massory bottles up the harbor of enemy destroyers.

ROY ROSE, HALLOWAY, DROWNS IN MILL POND

Suffers Heart Attack While Bathing, Roy Rose, Halloway, Drowned in Old Mill Pond

Body Recovered 20 Mins. After Fatality But Life Extinct

NO INQUEST

Mother Suffers Prostration After Hearing News of Death

Roy Rose, aged 26 years, son of Mr. and Mrs. Seymour Rose of Halloway was drowned in the Moira River, Friday night, in the seven feet of this stream just above the old mill at Halloway. The unfortunate victim of the accident had been at a local ball game and he with six other young men decided to take a cooling plunge in the river. None of the party could swim and the water is not deep at that place. It is thought that Mr. Rose had a heart attack and sank.

The Provincial police in this city were notified of the tragedy and Constable Kelly answered the call. P. W. Peacock, local undertaker of this city went with officer Kelly to the scene of the accident and after two hours with others attempted resuscitation work. Dr. H. E. Walsh of Stella, coroner of this district of the county was called and also aided in the attempt to revive the lad Mr. Rose and after all efforts had proved futile decided an inquest was unnecessary.

The fatal accident has cast a pall of gloom over the district, where the victim of the drowning was a most popular resident of the locality and community.

Mrs. Charlotte Rose, mother of the victim, was stricken with nervous prostration when she heard of her son's death and the services are held for her safely.

Born in Thurlow township, 26 years ago, the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Seymour Rose, he spent his early years with his parents, and later became a member of the staff of the Trentonian. Always popular at the school he attended in Rosslin, Roy Rose was also president of the Junior Farmers' Club at Foxboro. He was a member also of the Rosslin Anglican Church, and had always taken a keen interest in the activities of his parish. Funeral notice appears elsewhere in this issue.

CONVICT HAS REFORM PLAN

Albert Garceau Would Make Prisoners Early Parole

Toronto, June 3 (CP)—The Toronto Daily Star says today says a system of reform, planned by Albert Garceau, convict in Kingston penitentiary, has twice brought him interviews with General D. M. Ormond, superintendent of penitentiaries.

The plan, which the Star describes as a "masterpiece" would enable "every prisoner" to graduate from prison "capable of making his living as a skilled craftsman after he has been taught to earn his parole," according to the newspaper.

Would let prisoners and all his work would be an incentive for him to become unselfish."

How Plans Work.

The article continues:

"The same principles have been worked out for those who show exceptional desire for farming.

"The plan provides for employment in three classes.

"The second great incentive for the unselfish prisoner is provided for in Garceau's plan by a scheme for prisoners on parole to live in their own homes.

"Theoretical work would accompany the actual manual work.

"Since Canadian prisons are now crowded to overflowing, Garceau's scheme would change all this by a system of parole to be granted to convicts completing their training and pass examinations.

"Theoretically, it would be men with sentences of 19 years or more. They would have to complete at least one-third their time in prison.

"The discipline of his training and the zest of competition in striving by quality to win parole and the theoretical work would develop a brighter and healthier attitude toward life and the average convict would leave the penitentiary a better man, a useful member of society," concludes Garceau's statement as an ex-convict during the third Kingston of convicts on charges of rioting during prison disorders last October."

FRANCE HIVE OF ART STUDY, SCHOLARSHIP

While Germany Burns Books Frenchmen Study

ARTISTS BUSY

33,000 Students in Paris University, Most in Centuries

(By Josephine Hamblelon, Canadian Press Correspondent)

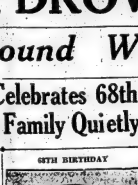
Paris, June 3 (C.P. Cable) — While Germany returns to the unenlightened treatment of burning books on public squares, unprecedented activity reigns among the artistic and intellectual clans of the French Republic. Surpassing intangible benumbs manufactures, the schools are busier than ever.

Since the war, the number attending secondary schools has doubled.

For the first time since the Middle Ages, fewer attendances at the University of Paris, during the Hundred Years' War, is said to learning in the world, divided among more nations than Europe, is unabated today by 33,000 students. More than 10,000 of them are foreigners. One hundred and sixty-three professors are Russians, the remnant of the intellectual elite of Czarist Russia.

The transplanting of 400,000 white Russians to French soil is one of the most tragic and vivid tales of France today.

Five hundred and fifty artists are now exhibiting in the spring salon at the Grand Palais. The migration of foreign artists and intellectuals to Paris, at first resented by Nationalists, has been quickly forgotten in the tremendous impetus which it has given to the art of the world gives to the life of the capital.



The art colony alone has grown in the last five years from 20,000 to 30,000. It has split into various rival schools, each camped on its own hill, Montmartre, Montrouge, Montparnasse. Each change of faith means changes in geography: Japan, China, Cochin China, Morocco, Egypt, each has its own academies along the Seine.

But it is in the realm of letters that energy is most unrelenting. When, three years ago, over 3,000 new books were turned out during year the Society of Authors brought writers, old and young, to the school of the muse.

They continued to write. This year the numberwas 7,000.

King George Celebrates 68th Birthday With Family Quietly

68TH BIRTHDAY

His Majesty King George Fifth who celebrates anniversary.

Lone Flight Around World Starts Early Today

Longevity of British Monarch Still Holds

FAMILY HISTORY

London, June 3 (AP) — King George observed his 68th birthday anniversary today but rhumatism in the left shoulder prevented him from attending a military pageant in his honor.

Rather, the Prince of Wales was deputized to represent His Majesty at the trooping of the colors, the annual function on the Horse Guards parade to which the King has been wont to ride, attired in uniform, from the palace along the mall with a gay retinue.

Except for the rheumatic attack, King George is in good health, and many prayers were offered for his continued well-being. His ailing shoulder prevents him from wearing a uniform.

The attainment of the 68th milestone is in keeping with the longevity records general among British rulers for, since 1714 when the first house of Hanover began to reign, only two monarchs failed to reach that age.

They were George I and George IV, both being 67 years old at death. Edward VII, father of the present ruler, was 68 when he died.

The reign of George V is also nearing the average length of rulership since 1714, 27.7 years, for he came to his 25th year of service as of the throne, the anniversary of his accession in 1910 having been marked May 6.

A strict watch on his health that has been maintained since his grave illness in 1928-1929 has been more or less in the nature of a precautionary measure than of anxiety.

The past year has been marked by his good health, participating in personal touch with the day-to-day affairs of his realm as signified by frequent visits of Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald and others.

The anniversary today, except for the picturesque trooping of the colors, was quietly and simply observed although there were many gifts and many messengers who bore greetings from all parts of the world.

In the annual birthday honors, announced yesterday, four new peerages, one privy councillor, two baronetcies, and more than 90 knighthoods were bestowed.

CABINET OF SPAIN UNDER INTERDICTION

Unexpected Encyclical Refers to Anti-Religious Movements

CIVIL SOCIETIES

Pontiff Says Principles of Civic Freedom Are Attacked

Vatican City, June 3 (CP)—The entire government of Spain has been automatically excommunicated from the Catholic Church for signing anti-Catholic decrees, the Vatican state department announced today after Pope Pius had issued a surprise encyclical declaring that new Spanish religious laws constituted a grievous attack on the church.

The department explained that no decree of excommunication will be proclaimed because the acts committed by the Spanish government came automatically under the provisions of canon law.

The Pope made eight charges against the republic.

One was the separation of the church and the state, which wear "the mask of liberty" and "cover error."

Two, the Catholic religion has an odious watch set over its teachings and its ministers, while heterodox religious processions, the administration of sacraments for the dying, and assistance at the dead were hampered.

Three, the church was stripped of all property and forced to pay a tax.

Four, churches were declared the property of the state.

Five, religious congregations were deprived of the right to teach.

Six, religious orders were suppressed which look a vow of obedience to authority other than the church.

Seven, a blow was aimed at the supreme authority of the church by the declaration that the "authority of a vicar of Jesus Christ is foreign to the Spanish nation."

Eight, religious holidays were limited in order to establish lay schools.

Vatican City, June 3 (AP)—Pope Pius unexpectedly issued an impassioned protest today in the encyclical until the Secretary of State's office announced it was already this morning.

A religious interpretation law was published in Madrid today changing religious orders to civil societies and turning over to the state millions of dollars over to the State. Spanish Bishops and Archbishops called the new "infamous" and "sectarian."

The Pontiff said he had made representations to the Spanish government against the error of its course in wounding the dearest sentiments and the profound feeling of the people in disturbing mutual harmony between the Spanish people, his beloved children of the clergy and laity and the church in the exercise of its course of persecution."

After approval had been given the new Spanish religious legislature, however, he said he could not keep silent in the face of such new,

His Holiness described the new law as one "which constitutes a new and more serious attack on liberty of religion and the church, but also on those accepted principles of civic freedom which the whole Spanish regime pretends to be based."

The encyclical addressed to all Bishops in the world, declared that it does not take this action to thwart political liberty, because the church accommodates herself to all forms of government and civil institutions provided they do not hinder God and Christian conscience are left inviolate.

The war against the church he imputed to "a hatred which secret organizations that seek the destruction of all religious and social order entertain against the Lord."

Madrid, June 3 (AP)— President Alcala Zamora appears to have the Spanish Cabinet, and all deputies favoring the new religious congregations law, were excommunicated from the Roman Church today.

The excommunication was Latae Sententiae, which, under canon law means that it was imposed against those who sign or vote for decrees, laws or actions against the church and its rights. The excommunication is of automatic nature and effective immediately.

The new Spanish law which was the basis for the action made civil societies of religious orders having 38,000 Nuns and Monks as members, and turned over to the State art treasures worth millions. The law was signed yesterday by President Alcala Zamora, devout Catholic. It was understood that the President signed the measure because he realized no other type of church law could obtain the approval of parliament.

There were persistent reports today that the Papal Nuncio would be withdrawn from Spain, but officials of the Nunciature said those rumors were premature.

Jimmy Mattern Hops Off on Globe Encircling Flight Hoping to Break Record

FLYING ALONE

Aviator Has Brilliant Career in All Sorts of Flying

NEW YORK, June 3.—(CP)—James Joseph Mattern, American Aviation's Jack-of-all-work, streaked away from Floyd Bennett Field at 4.30 a.m., Eastern Standard Time, today on a single- handed flight around the globe.

The 28-year-old flier from San Angelo, Texas, who has done all kinds of things aerial, from flying loud meals to Mexico to hopping the Atlantic hoop to smash the Globe-girdling record and become the first to do the flight alone.

The record sight days, seven hours and 15 minutes, was set two years ago by Wiley Post and Harold Gatty.

Mattern turned the nose of his red-white and blue monoplane due to- tury of Progress, toward Harbor Grace, Nfld., but was planning no stop there. Instead he declared he would fly right across the Atlantic and attempt to make Moscow, roughly 4,000 miles from New York, his first stop.

Only Oranges For Food

Mattern took six oranges as his food supply for the long first leg. "All I can eat," he said before taking a good tail wind to reach Moscow," he declared with a grin as a crowd, which had stayed up all night cheered.

Friends, however, expressed the opinion that he would probably land first in Berlin.

"He believes he can get better gasoline there," they said.

"A second attraction is the German boy dope. Asteirn, whose passion is Frankfurters, says the best of wounding his brother, James Bell by shooting him in the leg. The charge was reduced to simple wounding from the original count of wounding with intent, to maim.

In a written decision, Magistrate A. Fraser expressed the belief Bell was wounded when Cupido fired in the tires of his truck in revenge for the fun in his suite tires. One bullet struck Bell in the leg.

Bell changed his name from Cupido to Rubinoff a long time ago.

Attendants at Bennett field yesterday said Mattern would be over Harbor Grace in six hours and after taking here, over Ireland in perhaps 17 or 18 hours, and over London in 20 or 22 hours, if ideal condition prevail.

MUCH IMPROVED

London, June 3—(AP)—Cardinal Bourne, Archbishop of Westminster, was said in an official bulletin today to have spent a restful night following a day when he had a momentary oedema yesterday. An improvement in his general condition was noted.

PROBABLY PROPOSED MARRIAGE

Mother Believes Men on Shed Roof Had This Purpose

QUEBEC, June 3 — Mrs. V. Lockman had considerable to local police that the man who scaled the roof of her home may have been contemplating marriage with her four-year-old daughter Evelyn, born without arms.

"On the night of the incident, my husband awoke to see men moving around outside our bedroom window," she told the police. "He thought he was one of the men at the house." The pair climbed on to the roof of a shed below our bedroom window, and an automobile with engine running was parked in front. As I groped my way to my child's bed, the room was flooded with light from a flashlight, and I started to scream. I awakened the little Evelyn just then the two men leaped from the shed and ran to an automobile and were gone before I could get to the telephone to summon help.

Not so long ago Mrs. Luckman declared a man called at her home and offered a cheque of $75,000 for the armless child.

PRINCE WEDS BELOW RANK

Grandson of Former Kaiser Weds Girl of Unequal Birth

BY LOUIS F. LOCHNER
A P Staff Correspondent

BERLIN, Germany, June 3.—(AP)—Hallowed Hohenzollern Tradition, a rigid "house law" since 1315, was shattered today by the marriage of former Prince Wilhelm of Prussia, grandson of the Kaiser, to Dorothea Salvati, a vivacious 25-year-old girl of Italian descent.

The Prince, who will be 27 on July 4, once was in line for the throne, but now he may forfeit all his chances if the dynasty should return to power, by the marriage.

The civil ceremony was performed in the City Hall this morning in the presence of two witnesses, the bride's brother, Von Salvati, and one of the bridegroom's personal friends. The religious ceremony followed at the Nastle Church and was performed in character with a company of Steeplehimetters forming a guard of honor.

The former Kaiser Wilhelm, feeling that this grandson had forfeited a right to succeed on obtaining his majority, requested members of the royal family to stay away from the wedding.

Wilhelm's bride is not of royal blood. Her forbears were commoners from Northern Italy.

The bride has two brothers, is an enthusiastic Hitlerite.

At the regular South End Athletic Club euchre party held this week the following winners were announced: Ladies, first, Mrs. J. W. Knott, second, Mrs. Keegan. Men's first, Mr. Frank Goyer, second, Mr. W. Woodacre. Fifty or more attended the party which was held in aid of the club men's softball team. The regular series of card parties will be held every Thursday evening until further notice.

BOLT LIGHTNING STRIKES LINE

A bolt of static lightning which appeared with a sudden and heavy downpour of rain over the city at ten o'clock Saturday morning plunged homes and downtown offices into a twilight gloom, and rendered factories and shops inoperative for upwards of half an hour when it struck a transformer of the Hydro-Electric sub-station on Reid street. Repairs were affected soon after the transformer had been put out of commission. The damage to the electric system was light.

SNAKE CIRCLES ABOUT SHOULDER

When Stanley Russell of Campbellford watches the snake charmer in the circus draw snakes and live reptiles around his neck after this he'll know just how he feels.

On their return from camp at Gull Lake last week, Dr. R. V. Fredericks, son of Campbellford and Russell had a three foot snake in the back of their automobile which they had captured at Gull Lake and quietly killed. Arriving home on Stanley felt a rub on the back of his neck. He shrugged the cool collar down, thinking it an attention. Again he felt a rub and this time reared. It was a snake. A length of snake also coiled around his neck.

STURGEON SUNS SELF IN BAY

"Look!" pointed Mr. Lee St. Denis of this city to his companion, Mr. Calvin Bay, as they strolled along the side of the Bay bridge on the Friday afternoon.

Outlined in the glare of the hot sun, and floating lazily on the surface of the water, something himself, lay a huge sturgeon, somewhere in the neighborhood of four feet long.

While the boys looked, the big fish rolled lazily in the warm water, basking unafraid of the cars and passers-by crossing the bridge.

STEADY RAIN FALLS OVER CITY

Although pelted by rain from a miniature cloudburst which drenched the city and district early in the morning, and later developed into a steady drizzle throughout the morning rain which fell did not relieve the clammy humidity and sweltering heat, which held its grip over the city throughout the day. Drought-dried land absorbed the moisture readily, however, and farmers appreciated the downpour, which fell steadily over the tannd.

OBITUARY

ERNEST HUBBS

Ernest Hubbs of Wellington, manager of the Canada Seeds Limited, there, passed away suddenly Friday morning at his home in that village. The deceased was well known in Prince Edward county and was a Mason of prominence in the Bay of Quinte district. He was a Past Master of the Star in the East Lodge No. 164 A.F. and A.M. of Wellington.

SECOND ACCIDENT WITHIN MONTH

Misfortunes have not come singly to Mr. Theodore Parks of Latta. On Saturday morning, while leading a horse from a pasture near his home the animal, always considered a staid and quiet old horse, reared suddenly and struck Mr. Parks, knocking him to the ground. In an attempt to break away from the grasp on the halter which Mr. Parks still held, the horse then stepped on him in some manner, breaking three ribs. Members of the family were summoned and assisted Mr. Parks to his home. Dr. H. E. Welsh of Roslin, is now tending his injuries. Mr. Parks had barely recovered at the time from a broken leg sustained one month ago when a log he was sawing fell on it and caused a severe fracture.

Single Constitutions Favored by Liberals

Ottawa, June 3 (CP) — Men and women of the Twentieth Century Liberal Association decided today to adopt a single constitution. Yesterday the women's branch came to the decision that it preferred to function under a separate constitution.

The men's branch, on the other hand, favored one constitution for both branches. Among its solutions were these favoring a survey of nationalization of insurance supervision or industry by the government to guaranteed steadier employment and the guarantee of reciprocity and low tariffs.

CONFESSES CRIME

Kansas City, June 3 (AP)—Walter H. Mokler, former Oregon convict, was said by police to have confessed today that he was one of the men who kidnapped Miss Mary McElroy, 23, daughter of city manager H. F. McElroy, a week ago today and collected $40,000 ransom for her release.

POTATO CASE INTERESTING

Judge G. E. Deroche, Presides For Three Days at Picton

His Honor Judge G. E. Deroche has been engaged three days in a case at Picton, the issue being whether 500 bags of potatoes sold by a man named Rutherford, north of Colborne to Hogg and Lytle of Picton graded Canada number one. The farmers are greatly interested in the case. Decision is expected this afternoon. Five government inspectors, three on one side and two on the other gave much technical evidence on the usual difference amongst experts.

CRYSTAL HOTEL CHANGES HANDS

James Cowan, Lindsay, Concludes Purchase And is Possession

The Crystal Hotel of this city has again changed ownership. The first of this week Mr. James Cowan took over the proprietorship of that well known Belleville hostelry from Mr. George Kingsley. Mr. Cowan comes to Belleville from Lindsay where for a number of years he ran the Grand Hotel. He also managed the Springman House at Hastings before removing to Lindsay.

Mr. Cowan is well known in the section of the district where he has made his home in curling and will bowling circles in particular. He was a member of the Victoria and Haliburton Pair Board and was actively engaged in the promotion of agricultural interests at Lindsay.

Mrs. Cowan and their three sons have already taken up residence here. On the family's removal from Lindsay Mr. and Mrs. Cowan were the pleased and appreciative recipients of an address from their Lindsay friends which was accompanied with the presentation to them of two upholstered occasional chairs.

INSTRUCTION SCHOOL TO CLOSE FRIDAY

Instructors Quite Pleased With Results of School.

The provincial school of instruction which has been carried on the past several weeks under Lieut. Parker, Royal Canadian Regiment, terminates Friday evening next. C. S. M. Instructor Johnson of the same regiment has acted during the course as assistant to Mr. Parker. The 15th class at Napanee concludes Thursday night next.

Seventeen junior officers and N. C. O.'s have made up the school in Belleville and the instructors are highly pleased with the proficiency the members of the class have shown.

CHEESE UP ON LOCAL BOARD

Annual Meeting Postponed on Account of Statutory Holiday

The annual meeting of the Belleville Cheese Board of Trade which was to have been held Saturday morning, was postponed till Saturday morning next when the Board will convene at 10.45 a.m. in the City Council chamber. In recognition of the King's birthday, Mr. James Cook, of the W. S. Cook and Son firm of this city moved the above motion for postponement which met with the approval of the members attending the session.

The boarding included 1351 white and 126 colored cheese. Colored cheese was offered for sale first and from an inspection of 2-4 cents rose to a closing price of 6 7-8 cents, an increase of 1-4 cent over the price paid for like cheese Saturday last. White cheese was sold in at 9 1-2 cents and at the close of the market reached 9 13-16 cents for selection and 9 3-4 for the balance of the board. All cheese offered for sale was sold with the exception of 143 boxes. An increase of 1-4 cents over Saturday's last price.

Active interest by buyers featured the first June meeting of the board.

BROILERS AT $1.00 A PAIR

Butter Steady, While Eggs Sell From 13 to 14 cts Doz.

Undoubtedly the smallest Saturday market to be held in Belleville for many years was seen on Saturday, June 3rd.

Owing to the fact that a smaller number than usual displayed their wares a brisk auctioneering trading was witnessed. Small young broilers weighing about one pound per pair, made their initial appearance at the inside market and sold for 50c per pair. Older larger chickens brought from 80c to 90c each, however, these being guaranteed milk fed. No change in the price of butter or eggs was noted, when the former sold for 22 and 23c a pound, while eggs brought but 13 and 14c per dozen, a slight increase over last week's prices. Plenty of home cooking and beautiful fall flowers were also in evidence and these sold for 5c each.

Despite the fact that the outside market was smaller than usual the large increase of thirty house wives soon availed themselves of the cheapness of the commodities that had on their tables. Green vegetables such as green onions, beet greens, rhubarb and greens all sold for 5c a bunch. Fresh asparagus sold for three bunches for a quarter. The market square was literally covered with hot house transplanting plants and vegetables, which were eagerly purchased by those interested. Tomato plants brought 15c a basket while celery plants sold for one cent each. Flower plants for transplanting sold for 15c a basket. Potatoes brought the usual price of 75c per bag.

Small porker pigs were sold around $3.00 each while plenty of corn wood was observed along the south side of the square.

J.B. BOYCE TAKES OVER CHEVROLET SALES, SERVICE

Well Known And Popular Belleville McLaughlin-Buick - Pontiac Dealer Adds Chevrolet And Oldsmobile to His Line.

A change in the automobile business in Belleville of great interest to motor car owners in this city and district is the placing of the dealership for Chevrolet and Oldsmobile cars in Belleville and vicinity in the hands of J. B. Boyce. The official announcement to this effect has just been made by General Motors Products of Canada, Limited. J. B. Boyce (Burt) has been in the automobile business in Belleville for several years and has made a decided success of it, beginning very modestly and gradually expanding until he now operates one of the largest and best equipped sales and service automobile establishes between Windsor and Quebec.

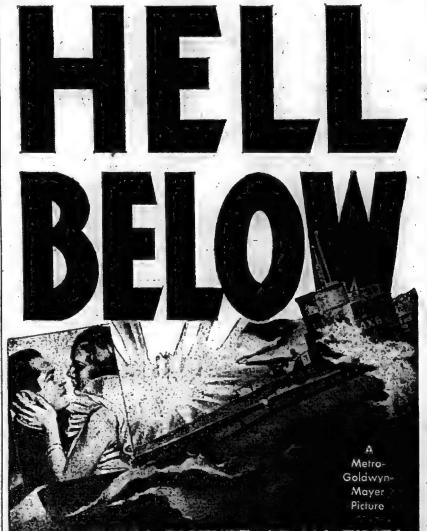
Mr. Boyce's many friends will congratulate him upon still another step forward in his chosen profession, and his large business, built on Front street, opposite the Belle Theatre has ample accommodation for the sales and service of the new line of Chevrolets and Oldsmobile added to the Pontiac and McLaughlin-Buick line already carried.

Service is the keynote of the Boyce organization, with a large and efficient staff, parts for every car handled and a modern machine shop and every appliance for quick and satisfactory motor car service. This dealership is equipped to give the public most complete and modern service, made possible by direct association with the vast General Motors organization. With Chevrolet's position of leadership in sales and Oldsmobile's constantly increasing popularity J. B. Boyce is looking forward to a considerable volume of business.

The sales models will be on display in the show rooms, and the management extends an invitation to the public and will be glad to arrange demonstrations.

A water shortage on 65,000 acres of Nebraska farm land was reported last week, when pocket gophers burrowed into the bank of an irrigation canal.

Letters to The Editor



PUBLIC SCHOOL SALARIES

The Editor Ontario Intelligencer,

In reference to the open letter of Saturday, May 27th signed "A Lover of British Fair Play" I quite agree in all details and have been waiting to see if the Board of Education would publish the names and salaries of the Public School Teachers the same as they did with the Collegiate Teachers. As was requested, being a tax-payer I ask the question of the Board of Education that surely they do not call that economy, when they increase the Public School Teachers' salary fifty dollars ($50). Why make the distinction between Public and Collegiate teachers? Why didn't they publish that increase as they published the reduction of the Collegiate Teachers', for when the Board of Education was elected to office the tax payers understood that they would be fair to all teachers and also to the tax-payers instead of giving some knocks for the benefit of others. That is not, never was and never will be British Fair Play or Justice.

Just a Tax-payer.

CANADIAN LIVES ENDANGERED AS SHIP STRIKES REEF

This photo shows the lake steamer George M. Cox on the reef in Lake Superior near the Rock of Ages light in the vicinity of Houghton, Mich. The vessel struck the rock Saturday, May 27. The 120 passengers and crew going from Fort William to Chicago, were taken off by a coast-guard boat. Several were seriously injured. An investigation is now being held.

TEN MISSING 19 INJURED IN EXPLOSION

Seven Burned to Death in Blast That Was Felt For 20 Miles

OTHERS MAY DIE

Explosion Starts Fatal Oil Fire And Fanned by Breeze

LONG BEACH, Cal., June 3—Seven persons were burned to death, 19 were treated at the hospitals for injuries, and ten others were missing tonight at the Meader absorption plant of the Richfield Oil Company in the Signal Hill Field near here Friday.

Windows Shattered

The blast, which destroyed homes in the immediate vicinity of the refinery, was felt for thirty miles around, and plate-glass windows were shattered three miles away.

Fire-fighters brought the resulting blaze under control after four hours of work. They estimated damage would exceed $250,000.

There were two explosions. The first, a minor blast, was believed to have been in one of the compressors. The gas released from high pressure took into the air and was ignited by the blazing boilers of the D'Angelo Oil company eighty rods away, bringing about the second two minutes later.

The death list:

Ed. Weiler; 35, Anaheim oil worker; Duke Gaughan, Bellflower, oil worker; C. J. Brown, Whittier oil worker; Charles, Cope, Long Beach oil workers; J. L. Shumway, Bellflower, oil worker; Little Carlyon, Long Beach; Marilyn Carlyon, 6, Long Beach.

Covers Five Blocks

The fire swept before a sharp breeze, covered more than five blocks before the flames were brought under control. Two homes were burned to the ground as well as oil tanks of the Lido Hancock and O'Angelo companies.

Six men were known to have been in the refinery at the time of the second blast, and several workers at surrounding oil derricks were unreported tonight. Five charred bodies, all identified, were taken from the Richfield plant ruins.

Mrs. Lettie Carlyon and her 8-year-old daughter were caught in their home, at the flames burst forth with the second blast, and they burned to death. The husband and father, Thomas F. Carlyon and other daughter, were rescued when the explosion occurred.

Immediately after the explosion, two women on the connection of a 6-stadium a mile away, were rushed to the scene. They constructed an improvised damn to stop the flow of crude oil which swept down the streets toward Long Beach City proper.

MADOC BOWLING PRIZE IS WON BY CHAS. CASEMENT

Madoc, June 3—The lawn bowling club of Madoc village opened the season at the bowling greens on Wednesday, May 31st, with a jitney tournament. In the absence of the President, Mr. Herb Bailey, the opening address of welcome and good wishes for the season's sport was given by Dr. Wyper, who briefly welcomed all and hoped for a good time for all during this season.

Teams were drawn for, and three games were played, the prize, a beautiful clock for the highest score obtained, going to Mr. Chas. Casement. Several new members were received, and many more signify their intention to join for this year.

How "Cock And Bull" Stories First Named

You have often heard the expression "a cock and bull story" without realizing it, had special significance when applied to yarns told by automobile tourists. Nevertheless this expression can trace its origin direct to the early days of highway transportation.

Ireland's merry coaching days, travelers coming into Stratford from the south stopped at the "Cock," which was an inn on one side of the narrow main street, while travelers from the south stopped at the "Bull," on the other side. After dinner the travelers would consult each other about the state of the roads they were to traverse the next day, and there were frequent overstatements about the unusually snowdrifts and washouts. In this country, even the official road bulletins sometimes turn out to be "cock and bull" stories.

Describes Scenes as Tornado Visits Camden

Interesting Letter Received by Mr. and Mrs. Hazzard, Moira

Moira, June 3—The following is an extract taken from a letter received from Miss Carrie Hazzard, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. Hazzard, of Moira, who is a Deaconess in Camden, New Jersey, pertaining to a tornado which swept the city recently.

125 N. 25th St. Camden, N.J.
May 24th, 1933.

Dear Ones:

We have just witnessed the most extraordinary storm of our lives. A tornado in light form has just passed over Camden and Philadelphia and we do not know as yet what the boundaries of the damage may be.

We had returned from our day's outing, prepared dinner and were standing on the back step speaking to Mrs. Reid, a lady next door, when we observed and remarked to her the strange appearance of a peculiarly shaped white cloud outlining which was rapidly were coming up rather rapidly. We thought nothing of it for there had been other storms already today but the peculiar shape and color attracted our attention. We had scarcely finished the remark concerning the appearance of the heavens than great drops struck and a fierce wind caught us and we dashed in the door, through the house to rescue our Pandora plant, by this time the tornado had struck and it was too late to get to our car which was standing out in front of the house for we were to go up in Pennsylvania for a service that night. From that moment for at least three quarters of an hour one of the fiercest combinations of wind hail and rain stormed us that it is possible to imagine. It came in great white sheets completely obscuring the sight on the opposite side of the street. Limbs began to be broken and hurled to the street, first the smaller, then the larger ones. Our car was sitting under one of the eight massive trees lining our block of 25th Street which make it a very pretty shady spot in the summer. Just as we looked out to wonder what we should do about our car, lightning struck to our left crashing one of our largest trees, it fell across the street resting on the houses opposite. The wires carried the lightning over the roof of the house preventing a fire as we expected. Larger limbs came crashing down. We could hear a woman screaming and crying in one of the near houses. Another crash and to our right another massive tree was stretched across the street. By this time the street was literally strewn with branches small and great, awning torn and the pipes lying on the ground. The storm seemed to take teeth and with a velocity beyond description played with us like a kitten with a ball of yarn. Down the street a large truck was pinned under one of the trees and a passenger car was stopped in the centre of the street with two large limbs resting on each side of it. Another large shade tree at the end of the street crashed and fell across and at the other end one which had stood forty years there was torn up roots and all taking with it a large square of the cement pavement.

However, after we had prayed and put it in the Lord's hands we felt content whatever should happen. After the fiercest part of the storm had passed a young woman came dashing down the street from work, her arms full of books, crying, racing like a wild woman, falling down in pools of water, stumbling over branches of trees, splashing in deeper water, for the street was a solid mass of flowing water. People came out their doors watching her, expecting every moment to see her fall fainting, unable to go further. She looked down the street evidently and her home was one of the houses where one of the large trees had fallen, so no doubt frightened to death to know what had happened she dashed on madly. Finally her father emerged from the limbs of the trees, caught her and helped her through the tangled branches and the last we saw they were getting her into the house.

When the fierceness of the storm had subsided, and the fierce lightning could be seen at a distance, there stood our little car unharmed, not even scratched, people began to come out on their porches, faces blanched and frightened. Our street was one scene of ruin.

As soon as the rain had ceased partially, men appeared in rubber coats and began clearing limbs and debris from the streets. Later on the city men appeared, climbed poles and began cutting fallen and loose wires dangling everywhere. We could hear and see the fire reels going screeching through the street near by . . .

When it was over we got on our knees and fervently thanked our Heavenly Father for his protection and care over us.

With lots of love and thanksgiving to God for His wondrous care.

Your own girl, Carrie.

HONOR TITLES ARE IN ORDER

Mr. W. C. Mikel, K.C. Says Titles Used to Honor Service

When considering titles of honor, W. C. Mikel, K.C., has put forward the suggestion that Miss Jessie Muir of Napanee, Ontario, who in June, will have completed 58 years of service as a school teacher, might have conferred upon her by the Governor General in Council or the Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario in Council the title of Countess or some other title that would emphasize a long period of service during which she has trained Canadians for good citizenship.

Mr. Mikel refers to a decision of the late Chief Justice, the Right Honourable Sir Henri Taschereau, of the Supreme Court of Canada in a judgment delivered in that Court, that "There can be Provincial officers known as Nova Scotia Queen's Counsel as well as there can be Provincial officers known as Quebec Knights, Ontario Baronets, or Manitoba Lords." Lenoir vs. Ritchie, 3 S. C. R. 626.

The first person honoured with the title of Queen's Counsel was Sir Francis Bacon in 1604, which honour was conferred by Queen Elizabeth.

"De mes love titles? The answer to this question, Mr. Mikel says, "will depend upon what men do about them. Whenever men congregate together in any form, whether in church, in state, in military or in social organizations, they invariably proceed at once to constitute titles. Cardinals and Bishops could be known by their ordinary names. Mr Speaker in the House of Commons, the Senate, the Legislative Assembly or Congress might be called George Black or any other proper name instead of Mr. Speaker The Right Honourable R. B. Bennett or the Right Honourable William L. M. King might be called Richard Bennett or William King. Generals, Colonels, Captains and Lieutenants could fail as well be known by their real names. In fraternal organizations Noble Grand, Worshipful Master, Most Worshipful Grand Master and Grand Knights of Columbus and other similar titles might be eliminated and the individuals addressed by their proper names. Franklin Delano Roosevelt might just as well be called, Franklin as President. Viscount Molterwell of Abermethy would sound as well as the Honourable Member of Melville.

"Generally towards titles has arisen to some extent from the frequency with which they have been used to reward services of politicians and plutocrats rather than to reward services as school teachers, municipal officers and others of that class," he contends.

The title of "Unity of Empire Loyalists" (U.E.L.) was conferred by an Order in Council of the Canadian Government, November 9, 1789, when Lord Dorchester was Governor General. It was the first Canadian title and was hereditary. It was conferred, not because the recipients had basked in the sunshine of a monarch's favour, but because they had sacrificed all their worldly goods for a principle and served well.

On 16th of June, 1784, the date upon which these Loyalists landed in the Bay of Quinte District in considerable numbers is generally regarded as the date on which was laid the foundation for Upper Canada by the Loyalists.

HIS MAJESTY'S BIRTHDAY

Monarch of the greatest expanse of territory in the world but greater far as a ruler of the hearts of more subjects than ever acknowledged the potentates of any age in any other land, His Majesty King George Fifth celebrates the sixty-eighth anniversary of his birth. Twenty-three years on the throne have ripened his experience and wisdom in a period the greatest part of which has been involved in the bitterest experiences of international history. Though war and war's effects have rent and torn humanity for the past nineteen years, the king yet stands before the world not only as the ideal of Christian monarch, but also as one vitally interested in the movements which are being enacted upon this stage of the world's history.

The Empire today looks as it has looked, for all the years since his accession, to the throne as to the source of what is most stable. And fortunately is ruled by one whose gentle ways are the modern ways for the way of force has long been dethroned. The King is a monarch, but a modern monarch, whose personality and whose representative capacity are so closely entwined. A king today who knows one thing in his heart and who did the opposite in public life could not endure the criticism of this critical age, but the hearts of Great Britain and Ireland and the Emperor of India has preserved as no president nor premier could a link between the source of all the material power and the people which is particularly the mark of the kingship.

On his sixty-eighth birthday an empire of men and women honor the throne and nations outside the pale of our Empire also acknowledge not only the great statesmanship but also the noble character of the king.

Such a day is naturally a family day but his subjects of others cannot desist in their expressions of loyalty to one who has stood for stability in a torn world.

"Every inch a king" is the usual regal sense and every inch a man," is the Empire verdict on the King's Birthday.

PEDESTRIANS AND OTHERS

While drivers of automobiles are every day admonished to drive carefully, perhaps a little advice should be given the pedestrian and others who are not always innocent of contributing to accidents.

There is the jay-walker who crosses an intersection diagonally, and there is the child who takes especial delight in dancing before a moving automobile and daring the driver to run over him or catch him if he can.

The jay-walker who crosses an intersection diagonally should know better. He could not be sure that he will be run down, but he cannot, at a glance, take in all avenues of approach from which motorcars may approach him. Accordingly he must depend upon the driver to protect him, when he breaks the law.

The unrepentant child who flirts with disaster by trying to annoy a driver is not so much to blame as his or her parents, who should know whether a child has been warned against such actions or not.

There is the occasional bad boy who somehow has conceived the notion of shying rocks or bricks at automobiles. No parent who has such a child can be ignorant of this child's weakness. If a child offends in this regard his parents surely are sons of this type that invite destruction and injury. To hurl a rock at a moving vehicle is reprehensible and a parent ought to have told the child so. But such a child is to blame the injury not only of one but of everyone in the vehicle as well as the occupants of other vehicles and every person on the street for a driver struck in the face by a stone is scarcely likely to avoid losing control of his automobile for the time being.

PROTECTING OF CONFIDENCES

It has always been said that a member of a certain society "never tells."

But there is no profession or occupation where some one else never tells. It is the newspaper. Sometimes an irritated person demands to know who was the source of this and that news. It is perhaps maddening to be told that "We cannot tell." Of course the newspaper should be certain of the news it publishes and then publish what is in the public interest, for there are facts in life which do not make news and have no public interest and these rightly may be dismissed.

A newspaper is often told that "we shall find a way to make you tell," but that day does not come.

In New Jersey a law has been promulgated to protect reporters against being forced to expose to grand juries confidences entrusted to them. Toronto Globe, commenting upon this says: "The reporter is in the same relationship to his source of information as is the lawyer to his client and the clergyman to his parishioners. None of these should be obliged to divulge information of a private nature confided to him and to him only."

THE NAMELESS PORTRAIT

The new librarian believes
It has hung there a full decade,
Uncatalogued, except as part
Of a collection someone made.

Now, after such a lapse of time,
There seems but little chance to trace
For me, at once, what I desire,
The history behind that face.

And so I fashion it from these:
Stern mouth, wide brow and honest eyes
Within whose cool, clear gaze there lies
The promise of a spirit wise.

And calm and kind. Such was the man
Who needs no record in a book;
He bares his soul to me, himself.
I read it in his level look.

It may be they will never learn
His name where he lies hidden and loved;
But no discerning heart can ensure
And look upon his face, unmoved.

—Aline Michaelis.

A CRIME MYSTERY which outrivals the best Edgar Wallace thriller is gripping New York in the throes of a headache, the Ridley case; in which an aged millionaire eccentric and his secretary were murdered after the same manner which killed a previous secretary several years ago Ridley's father came to New York when a young man, peddled notions from door to door, and eventually opened a store in Grand Street, now downtown New York. The business flourished and became one of the first big department store chain departmental stores. In the couse of time after a fortune of millions had been piled up the business was left to Adrian and Otto, the hands of the Ridleys. The last Ridley, an aged eccentric with flowing white whiskers and mysterious movements, established an office in New York slums, burrowing deep into the earth in the basement of the building to make room for his business offices. Here he conducted the business of mortgages, loans and rentals. Secret doors and various precautions against intruders marked the Ridley office. Several years ago his secretary was found murdered, shot through the head by a revolver. No trace of the murderer was ever found. Recently the millionaire was found with his head crushed, an office stool having been used—his secretary lay dead from bullet wounds from a revolver. It was established by the police ballistic experts that the bullets came from the same weapon as which killed the former secretary. Investigation revealed that the secretary and two outside accountants, trusted by Ridley, were systematically robbing the old man, whose eyesight was so poor that he could not identify the papers he was asked to sign. The fact that the death of the old man and his secretary ended their reign seemed to satisfy the detectives that these two men had nothing to do with the killings. Now there's a chance for the best sleuths, amateur or professional to solve the mystery of two crimes, separated by years, yet connected. "Nothing being hid root of all evil, it can be said with truth that old man Ridley's money murdered him, assisted by humans at present unknown.

SIDELIGHT FAMILY will have noticed the fact that this Great Family Journal, keeping pace with and ahead of the times, is now an illustrated publication. Folks generally want their reading up to the finely and hot daily from all parts of the world, and they appreciate it much more when served up with actual photographs of persons and places prominent in the day's news. Sixty-five hundred homes in Belleville and district welcome this newspaper every day as a necessary part of the family circle and the evident appreciation of subscribers is ample compensation for the large amount of money expended in the constant effort to improve this publication.

THAT WELL KNOWN good golfer and continental traveller, John McKeown, of Belleville, motored into Clearwater, Florida, one day some weeks ago, stopped at a gas station and asked "Do you take Canadian money here?" "Sure, I do, best money in this world," said the proprietor. "I'm from Gananoque, where you from, buddy?" And so it goes the world over. Canadians are always proud of their country and their country's money, even to the extent of losing unfair exchange except by the moneypot moguls.

CRETINISM IS SIGN THYROID IS DEFECTIVE

Stature of Patient is Stunted From Birth

BY LOUIS E. BISCH, M.D., Ph.D., Famous Authority on Health and Psychology

Cretinism is a state of mental defectiveness which is evident from birth, and in Cretinism the thyroid gland is the organ that does not function properly.

As you probably already know, the thyroid gland is the most important and interesting group of glands designated as the "endocrine glands" or the "glands of internal secretion." Composed of three parts or lobes, it is situated in the fore part of the neck, behind and somewhat below the "Adam's Apple."

A child may be born in whom the thyroid gland does not secrete sufficient thyroid extract to activate the body and mind as it should normal; and so powerful is the thyroid in this respect that such a child may be rendered idiotic, imbecilic or moronic, depending directly upon the degree of thyroid deficiency.

In a typical case of Cretinism the head is larger than average, and squarish-shaped. The eyes stand wide apart. The nose is broad and flat, the mouth likewise is wide, while the tongue is broad, thick and what might be called "baggy looking."

The whole stature of the patient is stunted. The neck is short, fat and thick. Legs are short and bowed, and the skin coarse and dry. In fact, the Cretin looks as though his skin covering was too large on average, but his body as a whole shrivels up inside of it.

A degree of mentality, as has already been mentioned, the lowest form, and is practically unresponsive as well as the highest. On the emotional side, Cretins are generally markedly sluggish and indifferent; it is extremely difficult to rouse their interest, and almost impossible to hold it. For the most part they are happy-go-lucky and contented. Affection may be shown for those who care for them.

The remarkable thing is the way Cretins respond—that is, improve—when they are fed thyroid extract. This is usually taken from sheep or beef, and the dose depends upon the degree of mental defect to be treated. Those cases which are nearest normal have the most hopeful prognosis.

Whether any case of Cretinism can actually be cured is open to question; but it is certainly controlled as soon as the customary dosage of thyroid extract is received in amount, or withdrawn altogether, the patient soon relapses to his former defective condition.

Cretinism has taught scientific workers much about the gland's importance to the physique of the thyroid gland as such. It is proved that an adequate thyroid is absolutely necessary for sound mentality as well as physical health. It has suggested future research possibili, ties with the hope of finding out endocrine glands.

That the thyroid has a direct and stimulating effect upon the mind and nervous system in general is now a well-established fact, and we are slowing up in our mental reactions. Any drug that is not quite different, it may be that our thyroid is not functioning as it should.

But, of course, such problems are for medical specialists to solve. No one should ever try to treat a contract without expert advice and continued supervision.

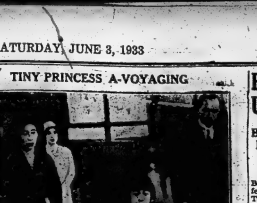
Dr. Bisch's Daily Diet Hint

Mother's milk seldom disagrees with a baby. The milk may, however, be deficient in fat, or the supply may be poor. In such cases it is better to supplement with a proper cow's milk formula, rather than give up the breast feedings entirely. In other words, a little mother's milk is better than none.

LOAN TAKEN IN TWO DAYS



25 Million Dollar Issue is Oversubscribed And Books Closed

TORONTO June, 3—(CP)—Oversubscription in two days was the answer of the people of Ontario to a request by Premier Henry for $25,000,000 in a new loan issue. To day the books were closed the full amount having been more than received.

As has been the case with all Canadian public issues since normal in the economic upheaval, bought in its wake a heavy discount in Canadian funds. The $25,000,000 loan issue was made payable in Canadian money only.

It was split in two sections. First $15,000,000 four per cent bonds, to be snapped up—as a single unit—was the short, term portion of $10,000,000 four per cent bonds. The long-term issue of $15,000,000 four and a half per cent bonds last. fell two days after being prescribed.

The issue in the words of Col. W. H. Price, Acting Premier, was offered at a "rate of interest very considerably lower than that placed by

The third of June is a memorable day in local annals, for thirty-seven years ago today over two hundred of the flower of Belleville's manhood—the 15th. Battalion and the First Belleville Rifles—bade good bye to home and loved ones to offer up, if called upon to do so, their lives for their country on the St. Lawrence frontier in repelling the Fenian hordes. No wonder it was the day of greatest excitement that Belleville ever passed through.

The Intelligencer heartily concurs in the Board of Trade's endeavors to secure the wishes for the success of Mr. Thos. Hanley, who is about to leave our city. FINANCES ARE UNDER STUDY

Bay of Quinte Conference Hears Mission's Givings Down

BOWMANVILLE, June 2.—The Bay of Quinte United Church Conference went deeply into finances Thursday, the third day of its ninth annual meeting, being held in Trinity Church, Bowmanville.

The main item on the agenda was the presentation of the missionary and maintenance committee reports. Rev. Jr. R. MacArty of Kingston stated that the conference had given $50,000.41 or 26 per cent. less to this fund in 1932 than it had in 1931. For the first four months of this year even less had been given, but the month of May had shown that an increase of $5000 had been made in comparison with figures for the corresponding month a year ago.

One of the recommendations read: "That ministers be asked to give more complete consecration to the task of the church." The report further was adopted. The conference accepted the allocation of the maintenance committee of $196,500 for the conference in 1933. The allocation was distributed among the districts as follows: Belleville, $26,000; Colborne, $15,500; Cobourg and Lindsay $18,500; Oshawa $35,500; Peterboro and Trenton $40,000.

At the afternoon session Miss Ethel Cornell, Bowmanville and Miss Marion Anglin of Kingston, were accepted for work in the mission fields. Rev. Mr. Hall of Port Hope, West China and Miss Anglin in the Home Missions. Mrs. H. E. Carscallen of Whitby, brought greetings on behalf of the Bay of Quinte branch of the W.M.S. A memorial service for the ministers who have died in the year past was conducted by President M. C. MacKinnon. Among those who died were Rev. Dr. Chown, principal emeritus of the Ladies' College Rev. Principal Kent of Queen's University, Toronto and Rev. A. J. Irwin of the Prohibition Union. In the evening four brethren were received into the ministerial layment's banquet when Rev. Dr. Pratt, editor of the Christian Guardian, made a vigorous attack an intolerance. "Pray clock began to strike that hour.

As the heading of this page indicates prices are undoubtedly going up—must go up in fact, for prices of materials in every line of business are advancing. Wheat is advancing in price and bread prices have been raised. Advances in all other lines are expected — retailers have been notified by wholesalers and manufacturers of price advances all along the line—consequently common sense, business sense and thrift compel the conclusion that THIS IS THE TIME TO BUY to the limit of the exchequer.

Belleville Merchants, whose announcements appear below solicit your patronage with the assurance that PRESENT PRICES WILL BE MAINTAINED FOR THE PRESENT and will be continued as long as possible, but no guarantee can be given as to just how long this price moratorium will last. Our advice, consequently, is to buy now not only merchandise but service, for with the price of materials and labor going up, everything will cost more from Plumbing to Carpentering, and from Roof Repairs to Blacksmithing.

WHEN THE ROOF IS FOUND
TRY A DEOCH 'N DORIS

LITTLE DROPS OF WATER ARE ALL RIGHT IN THEIR PLACE—but they are decidedly out of place when they work their way through a weak spot in the roof of your house and form a wet spot on the ceiling of a room. Delay is unwise as the next time it rains the leak will be made worse and the work of repairing it will be that much greater. Now is a good time to have its matter attended to and if you call the Patterson Construction Company they will do a satisfactory job for you at little cost. They are district agents for "Asbestolite" a preparation which is famous for its excellence and durability. So great is the confidence of the makers in this preparation that they give a ten year Surety Company bond covering each job. Call the Patterson Construction at number 781 and they will have an expert roof man examine the roof of your house and give you a price on the work required. Mr. Walter Patterson is the head of the Patterson Construction Company. LEANDER BOAT CLUB CREW IS UPSET IN SEA

"Buck" Terrell Believed Drowned And Search Made For Party

CLING TO BOAT

Wave Overturns Craft Half Mile From City Waterfront

Hamilton, June 3—One member of a Hamilton Leander Boat Club crew is believed to have drowned and three others survived when their boat capsized in Hamilton Bay at a late hour Friday.

"Buck" Terrell disappeared while he and J. Garston were attempting to swim ashore from the upturned craft, Garston reached there safely.

The other two members of the crew, E. Hall and Larry Kerr, clung to the boat and were blown across the bay, striking shore at Station 14 on Hamilton Beach.

Rowboat Investigated

The four young men had spent the evening rowing on the bay, starting out from the Leander Club shortly after 7 o'clock. They capsized on the city waterfront. They used a rowboat instead of a racing shell.

They reached Hamilton Beach on the opposite side of the bay, and at a late hour started their return trip.

When they were about a half mile off the Steel Company of Canada docks a heavy waterfront craft, a large wave overturned their craft.

While Hall and Kerry clung to the keel and watched the wind widen the distance between themselves and shore, Terrell and Garston struck out in the pitch darkness for the docks.

When Garston reached the dock Terrell had disappeared. Garston collapsed from over-exertion and shock, and was removed to the General Hospital.

In the meantime Hall and Kerr were rapidly being blown across the bay, and shortly after midnight they stepped on the opposite shore at Station 14.

A police ambulance cruising the Beach awaiting their arrival picked them up, suffering from exposure and brought them to the city for medical attention.

A search for Terrell's body was at once commenced. His home is on Wellington Street north.

The young men composed a "four" among the Leander Club crews, and had competed in several regattas.

ODDITIES IN THE NEWS

New York, June 3.—(CP)—Convicted of forgery William B. Davis, said:

"Your honor, I'm not a criminal. I'm a fool."

"I agree with you," said Judge Thomas C. Kadien, Jr. "Any man of your good education who resorts to crime to obtain money is a fool. Five years."

Osmaniye, Turkey, June 3 (CP)—Hassan Agha was condemned by the village council to pay $5 to an old convoy whom he had knocked down, and he paying cheerfully, he slapped the man nine times more. Then he paid him the equivalent of $43.

Nine persons arrested are knocking at Hassan Agha's door begging him to stop them and offering a lower rate per slap than that fixed by the village council.

Chicago, June 3. — (CP) — Asked about Adolph Hitler's proposal for a cash indemnity of $250 as a bait for Dan Cupid, Edythe Paterson, business manager for the Artists' and Models' Union said:

"Well, $250 is a lot of money, particularly for the poor working model, but I doubt that the run would start any rush to the altar on the part of our girls."

CITY COUNCIL IS MADE GIFT

Mrs. W. C. Mikel Presents Picture From Father's Collection

Mrs. W. C. Mikel has made a presentation to the City Council of a copy of that famous picture "The Fathers of Confederation" to be placed in the City Hall. This was one of the collection of pictures belonging to the late Father, T. E. Young, M.A., a veteran of the Penetanguishene Rebellion.

In presenting the picture to the Mayor and the Aldermen at her meeting on Monday night that the Fathers of Confederation were responsible for the greatest peace epochs and statesmen that the world has ever known. They were a little late existence without bloodshed or warfare one of the largest Federations that has ever been formed in the world. The scientist Edwardian such as Benjamin, Asyria, Persia, Greece and Rome, all came into existence with bloodshed and warfare, the union of England and Scotland, the union of the German Empire, and the Italian States came the same way, the United States of America, and the various republics of South America have come into existence with bloodshed and warfare and have perpetuated in the same manner. Canada and the ACNA realized that conditions is the exception. We should, therefore, remember the Fathers.

The Fathers of Confederation were groups of public men numbering 34 in all from what was formerly known as Upper Canada, Lower Canada, and the British Colonies.

From Upper Canada: John A. Macdonald, George Brown, Alex Campbell, Oliver Mowat, Wm. McDougall, and James Cockburn.

From Lower Canada: E. P. Taché, G. E. Cartier, A. T. Galt, J. C. Chapais, T. D. McGee, and H. L. Langevin.

From Nova Scotia: Messrs Charles Tupper, William Alex. Henry; Jonathan McCully, Adams G. Archibald.

From New Brunswick: Samuel Leonard Tilley, John M. Johnson, Wm. H. Steeves; Edward Barron Chandler; Peter Mitchell; John Hamilton Gray, and Charles Fisher.

From Prince Edward Island: John Hamilton, Gray; Edward Palmer; William E. Pope; A. A. Macdonald; Edward Whelan; George Coles and T. H. Haviland.

From Newfoundland: Messrs F. B. Carter and John Ambrose Shea.

A number of these men were subsequently honoured by the late Queen Victoria with titles including the Right Honourable Sir John A. MacDonald, who was the moving spirit of the proposal for Confederation; the Honourable Sir Alexander Campbell, the Hon. Sir Leonard Tilley, and the Hon. Sir George E.

EXPECT 800 AT BANQUET

Liberal Rally on Wednesday One of The Largest to be Held in District

Belleville will witness the greatest political gathering this part of the Province has even seen, on Wednesday next when the Liberal Party will muster their greatest crates in a mammoth rally at the City Hall at 2 p.m. in the afternoon and a meeting in the Arena in the evening, to which all parties are invited. The banquet takes place at 6.30 p.m., when accommodation has been increased to take care of 800, owing to the demand for tickets. Belleville's allotment has been completed, amongst the first, and extra tickets will be available to the Liberal Associations of Prince Edward, Belleville United Church Ladies' Association are catering, who have already established a widespread reputation for food and efficient service. The tables will be situated at the south end of the arena and elevated about four feet where guest speakers have been installed, so the addresses can be heard from any place in the building. The Arena interior is to be decorated with flags, bunting and bunting which will make a very attractive setting. During the afternoon and evening a sixteen piece orchestra will dispense music for the delectation of listeners of Mr. King and Mr. Hepburn. Belleville's favorite singer, Mrs. Ernest Bell, will contribute a solo. During the banquet all doors will be closed, but at 9 o'clock the public will be admitted, and when closed doors will be opened again and no one allowed to enter during the proceedings.

The afternoon session will be very interesting and instructive, which will be held in the newly renovated and redecorated City Hall, where a civic welcome will be tendered by Mayor Tice.

Belleville is particularly fortunate in securing the services of both Mr. Mackenzie King and Mr. Hepburn for the Liberal Party. Mr. King having been Prime Minister from 1921 to 1930 and Mr. Hepburn the young and brilliant leader of the Liberal Party.

Addresses by others prominent in the Liberal Party will be given. During the afternoon session the election of officers for the Central Ontario Association will be held.

TOMBSTONE FALLS ON GIRL

TOURIST CAMP READY TO RECEIVE INFLUX

Few United States Tourists as Yet but Traffic Greater

Tourists are commencing to arrive at the city tourist camp and prospects look good for a bumper crop this year. Since the camp was opened several days ago numbers of cars have stopped, each carrying the quota of dusty travellers. The facilities of the camp to care for the travel worn visitors have been much appreciated. So far only Canadians and passengers have used the camp to stop overnight, and no American cars have yet registered. The season is early for that particular tourist, however, it is pointed out by caretaker Percy Nelson.

WHAT IS HOME WITHOUT A GARDEN?

The Handsome Annual Lupine

Many people have difficulty growing the perennial lupine, but the annual will be a good substitute.

The annual Lupines are not so fussy and grow easily from seed with spikes of bloom almost as fine as the perennial, and have the advantage of blooming the first year from seed.

As they are not commonly grown, the annual lupine will offer a novelty in annuals for many gardens well worth a trial. See that it has plenty of water during the hottest spells through the summer. The downy foliage is ornamental, with the long leafies radiating from a common center like an umbrella.

These annuals have a fine range of colors in blues, pinks and white

LUPINE

ALICE DAVENPORT

When production men in one of the large New York broadcasting studios desire a particularly emotional actress for a dramatic role, they call on Alice Davenport, radio actress. Alice submerges herself completely in her character when she is before the microphone.

Fashion Flashes

Cotton Winds its way into the mode as the Summer season arrives. A grand evening frock is one made of white cotton net, the sleeves and lower part of the skirt a mass of tiny ruffles of the same material. The silhouette is rather like that of a Spanish dancing girl's frock.

It isn't easy to find the type of slip that is worn under the informal frocks and cottons of Summer. And so one enterprising manufacturer has put out a slip that is cut in 12-inch length, but with the usual daytime top. This takes care of long-skirted frocks for daytime wear, and is available in white, pink and blue.

Right in front in the point of popularity is the black with white costume. A very lovely suit for Summer evening wear is of black satin with a double lei collar of satiny white fox. The blouse is white satin with buttons of black enamel and rhinestones.

On the beach this year, practical caps will play their part in costumes that will be seen at some of the best resorts of the season for bowling. It has wide lapels, girdle and the lower part of the wide sleeves may be of the fabric in white. It is cut on conventional lines.

Just a touch of color is all that is needed to lighten black linen. A smart town suit of black linen has lapels and cuffs faced with red and plaided linen in black and red on white. The blouse is of the plaid too, and has a large, floppy bow.

We are in love with the white taffeta evening frock that features a snug bodice and wide skirt with touche of color. Such a frock is done in three lines and has a darry red velvet ribbon girdle and the decolletage is edged with tiny roses also of the red velvet.

Once Overs

There may be periods of time in the place where you work when you have little or nothing to do.

But it is necessary for someone to work.

Your chatter at such times is not only annoying but prevents those from turning out the best sort of work he is expected to produce.

Offices and shops are no visit-places.

Usually the sort of talk indulged in during the dull hours is petty.

Mind rambling is not a gift the person who is thoughtless sometimes finds his vocation.

And you can count on it that the person who is thoughtless has the least that is worth saying, the one who talks the most.

The thinker is a boon wherever he may be found—the woman gladdened by no better.

To monopolize the conversation, recount your experiences, to tell stories not a whit more interesting than the experiences that others have had, is the sign you are being sought by the loose tongue fellow. But the idea concentrated—it does not know that there are times and places for everything and it is never the time or place where others are working.

Don't let your desire for the limelight make you a nuisance.

TWO BROTHERS PERISH

In New York, June 3 (AP)—Two brothers, 15 and 11 years old, perished today in a fire that swept a two-side tenement house. Firemen, fighting the flames in the burning building, found Walter and Bobbie Hunt dead. Their father and a 13 year old girl suffered serious burns.

Forest workers in the U.S. conservation program will do 30 kinds of work, including insect control, digging up poisonous forage plants, weeding of national forests.

A new invention is a jacket for a tube of tooth paste or cold cream which pushes up the contents from the bottom of the tube as wanted.

STRANGE WAY OF SHOWING HIS LOVE

Strange Way of
Dear Miss Fairfax:

I have known a young man for three months and like him very much. He keeps telling everybody how fond he is of me, but right before my eyes he kisses another girl.

When we meet at dances he never asks me to dance, yet he gets angry with me if I dance with any other man. I always try to behave to him. If you were I, would you continue being nice to him, or would you stop paying any attention to him? The end part of it is that my people and his people are great friends, and we see each other continually.

Molly

You have certainly been spoiling this young man to the limit, my dear girl. He never asks you to dance, and gets angry with you when you dance with other men. He tells people how fond of you he is, then kisses another girl right before you.

A little missionary work in the shape of a good dose of indifference, real or assumed, ought to bring this young Lochinvar dance with all the partners you can muster.

IS HE AFRAID TO CALL?

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am twenty-five and in love with my girl friend's brother, who is two years younger than I. When I am calling at their home, he is very friendly, but he has never asked me out. His sister is a very good friend of mine, and is older than her brother she does not want him to go with any girl steadily. I am afraid that if I ask him to my house he will tell his sister and she won't let him go, because, as a rule, he minds her. What do you think? I want to lose her friendship.

Dolores

I'd go ahead and invite him to call anyway. Why any young man should be so in awe of an older sister that he is afraid to call on one of her friends, sounds very strange to be true. Sometimes, when we have a lot, our imaginations conjure up "bogies" which do not exist really. Just treat him as if he had no terrifying older sister.

FRIEND TRIES TO KEEP THEM APART

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I have been going with a young man for about a year. I am rapidly growing to like her very much. We go out about twice a week, but I still think she doesn't appreciate me. She is very particular about the type of man she wants. She tells her troubles to her girl friend, and her girl friend is always trying to keep us apart.

Too bad when people we regard as friends do such things. Sometimes it's prompted by jealousy, again by sheer love of mischief-making. Don't you think it might be well to ignore as much of her friend's meddling as possible?

If your girl is too greatly influenced by these criticisms, what would you think of dropping out of the picture for a while? Some girls never realize their true feelings until "the bird has flown."

27 MILLIONS MINE SHARES SOLD IN MAY

Standard Exchange Trading Rises Rapidly in Month

The volume of sales on the Standard Stock and Mining Exchange in May was the highest in the month since the month of May, 1929, and nearly 3 1/2 times as large as in April. The turnover amounted to 27,321,096 shares against 7,790,000 in April, 20,860,950 in May, 1929, and 11,194,-177 in the previous month. In the following table are given sales by months this year to date, as compared with the corresponding months in 1932:

	1933	1932
January	5,650,265	18,777,351
February	7,085,871	20,157,368
March	6,851,027	11,621,762
April	4,448,559	11,194,177
May	3,284,475	27,321,096
Total	27,320,197	89,071,754

Equally notable is the increase shown in individual transactions in the number totalling 47,000, or 13,300 higher than the previous high record for February, 1929. The May individual transactions aggregated 2,792 a day throughout the month and reached a high for one day of 5,875 on May 31st.

Not only were the sup transactions totalled 7,996, or an average of 347 a day.

The pronounced increase in the number of individual transactions is strikingly attributable to the intense activity in the higher priced mining stocks which, in turn, naturally, the average number of shares in a transaction. The action is much broader than in the non-producers. Ventures with prospective important issues from a point of volume, with 729,504 shares and the previous month 1,-284,000. Sisco came second, Teck-Hughes third and Hollinger fourth. All of the issues listed show, net gains, most of them substantial.

From the standpoint of price advance, Pioneer with outstanding with a gain of 10.75 while Hollinger moved up 6.06 and Teck-Hughes 4.60. Following are the records:

MARKET SELLS OFF AT CLOSE

Losses of One to Three Points Registered in Some Issues

New York, June 2 (AP)—Financial markets stumbled over profit taking barriers today and price declines were general in both stocks and commodities. Late rallying efforts in the leading shares relieved some of the weakness but the list was left ragged by heavy. Trading volume was unusually large, transactions approximating 3,200,000 shares.

The stock market started off at a fast pace, blocks of 1,000 to 12,000 shares changing hands. Losses of 1 to 3 or more points were registered by leading issues following their climb yesterday to the highest levels since 1931. Rails and utilities resisted for a while, but they, too, slid off when supporting orders in other divisions failed to bring any substantial rallies.

Wheat, corn and cotton dropped with stocks and silver lost ¾ of a cent at 35¾ cents an ounce. Wheat declines approximated a cent and corn eased around ½ a cent. Cotton was particularly heavy, losing 90 cents to $1.30 a bale. Bonds were fairly steady, although some of the lower-grade speculative loans were a little reactionary.

Dublin, Irish Free State, June 3 (CP)—Little Irish pig, what has lost his smile of placid contentment? Where is the rosy cheeks, ears and attention of a proud owner were you have gone? Why are you left in this comfortable style in the Irish farmyard, waxing fat on the luscious swill of the dairy?

He is now one of the victims of the economic war between Great Britain and depression in the home markets has seriously affected the Irish pig industry. Sellers and the Free State Department of Agriculture fear his early disappearance from the Irish farm may be only a matter of years.

President Eamon De Valera summoned a conference at Gabinia to discuss the Irish pig. They decided that if he was to be saved for posterity, the only way by which it could be done was to set up a commission to discover a basis for restoring the Irish pig industry to its former glory.

Letters to The Editor

A FEW MORE THOUGHTS FROM A FARMER'S SON

Editor, Ontario Intelligencer,—

This world was created many years ago, in which everything was made to be a success. Everything that was made was made good and man was born into this world to make good. He has been given the ability of protecting nature by looking after everything, but he should manage everything, but he should respect God, Any one who does not do so will be a beautiful sight as he was when he was new. The twittering of the birds, the beautiful colours of the flowers, the bees busy within us a feeling of respect; a feeling of love and loyalty to our Creator. Man who God placed us in such a high position on earth. We have us life to live, and how to manage and it makes me feel dull as I look in the sky and see that cloud of depression. I wonder what's the matter with it. Is it a silver lining behind a cloud?

It must be, because the world remains beautiful with us.

Many ambitions sometimes sad to him to disregard the feeling of others, but I mean, he is in such a hurry to reach a level he is not able to do it. He does not care for anything else and perhaps he is to blame for the way he is living. He is striving for. Men want easy jobs, they'll sit for hours trying to think up to invent something which will bring them a fortune. Many men have had these inventions patented and today we see many of the minds of an industrial revolution—Machinery as you all know is the thing that has made many men. Such inventors by means of their inventions have made fortunes of their own. Although there is a fortune for that, there is also a fortune for the welfare of the country. These inventions should be made for the benefit of the statesmen of our country before they ever reach a thing to the public.

The people of our country today that is the great trouble with it. Everything too fast a life. By saying that I mean the young people and some cases the old men and women more than the old men and women. The people of our country are living in the strife age of thirty we have not just time to live. Many of our social conditions have occurred and our country is going to be in a terrible state if something has almost got to start over again. Let's hope it will not come to that severe problem. So let's consider it.

As you all know the Agriculture Industry is the necessary industry. It is the greatest industry for the foundation for a country's success. Look at this industry as a whole and not as a whole throughout Canada as a whole. You see it was necessary for us to encourage it is necessary for us to encourage this industry by our own conduct to prosper. When the small (1) grade wheat is worth 25 cents a bushel had to make peace with the Indians; (2) made a treaty with the Indians; (3) made this trade does not exist to any great extent. Today the Agriculture Industry is the necessary industry. It is the basic industry and the foundation for our land and during difficulties and experiences such as we are in. When communities increased. Towns and villages sprang up. Such things as Shoe Factories, Tanneries, Woollen Mills, Flour Mills, Saw Mills, Grist Mills, Woodworking Factories, Implement Factories, Furniture Factories, Canning Factories, Cheese Factories, Creameries, Banks, Insurance Companies, Railroads, Steamships, Automobiles, Trucks, Tractors, Aeroplanes, Radios, Telephones, Telegraphs, Electricity, Gasoline, Oil, Coal, Iron, Steel, Lumber, Cement, Brick, Stone, Glass, Paper, Rubber, Leather, Textiles, Clothing, Hardware, Groceries, Drugs, Jewelry, Sporting Goods, Musical Instruments, Books, Stationery, Printing, Advertising, Medical Profession, Legal Profession, Educational Institutions, Churches, Hospitals, Asylums, Homes for the Aged, Orphanages, Theatres, Moving Pictures, Dance Halls, Restaurants, Hotels, Boarding Houses, Rooming Houses, Apartments, Flats, Residences, Cottages, Summer Resorts, Golf Courses, Tennis Courts, Baseball Diamonds, Hockey Rinks, Skating Rinks, Swimming Pools, Bathing Beaches, Boating, Fishing, Hunting, Camping, Tourist Trade, Automobile Trade, Gasoline Stations, Garages, Repair Shops, Parts Manufacturers, Tire Manufacturers, Paint Manufacturers, Varnish Manufacturers, Enamel Manufacturers, Lacquer Manufacturers, Glass Manufacturers, Upholstery Manufacturers, Rubber Manufacturers, Leather Manufacturers, Textile Manufacturers, Clothing Manufacturers, Hardware Manufacturers, Grocery Manufacturers, Drug Manufacturers, Jewelry Manufacturers, Sporting Goods Manufacturers, Musical Instrument Manufacturers, Book Manufacturers, Stationery Manufacturers, Printing Manufacturers, Advertising Manufacturers, Medical Profession Manufacturers, Legal Profession Manufacturers, Educational Institutions Manufacturers, Churches Manufacturers, Hospitals Manufacturers, Asylums Manufacturers, Homes for the Aged Manufacturers, Orphanages Manufacturers, Theatres Manufacturers, Moving Pictures Manufacturers, Dance Halls Manufacturers, Restaurants Manufacturers, Hotels Manufacturers, Boarding Houses Manufacturers, Rooming Houses Manufacturers, Apartments Manufacturers, Flats Manufacturers, Residences Manufacturers, Cottages Manufacturers, Summer Resorts Manufacturers, Golf Courses Manufacturers, Tennis Courts Manufacturers, Baseball Diamonds Manufacturers, Hockey Rinks Manufacturers, Skating Rinks Manufacturers, Swimming Pools Manufacturers, Bathing Beaches Manufacturers, Boating Manufacturers, Fishing Manufacturers, Hunting Manufacturers, Camping Manufacturers, Tourist Trade Manufacturers, Automobile Trade Manufacturers, Gasoline Stations Manufacturers, Garages Manufacturers, Repair Shops Manufacturers

CHAPTER XII

MRS. CURTIS shook her head. "You must be mistaken!" she exclaimed. "I'm sure it couldn't have been Janet!"

"All right. Where was she two nights ago?"

"Why—why, let me see. She was here in this room with me all evening. We were reading—no, I've got that wrong. Last night the Ridgeways were here and the night before —" Mrs. Curtis' words broke off. "Janet did go out that evening," she continued, "but she told me she was going to the movies, so you see it must have been someone else."

Betty's laugh was sneering. "Movies—that's what she'd tell you, of course. But she wasn't at the movies when I saw her."

"But, Betty, I simply can't believe it. Why, that sort of thing isn't at all like her! She's always so quiet and reserved."

Betty's voice flamed with anger. "So you'd believe me against your own daughter, would you?"

"No, no. It's not that, dear. I simply mean you must have been mistaken. I know you think it was Janet you saw but it must have been someone else. You're sure to make mistakes like that. When she comes back I'll ask her."

"Don't do that!" Betty cut in shortly. "Do you think if she were out with a crowd of schoolmates she'd tell you about it? If you're so sure this precious Janet is a saint I guess that's all there is to it. But if you'll wake up some morning and find the silverware or your diamonds gone don't blame me! I've done the best I could to warn you."

Mrs. Curtis glanced down at the diamond ring she was wearing. "Oh, dear!" she said. "I suppose now I will worry. But you must remember Janet came to me with the highest recommendations from your uncle. Bruce had known her for a long time and he said she was absolutely reliable."

Betty's lips formed a narrow crimson line. "Well," she said as she arose, "I'm through with the whole affair, I thought I should tell you what I saw and I have!" She walked across the room and paused frowning. "Why in heaven's name don't you get some new draperies for this room?" she asked. "Those things are positively archaic. Nobody's using dark colors any more."

"But I like them," her mother objected. "And they'll be good for a long time yet. With things the way they have been lately I don't like to go to expense that isn't necessary."

"You ought to have the whole room done over. And the library too. The whole place is moth-eaten."

MRS. CURTIS bridled. "It's my home," she said, "and it's comfortable. I'm perfectly willing for you to be up to the modernistic claptrap in your apartment you want but I want nothing to do with myself."

Betty had paused before the window. She whirled suddenly. "Janet's coming," she said. "Promise me you won't say anything about what I told you. If she was there she'd deny it and if she wasn't it doesn't make any difference. Promise me!"

Mrs. Curtis nodded. "I'll promise," she said, "but just the same I suppose I'll worry. Oh, dear! I wish you hadn't said a thing about it!"

They heard the front door open and a moment later Janet appeared.

"Here I am," she announced as she took to Betty. "It took me a little while to find it. It was underneath the seat in the dressing-table. And here's the key."

Betty said, "Thanks," and glanced at her wrist watch. "It's time for me to be going," she told her mother. "Don't forget what you promised me."

A moment later she was gone. Janet returned to her work and did not see Mrs. Curtis again until lunch. It was a quiet meal. Janet was wondering if the older woman did not feel well when Mrs. Curtis said abruptly, "Janet, why don't you ever bring any of your friends to the house? You could use the little room off the library for a sitting room if you'd like."

"Why—thank you. I guess I just hadn't thought about it. I don't have very many friends."

"But you're young. You've lived in Lancaster several years. You must know some young people."

"Yes, of course. I've known lots

Seven or eight years ago, when I first began touring Canada as a habit, I asked an official to tell me something about the unsavory side of the Dominion. That stumped him.

"Look here," he said finally, "that's unfair. I'm a Canadian. Tell me there isn't anything wrong with Canada. But we Canadians believe in letting a fellow see for himself. Go out and look the country over, and if you find anything you don't like, write about it. We're no persons up here, to conceal anything. Rather, we'd like to find it out, then we can remedy it."

So, with that goal, I set forth. I've been seeing darn ever since, to the extent of thousands upon thousands of miles. I've trailped from Halifax to Vancouver, and up to Hudson Bay. I've fooled around in the Arctic, where there's a white man to be found about every thousand square miles, and I've spent my time in the centres of population. And all this time, like a hound dog on the trail, I've looked for something to kick about. At last I've found it.

It's the fishing.

I admit that with a score of Adams, I've always had a great admiration for Canada. But when it comes to fishing, I'm afraid that it has laid down in the traces. Willingly or unwillingly it has "developed every rule of fishing country, as you prove that.

A fisherman, if he has been properly trained by the disappointments which go along with the disease, comes to expect certain things, to look forward to precise events and plan for them. Now, in Canada, which is annual fishing country, after a fellow has bought his license and generally speaking polishing the various rods which comprise his outfit, bought a new fishing basket and performed every-thing there is in the last Bait Company catalogue—that's been another, after he's done all that, he expects certain things. The events of years have provided that these things are inevitable.

Well, I've got to go to a place that is advertised as a Fisherman's Paradise.

He'll get off the train, and ask how the fishing is. And he'll get this answer:

"Well, it's been fine right up to the last few days. They say a couple of fellows here from Springfield a week ago, and they caught a boatload."

"Trout?" the fisherman will ask eagerly. And the other man will reply:

"Well, no, not trout. I think some of the boys called 'em bullheads. But they sure caught a lot of fish. I don't think the trout are bitin' this year."

He has changed well the trout aren't biting this year, or last year, or the year before. They are. But the only inhabitant who ever was known to get a bite was Old Tim, his early boyhood, died three years ago and was buried with the full acclaim of the populace at the tender age of 106.

The fisherman, in his heart of hearts has known all that before he started. It's a part of being a fisherman. He goes on the assumption that perhaps, between the time he leaves home and the hour he reaches the fishing joint, the skies will open and rain trout, thus enabling him to be the only person in history to catch anything at that damp besides eels, mosquito bites, furties and bullheads. But what happens in Canada?

You go to a place that has been advertised as a Fisherman's Paradise. You having done all the preparatory things of buying tackle and supplies, proceed to get off the train. And you ask the guide:

"How's fishing?"

"Oh! it's fine," he says. "There were a couple of fellows here from Montreal last week and they caught a boatload."

"Boatload of what?"

"Trout," says he.

"Little ones?" you ask.

"Oh, fair. Three, four and five pounders."

By this time it has become a matter of honor. Any fisherman knows that this is not the right way for a guide to greet a hero of the rod. The first thing to learn in fishing is to allibi. That goes double when a man is fishing or running a fishing camp. In the first place, there's the weather—that's always good. Then there's the water; the way it can get too hot or too cold, and thus interfere with the peculiar biting characteristics of the trout. Whether it is pike, perch, muskallonge, trout, bass, or whoosiewhiffia, is one of those mysteries which only a true fisherman can know. And after this list of alibis has been exhausted there's the fish himself how can anyone tell what he is going to do when rule in the world. So he says, caustically:

"Yeh, but those fellows were here a week ago."

"Uh-huh, just a week ago yesterday."

"And they filled a boatload."

"That's right. Clean up to the gunnels."

"But—" and here comes the sarcasm—"a week ago isn't today, now is it?"

That'll non-plus the guide for a minute. Finally he'll answer:

"No, come to think of it, it isn't."

Now comes the wallop.

"Therefore, simply because two guys were here a week ago, and caught a boatload, is that any insurance I'm going to be able to go out there and catch even enough for dinner."

There'll be a long pause after that. The guide will scratch his head. Finally he'll answer:

"Well, of course that depends on what kind of a fisherman you are."

"Yeh. Just suppose I'm a helluva good fisherman."

"Well, if you're a helluva good fisherman," he'll answer, "you ought to catch a boatload, too. I done it this morning."

What are you going to do with a country like that? It spoils half the fun. No chance to come home and tell all about the big fish that got away — because there he is, right in your basket, all caught and everything. No opportunity to skull another short vacation out of the boss on the basis that they weren't biting the last time, but they'll sure be on the prod this week.

The whole trouble with the country is that it's too easy. Simply because it promises a fellow good fishing, it thinks that it's got to deliver. No, friends, a fellow only makes a promise about giving a fellow the best fishing in the world, and then is sap enough to go ahead and have the best fishing in the world. Now, take my case.

All my life I had wanted to catch a six pound trout. I'd been all over Colorado looking for one. I'd hopped over plains and mountains in Wyoming in search of one. Every time I'd hear of a big trout, I'd pass up my work and lope off in expectant search, knowing full well what would be awaiting me. Yeh, a fellow had seen a six pounder. But if I just go down to the Big Hole about six o'clock in the evening and cast into the riffle, I'd get him sure as shooting. So I'd go to the Big Hole and I'd cast into the riffle and I'd catch the supposed six pounder, only to find out he weighed exactly one pound and eleven ounces. Then I'd go home satisfied. I'd gotten exactly what I expected. But, what happened to me in Canada?

I got off where the Canadian National Railways people told me to, The gang was there to meet me. And the guide said:

"Well, what's most in your mind? I'll bet what's most on my mind," I replied firmly, "is some six pound speckled trout. That's what's most my mind."

He stared at me.

"You want some six pound trout?" he asked. "All right. You'll get a few. But gen'rally, in these parts, they run a little bigger."

DURING the ride down town she planned eagerly. She had a little over $200 in the bank. Three weeks salary ahead of her. Surely she would have enough. A week from Saturday she would tell Mrs. Curtis that she was going away.

Janet discovered with surprise that the bus had reached Center street. She pressed the button and descended. Marsh's was the nearest department store and she went there. She bought hose, a re-fill for her vanity case and a bottle of liquid shampoo. Then she turned in the railway station and approached the information desk.

The young man behind the counter was most obliging. He got out time-tables and marked them for her, noting prices and wrote the figures in the margin of the page. With the time-table folders tucked under her arm Janet turned away. Pondering briefly, she stopped at a shop on the corner and ordered a soda. She ate the cooling concoction thoughtfully. Already she was seeing herself in Toronto, from Lancaster and for the first time the thought frightened her. In a strange city she would be alone. Although even one acquaintance what would she do if she couldn't find a job? If Betty Curtis knew she would become ill to whom would she turn?

"But I won't lose my money!" she assured herself scornfully "I won't be ill. Other girls have made their own way and I can, too!"

Nevertheless the adventure had lost some of its glamour. When Janet reached her own room she put the time-tables away and did not look at them again.

She would surely time anyhow. Mrs. Curtis arrived before Janet was down stairs and shortly afterward dinner was announced.

It was in the living room later while Janet was dealing out the cards for a second round of two-handed bridge that the telephone rang. Lucy answered. "It's for you, Mrs. Curtis," she said. "It's Mrs. Carlyle."

The older woman rose and left the room. Two minutes later she was back. "Janet!" she cried, "tell Frederick I want the car. And hurry! We'll have to go at once!"

"But, Mrs. Curtis, what is it?"

"Something terrible has happened. Betty's been robbed!"

CHAPTER XLII

THERE were five persons in the bedroom with its low, modern-istic furnishings in orange and ivory and black. All of the lights in the room were burning. Drawers of the dressing table had been pulled out and left open. A dress lay discarded across a chair and a hat had been tossed on the bed.

Betty Carlyle was the centre of the group. She wore a gold-colored negligee that caught and held the light and she would have looked very beautiful except for the anger in her face.

"But I tell you I've looked!" she exclaimed. "Everywhere. The necklace isn't here and someone's stolen it! I know it was in my jewel case."

"When did you see it last?" Mrs. Curtis asked.

Betty stamped a foot impatiently. "Why do you keep asking the same questions?" she demanded. "I told you I haven't seen it for a week. It was in the case where I always keep it. I haven't been wearing the necklace—you know that because—"

"And the bracelets?"

"They're still here. That's one of the queer thing about it. Someone must have come into the apartment while I was away and taken the pearl necklace."

Rolf Carlyle moved toward a table and fiecked the ashes from his cigarette into a tray. "You know I've told you you shouldn't keep all that stuff here in the house," he said. "It isn't safe. Why, with your rings and those two bracelets and the other things, you wear, there must be a couple of thousand dollars' worth of jewels in this room."

"More than that," Mrs. Curtis said. "The necklace cost $800—"

A BELL sounded sharply and Marie, the maid, who had been standing in the background, turned to answer it. Marie's eyes were red as though she had been weeping.

"It's the police. I suppose," Betty said.

"We might have been murdered in our beds for all that lost!" Rolf grumbled as the four trailed into the living room—Betty followed by Rolf and Mrs. Curtis and lastly Janet.

A policeman and a smaller man in a brown suit stood in the doorway. The man in brown stepped forward.

"Mrs. Carlyle?" he asked.

"I'm Mrs. Carlyle," Betty told him. "You're from the police, aren't you? I telephoned."

"Yes, Mrs. Carlyle, McKevan's my name and this is Patrolman Scott. I understand there's been a robbery here?"

"Someone has stolen my pearl necklace," Betty told him. "I didn't miss it until this evening when I was dressing. The necklace was in my jewel case where I always keep it—"

"Suppose you tell us just what happened," the detective interrupted smoothly. "How did you happen to notice the necklace was missing? What time was it then?"

"It was about three-quarters of an hour ago," Betty said. "Maybe a little less. My husband and I were going out and I was dressing. I came into my dressing table and I pulled out the second drawer—that's where I keep the jewel case. The case was there but something about it made me look at it. It didn't seem to be the way I always keep it. Not quite the same position, I mean. I took the case out and opened it—and then I saw the necklace was gone."

"This was a valuable necklace?" Mrs. Curtis answered. "It cost $800," she said. "I gave it to my daughter last Christmas for a present."

Rolf spoke for the first time. "That's one of the strange things about it. There were two pearl bracelets and some other jewelry in the box. Nothing was touched except the necklace."

"Can we see the room?" Betty returned to the bedroom. McKevan paused for an instant to survey the room, then followed Betty to the dressing table.

"Was it like this?" he asked. "Were all these drawers open?"

"No, I did that after I found the necklace was gone. I wanted to see if I could possibly have put it anywhere else. But I hadn't. It's not here!"

PATROLMAN SCOTT crossed the room and looked out the window. There was a sheer drop to the ground below. "Whoever took the necklace must have come through the door," he said. "And came in the same way."

"Might take a look at the other rooms," McKevan suggested. "See if you find anything."

"Now, Mrs. Carlyle," McKevan went on, "you say you've made a thorough search but are you sure you didn't just misplace the pearls? Sometimes we have dropped them in to another box or possibly another drawer?"

"I didn't!" Betty denied vigorously "I know very well that I didn't—and you can look for yourself! They're been stolen!"

Picnic Staged by Trenton Public Schools Huge Success

Sports Program And Picnic Lunch Much Enjoyed

Trenton, June 3 (special)— The annual picnic of Dufferin Street and North Trenton Public Schools was held yesterday afternoon in Hanna Park. This day is the greatest day of the school year for the children with the exception of the day the summer vacation starts. Little sisters and brothers, not yet attending school, older sisters and brothers that have finished, came from all directions with their lunches packed to spend the afternoon. The day was perfect. Swings and slides found a steady run of happy children, while older boys and girls played ball. Soft drinks and ice cream sales were numerous.

The sports program was directed by Mr. Shertert, principal of Dufferin Street School with the following being the winners of the different races.

Boys' 5 to 7—Fred Davis, Bobby Emerson.

Girls' 5 to 7—Helen Ingles, Doreen Steinburgh.

Boys' 8 to 9—Donald Burr, Norma Armstrong.

Girls' 8 to 9—Lilian Taft, Lois Poste.

Boys' 10 to 11—Don Warren, Fred Mertz.

Girls' 10 to 11—Thelma Beale, Ruth Bernier and Elaine Cook, tie.

Boys' 12 to 13—Victor Burtt, Howard McMurter and Austin White, and Billie Smith, tie.

Girls' 12 to 13—Marjorie Beale, Irene Bury.

Boys' 14 over—Ken Mann, Henry Price.

Girls' 14 over—Ellen Moon, Vivian Bull.

Boys' Cart Race—Bobby Orser, Elmer Weaver.

Girls' Cart Race—Ellen Moon, Muriel Park.

Three Legged Race, girls— Ruth Bernier and Thelma Moon, Jessie Langdon and Ellen Moon.

Wooler Leads Win

Wooler Leafs decisively defeated the R.C.A.F. last evening by 21-2. The airmen were given several irregular players who have gone to their homes over the week end. The Wooler lads hammered Pafford who had support throughout. He was relieved by Broadbent when he forced in two runs by his walks. Free replaced Macey in the Wooler box in the sixth frame. Both teams had many errors. Cpl. Nuttan was robbed of a homer with the bases loaded when Bill Hunter drove for the fivers, threw the ball catching himself sliding home. Sta. Wooler leads another game. Sta.

GRIPPING THRILLS LOVE AND LAUGHS IN "HELL BELOW"

Thrills below the surface, on the sea and in the air combine to create a sensational background for a stirring romance in "Hell Below," a Metro Goldwyn Mayer special at the Belle today, Monday and Tuesday, matinee daily, with Robert Montgomery, Walter Huston, Madge Evans, Jimmy Durante, Eugene Pallette and Robert Young as the principal in a maelstrom of adventure and excitement.

The picture, filmed with the cooperation of the United States navy depicts the most remarkable underwater shots of submarines in action yet seen on the screen. Against this authentic background is played the romance of Montgomery, as the young lieutenant in love with Madge Evans, the daughter of his commander.

Vivid Heart Interest

Their attempt to defy conventions and traditions only to find in the end that there is only one satisfactory solution to a conflict between love and duty provides the main thread to the narrative. The girl's loyalty to a husband crippled in an airplane fall, and Montgomery's final heroic gesture to redeem his self-respect are the human elements woven into a vivid heart interest story.

A spectacular air raid over an Italian town, hair raising encounters between submarines and battleships, the sensational rescue of a submersible downed at the floor of the ocean, and the bottling up of a harbor full of enemy ships are among the other thrilling incidents in the filmization of Commander Edward Ellsberg's novel "Pigboats."

Robert Montgomery gives a performance of unrivalled excellence as Lieutenant Knowlton and Miss Evans makes the most of her opportunities as the commander's daughter. The commanding himself is made an outstanding figure in the capable hands of that sterling actor, Walter Huston. Jimmy Durante and Eugene Pallette create a riotous comedy pair, Durante almost "stealing" the picture in a scene in which he attempts to fight a kangaroo. Robert Young also contributes an outstanding characterization, and the remainder of the cast including Edward Brophy, John Lee Mahin, David Newell, Sterling Holloway and Charles Irwin, have only to be desired in the way of competent supporting work.

Jack Conway may be congratulated on the direction of "Hell Below," which from the point of view of continually engrossing action, stirring characterizations and authentic settings and brilliant photography, takes its place along with "The Big Parade" and "Dawn Patrol" as one of filmdom's memorable achievements.

Tom Howard Comedy

Tom Howard is a clever and funny comedy, "A Drug on the Market," and another of the popular "Screen Souvenirs" are both entertaining and historical events of interest.

TARZAN AND THE GOLDEN LION. No.

(Metropolitan New spaper Service) By Edgar Rice Burroughs

Manu, the monkey, hidden among the vines and creepers, watched for some time with growing excitement the strange human approach. When he realised vaguely the great numbers of the Gomangani, he did so beside himself he almost ceased the chattering that had been his unfailing habit, and he was busily engaged upon. But the last straw that sent him scampering to the Palace of Opar was the sight of the Bolgani, for these gorillamen were the frightful ogres of his little world.

Caid, the High Priest, was in the courtyard of the inner temple where at sunrise he had performed a sacrifice to the Flaming God. With him were several members of the lesser priesthood Caid, now High Priestess in place of La, and her votaries. All were standing breathless as Caid, in maniacal fury was threatening with the sacrificial knife one unfortunate priestess who had stumbled in her part during the late ceremonies.

Just as the knife was about to fall, a little grey monkey came chattering and screaming through a chink in the wall overlooking the court of the temple. "The Bolgani—the Bolgani!" he shrieked. "They come, they come!" Caid wheeled toward Manu, the hand that held the knife dropping to his side. "Do you speak the truth, Manu?" he asked. "How many of them?" "They are as many as the leaves upon the trees," replied Manu.

Caid turned and raised his face toward the sun and throwing back his head, gave voice to a long-drawn scream that ended in a piercing shriek. Three times he voiced the dreadful cry and now there issued from every corridor and doorway groups of the gnarled and hairy men of Opar. They were armed with bows and shafts and knives. Jaberdin in the lead drove them Manu pointed to the south.

Spying on Sports

BY
William Ritt
Central Press Canadian

The Welterweight have a first-class, grade A, top-notch champion in Mr. James McLarnin of Vancouver, British Columbia, and points north—but, after all, it doesn't seem as though this will do the fight fans much good.

Jimmy McLarnin may be a fighting champion but a glance over the welterweight does not bring forth any glittering foes against which the McLarnin steel may be tested.

For two minutes Young Corbett III, from whom Jimmy wrested the crown, looked good against McLarnin—but only for two minutes, and then James slapped him out of the picture. And Young Corbett appears to be the best of the welterweight field who must now do obeisance to King James.

Jackie Fields—an ex-champion of none too great a reputation as a fighting machine. Anyway, McLarnin holds a knockout victory over Fields.

Teddy Yarosz has been coming along fast, but McLarnin appears way out of his class at this writing. Then there is the aging Billy Petrolle, Tony Herrera, Eddy Ridge Wolfe, Bep Van Klaveren and lesser lights.

There doesn't seem to be a red hot fight to be found for Jimmy in that lot.

So McLarnin, now at the peak of his career, may rule for a long time. And more power to him. He is going to face nine world champions and wait nine weary years for a real chance at a world's championship. He merits a long reign.

Incidentally, the fall of Corbett may indicate that this is a tough year for ring champions. If so, welterweight Jack Sharkey and lightweight Tony Canzoneri, who go to the wars in defense of their crowns this month, should take heed.

Kid Chocolate got through a featherweight title brawl against Seaman Watson ahead of the English bantam. It was a much closer call for the dusky ruler than the public expected of the Kid liked.

Ben Foord, world middleweight title claimant, and Gorilla Jones, who has some sort of claim on the American middleweight title, met in Cleveland recently to settle the championship claim. Both lost. Their bout was stopped and they went under suspension.

Now, the hunch players may figure that the gangsterman Carrera is the man to spoil things for Sharkey, and Sammy Ross, the boy who will bring the lightweight title to Chicago at the expense of Canzoneri.

HAWKS LOPS OFF 4 HOURS FROM RECORD

Makes Record Flight Across the Continent

(By the Canadian Press)

Only a few hours after one noted American air handler had set Bennett Field smashing a record, another got in an attempt to break the "round-the-world mark.

Capt. Frank Hawks, speed demon arrived in New York late last night after flying non-stop from Los Angeles in 12 hours, 26 minutes and 15 seconds. This lopped four hours, 10 minutes and 45 seconds off the record, set by him four years ago.

At 4:36 a.m. Eastern Standard time today, Jimmie Mattern, of Long Island, hopped off in his "Century of Progress" plane in a lone-handed try at the globe girdling record. The mark stands at eight days seven hours, 51 minutes.

Bad Decisions Break Morale of Nationals, Kingston Ponies Going on to Win by 15-5 Count

Matthews of O.S.D. Looks Good in First Start on Mound

MANY HITS

Manager Mills Will Soon Have Team Clicking in Unison

Faulting badly after two rather questionable decisions had been meted out against them in the earlier part of the game which incidentally figured across the youthful hearts of the Nationals, Belleville dropped a one-sided 15-5 game to the champion Kingston Ponies by the score of 15 to 5 in the Limestone City last evening.

Despite the rather one-sided score the locals proved more than a threat in the earlier parts of the position, in the earlier parts of the position, when they threatened to blast the Ponies' star hurler, "Tammy" Jamieson, from the hillton only to be thwarted in their efforts by the decisions of Umpire Gray, who officiated at his one and only league game, according to his own admissions. Gray's decisions on Alex Weir at second and Roy Smith at third, in succession literally robbed Manager Mills' charges so that they lost heart and were later scored under a barrage of eighteen Kingston hits, three of which were of the extra base nature.

Matthews Makes Good.

Freshly released from the local O.S.D. ranks, Manager Mills started Matthews, his left handed starter Jimmie Matthews, his left handed starter in the O.S.D.'s, against the hard-hitting Ponies. For six innings Matthews pitched creditably, allowing to give way to Vinny Urzendi in the seventh when Kingston made their fatal seventh run. Matthews' mates crossed the plate five times to score tallies. Pilot Mills started it away low to the infield by using Earl "Sonny" Green at short, "Johnnie" Kerr at second and "Chuck" Barrage at third, with Roy Smith doing the initial sack duties. Manager Jack Dewar of the Ponies started "Tammy" Jamieson on the hillock and the burler, after being assisted by Umpire Gray from a rather embarrassing position in the third inning when the locals blasted all and sundry of his offerings to corners of the ball yard, went on to hold his past jinx over the heads of the Nationals and romp home to an easy victory. Except in the sixth and seventh frame, when the hard-hitting Ponies applied their bats to all offerings of the two local hurlers, Manager Mills' charges were much in the limelight which was later proven when the Pony management refused a runner for Sonny Green when he was injured in the eighth of first base.

The win places the locals further down the league ladder and pushes the Ponies up a notch, safely perching in second position, but trailing the league leading Peterboro club.

Start Scoring Early.

The Ponies opened their scoring early when Kerr Vince, the first Pony batter of the day, walked, went to second when Matthews overthrew first trying to nip the fleet footed Vince off the initial bag. Later he scored when Alex Weir was forced at the plate endeavoring to cut him off. No more scoring was in order until the third, when the locals assumed the offensive and Scarlett opened the innings by gauging the deep centre, on Kerr's single Scarlett scampered to third and scored on the throw-in, Kerr pulling up at third only to score on Alex Weir's single. Matthews, who had pitched ball, Weir going to second, Green aided to Vince to centre and Weir took the keystone sack until after the catch was made, later to Smith at third where he was later called out by Umpire Gray for leaving second before the ball was caught. This decision was bitterly protested by the locals, but without avail. Roy Smith then stepped to the plate and hoisted a long fly to centre field, scoring Weir, as Smith slid into third and later stood up he was tagged and called out by the umpire on a decision that had previously called Weir out on the wrongest decision yet seen in the C.O.B.L. These two decisions lowered the morale of the locals to a degree that was most regrettable. Again in the eighth the locals threatened when Kerr singled and scored on Weir's single, who himself romped home on Green's one base blow.

In the third frame the Ponies added three runs to the one already annexed in the first when McQuade, Smith and Stone all scored on three hits apiece after Smith had been hit with a pitched ball. The champions scored four runs in the sixth on three hits, one error and a batter reaching first via the hit by pitched ball route. Again in the seventh the Pony batsmen were in the money on four singles they scored five runs with two walks, an error and another batter being hit runners reached the initial bag. On two triples and a single they scored three more runs in the eighth after two were out.

Weir Leads Hitters.

Alex Weir of the Nationals led the hitters of the day when he collected four hits out of four official times at bat. Sonny Green, Roy Smith and Kerr collected two singles apiece. "Brick" Stone, the Ponies' first sacker, led the homesters at bat with four hits in five trips. Compeau had three singles as did McQuade. Quinn and Jerry Arnlet collected a pair of hits each, Jamieson, Quinn and Smith hit for extra bases for the Ponies while Scarlett and Barrage counted more than one hit apiece for the locals.

The Ponies are the official visitors on the Belleville ball park next Wednesday when Tommy Godfrey will appear either Vinny Urzendi or Ernie Holmes on the hillton for the locals.

CLUBS DRUBBED BY BEARCATS

Losing Team Give up in Fourth Being Down 21-2

Defaulting the game in the fourth inning when the Delaney Bearcats were leading by the score of 21 to 2 the College Hill Cubs relinquished all possible expectations in winning the Wall Street League as the game proved to be the third of a five game series. The Delaney Bearcats were crowned champions of the local pre-season softball loop which terminated rather abruptly last night.

George Jenkinson assumed the mound duties for the "cats" and had the situation well in hand when the Cubs decided to call it a day. Miller started on the hilltop for the Cubs but was replaced for Farrare in the third frame. Singles, doubles, triples and even home runs rang consistently from the bats of the Bearcats and sounded the death knell of the Cubs.

The Delaney Bearcats are worthy champions of the league having won by the greater majority of their games played, tool only in the play-off but in the regular league schedule.

Delaney Bearcats—St. Denis, Tuttle, Henn, Jenkinson, Hanna, J. Bawden, E. Bawden, F. Tuttle and Ross.

College Hill—MacDonald, Lupenskie, Farrare, Miller, J. Murray, R. Murray, Robinson, Bellis and Caddick.

Score by innings:
Bearcats ..... 5 3 6 7—21 runs
College Hill ..... 0 2 0 —2 runs

BIG 1ST FRAME WINS GAME

Victoria Takes Carrying Place 14-8 in Replay

Victoria, June 3 (Special)—Coasting along on the momentum of a big first-inning attack, which netted them seven runs, Victoria defeated Carrying Place by a 14-8 score here as the Victoria teams replayed the protested game of May 25th. Victoria well deserving their win, as they played heads-up ball throughout, and made the most of their chances. Their first scoring carried the score two in their half of the first, the local team came right back with a vengeance and hammered out nine clean hits, one a three-bagger by Sid Cretney, to score the first seven men on the batting list. All of their runs were scored in the first four innings; two in the second, four in the third, and one in the fourth, making up their total. Hennigton replaced Kidd on the mound for Carrying Place at the end of the third and though not hit hard, was unable to find the range as steady and he yielded only six scattered hits in the three innings that he was in the game.

Ern Green was Victoria's hurler, and he played a good game, with splendid supporting efforts by his team mates. Pointer finished the game with a spectacular shoestring catch of Herrington's tilt to the last of the seventh inning.

The only homer of the game went to P. Green or Carrying Place, who went to third on his hit and home with a beautiful slide on a muffed ball gave a moment's delay. The game had scored of the protested game earlier in the game. Ern Green made several sensational catches on left field, taking some that seemed the never reach. The Victoria batting battery did not work, as Bowler had a sprained arm, but Kidd pitched until the fourth, when Hennigton relied in the field. It was Kidd's first pitching attempt and Kidd's last, was hit hard, with better support the score would have been different. Mr. Hare was the enthusiastic fans were on hand to see the play-off of the protested game as a result of a play made at third base when the two men first met on May 25th.

Score by innings:
Carrying Place ..... 222 001 0—8
Victoria ..... 724 100 x—14

RAZING TALL STACK

Chatham, Ont., June, 3—(CP)—With a deafening roar, one of the oldest landmarks of the city, the smoke stack of the Kent Mills, crashed to earth here in a razing operation which was singularly successful.

The tall stack, containing 60 to 70 tons of brick, toppled along the embankment of the Thames River. It was no longer in use.

Table salt is composed of two poisons, sodium and chloride.

MR. PICOBAC Calls at Toronto's City Hall

After a conference with the leading pipe smokers of the City Hall and having been presented with the freedom of the city for good behavior, Mr. Picobac emerged from the dim interior into the open sunlight of the front steps. Here he graciously submitted to having his picture taken by the newspaper photographers in the act of shaking hands with Alderman Beamish, Chairman of the Civic Reception Committee, and at the same time genially acknowledged the greetings of a delegation of influential citizens gathered to watch the ceremony.

Mr. Picobac issued the following statement to the Press.

"As you know, I am in Toronto to investigate pipe smoking conditions. I am in favour of straight stems. But I can smoke any kind of a pipe as long as I can get Picobac Tobacco."

Handy pocket tin, also in ½ lb. Humidor Tins

Asked whether Picobac was hard on matches, the philosopher of Essex County gave the suggestion an unqualified denial.

"It is a free-burner," affirmed he, "a mild . . . cool . . . sweet smoke."

Picobac Tobacco is the pick of Canada's Burley Crop, grown in Sunny Southern Ontario, cured, matured and manufactured to modern perfection.

—and don't forget, you get more tobacco for your money.

Good for making cigarettes, too.

IT DOES TASTE GOOD IN A PIPE!

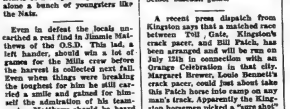
CURRENT SPORT

Knocks and Boosts

Although the king's birthday is not to be officially recognized in Belleville by all, the Belleville Victorias are opening their current baseball season on Monday afternoon when they entertain the Brighton club at the Exhibition Park. Fresh from their win over the Napanee Gibbards the Vics feel quite confident that they can take the league's new entry, the Brighton team, into camp. Especially so as the league leadership without a doubt, Manager "Chumney" Grow will start either Ralph Iber or Bawden on the hilltop, holding Bud Wilkins in reserve. The Victorias placed intermediate baseball on the map so far as Belleville is concerned last fall when they carried on as far as the Intermediate O.B.A.A. semi-finals. There is a feeling in the club that with the fans' support they can better their 1933 standing this season. Despite the fact that Brighton is a new club in the league they have the reputation of holding the fast Napanee team to a one run margin. Monday's tilt should be no exception.

"Another game, another box"—but i tak it from your Uncle Henry last night's loss in Kingston was the result of some of the poorest umpiring that we have ever witnessed in the C.O.B.J. After the game Umpire Barry announced that he was leaving Kingston for the summer and the game would be his first and last. Too bad he lingered. Now we understand why the Kingston mentors gave "Flat" Walsh the well-known run around and engaged a man who has never been heard of in umpiring circles to officiate. In reference to Walsh —"there's apparently something rotten, and it's not in Denmark." Grey's two decisions in the third inning were enough to break the hearts of a major league club. He's alone a bunch of youngsters like the Nats.



Even in defeat the locals uncarthed a real find in Jimmie Mathews of the O.S.D. This lad, a left hander, should win a lot of games for the Mills crew before the harvest is collected next fall. Even when things were breaking the toughest for him he still carried a smile and gained for himself the admiration of his teammates. Mathews should be heard from before long and in a manner that will make local baseball fans astounded. He has the stuff that makes real pitchers. What's your guess—(?)

One of the first omens of summer is upon us — boys' girls' softball. On Monday evening the lid will be lifted off the boys' girls' softball activities when the Cobourg "All-stars" battle Leo Barrett's Belleville First Nails at the Cobourg centre on Monday evening. The Allstars handed the local champs a trimming in the summer town recently and the Barrett-coached outfit are out for revenge...Incidentally Coach Barrett has added Molly Gray, Pat Morgan, Dolly Canning and a few other well-known girl softball celebrities to his champions of 1933.

Ralph Morden, physical instructor at the local Y.M.C.A. expects at least six relay teams to enter Monday's Trenton to Belleville road race. Teams from Trenton, Kingston, Peterboro' and other centres have signified their intentions of starting when Mayor Graham fires the starters gun. All day yesterday Mr. Morden laboured making out the points where the runners were to congregate and receive the baton from their team mates. This race is of the medley road race type.

The arrival of the track and field team of the University of Southern California apparently has aroused considerable interest about town as a number of sportsmen who are keen followers of the track and field are daily visiting the S. C. athletes and watching them perform. Of course Coach Dean Cromwell is only handling light work-outs at present but he fully expects to "turn the lads loose" at least once while they're in our midst. The executive of the Nationals expect to have the entire team as their guests at Wednesday's Kingston at Belleville Senior baseball game.

A recent press dispatch from Kingston says that a matched race between Tull Gate, Kingston's crack pacer, and Bill Patch, has been arranged and will be run on July 11th in connection with an Orange Celebration in that city. Margaret Brewer, Louis Bennett's crack pacer, could just about take this Patch horse into camp on any man's track. Apparently the Kingstonians have picked a "sure shot" for Tull Gate when Bill Patch was invited to the affair. All of which reminds us that the local horse meet scheduled for June 14th is fast drawing near.

OOPS, SORRY!—John Van Ryn takes a tumble as he plays against Wilmer Allison in South Orange, N. J., tennis meet.

AFTER WIN—Here's clse-up of Lewis Meyer and his mechanic, taken just after winning Indianapolis 500-mile auto race.

WM. MULDOON DIES IN N. Y.

Noted Sportsman and Former Member of Boxing Commission

Purchase, N.Y., June 3 (AP)—William Muldoon, New York State Boxing Commissioner and grand old man of athletics, died today in his 85th year.

The veteran sportsman, a noted expert on health methods, originator of the "health farm idea" and intimate of leading athletic figures for half a century, succumbed shortly before 5 a.m. at his estate here.

Only nine days ago he celebrated his 85th birthday. His first experience with a sick bed was a year ago when he fell from a horse. Later he recovered and subsequently would "live for many more years", but the telltale shiftiness of old age began to take their toll, and on his last birthday he was confined to his bed.

Once Drummer Boy.

During the Civil war Muldoon was a drummer boy in the United States Civil War. A great all-round athlete, wrestling champion of the world, exactor, and czar of boxing in this state.

Professional wrestling took him on a tour of the world, including the Orient. Then came the business of training public athletes.

When he left the boxing business and devoted himself to the health farm idea he became a millionaire. Presidents, bankers, and titans of industries were numbered among his patrons and staunch friends.

"No tobacco, no drink, plenty of sleep, plenty of exercise," were the rule at his establishment, and the mightiest of them had to obey.

GRASS GROWS IN BALL

Guelph, Ont., June 3—(CP)—An unusual case of grass in the power behind growth was reported by Mr. McKechnie of this city. He found a hard rubber ball in his garden through it had grown twitch grass.

3rd. flight won by Mrs. Wherrat.

Mrs. A. H. Ketchesen, women's captain, acted as clerk of the course, tabulating and compiling all scores.

BETWEEN INNINGS

Charlie Ruffing and Red Lucas finish more games they start than does the average good major league hurler. Reason: The Yanks and Cincinnati roundsmen are pretty competent with the bat and need little pitch hitters.

John McGraw, reminiscing recently said the hardest defeat the Giants suffered under him was the loss of the 1908 pennant, caused directly by Fred Merkle's famous "bonehead" play.

The Yankee Stadium will soon go under the partial rebuilding which will increase the huge plant's baseball seating capacity to 82,000. More than 100,000 will be enabled to see fights there and 90,000 to see football games.

Al Simmons, Red Kress and Jimmie Dykes won't attempt to play golf in the 36-hole Ford Motor Co. Charity of Progress, Chicago, tower, as planned, because when the sphere reaches earth it would be travelling 149 miles an hour. Too dangerous.

NO CHANGES IN BIG SIX

Barbee of Leafs Still in Charmed Circle With .333

There were no startling changes in the International batting race yesterday but the two week-end's games are expected to see drastic changes in the personnel and alignment of the sextette, more than one player, including Benny Tate, Montreal catcher, will likely go over the 100 mark in at bats before tomorrow night and thus qualify for the charmed circle.

Bo Boone dropped ten points yesterday, failing to get one hit in four tries but is still batting .400. Barbee of the Leafs remained in sixth position with .333 and Boyle, Baltimore, maintained his second rung place with .371. The leaders:

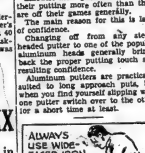
ALEX MORRISON says:



Even the best of players lose what they call their putting touch.

Likewise most golfers are off with their putting more often than they are off their games generally.

The main reason for this is lack of confidence.

Changing off from any steel-bodied putter to one of the popular aluminum heads generally brings back the proper putting touch and resulting confidence.

Aluminum putters are practically suited to long approach putts, but when you find yourself shipping with your putter switch over to the other for a short time at least.

ALEX MORRISON says:

Too many players make the mistake of using a wood club or an iron club with a rather narrow face to ball out of long grass or a sand trap.

There is small chance of playing a successful shot with such clubs and even when the player gets away with it he is no better off than when he uses the proper club, which is a wide-faced iron.

Don't bank on a lucky break in golf.

Always play with a margin of safety.

TELEGRAPHS SHOW BUSINESS UPTURN

Reactions to Economic Changes Shown By New Tickers

Montreal, June 3—The speed with which various commercialized agencies react to changes in the economic world is demonstrated in the installation of five new stock tickers and employment of additional operating operation in Montreal by the Canadian National Telegraphs following the revocation of the gold standard by the United States and the improvement in foreign exchange rates. The telegraph line between Montreal and New York has been especially affected and more telegraphers have passed over the wires of the system, recently than for any like period since last August, official of the Telegraph Company stated.

Toronto, June 3—(CP—Struck by a train early today on the body of William McCarvey, 50, was found the Canadian National Railway tracks here. McCarvey had suffered terrible head injuries and had been dead more than an hour when a train crew found him. An inquest will be held.

20,000 YEARS IN SING SING NOW AT CAPITOL

A sensational story was sent out over the press wires to the effect that the inmates of Sing Sing had fatally stabbed another inmate in the prison yard during a recreation period. Something of this tragic happening may have been in the minds of the Warner Bros. director, his assistants, as well as the actors, while filming scenes inside the prison walls for screen adaptation of the book, "Twenty Thousand Years in Sing Sing," which is now playing at the Capitol Theatre with Spencer Tracy and Bette Davis heading the cast.

The action for the first shot in this picture were set up to catch the men as they marched for their noon-day meal. The prison band played a stirring march-step and prisoners quickly assembled in march formation, and, directed by their leaders, stepped briskly out, arms swinging and heads erect, past the camera equipment and on over the hill, to the mess hall. And the picture men were more concerned than were the prisoners.

There is an ill-fing Sing supposedly as hardened and desperate men as in any prison in the world. Yet their reaction to the presence of the cameras was that of interesting children. There was none of the expected reluctance—the averting of faces, the casual passing of the hand across the face, as the machines rolled out their film.

In fact, when the word went out —the night before—over the prison broadcast system, that volunteers were wanted the next morning, for a mass shot, actually eight hundred men responded. And it was not all for the cigarettes that were promised them.

"No one looked at us that morning as if we were a bunch of convicts," said Spencer Tracy, "and he knows why; the former people who knew him, even by sight, the longer he could stay out of trouble.

"So, why should a prisoner, whether a big shot or a small fry, refrain from having his picture filmed, any more than the debonair or the politician?"

The programme today, Monday and Tuesday at the Capitol includes another chapter of "The Devil Horse," News and Cartoon.

SELLING AUTOS FOR 22 YEARS IN BELLEVILLE

J. T. Warren, Pioneer Automobile Dealer, Has Long And Successful Business Record—Takes Over New Line

Many automobile owners in Belleville district and elsewhere were interested this week in the announcement that J. T. Warren, pioneer automobile dealer of Belleville, had been appointed distributor for Plymouth and Chrysler automobiles. Mr. Warren was one of the firs to enter the automobile field and has sold thousands of cars during the twenty-two years he has been connected with the selling and servicing of automobiles. Previous to coming to Belleville Mr. Warren was engaged in farming, logging, lumbering in Michigan and Manitoba in the pioneering period. Coming to Belleville Mr. Warren took up the business of selling pianos and other musical instruments, following this business for several years. With the advent of the automobile he saw better business possibilities in that business and took over a line which included the Overland, Everett and Tudhope cars. He was one of the expected reluctance—the averting of faces, the casual passing of the hand across the face, as the machines for Chevrolet for this district, and for the purposes of his business purchased the large stone building on Front Street, opposite No. 1 Fire Station, formerly the Taylor Hotel, this was remodelled to provide accommodation for sales rooms, garage, machine shop, etc., to give the best possible service to patrons.

In his dealings with the public Mr. Warren has won a host of friends through uniform square dealing and an effort always to give the best value for money possible. Mr. Warren believes that in taking over the Plymouth and Chrysler lines he can still continue to give the public a service which will be entirely satisfactory. Mr. Warren has surrounded himself with a staff of automobile experts each one a specialist in his own particular line, making a business organization which cannot help but as nearly one hundred per cent. as humanly possible.

HELL BELOW

Adapted by Lebbeus Mitchell

He received another hard sock in the back of his head—so sudden and unexpected that it smashed his nose against the kangaroo's chest. He rubbed his nose and saw blood on the glove.

"Now I am mad! Now I am mad!" he cried between sobs and swung his arm landing such a powerful blow on the kangaroo's muzzle that the head was floored. The crowd cheered wildly and Pizmaine looked contemptuously down upon his antagonist.

"I'm asked for it and yuh got it. But yuh couldn't take it. Yuh couldn't, huh?"

He turned away from the kangaroo and clasped his hands over his head accepting the applause with great ceremony and an air of braggadocio. But as a sudden roar from the crowd he turned and saw the kangaroo leaping at him and down in a menacing rage. It jumped three feet into the air and landed on the canvas with its tail. For a moment his eyes rolled from the crowd to it, fear with horrified amusement. Then he realized that he had been fighting the real kangaroo instead of the stuffed animal. The realization sent him leaping over the ropes and dashing down the aisle in frenzied haste pursued by the enraged kangaroo.

CHAPTER VIII

THE EMPTY DINGHY

He be dashed into the dressing room Pizmaine bumped into the Limey, planted a long swing to the teeth, and then, one foot braced against the canvas of the tent. It was fashioned like the prize ring and there was no means of escape in its direction. He turned, and the Limey rising to his feet just as the kangaroo leaped through the flimsy lattice, a swing on the Sergeant-Major's jaw and leaped on towards Pizmaine. He ducked the blow and fled towards the Limey's. The kangaroo, the one powerful bound, was upon them, and then ensued a free-for-all fight, that it is impossible to describe in detail, so quick were the blows and so frenetic. The kangaroo was pulled down to the floor and the three rolled out of the tent and into the aisle of the main tent. The Limey sank his teeth in Pizmaine's nose; the cook twisted the kangaroo's tail and the latter landed a number of unmerciful blows on the Britisher's jaw.

The animal, its eyes glowing with rage, managed to get one hind leg planted against Pizmaine's chest, the other on the trunk of the Limey and with a terrific thrust shirt by both far down the aisle, where they continued to fight the crowd milling around, anxious not to miss one moment of the fracas.

"Stuffed!" Toler started to the Limey's aid.

"Stuffed, hell, 'Enry!" they shouted: "We're comin'!"

"Oh, yuh jail-bird!" cried Mac-Dougal, jumping one one of the maniacs and flooring him. Then he turned to the second, other sailors turned to the assistance of the two British and American forces to help them. In a moment there was a general brawl was in progress. The Italians came to revel, joined the sailors, shouting, cursing, fighting. Toler fell in a heap with Pizmaine and the Sergeant-Major until the original quarrelers were entirely shut from sight.

A police whistle sounded and a voice cried a warning! "The shore patrol!"

MacDougal saw the patrol running through the tent entrance and dug his way frantically through the heap of struggling sailors on top of his friends.

"Pizmaine! Hey, come out of there! Spore patrol! Pizmaine!"

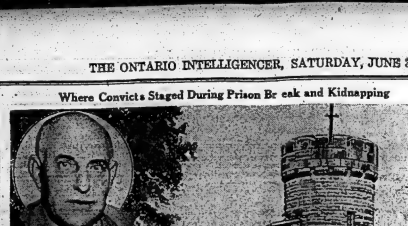
"Was that you, me?" he heard the cook's faint voice. Then his head cracked.

"Yeah, come on—come in! The shore patrol's here!"

"Just a second!" cried Pizmaine, and there was an upheaval of the heap on top of him as he squirmed around under them.

Later, just as the shore patrol reaching the mass of struggling sailors, Pizmaine emerged and with a friend started on the run for the tent. Pizmaine had grabbed away something shiny in his hand. It hit a canvas wall. He later said so, and picked up a pair of bloody pad and jacked up a pair of bloody extracting forceps. As the two Americans fled from the tent, the Limey came up from the mass of humanity with his hand to his mouth.

"Sh't say—h'l say—I—e-w!" he howled through the hand that muffled his voice especially.



The heroes sailed, buoy bells boomed the black and menacing sea swished against the sides of the mine-hidden submarine as it put out of the harbor at Tarento one night. Toler and Knowlton stood on the deck-bridge straining their eyes to pierce the darkness. Their olekins glowed in the revolving shower of light from a shore light-

Where Convicts Staged During Prison Break

This is a view of the Kansas state penitentiary at Lansing, scene of a sensational prison break when 11 convicts escaped, kidnapping the warden, Kirk Prather, Inset, and two prison guards. The trio was later released unharmed near Wichita, Okla. The convicts, after their release, made their flight in various automobiles which they commandeered.

house-struck them. Toler snapped on a tiny chart light for a moment then snapped it off.

"Submerge her," he ordered Knowlton, quietly.

"Aye, aye, sir." Knowlton stepped to the conning tower hatch and pressed a lever. The engines hummed, horn gave one wailing outcry, Then it sounded again, and the diesel motors were repealed. From the open hatch he could hear Nelson, orders: "Flood main ballast. Down rudders."

As the ship began to settle down in a dive the lookout and Henderson ducked down the hatch to the conning tower. Knowlton followed and then Toler. Knowlton secured the hatch, overhead, while the submarine stored away the signal books. Walker switched off the red eye-pools.

"Knowlton," called Toler as the lieutenant was about to descend through the hatch.

"Aye, aye, sir," Knowlton, turning his head.

Toler appeared to make a strong effort to control his emotion.

"Knowlton, that's a man, could you?"

"That, just it, sir, I am a man."

"You both have a duty," said Toler grimly, "and you'll stand it."

"Duty! Duty!" mused Knowlton. "That's all you know, because you live by the book, you think everyone else can!"

"You'll step away from my daughter, sir."

"Who are you to condemn your daughter to unhappiness? I'll be with her again—if I live."

"Aye, sir," Knowlton," said Toler, deadly calm but threatening, "and I live."

"I'm not afraid to die, Toler. And what's more you're not afraid to live, nor afraid to live."

"Get below, Knowlton, turning his head.

"Aye, aye, sir."

"You'll stand your watch!"

The crew was loafing about in the engine room, one group playing solitaire. A new member of the crew, a Sardinian, a mere boy, ignored by the men lounger in a corner, was asleep. All seemed easy and uncomfortable.

"Aye—are we under the waters?" asked the man.

"Naw, it's the perfume!" said MacDougal, still in a disgusted look.

The ship angled downwards suddenly and the men, familiar with the submarine's manoeuvers, shot across the deck, sliding slippery for a little water and all plunged first into one sailor, then another, and finally the boy. Cards, bumped his head on Pizmaine's nose, and Sicilian's head on Walker's shirt by falling onto a bunk. Pizmaine fell of the bunk and landed in the corner where there was no blood on them.

"Get off my face, that guy on his lap" he barked in exasperation, "before he breaks something."

The new sailor got up hurriedly and looked around for a place to sit. Finding none, he slipped to the floor and finally seated himself on a valve at the bottom of the bulkhead. There was an extended point on the valve stem and he sat quickly, with an expression of pained surprise on his face. Then he rested himself on the valve for a second.

"Will yuh not play that torpedo?" he asked Pizmaine, "I want to keep it dry!"

"Torpedo nuts! In an awful hurry about this war," remarked Henderson, apropos of nothing in particular. He looked up, and in an hour we're under way."

"Where are we going?" asked the new man, perking up.

"Sardinia, Italy." It was Pizmaine striving to be sarcastic. "The shipping lanes, Mediterranean."

"Mebbe we're going to Durazzo," said Sparks, without looking up from his game of solitaire.

"Jeese, I hope so!" cried Sicilian. "I have a good reputation in his eye. "That's the loveliest place to get torpedoed. I'll be a real blooming ocean!"

The boy, a sailor, gently grin on his face at the mention of torpedoing, took a cigarette from the pocket and lighted it. MacDougal sniffed a moment, then whirling savagely on him.

"Say, you! Give me them cigarettes!" He snatched the package and of the man's unresisting hands.

At mess the next day, the new man was very subdued. A look of disgust on his dirty unshaven face with a feeling of nausea, he pushed away his dish of badly cooked oatmeal. MacDougal shoved it back in front of him.

"Eat it. It'll put hair on your chest."

"Really, I'm not hungry, Mr. MacDougal."

"Eat it!" the commanded MacDougal, with the look of an annoyed father at a young son who refuses his cereal.

Reluctantly the youth dipped his spoon into the dish. Pizmaine placed a piece of soggy ham in front of Henderson.

"Henderson, did you find your shoe?" asked MacDougal.

"Yaw."

"You may be interested to know you're eating it."

"What's the matter with that ham?" asked Pizmaine; insulted. "Its imported from the States."

"They must have canned it. It's sure salty" commented Henderson.

"That's the way they cure hams," yuh lubber!"

"Well if this was cured, it's had a relapse!"

At mess the next day the men were interrupted by the screaming of the klaxon. A second time it sounded, and the men rushed out of the mess cabin and took their stations alertly. Nelson was at the periscope. Commander Toler, followed by Knowlton and Radford, entered the conning room.

"Enemy destroyer full speed on course two-three-zero," said Nelson without taking his eye from the periscope. "Will cross our forward blow in a minute."

Toler took the periscope.

"Theses smoke on the horizon," he said, his eyes at the eyepiece. "She's probably followed by others. Knowlton take the periscope, check that bearing for me position. Take observations every four minutes."

"Aye, aye, sir," responded Knowlton taking the place the Commander vacated. The latter went to the chart table.

Knowlton suddenly stiffened at the periscope, glued his eyes more closely to the eyepiece. A moment later he cried:

"Blow main ballast!"

The men at the blow valves were turning to obey the command when Toler whirled angrily from the chart table countermanding the order.

"Secure the valves." The men returned to their stations, and Toler turned to Knowlton, his eyes blazing.

"What's the matter with you, Knowlton?"

"Matter! don't up there!" replies Knowlton, looking up from the periscope, his face pale and slippery for the slight he alive. I saw an arm over the side of the dinghy—with an engagement ring on it!"

Toler took the periscope. Shock was written on his face at what he saw, but in a moment his expression hardened and he turned away from the periscope.

"That's our boat all right, but there's only one chance in a million that anyone's alive."

"Aye, aye, sir," said Knowlton, gently.

"No! Check their course as ordered. Take observation every four minutes."

With the words, Toler turned on his heels and left the control room, going towards his quarters. Knowlton, his face deadly pale, stared after him for a moment, then took his place at the periscope. His eye was filled with the lines of his mouth tightening.

"Nelson," he ordered, "take the periscope a minute."

Nelson looked curiously after him as Knowlton made his way towards the commander's quarters. Toler looked up, distinctly annoyed, at the intruder. Knowlton burst into impassioned speech.

"Sir, Brick's up there with his men, ... Suppose they're alive—wounded without water, ... You know what it means, sir."

"Our duty is observation," replied Toler, coldly. "With that destroyer up there and the smoke of three others in sight, to go to the rescue would be suicide. There's nothing else to go."

"What's the matter with you, sir, if you weren't afraid."

"That'll do Knowlton," said Toler, his face burning with anger. "Get back to your station."

Knowlton made no move to obey, stood there glaring at his commander for a second, conflict in his own mind. Toler repeated his command slowly three in his eyes, and said, "Get back to your station!"

"I said, sir," Knowlton replied after a moment more of hesitation, turned on his heel and left the cabin. He relieved Nelson at the periscope without a word. As he looked that hardening of the muscles of his jaws and face returned. He be addressed MacDougal who had been standing at Nelson's side. "Are all tubes ready for firing?"

"Wh-why, yes, sir," stammered MacDougal, taken aback. "The pressure's on the impulse tanks."

"Very good," he replied.

"All set to ten feet Sir."

Knowlton looked at the switchboard on which were four rows of lights marked—tubes Nos. 1, 2, 3 and 4. He lifted the flap which covered the firing keys, With his hand still on the key he placed his eyes at the eyepiece. The destroyer was eyed across the bow of the submarine. The dinghy, without sign of life, but with a lieutenant's arm across its side, trailing in the water, was bobbing closer to the ship. On the bottom he could make out still down the smoke of three ships.

Nelson was watching Knowlton with fascinated attention.

"My God, Knowlton!" he whispered. "You aren't going to fire against orders!"

The bell I'm not." shouted Knowlton and shoved down the key on which his hand rested. One light went out on the switchboard. The fire was clean.

"That's for Brick, damn you!" cried Knowlton, wildly. He pressed another key; another light on the switchboard went out: again the submarine shook.

"We came to war to fight—all fight well fight!"

Feverishly, his eyes agleam with hatred, he pressed the two remaining keys; two more lights went out; twice more the boat was jarred.

Toler glued to the periscope Knowlton saw four torpedoes rushing through the water towards the German destroyer. One of the torpedoes struck the side of the hostile vessel; a geyser of water spouted up and over the destroyer. When it disappeared a gaping hole was visible in the side of the vessel. Knowlton's face was contorted with a mad joy.

"Somebody's gone to hell," said MacDougal as the sound of the explosion was heard in the submarine.

Then Commander Toler, furious rage on his face, rushed into the control room.

"What's going on here!" he shouted.

"We're fighting Captain!" cried Knowlton, madly joyous. "Doing what we came to war for."

With an oath Toler thrust Knowlton away from the periscope with such violence that he almost knocking him off his feet. Reflected in the mirror he saw the torpedoed destroyer sinking rapidly its crew scrambling madly to launch a boat. The three remaining ships in line on the horizon were bearing down upon the submarine. Toler jerked away from the periscope, his voice cracking in its intensity. "Crown diving rudders! Take her under! Right rudder!" he pressed the mechanism which lowered the periscope, sounded the klaxon, calling the men to the diesel quarters" then whirled fiercely upon Knowlton. "This time you Knowlton. Get to your room!"

CHAPTER X

ON THE OCEAN FLOOR

Knowlton left the control room without reply, and Toler had ordered MacDougal to reload the tubes when there came a terrific roar; the submarine rocked; the wires scream, the lights flickered, the telephone from the ear's of "Wires" the man listening to the "Wires" the man listening to the earphones. He clapped his hands to his ears and shook about with pain in agony. Another "Ka-ran" rocked the ship once more.

"They've got us spotted," said Nelson at the diving controls.

"Keep her at 200 fathoms," ordered Captain Toler. "Steer a zigzag course."

In the torpedo room water was spurting and gushing running down the sides in rivulets, so racked had the boat been by the two explosions. In one ankle-deep on the floor as sailors flopped about in it, trying to stop the flow of water in the emergency caulking.

A third explosion rocked the boat worse than the two previous ones. Two men were hurled about the room. MacDougal fell against a torpedo and got a rivet mix on a Pizmaine and a sailor ran to help him in.

"Are you hurt, Mac?" asked Pizmaine. MacDougal wiped the blood from his face and looking at his hand.

"Well, that ain't ca'sup," he replied, gruffly, as he hurried to the speaking tube to report the "Wires." The tube did not work and he rushed aft sloshing through the water. Before he could reach the engine room two more depth bombs rocked the submarine, throwing the men sliithering about the decks. The commander's face was like stone, eyes passing quickly from it to the depth gauges and back again.

"We're not going forward, captain," reported MacDougal, as the boat shuddering and shook under another explosion. The torpedo room is filling."

"Badly?"

"Up to the ankles. What'll we do?"

"Roll up your pants."

"Yes, sir," said MacDougal with a grim smile, and returning to his post, hiking up his underpants. Commander's terse remark.

Sparks, who had taken the place of "Wires" at the hydrophones, removed the phones from his ears and shouted to Toler.

"The German destroyers sound directly overhead!"

"Hard left!" ordered Toler. "Never mind the noise."

The boat was put over so sharply that men were catapulted across the compartment; they could hear the propellers and banging of the pots, pans and stew kettles flying about in the cook's galley.

Sparks again flipped the hydrophones from his ears for a second and called out: "They're on our starboard side."

"Left rudder. Hard left," ordered the captain.

"Hard left, aye, sir," said Bradford.

"Watch your angle. Hold her at 70 feet."

The men at the diving rudders hurried to obey the command.

"Topgah ain't it?" said a sailor to Pizmaine.

"Yuh ought to ride on the new roller-coaster at Coney Island," replied Pizmaine as a stream of water spurted out from the side of the bulkhead, built between him and the sailor. They exchanged startled glances.

"Somebody must have left the bath tub running," said the sailor, and went hurling and sliding across the deck as another "ash can" exploded. Before he could regain his feet the submersible was rocked again and again as the depth charges fell in salvos of "ash cans". Sparks ripped off the hydrophones.

"They're on our port side, sir," cried Nelson.

The torpedo room MacDougal was sitting up on the hatch wheel with his head lying back on the torpedo hatch more securely. Below him the water was trickling down in dirty streamlets upon his body. Two other men, with hammers and caulking irons, tried desperately to caulk the plates.

"Hammer!" calling MacDougal. He sat up as the boy threw it up to him.

"Can you bring an umbrella?" demanded MacDougal.

"No-no-no sir."

"Then be a Boy Scout found unprepared!"

But even MacDougal was unprepared for what followed. The submarine was rocked and rocked again by a series of exploding bombs. It listed so sharply that MacDougal was shot from his perch on the hatch wheel, while the men at the pots were sliding across the deck in the water, and the two men caulking irons were piled up in a corner by the torpedo tubes. A torpedo broke its line and started rolling across the deck. MacDougal broke and leaped for it.

"Warhead! Grab it! If it hits anything we'll be blown to hell!"

The men scrambled to their feet and started to fight the pounding torpedo, MacDougal reaching it and turn under the listing of the boat. "Warhead locer!" commanded MacDougal towards the control room.

At that moment Commander Toler, forgetting that he was under arrest, rushed from his quarters to the control room, followed by Nelson and Radford near the bulkhead. He found the men at the diving rudders and leaning over the warhead in the extremity of their efforts to keep it from rolling against the bulkhead and being exploded.

Before he cried, but before he could throw the line there came a shock that lifted the submarine and rocked the ship more dangerously than before, loosening the men's grasp of the warhead which threatened momentarily to get away from them and dash against the bulkhead. As soon as he could regain his feet Knowlton took out the line around the warhead, holding it tight in the open end. The men grasped a hold of the ponderous thing, and started to roll it.

"The ship still angling downward, causing the men to slip and splash in the water in their tug-of-war with the warhead. Then the rope was thrown clenched teeth, but despite all they could do, the head of the torpedo crept from its burning and tearing the flesh so that the rope became red with their blood. Their slackening hold on the rope gave the warhead the chance for which it appeared to have been struggling; it broke free and rolled across the deck—toward the men who were standing knee deep in the rising water.

"Stop her!" roared Knowlton as he leaped for the warhead.

The new man threw himself prostrate on the deck, where he was half covered by water. The warhead rolled up against him and was stopped. But as the ship rolled, it moved back and forth across his body. A cry escaped his lips—the agony he endured.

"Turn her on end!" ordered Knowlton.

The men turned to the thing, tugged and strained, slipping in the water, as they tried to lift it.

In the control room, the last "ash can" exploded, broke the electric light globe over the head of the gun-crewing Italian, and men, a shower of glass over him.

"They've stopped their engines," said Toler. "Stop both motors—stop everything."

Sparks at the switch moved the controllers and the drone of the motors ceased.

"Stop the pump," ordered Nelson

"Stop the vent motors."

Presently the engine controller handle was pulled down, and the engines stopped. Then there sipped several switches at the board were pulled and the lights in the boat went out. The depth gauge showed the submarine had settled to 70 feet. At that depth it lay motionless except for its list. Gas escaped from the batteries. The silence that pervaded the interior of the ship was strange and disquieting breath of the men.

The men turned back against the bulkheads, sweaty and muddy, several bleeding from cuts and bruises, forming them into grotesque masks. Every man listening, as they watched Sparks whose ears were glued to the hydrophones. One of the sailors absent-mindedly took out a package of cigarettes and lighted a cigarette, paper MacDougal wiped his eyes with his hand and then reached out and took the cigarette away from the sailor, crumbling it in his fingers. The faces of both men remained blank, but the voice of Sparks startled them.

"They've started again, sir," he reported to Toler. "Two destroyers and a submarine."

Suddenly the submarine began to rock as the explosion after explosion shook the boat. Globes broke, lights flickered, depth bombs shook the submarine; the glass on the depth gauge was shattered; men, books, on the chart table fell off into the water; the sextant fell upon the desk; more light bulbs broke.

Another explosion was both heard and felt; there came a blinding flash, a roar, then a sharp report and the lights went out. Everything stopped running; a strange, stifling silence pervaded the darkness in the hull.

"My God!" cried a voice. "What's the matter?"

"We're going through a tunnel!" came the voice of Pizmaine, unnervingly in the blackness and the silence.

"Sparks, what's the matter?" demanded the Captain.

The words were no more than out of his mouth when the ship was rocked anew by another volley of "ash can" explosions.

A flashlight was turned on, disclosing the white-faced Sparks and Sparks' face could be seen bending toward it.

CARRIES 702 GALLONS GAS IN AEROPLANE

New York, June 3 (CP)—Jimmie Mattern has a comfortable seat in his 'round the world' plane, but he won't be able to turn in the direction. If he does, he'll rap his elbows on a gasoline tank.

The tank capacity has been utilized for gas storage. By flying single-handed, Mattern was able to eliminate the co-pilot's seat in favor of extra tanks of fuel. In all he carried 702 gallons.

KING AND QUEEN ATTEND TOURNAMENT

This recent photo of King George and Queen Mary of England is one of the best likenesses that has been obtained of these sovereigns since the King made a few public appearances of late due to his suffering from rheumatism and his place has been taken at many functions by the Queen and the Prince of Wales. The royal couple are shown upon their arrival at the huge Exhibition Hall, Olympia, to witness the royal military tournament.

PROBABILITIES

Moscow, June 5 (AP) — Jimmy Mattern, United States aviator bound round the world in a solo flight, landed in Moscow this afternoon, dog-tired but feeling fine.

He was exactly 31 hours and 29 minutes out of New York City. (This put him almost three hours ahead of the Post-Gatty round-the-world flight record he is trying to beat.)

Mattern who formerly flew in Vancouver landed here at 7.51 a.m. Eastern Standard Time, swinging down on the muddy field from a sky darkened by angry clouds. He declared he would remain in Moscow two hours and then press on toward Siberia.

After taxi-ing his ship to a standstill, the Texan was gathered up by half a dozen Soviet aviators and foisted into the air several times in an enthusiastic reception.

Sale Haughty

He was escorted to the airdrome reception room where officials fastened to his wishes concerning gasoline and oil and gave him information on landing facilities east of Moscow. They said the weather conditions were not of the best, but Mattern declared he would go on. He ate hungrily of a sumptuous meal which awaited him.

Mattern said he hoped to hop non-stop at 9am. for Sal Novosibirks (about 1,700 miles) on leaving Moscow.

This is a new photo of Russell T. Sherwood, missing witness in the Seabury investigation and financial confidante of former Mayor James J. Walker of New York. It was made at a hotel in Hoboken, N. J., where internal revenue officers located Sherwood. He faces a contempt of court fine of $50,000.

PROBERS HALT NO DECISION

Personal Income Tax Returns of Partners May be Studied

Washington, June 5—(AP)—The United States Senate Committee investigating J. P. Morgan and Company failed today to reach a final decision on whether to inquire into the personal income tax returns of three partners in the famous banking house, Thomas S. Lamont, William Ewing and Harold Stanley.

Chairman Fletcher announced after an hour and a half discussion that the committee will meet again tomorrow to determine the course in this matter.

Meanwhile the investigation will continue along other channels.

Although officially excused, J. P. Morgan was on hand for resumption of the inquiry. New faces there were O. P. and M. J. Van Sweringen, Cleveland railroad operators ready for testimony on the Morgan Bank's part in formation of Allegheny Corporation, holding company for stock of their expansive rail interests.

Morgan Playful

Washington, June 5—(AP)— In playful humor, J. P. Morgan paused today at the entrance of the United States Senate room where his firm is being investigated to eye the revolver in the holster of P. E. Perkins, capitol policeman.

"What are you carrying that gun for," he chaffed. "For protection against the Senators?"

Perkins solemnly answered:

"That wouldn't be much protection against them, Mr. Morgan."

"Quite right, quite right," Morgan nodded.

REPORT SAID BY STUBBS TO BE SURPRISE

Statement Says Mission Entirely One of Politics

"VAST JURY"

Stubbs Says Letter of Law Invoked to "Kill Me"

Winnipeg, June 5 (CP)—Saying he had nothing to say or undo, no regrets and no apologies; and that he was surprised and disappointed with the Commissioner's report, Lewis H. O. Stubbs, on receipt of the Order-in-Council removing him from the County Court Bench, issued a statement here today.

The dismissal followed a lengthy investigation conducted by Chief Justice Frank Ford of Alberta into complaints preferred against Mr. J. Major, Attorney General of Manitoba, against Judge Stubbs, some of whose statements were considered harmful to the administration of justice.

Commissioner's Finding

"The only element of surprise or disappointment to me is the Commissioner's finding," the statement said. "The politicians have neither surprised nor disappointed me. Inasmuch as the Commissioner is a Judge, supposedly disinterested and impartial, he has naturally expected judicial treatment and disposition of the matter between him and Bird. Obviously, he has not performed a judicial function, but merely a political mission. The evidence and proof of that is his own report.

But the "vast jury consisting of those who attended the hearing of the investigation and who read the very full and fair press reports of proceedings, is the real jury of judgment and rendered its verdict overwhelmingly opposed to the Commission's findings and recommendations. That verdict I accept," it said.

"The letter of the law has been invoked to kill me officially as a Judge. In the process of killing me, they have murdered the living spirit of the British judicial system."

VICTIM OF CRASH DIES OF INJURIES

LEAMINGTON, Ont., June 5 — (CP) — Clifford Hudson, 40, prominent retired hotel keeper died today from injuries received in an automobile accident Saturday night. The accident occurred when the driver of the car in which Huffman was riding swung the vehicle into the path of a motor truck which was being driven by George Campbell of Windsor. Occupants of both cars were slightly injured.

News Flashes

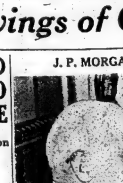
Winnipeg, June 5 (CP) — Lewis George Stubbs, former Manitoba Liberal-Progressive County Court Judge, has been appointed Chairman of the Wadena, Sask., Farmer-Labor group to attend a Dominion-wide Co-operative Commonwealth Federation convention at Prescottville, Sask., on Wednesday, June 14, when the official candidate will be chosen to contest the federal by-election in Mackenzie constituency.

Toronto, June 5 (CP)—The appeal of Ontario dismissed the appeal of the Province of Ontario with costs in an action whereby the province sought to collect $1,000 imposed on members of the Amalgamated Builders' Council, fined for operating a combine.

Prisoners Work Dodge on Turnkey Montrealers Flee from Cells

Montreal, June 5 (CP)—Turnkey Joseph Johnson was suspended from Montreal police force today while detectives searched for city for two of Johnson's charges, George Starke and Philippe Dulude, who made their escape from headquarters cells Saturday night by cutting on drugstore and payroll hold-up charges.

Suspension of Johnson, announced shortly before noon today will remain in effect pending official investigation into circumstances of the daring escape from the second floor of police headquarters building.



It was learned George Starke and Dulude called to Turnkey Johnson that he was making rounds. They complained they were cold and asked him to close an open window at the end of their cell block. Johnson turned from shutting the window to see the two prisoners running out of the open doors of their cell.

The turnkey reached the door leading out of the cell block at the same time as the prisoners did but they thrust him back and slammed the door.

Johnson raised the alarm and a squad of constables and detectives rushed out into the surrounding streets but were unable to find any trace of the escaped prisoners. Radio cars were notified by the police broadcast and closed on the downtown section of the city. A score of detectives were summoned from their beds to take part in the search which continued today without success.

When Wife Cannot Testify Ex-Banker Goes on Stand

New York, June 5 (AP)—Charles E. Mitchell, former chairman of the National City Bank, took the stand in his own defense today after his trial for income tax evasion after his wife had been barred as a witness by the court.

Mrs. Mitchell, to whom Mitchell is alleged to have made a fake stock sale so he could escape income tax payment in 1929, was called as the first defense witness as soon as court opened.

She was stopped by Federal Judge Henry M. Goddard before she reached herself in the witness chair.

"Neither husband nor wife for the defense can call the wife of a defendant," the judge ruled. Mitchell himself then took the stand.

STUDY HOME CONDITIONS

Province of Quebec is Satisfied With Control Laws

Montreal, June 5—(CP)—Quebec is satisfied with its Liquor Control system, Premier L. A. Taschereau stated today, at the same time indicating cities in other provinces would be well advised to examine conditions in their own communities before attacking Quebec. He was commenting on a report and remarks made by Rev. A. J. Irwin of Toronto, director of the Ontario Prohibition Union.

"There is nothing you can do to give satisfaction to the ultra-hard prohibitionists of any country and particularly of Canada," said the Premier. The system adopted in Quebec in 1920 to avoid the evils of both prohibition and the former system had proven so satisfactory it had been adopted by practically all other provinces and several foreign countries.

"I would suggest to Rev. Mr. Irwin," said Mr. Taschereau, "that he study conditions existing in Ontario before daring to attack what is taking place in Quebec."

The Quebec people are satisfied with the present system of temperance and whatever may be said against it by police, whose only excuse is that they do not know anything about it, they intend to remain masters in their own homes, denying other provinces free to do what they like in theirs."

Supes, who had been entrusted by his employer for his work during the latter's illness, was arrested by police near Rhein, 12 miles north of here.

PREACHER IS UNDERREMAND

Street Corner Speaker Attacks Statue in Ottawa R. C. Church

OTTAWA, June 5.—(CP)—Remanded for a week by Magistrate O. E. Sirike, in police court this morning, Robert Wishart, 41, street corner preacher, arrested yesterday, will be given a mental examination before man I am guilty. Before God I am not guilty" replied Wishart when asked to plead to charges of damaging property and disturbing a religious service. During a children's mass in St. Joseph's Catholic Church yesterday morning, Wishart quietly entered the building and armed with a piece of pipe, jumped the communion railing and attacked a statue of St. Joseph, breaking it beyond repair. His action almost caused a panic in the church, several women fainting and children screaming.

When the first charge was read to him this morning in police court, and he was asked to plead his response was, "not guilty before God."

"How do you plead before this court?" asked the Magistrate.

"Guilty before man."

To the second charge he replied "Before man I am guilty. Before God I am not guilty."

Some weeks ago Wishart caused a sensation in the House of Commons when he called upon its members to "repent" in a loud voice from the galleries. He received a reprimand from the house officials.

MAN SLUGGED AND THROWN FROM CAR

SAULT STE MARIE, Ont., June 5.—(CP)— Aldo Diamantino, 20, Italian, lies in a badly battered condition in Tarentorus Township hospital recovering at hospital here from head wounds and bruises about the upper portion of the body, said to have been slugged and robbed by two men in a green sedan and thrown from the car. He declared that in the city he had accepted a ride from the men who drove him into the country, rendered him helpless with a blow on the head robbed him of $12 in cash and then threw him from the car. Police are investigating.

Kidnapped Girl Pulls Convicts Hair And Chokes Him

Chickasha, Okla., June 5 (AP)— Courage of an Oklahoma College co-ed was credited today with a large share in stopping the frenzied cross-state dash of Frank Sawyer, fleeing Kansas convict, near Slinger, Caddo County, Sunday.

Sawyer, one of 11 desperadoes who escaped from Kansas State Penitentiary during Memorial Day left a trail of kidnappings and stolen automobiles in his frantic attempt to escape the cordon of officers thrown about Northeastern Oklahoma.

Lewis Bechtel, recaptured near Dripping Springs, Okla., is the only other one of the Kansas fugitives who have been seen.

Two Oklahoma convicts, who escaped Wednesday were recaptured on Thursday night, about 30 miles from the McAlester prison.

Brave College Girl

Sawyer, alone in flight from the Oklahoma prison, was captured in a gun battle with Miss Bell after he had kidnapped Bob Goodfellow, Caddo county clerk, and his 20 year old sister, Lois Goodfellow.

Goodfellow, wounded in the groin by a possemen's bullet when Sawyer used him as a shield, was taken to the Anadarko hospital, where his condition was described as serious, but not critical.

Miss Bell was wounded in the left arm by Sawyer's pistol, after grappling Sawyer's hair, which being cut short in compliance with state regulations. Then, according to Sheriff Horace Cripe the young lady began choking the convict, giving the officers an opportunity to close in.

"I'm not afraid of him then," she said afterward. "I was just afraid God had been kind and I wanted to choke him awful bad."

CHILD BORN ON BIRTHDAY

Mother on Way to Montreal to Visit Friends

Taken from the C.N.R. passenger train, No. 18, due in Belleville shortly after midnight Friday, Mrs. Ray Hughes, Simmon St., Toronto was rushed to the Belleville General Hospital where on the mother's birthday, a son was born, Dr. R. L. Creed being the attending physician. The C.N.R. ticket department today sent a telegram to the husband of the mother, the compliments of the company, telling him that she was on her way from her home to visit friends in Montreal. Reports from the hospital today are that both mother and son are progressing favorably.

MORGAN PARTNER'S SALE OF STOCK

Washington, June 5 (AP)—Members of the United States Senate Committee investigating J. P. Morgan and Company said they were told in executive session today by Pyndmeda Pecora that Thomas S. Lamont, young partner in the banking firm, sold stock in his wife's name to prevent rebought in connection with his income tax return for 1930, but that the committee counsel did not claim it was illegal.

EXCHANGE BILL WAS $1,369.50

Belleville Commission Informed of 1932 Costs of Exchange

Exchange which Belleville paid to the Ontario Hydro Commission in 1932 was $1,369.50 according to a communication from the Ontario Commission today as the regular business of the Belleville Public Utilities Commission. The thirteenth bill of $5,561.73 which the city received included adjustments on power costs, as well as the $1,369.50 exchange. It is, has been believed up to the present that the exchange bill had been higher.

Although Commissioner G. A. Reid said that he had expressed himself at the Toronto meeting of the Ontario Municipal Electric Association meeting as satisfied that one meeting of that body in a year was ample, Chairman M.P. Duff and Mayor G. O. Tice, commissioner, voted in favor of the city being represented at the convention to be held in Windsor during the latter part of this month. It is possible that Mayor Tice may be able to attend.

Commissioner Reid explained that there was in his mind no objection to the proposed meeting.

The question of the purchase of a small motor truck was left over, the commissioners to be called together in special session to make a decision.

Commissioner Reid made a motion to have the double service charge discontinued where a house is occupied by more than one family, occupying the one house. He produced a letter from the Toronto Commission which showed that Toronto charges for floor space and not on a service rate. Mr. Reid thereupon withdrew his motion until the next meeting of the commission. It was pointed out that Toronto users do not pay a service charge.

Foreigners Invade House of Alex Tichonich Early Today

HOUSE RANSACKED

Woman's Head Battered in Attempt o Make Her Talk

London, Ont., June 5 (CP) — Police in all parts of Western Ontario today started a dragnet and opened an intensive search for two men following a sensational robbery in which the two men obtained $1,500, life-savings of Alex Tichonich and his family. The thieves escaped in a taxi driven by Murray Haines.

London, Ont., June 5 (CP)—Two bandits who entered the home of Alex Tichonich today stole $1500 in $50 and $20 bills and escaped after dragging Mrs. Tichonich from the wash tub in the kitchen, binding her with ropes and throwing her into the basement.

The men were described as foreigners, one tall and one short. Mrs. Tichonich working when they broke in, managed to escape to give the alarm. They tied her up and then brutally assaulted her, finding finally the money which Tichonich had hidden away. The two then called a taxicab and drove away, Mrs. Tichonich managed to free herself and give alarm.

Police in all surrounding towns were at once notified and all highways are being watched. The men are believed heading north.

Head Battered

The men battered the woman's head on the floor in an attempt to force her to tell the hiding place of the money, she told police. When she refused they tied her hands behind her back, sack over her head and then threw her down the stairs.

Going upstairs, the robbers began their hunt. They tore up the floor in the attic and found nothing, but the roll of bills was finally located in a flour barrel in the bedroom.

After they left Mrs. Tichonich dragged herself to the cellar stairs and screamed until neighbors investigated and then called the police.

The search started immediately police officials declared they had a fairly good idea as to the identity of the men who were in the missing taxi-cab is Murray Haines, and it was thought he might be implicated in the robbery by threats or violence.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, June 5.—(CP)—Synopsis—Pressure is high over the Great Lakes and Northern Ontario and the Gulf States, and relatively low over the Canadian Prairies, the northwest States and Quebec. The weather has been moderately warm throughout the Dominion, unsettled with local thunderstorms over Ontario westward and generally fair in Quebec and the Maritime Provinces.

Northern Ontario— Partly cloudy and unsettled with local showers in part of Tuesday; probably followed by local thunderstorms.

NOW WORKING ON WEST SIDE

With the completion of the business section of the city last week, the crew of the department of public works, who have been painting the white traffic lines on the city streets swung into work across the river on the west side Monday morning, where they have been outlining and painting the principal intersections and crossings in that part of the city. East hill sections will be commenced with the completion of the west side. As an artistic touch, a few of the silent policemen on the corners have been painted with the white paint.

COUNTY COUNCIL SESSION JUNE 13

Hastings County Councillors have been advised that the spring session of Hastings County Council will open in Shire Hall in the city on Tuesday, June 13. The road grant estimates for the year will be struck, as the Reeves and Deputies of the various municipalities in the county will be made. The session is expected to run a lively one, with a number of deputations of ratepayers of the county present, asking the council to protest against further expenditures on road building during the coming year.

ENJOY DAY ON THE BAY

Although a still calmness glazed the waters of the Bay and harbor into a mirror-like surface, the usual number of punts and other sailing boats took advantage of the calm day, Sunday, to take to the water. Numbers of power craft made up the fleets of boats that could be observed in the water, with the majority of the latter being loaded up out of the way picnic spots with their passengers. No accidents in the water were reported over the week end.

NEW RECORD IS BEING ESTABLISHED

Firemen of the city are establishing a new low record for runs in a season that is ordinarily a busy one for them. During the latter part of May and the first week in the month of June, usually distinguished by the number of runs made by the city and other minor fires attendant on spring clean-up campaigns, runs have been few and far between. During the past several days not an alarm, or any sort has been turned in.

ALBINO "RAT" SEEN ON TRACKS

The platinum blonde fad has spread from robbins to local muskrats. A fine, white specimen of the rodent was observed basking near the reeds on the right-of-way of the railway track south of the city near the old mineral spring, late Saturday afternoon. Harold Ash, of the company with several other companions, attempted to stalk the albino and capture it, but with the approach of the boys the animal scuttled off into the reeds. It is believed the same animal has been in that district before.

Miss Zelda Black of Trenton will receive the Board of Governors' prize for the highest standing in the graduating class. Miss Black is met by Mrs. D. E. Mundell and the prize for pathology given by Dr. James Miller. Miss Verna Hubbell of Picton also a second year student, will receive the prize for dietetics given by Dr. Myles.

FIRST RACE FOR CUP POINTS

A meeting is called for this evening, Monday, at the club house of the Quinte Yacht Club, Bridge Street, for all interested in the sport sailing and other water sports. Final arrangements are expected to be made for the opening of the Wednesday races being held during the summer. Two boats in the 14 foot class have already been registered, while others are believed on the way. The coming Wednesday will see the first race for cup points.

NEW OILER IS EXPECTED SOON

No word has yet been received by department of public works officials, regarding the new oiling and sprinkling truck, but it is believed that the truck now being fitted out for the oiling apparatus will be received in the city some time this week.

CUPID IS NOT BUSY SO FAR

Although things look gong in the marriage mart in the city in the near future, so far this month the office of the city clerk has not distinguished itself by the fact that not one marriage license has yet been issued for the month of June. Ordinarily June is the busy month for the issue of the license.

NEW UNIFORMS TO BE ISSUED

New uniforms, consisting of sweaters and caps, in colors of red and white, the official color of the club, have been secured by the executive of the South End Athletic Club for the baseball team and will be issued this week. The sweaters carry the club letters.

SOME ROADS ARE ROUGH IN NORTH

Roads are good in the northern townships of the county, on the whole, but in some spots considerable improvement is the ensuing need. Also, if the traveller would keep from being eaten alive with black flies, reported more numerous this year than ever before, he must keep the sedan windows up enroute, and carry packs of soot fly screen, if stop over at camp is made. Tourists have commencing to arrive at most of the northern lakes, and summer activity at a few of them is already in full swing. Several residents of the city took the occasion of the week end to go camping in the northern section.

HIGH MARK OF 80 IS REACHED

Thermometers in the city struck a high 80 for the day on Monday, while a few hanging heat bars, which blanketed the city throughout the day held a heavy oppressiveness, made more unbearable by the humidity in the air. Over the week end hot weather is bringing down crowds to the open air and local bodies the popularity of nearby swimming pools.

NO CONTRACT FOR DREDGING HERE

According to the Engineering Review and Contract Record, the Canadian Dredging Company, Ltd. Midland, has been awarded the contract for the dredging of Colborne harbor, at a contract cost of $9,260. No word regarding the dredging of Belleville harbor, for which a contract has been called, has yet been received by the local commission.

FRANK SCULLY IS STILL A PATIENT

Frank Scully, captain and second baseman of the Peterboro seniors, is still a patient in the Belleville General Hospital following his recent accident, when he sustained a fractured skull after being hit by a pitched ball during last Wednesday's senior baseball game. Scully is being attended by Dr. R. A. Pringle, physician of the Belleville Nationals. Scully was to have returned to Peterboro over the week end, but the advice of the doctor served from Quebec. The average American tourists this year have been speeding through the city with short stops for refreshments at the various lunch rooms.

74 RECEIVE COMMUNION

Inspiring Ceremony is Witnessed at St. Michael's Church

Seventy-four children received first Holy Communion at an inspiring ceremony at St. Michael's Church yesterday at the 8.30 Mass. The tiny children, the girls in white with white veils, and the boys in Navy blue with white sashs arm bands, marched in procession from the Academy to the church, where the ceremony took place. Mass was celebrated by the pastor, Rt. Rev. J. P. Hefferon, assisted by the Mass the children sang the beautiful hymns of first Communion. The long Communion rail received a number of solos including the touching "Jesu for Today," so appropriate to the occasion.

The significance of the day in the lives of the children and in the lives of adults, renewing as it did the promises of baptism, occasion day was pointed out in an eloquent sermon by the pastor. At the conclusion of Mass, an interesting ceremony took place. A boy and girl, Tommy Hutchinson and Cecil Riser, knelt at the altar steps, their hands filled with flowers. Tommy reciting the act of consecration to the Sacred Heart, repeating the promises in clear, steady tones, which could be heard throughout the church while Cecil, at his side, equally eloquent manner, recited the act of dedication to the Blessed Virgin. They then advanced to the Sanctuary, where Tommy had the honour of placing the bouquet of flowers on the main altar before the Tabernacle, and Cecil placed hers on the Blessed Virgin's altar. The children then stood and sang "Holy God. We Praise Thy Name."

The following are the children who assisted again at the church to be enrolled in the Scapular, and to attend Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament. A banquet was then served in the Academy, the children's table attractively decorated with Spring flowers. All of the children were also present on this occasion.

Glace Bay, N.S., June 5 (CP)—Rival United Mine Workers and Amalgamated Mine Workers clash ed at Reva d'Or before they received word that the A. M. W. strike call had been lifted by the executive last week. Several minor injuries resulted as the fight developed, supposing the strike, brushed aside the A.M.W. pickets, and went to work as usual.

OBITUARY

LATE JOHN W. REID

The remains of the late John Wellington Reid were brought to Belleville from Toronto, this (Monday) afternoon for burial in the family plot in the Belleville cemetery. The Rev. (Dr.) E. N. Baker, a pastor of the deceased many years ago in the Bridge Street Church, officiating at the graveside. The late Mr. Reid passed away in Toronto Saturday morning last.

He was the son of the late Mrs. Albert N. Reid and was born in Belleville; after completion of high school education he entered the employ of the Bank of Commerce here, and was afterward, in branches of that bank in different localities. He later left the service of the bank and became one of the important executives of the late Simpson Co. in Toronto. The late Mr. Reid was a member of the United Church and had the esteem of all privileges he knew them.

Immediately surviving are the mother and father in Toronto, a brother, George, also resident there, and another brother Clarence of the Sun Life Assurance Co. staff in Montreal. Mr. C. M. Reid of this city is an uncle of the deceased.

LATE JOHN A. ARCHIBALD

The funeral of the late John Archibald took place from his late residence afternoon from the Tickell and Browne Funeral Home, 262 Dundas street to the Canniffon United Church where service was conducted at 2.30 o'clock by the Rev. W. H. Merrick who also officiated at the graveside in the Belleville cemetery.

The bearers were Messrs. Harry Farnham, Charles Mills, Fred Pulford, Sam Pope, Harford Thrasby and Dan Collett.

JUDGE J. H. MADDEN

Napanee, Ont., June 5 (CP) — Judge J. H. Madden, K.C. who retired from the Bench in 1926, died today as the result of a paralytic stroke suffered three weeks ago.

The late Judge Madden was born in Camden Township of Lennox County and attended the Newburg High School. He studied and practised law in Napanee until his appointment to the Bench. For over 25 years he was a Judge. On his retirement was succeeded by his son Judge J. E. Madden, an unusual occurrence in the courts of Canada.

Immediately surviving are his widow, two sons, Judge J. E. Madden of Napanee, and Morris Madden of Oshawa, and one daughter Mrs. Wm. F. E. Schuster of this city.

MARY IRENE CUSHING

Fergus, June 5—The death occurred Friday morning in Stevens Memorial Hospital of Mary Irene Gibbons, wife of Joseph Cushing Fergus merchant, after a brief illness. Mrs. Cushing was born in Fergus in 1894, the daughter of the late James Gibbons and Mrs. Jennie Gibbons of Fergus. Twenty-one years ago she was married to Joseph Cushing, son of the late James Cushing and Mrs. Margaret Cushing of Toronto. Mrs. Cushing had been a life long resident of Fergus, receiving her early education in the Fergus Separate School. She was a member of St. Joseph's Roman Catholic Church. Beside her husband she is survived by two brothers, Francis of Belleville and James of Eganville, Man., and two sisters, Loretta of Eganville, and Gertrude of Toronto. She is also survived by seven sons, Joseph, Daniel, Gerald, Jack, Leo, Francis and Jim, and also three daughters, Genevieve, Kathleen and Loretta, all at home. The funeral will be held from St. Mary's Church of the Immaculate Conception, Elora, with interment in the Elora Roman Catholic Cemetery.

THE LATE LEVI O'COIN

TWEED, (Special)—Mr. Levi O'Coin passed away suddenly on Friday, May 26th at the age of 66. He has resided in Hungerford Township practically all his life. He was a member of St. Edmund's Church, Stoco. Surviving besides his widow are four sons, Stafford of Cleveland, and Russell, Leo, and Roy St. Denis; five brothers, Phil, Charles John, Edward and Robert of Rochester and two sisters, Mrs. D. Shanoque Tweed and Mrs. S. Goulah, Bogus. The funeral was held on Monday at St. Carthagh's Church, with Very Rev. Dean Wallis officiating. Interment was made at St. Carthagh's Cemetery.

ASKED FOR CASH

Parry Sound, Ont., June 5 (CP)—Fifty unemployed today gathered here and presented requests for payment of vouchers in payment for relief work. The demonstrators were ordered to go to work or be refused relief, about 25 returning to their jobs. There was no disorder.

"Y" MEDLEY RELAY TEAM IS WINNER

Defeat Collegiate Team And One Entered From Kingston

FAST TIME

Road Well Patrolled by Police During Race

Romping home well in the lead, Ralph Mardoe, local Y.M.C.A. medley relay team won the annual Trenton to Belleville road race this morning, when Cliff Barber, running anchor for the local team crossed the finishing line at the west end of the lower bridge just 46 minutes and eight seconds after Mayor H. D. Graham, K.C., of Trenton, had fired the starting gun in front of the Trenton post office. The local Y.M.C.A. and Y.W.C.A. team finished second when Harry Long of the collegiate finished just two minutes later. The third entry, the Kingston Y.M.C.A. team, did not finish for long grind, when Jim Mclaughlin, running anchor for the Kingston team, collapsed with a cramp about two miles west of Belleville.

The marathon, which is run annually under the auspices of the local Y.M.C.A. and is a medley relay race type with five runners to a team. The first runner covered one half mile, the second one mile, the third two miles, the fourth three miles and the fifth and anchor man finishes the race, running five miles making the total distance completed 11 1-2 miles in all.

Kingston Out in Front

Geo. Ashley, the lead runner for the Kingston team, took the lead after about a half mile of the medley relay race type with five runners to a team. The first runner covered one half mile, the second one mile, the third two miles, the fourth three miles and the fifth and anchor man finishes the race, running five miles making the total distance completed 11 1-2 miles in all.

Mattern Flashing Towards Moscow After Landing on Island Near Oslo, Norway

Driven 300 Kilometers Off Course by Fogs And Storms

BELIEVED LOST

Covers 3,600 Miles From N. Y. in 5 Minutes Short of 24 Hrs.

Oslo, Norway, June 5 (AP)—Jimmie Mattern, the grinning Texas airman the world had feared lost, roared flashing toward Moscow in his red-white-and-blue plane "Century of Progress" today after a surprise landing on a small island seventy miles southwest of Oslo.

Fighting storms and fogs, which forced him 300 kilometers off his course, the daredevil flier, well-known in Vancouver and other cities of British Columbia, fought his way through successfully to land safely on Jlutrfrosland Island, on Norway's south coast, at 4:15 a.m., eastern standard time, yesterday.

The first news that Oslo heard of the landing came when the lighthouse keeper telephoned from his post on the island that Mattern had landed on the beach there and was safe.

A private plane was sent there to give him any aid necessary and at 9 p.m., eastern standard time, yesterday, he hopped for this city. Landing at the military aerodrome, he hailed cold frankly, and with his big tanks brimful with more than 700 gallons of gasoline, he was off toward the Russian metropolis at 12:40 a.m. today, eastern standard time.

The airman, making an assault on the round-the-world record of 8 days, 15 hours and 51 minutes, set by Wiley Post and Harold Gatty two years ago, left Roosevelt Field, New York, at 4:30 a.m., Saturday. He then covered the 3,600 miles between New York and the island on which he landed in just 5 minutes short of 24 hours.

(He is the first man to make a non-stop hop alone from New York to Norway.)

Appeared Tired.

Mattern, who appeared very tired, said he had had nothing to eat and only a little water to drink during the long flight from New York to Newfoundland and thence across the Atlantic. He met fogs and storms on the way and more than 300 kilometres off his route when he reached Norway.

(A comparison of Mattern's times with those of Post and Gatty indicated he was flying on about a par with the record-holders. They made Moscow from New York on the way in 34 minutes, with stops at Chester, England, Hanover, Germany, and Berlin. If Mattern maintains approximately his Hicksville average he was expected to do, he will land in Soow in about 55 hours.)

"When I reached the west coast of Norway," I thought it was Scotland," said Mattern.

"But finding later that it was Norway I followed the coast line in the hope of making Oslo, but I didn't just know where that city was situated.

"Seeing what I thought was a sandy shore, I circled around and made a landing on a stony beach. The landing was rather difficult, but I brought the machine to earth satisfactorily on a little island inhabited by 20 persons."

After an hour's sleep, the airman attended to his plane, and flew off to Oslo. He landed at the military airdrome an hour later.

After his papers had been examined, he flew on towards Moscow.

Jomfruland is one of the large number of small islands in the northernmost reaches of the Skagerrak. It is about 90 miles southwest of Oslo, the capital of Norway. The island lies close to the shore and, with numerous other islands and promontories makes the coast of Norway extremely jagged.

Its nearest city is old Larvik, and the mouth of the Langesund, a wide, deep inlet, is almost directly north of Jomfruland.

Walla Walla, Wash., June 5 (AP) —"My, that's good." Mrs. James (Jimmie) Mattern, said, when told today her husband had landed at Oslo, Norway, on his solo flight around the world.

"I knew he would do it." She said as she prepared for details of the flight and landing.

She said she had retired as usual last night, confident her husband would come out "all right." She is staying here while her husband is on his globe circling tour.

Mrs. Mattern retired again before she was aware that he had continued on to Moscow.

Plane Damaged

Mattern revealed that he had slightly damaged a wing on landing, but he was able to make repairs himself. He is on the little island on which he alighted wrote their names on the plane's wing.

Apart from oranges he had had nothing to eat leaving Roosevelt Field, New York. He brought two bottles of tea along, but both of them were smashed.

News of his landing took Norway by surprise. The military airdrome is 15 miles from Oslo and many outlying telephones were also working because of the Whitsunday holiday.

Inhabitants of the little island and Norwegian marine pilots helped Mattern repair the plane, which had suffered a rent a yard long on the underside of the left wing during the flight.

the flight.

This damage occurred Saturday night when, the aviator said, he thought lasted a year, the weather was so bad and the plane was so badly buffetted.

"I thought I never would reach land again," Mattern said. "Once I ran into a thunder storm and then ice forming on my machine forced me down from 6,000 feet almost into the sea."

LORD'S DAY AND INDUSTRY

Tricking And Selling to Tourists on Sunday Are Opposed

In the churches yesterday was a "red" week, known in the ranks as the Rev. Dr. Lawson provincial field secretary of the Lord's Day Alliance. In the morning he occupied the pulpit of the Tabernacle United Church and again in the first and emphatic style presented the claims of the cause so important to the mankind individually, nationally and universally in respect of the sanctity of the Sabbath. "The Act for the Observance of Sunday as a day of rest and worship is sponsored by a divine institution", Dr. Lawson stated. "It has done much toward securing one day in seven for workers, police and firemen in particular. There is still great need for cooperation on the part of churches and Christian workers, financially, prayerfully and solicitously in behalf of protection against encroachments upon statute law, especially that of highway trucking and selling of supplies to tourists on the Lord's Day."

"The Alliance seeks to create public sentiment and unselfish connections favorable to the observance of the Christian Sabbath."

During the morning worship period a very appropriate duet "Take Thou Us To Thee" was sung most effectively by Mrs. Horton Brown and Wm. Colclough.

Last evening according to announcement, the pastor officiated at Holloway Street United Church.

SACRIFICES LIFE

Westville, N.B., June 5 (CP)—In saving one life Russell Lingley, 20, sacrificed his own. A companion, Maude Sprag, found herself helpless when she was swept into the strong current of the St. John River. Lingley, fully dressed, plunged in and assisted the girl to calmer water. The effort exhausted him. He said "Good-by, Maude" and sank.

The peculiar privilege of the human self is that he can consciously and work for the good of the whole and embody in his own life the purpose of the whole.

NO CHICKEN FOR BALBO'S ROME-CHICAGO FLYERS

No chicken sandwiches will be carried aboard the 24 Italian seaplanes, under command of General Italo Balbo, to fly to the world's fair, and return, from Rome. The aviators regard chicken as a bad omen because the bird is such a poor flyer! The two-way flight, to begin June 17, is regarded as the greatest military air venture ever to be undertaken. After flying to Chicago by way of Holland, Iceland, Labrador and Canada, the planes will take a more southerly route home, going to New York, Shediac, Canada, Harbor Grace, the Azores, Londonderry, Ireland and Rome. Possibly a stop will be made in Berlin as the result of a special invitation to pause there. Above is the map of the flight, Brett-eye view of the Chicago exposition, and General Balbo.

Panic in Ottawa Church When Statue is Smashed

Street Evangelist Wrecks Statue With Iron Pipe

Ottawa, June 5—Robert Wishart, 41, of Ottawa, who recently attracted wide attention by rising in the House of Commons and calling upon the members to repent, caused a furore in St. Joseph's Roman Catholic Church on Sunday morning when he brandished an iron pipe and smashed a life-sized statue of St. Joseph, beside the altar.

About 1,000, half of them children, were in the church and the children, believing it was a gun became frightened and a panic followed. One child fainted and had to be carried out.

Wishart was seized by one of the church officials and turned over to the police who locked him up on a tentative charge of damaging property.

Wishart, police said, declared God had commanding him to do it. He has been arrested numerous times for disturbing peace in St. Joseph's Church but never before had he entered the edifice. His previous convictions were solely preaching on the street outside the church to annoyance of the worshippers within. He is a familiar figure in Ottawa as a street preacher.

When Wishart appears in police court a definite charge will be laid against him.

HAS TRAFFIC PROBLEMS

SYDNEY, Australia, June 5.—(CP)—This town "down under" also has its traffic problems. Three miles of road were occupied recently by 1,000 cyclists who took half an hour to pass a given spot during a "community bicycle hike". All other traffic was held up.

LITTLE JOKE BRINGS PROBE

Remark Overheard by Government Engineer Starts Machinery

Sudbury, Ont., June 5 (CP) —It was a joking remark that brought about the lengthy Sturgeon Falls relief probe, Hon. William Finlayson, Ontario Minister of Lands and Forests disclosed at a recent conference here.

"One of our engineers was on a motor trip in the north one Sunday and happened to see a fire in the house near Sturgeon Falls for dinner," Mr. Finlayson explained. "There was a large crowd at the place and these were having a picnic time. When they sat at the table the daughter of the house invited them: 'Help yourself to relief butter or some of our own butter! Some people call it relief butter but we think our own is just as good.'

"I sent word to the relief officials that they should look into conditions at Sturgeon Falls" the Minister added. "You know what they found.

LUMBER MILLS IN NORTH ARE OPENING

Most of Them Will Run the Entire Season

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., June 5 (CP)—Lumber mills in the northern operating up, and things are beginning to boom again. Right on the heels of the news the mill at Blind River is open comes word from Thessalon to the effect the Eastern Lumber Company mills there will reopen on June 12 and employment will be found to assure operations for the entire season.

It is also understood the Sprague mill of J. J. McFadden is to open shortly.

REFUSES TO GIVE NAME

Toronto, June 5.—(CP)—A man who absolutely refuses to tell his name and address lies in hospital here today recovering from the effects of swallowing poison. The man about 60 years of age, was found in the east end of the city by police yesterday.

HUGE LOAN IS MADE CHINA

50 Millions Advanced For Purchase of U. S. Cotton, Wheat

Washington, June 5 —The Reconstruction Finance Corporation today announced the loan of $50,000,000 to the Republic of China for the purchase of American cotton and wheat.

Negotiations, which had been pending for months, were sealed by Chinese Minister T. V. Soong before he left Washington for the London Economic Conference, said Jesse H. Jones, chairman of the R.F.C.

The loan really is a bookkeeping transaction, Jones explained, whereby credit will be placed to China for the purchase here of about 800,000 bales of cotton and 12,000,000 bushels of wheat.

"It is believed that this credit will be mutually advantageous," he continued, "as it will assist to remove surpluses from the American markets, and will increase China's consumption of these commodities, and stimulate business activity in the U.S. and tend to contribute to world wide economic recovery."

China will pay interest at the rate of five per cent, and will repay the principal of the loan in five installments of American dollars during the years after making the first purchase. The wheat and cotton itself will be used to security for the loan until it is taken from Chinese warehouses for actual use by manufacturers. Proceeds of the credit will be based on first liens on certain customs taxes in China, including those on rolled tobacco, Portland cement, matches, cement and other commodities.

China will pay freight and handling costs and will use American vessels wherever possible.

Ottawa, June 5 (CP)—The loan of $50,000,000 to the Finance Reconstruction Corporation to China for the purpose of enabling the Oriental Republic to purchase $40,000,000 worth of cotton and $10,000,000 worth of United States wheat and flour is not expected to have material effect on the world market generally, government officials here said last night. Nor will it reduce the United States wheat surplus, which latest available figures represent about 15,000,000 bushels of wheat.

ODDITIES IN THE NEWS

Philadelphia, June 5 (CP)—Antonio Mustipelo believes he's had it so long, and then he gets "riled." So he dashed into a garage and fired his pistol at George Renda.

He can stand just so much, Municipal Magistrate, "Renda ran me down in his car some time ago."

The shot grazed Renda's scalp.

Cheapo, June 5 (CP)—Maybe thieves are going in for higher learning. George Bakke, of Grand Forks, reported that he couldn't attend graduation at Northwestern University because a thief stole his cap and gown.

CRISFIELD, Md., June 5—(CP)—"Poverty Struck — Fairgains In Finer" reads a sign in the window of Magistrate Fred Marshall. Another says "Women's fines for fighting reduced."

Cars Involved Badly Damaged in the Collision

A tail-end collision in which no person was injured happened about three miles west of Belleville when a car driven by Orrill Lloyd of this city collided with a car driven by Robert Graham, son of George Graham, Sidney, on Highway No. 2 late Saturday night.

Mr. Graham was travelling westward as was Mr. Lloyd and upon reaching the roadway leading into the Graham summer camp the driver started to make a left hand turn into the laneway. Observing no signs of turning the car ahead Lloyd driven by Mr. Lloyd was attempting to pass the Graham car with the result that a tail-end collision occurred.

No person was injured although both cars crashed into the south ditch. The rear of Mr. Graham's car was damaged while both lights, front fenders and radiator of the Lloyd car were badly damaged in the collision. The traffic officer on the beat investigated.

HOMES

The Prince of Wales has said that the perpetuation of slums can not be permitted, for it would mean a national calamity. Here are his words: "No one can calculate what their cost really is. It is an incalculable factor which adds to the expenditure on social and health services. What is the sense of treating the slum dweller, and especially the slum children for disease and when they are recovered sending them back to the very centres where disease is rife? To me it is an appalling process of waste, inefficiency, and expense. Nor can the nation afford the moral and mental degradation which slum conditions create in those who inhabit them. Let public opinion awake. Great risks require great energy. Great risks require great energy. Let us put forward a great national effort irrespective of party or politics. Let our age, our generation, be remembered as the one in which we swept away this blot which disgraces our national life. Let us build a new Britain and provide houses worthy of the dignity and greatness of our race."

The British government has gone into a five year building plan. The Prince of Wales caught a vision of improved living conditions in England as he realizes that "the Englishman's home is his castle." But others besides the prince in the question of life's home surroundings is most important.

It should not be impossible in the coming days to improve conditions generally, especially in the case of homes occupied by the poor. Put a man and his family in a good home and they will live up to its opportunity—they will begin a new life, a new ambition will enter their lives.

The government of every country should not rest until every family is given the chance of having the best which it is possible to have in the home. Any other object is a case of shortcoming and a failure to measure up to the duty and opportunity. Homes are practically all that people have to live for and why should they not be attractive and inspiring? There is no doubt that many a home has been ruined through the influence of unattractive, depressing home surroundings. The evident duty is to give all people in their homes something to be proud of.

These homes should take on an air of beauty. There is no need of a home looking like a factory, especially in these days when even factory surroundings are being beautified. The man who wants a home, poor as he is, has some notion, though he may be vague, of what a home should look like—and that should not be like an institution.

There is no doubt that the moral tone of family life would be raised and the ambition of people stimulated and taxes for social purposes lessened if homes were homes.

OPPORTUNITIES

Statistics show an increase in prices of many commodities, though the increase, it is figured, is not as large as the optimists saying is given in the market quotations of stocks. There may be a reason for this, the natural discounting by the financial markets of the importance of the increase of commodity prices, for if commodity prices go up slightly, prospective profits in industry are proportionately many times larger.

Anyhow there is a feeling abroad that the days of higher prices are at hand and numbers of persons are buying on that belief, as they feel that this is the opportune time to buy before prices go too much under way. Tens of if the turn has actually been made, and there are good surface indications and other more vital indications to point that way, although turns never have the knack of announcing themselves in the market place, prices, once on the rise, will probably not decline to their present level for a long time.

These persons believe that there are yet many bargains to be found in real estate, in stocks and bonds, and in other lines.

All in all this would appear to be the time to lay in what one needs before the era of higher prices is here in earnest.

SPRING MOOD

Man is the slave of folly,
Toiling through day on day,
It were better to go
Where the sea winds flow,
Dancing with wave and spray!

Wasting the sunsweet hours,
Pent in some dingy room,
Growing each year
Farther from cheer,
Stranger to laughter and bloom!

Man is the slave of folly,
Grasping for golden gain
Till his thoughts grow old
And his heart grows cold,
And his life is a barren plain.

Wiser were joyous pagans,
Back in the dawn of time,
Men in the high
At the aureate chaff,
Setting their lives to rhyme.

BRITISH PLUCK AND PERSISTENCE never cease and all over the world British capital is invested in developing natural resources and making the waste places blossom like the rose. Recent visit to Montreal of Sir Charlton Harrison, irrigation engineer, brings information of a gigantic project recently completed in India of which little or nothing has been known publicly heretofore. Sir Charlton after twenty years government service in India, stopped off in Montreal, en route to England, and told of the mighty Sukkur barrage, at present the largest in the world, constructed at a cost of about eight million dollars, begun in 1923 and opened last year by the Viceroy, Lord Willingdon. Stretching nearly a mile across the river Indus the barrage is the biggest in the world. There are seven canals in the system, two of which are the largest in the world, exceeding in size Suez and Panama, with a length of 6,400 miles. Eight million acres of desert will be reclaimed, of which five and three-quarters will be irrigated, producing wheat, long staple cottons, rice, fruits and citrus. Fifty thousand miles of irrigation ditches make the undertaking greater than the whole of the Egyptian irrigation. The actual work force amounted to 50,000 work people every day and the machinery on the job was the equivalent of 85,000 work people per day.

MURDER IN MANHATTAN seems to be developing into a regular business with all kinds of stunts practised to get "big" money easily. One of the latest rackets is to victimize insurance companies by placing of large sized insurance on human derelicts and then encourage the victims to drink themselves to death. This has succeeded in some instances where the speak-easy but difficulty was experienced in easy but difficulty was experience in others in getting victims ready for a sacrifical, wood alcohol, canned heat and bath tub gin seeming to have no detrimental effect. New York Times summarizes the activities of one insurance murder gang as follows: "A gang starts out to encompass the death of one Michael Malloy for the sake of a policy of $5,800 in insurance which he carries. No less than six attempts at murder, by various devices, failed. Apparently convinced that their latest attempt had been a charmed life, they hit upon the idea of killing somebody else and passing off his body for Malloy's. They found and purchased a plasterer named Murray, and one night, after getting him drunk, they ran a taxicab over him. Apparently they had overdone their intentions below their savage intentions. Murray is picked up with fractured ribs and internal injuries, spends fifty-five days in the hospital and recovers. The plotters meanwhile return to their original victim. A fortnight after the attempt on Murray they succeed, it is alleged, in suffocating Malloy with gas in his own room. Five men are now awaiting trial, and Murray is to be a witness for the prosecution."

A few weeks ago, Cooper's Weekly published an item about Otto Wilberger, of Maumee, Ohio, who has only one leg, the right one, saying he would like to get in touch with some man having only a left leg and wearing a No. 9 shoe, so the two could cut their shoe bills in half. Through the publicity given him, Mr. Wilberger has found his man, F. V. Farrington, Raleigh, North Dakota. "This proves once more that advertising pays," Mr. Farrington declares.

WAR EFFECTS NOT USUALLY CONSIDERED

Results on Physique of Children Born Shortly After War

BY LOUIS E. BISCH, M.D., Ph.D., Famous Authority on Health And Psychology

Physicians always try to surround prospective mothers with all possible safeguards, so that the health and strength of the coming child may not be undermined; yet "with one fell swoop" as it were, any war can vitiate and bring to naught, so far as immediately succeeding generations are concerned, all those protective values that science and education have so laboriously set up.

In other words, when a treaty is signed a war is by no means over. The world at large has already learned that lesson, so far as economics is concerned. What it has not yet learned, unfortunately, is the mental and physical penalties, similarly the former—of such a conflict, upon the youngsters who were born during the Great War or shortly after.

Such pernicious results will no doubt be observed in European countries more than in America. The statistics claim that out of every 12 children born in Paris during the great conflict, 10% had mental and physical anomalies and the remaining 88 were weakly. Surely those countries which, felt our last war keenly, did not wholly escape similar consequences!

It seems strange that civilization has not yet reached a plane where reasoning and logic may invariably be counted upon to control unreasoning emotions. Our deep-rooted, savage instincts, which are similarly inherit from our primordial ancestors, are still motivating peoples everywhere; their ultimate, inevitably, than they care to acknowledge.

That "might is right" still obsesses millions of human beings, though that ancient slogan is. It may take several centuries more before intelligent developments will become strong enough to curb savage impulses, no matter what the cause for rousing them from their slumbers may be or from one war to the other way, centuries may pass before our harmful and destructive emotions will have been sufficiently emasculated through disuse not to constitute an ever-present menace to friendly and sensible relations between various nations of the peoples of the human family.

In the meantime, however, we should do everything in our power to safeguard the welfare of the children of the future. Upon them will rest the burdens to come; and with so many vital world problems pressing for solution, our children surely will need sound minds and healthy bodies.

If any generation starts handicapped with deficiencies or weaknesses, especially in the realm of the higher qualities, it is clear that the generation that follow it is likely to be handicapped even worse, the effects appear on a wholesale scale, persons who are defective marry and reproduce their kind, and in the children these defects, instead of diminishing, are accentuated. This, in fact, is exactly the way in which much of our insanity and mental diseases spreads.

Indeed, the dire mental effects of a war are not generally considered.

The struggle for advancement has been a long and painful one among the races of the centuries; the path of progress in the future will be no less difficult. Let us therefore give our children the best minds possible. This will operate to stop all wars, because they will be more enlightened, and will not allow, or permit to tie devastating mental onslaughts should another war occur.

Dr. Bisch's Daily Diet Hint

When hot weather arrives our daily food intake should be modified both in quantity and in kind. Everyone can safely eat less in summer. Proteins should be taken in moderation, (meat especially). Use of fats should be reduced. Rich pastries as well as pastries and rich bread should be restricted. Cold dishes are excellent, but at least one hot meal a day is desirable.

Little Benny's Note Book

I was wawking home from school with Mary Watkins on account of having cawt up with her when I got in trubble, of me, and we was tawking about diffrent subjects when she asked me if I was good and money being scarcer to buy it with, and I told her I was purtty good, but look at that big bully teasing that little cat, that's a shame.

Meaning some tuff looking kid in a red sweeter had picked up some little cat and was back so some little girl couldn't get it, and Mary Watkins said, Benny, why don't you take him stop that, I think that's dreadful.

Me thinking, Heck, I dont want to get in a fite with that guy, he could tick me one handed. And I said, O, I guess they're just playing.

Benny Follis you dont mean to say you're afraid of that big bully. Mary Watkins said, and I said, I should say not, any other time I'd bully either, and I thawt, O well, I guess I'll get a smack on the face, what of it, a smack in the face aint the end of the world. But her tuff looking guy was still keeping the skipping rope away from the little girl and sifting at her, and I pulled my cap away down and went up to him, saying: Hay, what's you doing why dont you grow up and let your skipping rope alone, and he kept skipping rope, what's you think you're doing? Saying it's tuff as anything but Mary Watkins inside and shaker outside, and the tuff looking kid said: Who's inside and shaker, is my sister aint she? and I said, Well what if she is, her skipping rope so go ahead and give it to her, and he said, Well I guess I will, and about it, we're coy having fun.

And he handed it to her, and I thawt I could lick before he had time to decide he was insulted, and Mary Watkins said, O Benny you're so brave and I said, O that wasn't anything.

And I wawked as fast as she would, and I felt I felt as brave.

Proving lots of flie pickers would proberly be accusitoners if they thawt it was necessary.

LIBRARY CORNER

A sailor is "out of soundings" when he is sailing on waters so deep that the bottom is unknown. Thus Henry M. Thomlinson has aptly named his latest book "Out of Soundings," since the author refers to something beyond the reach of the ordinary scale. Wherein the writes of Joey, the brown owl, under whose challenging glance "you feel like a sinner whose every thoughts are manifest," of Drake of the Amazon swamps and of Fleet Street, he plumbs beneath the surface with a quiet Sibilus-copy, a subtle humour. A witty say "Beauty and the Beast" describes the author's "first and last" visit to the Taibic Theatre where he witnessed a story "that was barely strong enough to support one member of the cast in a genuinely novelette". But it is with such essays as "Ode d'Or," and "A January Morning," which describes a visit to Thomas Hardy that he has earned the commission of the Nine Muses. "There is in this author's work a something indefinable and not to be catalogued, mysterious of life, audible to the heart rather than to the ear. Some call this poetry." The drawings by H. Charles Tomlinson, son of the author, are original in design and treatment, thoroughly in keeping with the book.

"Hindenburg" by Gerhard Schultes-Pfaelzer, translated by Christopher R. Turner, will serve to shed much light on the complicated problems of German policy and German opinion. Sub-titled "The Story of a German Soldier," this latest biography of Paul von Hindenburgh, depicts the man who has been in the foreground of the German scene, as an ideal figure, or symbol, but as a far-seeing, hard-working statesman, acting solely by a sense of duty. Dr. Schultze-Pfaelzer, using the sequence of political events, has interpreted them into process by which the Field Marshall developed into the President of the Reich. The author concludes his book with a plea to the basic German principles and character are of greater moment than any political party has achieved."

The twenty-eighth English rendering of the first European novel "The Odyssey of Homer" has been received with acclaim by the literary public. Thomas Edward Lawrence of Arabia and author of "Revolt in the Desert" and "Seven Pillars of Wisdom," but the same man Aircraftsman T. E. Shaw has made a name for himself by his unique version of the Odyssey. Seeing it merely as a well-constructed primitive novel, Mr. Shaw has translated it as such in every day language. The translator sees in Homer's Odyssey "a gay, fine and vivid" story, but not a great one.

On June 3rd, Mayor Wills sent the following telegram to Buckingham Palace: "His Royal Highness King George V.: "Your loyal subjects of the city of Belleville wish you many happy returns of the day." Later in the day the following reply was received: "I am commanded to express His Majesty's sincere thanks to you and the citizens of Belleville for their congratulations and kindly interest."—Signed, Stamfordham.

The celebration of the King's Birthday in Belleville was a great success. Twenty thousand people were in the city—the came from every part of Hastings County and beyond. Great credit and thanks of the citizens generally are due to Mayor Wills and the energetic committeemen for a day of great enjoyment.

The annual bicycle mile road race for the possession of the silver cup donated by the proprietors of the Daily Ontario took place in the city on the morning of the King's Birthday under the direction of Y.M.C.A. officials. There were about sixty annals, namely, James Alexander, S. Mills, C. McBride of this city, and F. Shewman and E. Keller of Consecon. The race was made in front of the Ontario Office and the course lay up Front Street to Pinnacle, down Bridge Street to Foster Ave.; down Foster Ave. to Dundas Street; along Dundas St. to a point just east of the gaol and back to the starting point the same way. It was confidently expected that James Alexander of this city, who has a reputation as a sprinter, would win and such proved to be the case as he came in first with a good margin. His time was 17 minutes, 14½ seconds. F. Shewman came second and S. Minns came third.

WHAT IS A HOME WITHOUT A GARDEN?

Late Garden of Annuals

A gay display of annuals is altogether within the range of practical gardening in early July. It is only necessary to select those which are of short-blooming seasons and come into flower quickly.

The cornflowers and annual poppies will give early display. The delicate shades of the Shirleys with the rich blue of the cornflowers are beautiful in bouquets. The annual larkspurs spin up in no time and bloom in years weather and the French marigolds will get into bearing in time for a colorful display during the fall when the cool nights bring out the rich crimsons and mahogany in their flowers.

The annual gypsophila needs every two weeks all summer to give its misty white for bouquets. It can be sown at any time. Late-sown salvias come at just the right time with their fiery red scarlet in fall. They are too hot looking for July and August to be appreciated for their full value.

Phlox Drummondi is a fast grower and comes into bloom quickly from seed. We cannot expect to get the full value of the giant annuals, but the little pompoms may be planted with a little skill and give a fine show of their brilliant little buttons. The everlasting may be sown now for the fall bouquets and the helichrysums being among the favorites.

Asters we shall have to forgo unless we can buy plants which are still in the market in some sections. We may likewise be able to pick up plants of verbenas and zinnias far enough along to spring into activity in a short time. Pure, lilac germinates only in warm weather and is not soon to be a patient will fairly revel and burst into myriads of its brilliant blooms in short order. This seed will not germinate until it is really warm weather regardless of how early it is sown.

We can sow four o'clocks now as they are rapid warm weather grow-

A complete and careful search failed to reveal the pearls. McKewan asked further questions. Betty admitted that she had not seen the necklace for several days—possibly a week. As a matter of fact, the box in the jewel case. She hadn't worn the pearls for a long while but she was sure she had looked at them not more than seven or eight days ago. Less than that, she thought.

Patrolman Scott returned and reported there was nothing out of the way in any of the other rooms. And no mode of entry to the apartment, except from the hallway.

McKewan shook his head. "It's not a professional job," he said, "or those bracelets wouldn't be here. What's been around who knew you had that necklace and could have taken it? How about servants?"

"There's only my maid," Betty told him.

Marie who had been standing by the door, alternately sniffling and wiping her eyes, turned to Miss Betty. "I didn't do it!" she cried. "Oh, Mis' Carlyle, you know I didn't do it! Why, I've been with you for long! In some of the finest homes in Lancaster and nobody ever accused me of taking nothing. I can swear by all the saints—!"

"Never mind," McKewan told her gruffly. "Don't go accusing yourself."

He looked at Betty again. "Is there anyone else who has access to the apartment? Anyone who could get hold of a key?"

As he said the last word Betty Carlyle straightened. Her dark eyes seemed to widen, and then she looked about the group, then back at the detective. All at once she exclaimed, "Yes, there is—once! Why didn't I think? It happened today —this morning—and no one else was here."

SWINGING around she pointed to Janet. "That girl!" Betty cried. "She was here this morning and she took the necklace! Arrest her and make her admit it!"

"Betty!" Mrs. Curtis' voice was shrill with dismay.

"I gave her my key!" Betty went on quickly. "I told her to come here and get a book and bring it to my mother's house. The book was here —in this room—and she was a long time getting it. She 'finds some sort of excuse, I remember."

Ignoring the policeman, Betty came forward until she was directly in front of Janet.

"You took my necklace!" she cried. "And you'll suffer for it. I'll see that you go to jail!"

The air was electric. Four pairs of eyes stared on the two girls—Betty, angry and accusing; Janet, white-faced and staring. For all to see that the room was perfectly silent. Then Janet said, "You mean—you think I took your necklace?"

"Of course you did!"

"I knew you disliked me," Janet went on, still in the same quiet, unemotional tone, "but I didn't know you could do a thing like that!"

Before she could finish the sentence McKewan interrupted, "Who is this girl?"

"She's my secretary," Mrs. Curtis told him. "Janet Hill. It's true she came here on an errand this morning but I'm sure Betty's mistaken. Janet didn't take the necklace!"

Betty whirled. "... you're still trying to defend her?" she exclaimed. "You wouldn't believe me before but this time you'll have proof. I know she did take the necklace. She was here in the room and she knew where I kept it. Even Marie didn't know that! She's the only one who could have taken it."

"But you can't!" Janet exclaimed. Alarm and fright were written on her face now. "You can't really mean you think that!"

"Betty, please—!" It was Mrs. Curtis who cut in.

McKewan's glance took in all three women. "I think," he said, "we'd like to ask Miss Hill a few questions. In private, if you don't mind."

A moment later he faced the girl. Patrolman Scott sat on the bench before the dressing table and swung one leg. All the others were gone.

"Now then," said McKewan crisply "open up! What did you do with those pearls?"

CHAPTER XLIII

THE room was in darkness and there was no sound except a low, muffled sobbing. The sobs ceased— only to be resumed. They started, began again.

Three raps sounded on the door and the sobbing voice was stilled abruptly. After an interval of quiet there were three more raps.

Sudden in the darkness, moved and then went toward the door.

"W-who is it?"

"Let me in, Janet!" It was Mrs. Curtis' voice.

The door opened inward slowly, Mrs. Curtis stood on the threshold carrying a lighted candle. It was the candle that always stood on the table beside her bed. A loose thin negligee fell to the floor over her white nightdress. Her gray hair was screwed into a tight knot on top of her head.

"I couldn't sleep," the woman explained. "I was afraid—oh, my dear, you mustn't—you mustn't cry!"

The light from the candle fell on the girl before her. Janet was in nightclothes, too, and tears stained her cheeks and her eyes were reddened and swollen. Her hair was tossed in wild confusion as she looked thoroughly miserable.

She said, "Come in!" and then suddenly put her handkerchief to her mouth.

Mrs. Curtis closed the door behind her. "I was afraid I'd find you like this," she said. "Get back into bed, dear, and I'll explain soon so that you won't take cold."

"I'm all right," Janet mumbled, but she let Mrs. Curtis lead her to the robe and slipped it about her.

"Oh, Mrs. Curtis," she said, turning her head away, "I'm so sorry. I can't stand it here with you thinking what you do about me. I'd rather go away tonight. I'll pack all I'll want to put me there! I don't care—!"

MRS. CURTIS placed the candle on the table. "There, there!" she said. "You're not going to do any way. Of course you're not going to tell. You're not going anywhere."

"But I must!" Janet insisted. "Sit down," Mrs. Curtis said. She moved toward the bed and, suddenly pulled the bedspread lamp that stood there. "A little light will make the room more cheerful," she explained. "You mustn't let me in letting yourself go to pieces, Janet. I don't think you took the necklace. I've already told you that."

"But Mrs. Carlyle thinks so and Betty—"

"They can't prove it if you didn't. The thing for you to do is to sleep and forget all about it. You'll make yourself sick if you keep this up."

Janet was silent. The older woman reached out and took her hand. "There's nothing for you to worry about," she repeated, "so long as you know you're innocent."

"But what am I to do?" the girl's eyes raised appealingly. "Everyone will know about it! They'll look at me and they'll say things—I'll wish I were dead!"

She began to weep silently. Mrs. Curtis stroked the girl's arm. "I don't think anyone will hear about it," she said. "I'll ask Betty not to tell anyone. Now that the police are at work it won't be long before they find out who's to blame and everything will be all right."

"But suppose they don't find out?" Janet cried. "Suppose they think it's me? They said I took the pearls to someone when I was down town this afternoon!"

"There's one thing," Mrs. Curtis began hesitantly. "I don't understand why you went to the railway station, Janet. I had no idea that you were thinking of going away. Why didn't you tell me?"

"I was going to. I was going to tell you next Saturday."

"But don't you like it here? Is there anything wrong? If you'd only talked to me about it!"

"I just—wanted to go away!" Janet murmured.

"But why? What is the reason?" There was no answer for a moment. Then Janet said, "I can't tell you. I just wanted to go away; that's all."

The woman sighed. "I wish you'd tell me," she said. "Don't you see I'm trying to help you? Why didn't you want to stay here?"

Janet shook her head. "I can't tell you," she said.

MRS. CURTIS stayed several minutes longer and, though she spoke comfortingly, Janet was sure that underlying her words there was a note of uneasiness and distrust. It hurt more than all Betty's denouncements, more than the frightful accusations of the police.

After she was alone again Janet lay staring at the darkness. No matter who asked—Mrs. Curtis or the detectives or anyone else — she couldn't tell them why she wanted to get away from Lancaster. She could do was say over and over that she hadn't taken the pearls. And no one believed that.

Her temples were throbbing and her eyes smarted. She could still hear the police detective shouting at her, sneering at her denials, accusing her of being a thief. Then later in view had gone on for hours, it seemed, leaving Janet weak and in tears. It was Mrs. Curtis who had insisted that the girl should spend the night in her own room. Mrs. Curtis had said that she could see that Janet was guilty.

But she thinks I'm sorry," the girl told herself wearily. "because I wouldn't say why I was going away. Oh, what's the use? No one would believe me. They'll make me say I did it! They'll make me!"

Roll had been there to see her in her misery and disgrace. He had been silent when a word would have meant so much. Could Roll believe this terrible thing about her?

She turned and rumpled the pillow indignantly. Nobody believed her. Nobody would listen to what she said.

And on that night were on. Toward morning she slept—a fitful, restless slumber in which she dreamed that she was running toward a cliff. An ogre who looked like the police detective was chasing her. She reached the cliff's edge and there was no escape but the cliff. Without a moment's hesitation Janet jumped.

She awoke to find that the covers had slipped from the bed. The room was filled with sunlight and the clock and saw that it was 7:30. Time to be up. She started to arise, then fell back with a memory of the night before came back to her.

IT was several minutes before she could persuade herself to get out of bed. Then, as she did so, her swollen and tear-marked and had to be bathed over and over with cold water. Even then a little cold under puff carefully the effect was a little better.

It took courage for Janet to go down stairs, to nod "good morning" to Lucy and take up the tray of food that had been left. It took courage, too, for her to sit opposite Mrs. Curtis at the breakfast table. She could hardly think of eating. Mrs. Curtis did not look well and spoke of having had a headache. She herself ate little of her breakfast little more than Janet and, though the muffins were as delicious as usual and the bacon as crisp, the food went back to the kitchen scarcely tasted.

Afterward as usual and the dishes were slung much as usual. Janet kept at her work, accomplishing little but managing to seem busy. Each time the telephone or door bell rang the girl started, but as still, but when the calls were unimportant. A young man to sell magazines. The florist. The chairman of the Three Arts Club committee on programs. A wrong number. The electrical company.

Shortly before noon Mrs. Curtis telephoned her daughter. Janet did not overhear the conversation but later Mrs. Curtis appeared in the doorway.

"I've just talked to Betty," she said. "She hasn't heard anything and she promised to call when she does."

Janet nodded. There was nothing to be said. Nothing that had not been said a dozen times already.

"Suppose," she thought, "Betty doesn't hear anything? Suppose they never know who took the necklace? They'll always blame me for it."

There were no errands that day and Janet knew why. Mrs. Curtis had promised Janet would be available whenever the police wanted her for any reason. At any time they might come.

Luncheon was almost as quiet a meal as breakfast. Afterward Mrs. Curtis went to her room. She was tired, she said, and would try to take a nap.

"If Betty calls," she added, "or there's anything — important — be sure to call me."

Janet agreed. She went to the library and had a book before her but she could not read. She had been there for 20 minutes when the telephone rang shrilly.

Janet picked up the instrument. "Hello," she said in the low, emotionless tone that had become habitual. All at once her heart began to beat furiously. It was Roll Carlyle's voice at the other end of the wire.

CHAPTER XLIV

ROLF'S voice came clearly over the wire. "Janet, Janet. This is Rolf. Have you seen Betty today?"

"No, I haven't."

"Oh." He seemed to hesitate. "I thought she might have dropped in to see mother. Then you haven't heard anything more about the—er —necklace?"

"No, Mrs. Curtis talked to her on the telephone this morning. She promised to call if there was any news."

"I see." There was a pause and then the man went on quickly. "I tried to call Betty but I couldn't get her. Just wanted to know if they'd found out anything yet."

Janet said, "I guess they haven't." Her voice sounded flat and tired. She was very tired, though she wasn't aware of the fact.

"Listen, Janet, you mustn't worry. Nobody could really think you took the necklace."

"Why, of course not! Betty was just nervous and excited last night. She didn't know what she was saying. The police can't do anything to you."

"Oh, Rolf!"

"I'd have spoken up and told them it was ridiculous only—well, I thought it would make Betty more excited. Couldn't have helped any. When I see Miss Detective again I'll tell him you couldn't have had anything to do with it."

Her voice was eager, trembling. "I wish you would! Maybe they'll believe you. They wouldn't believe anything I said—"

She could not go on. She turned and pressed her hand over her mouth so that Rolf would not know that she was crying.

"Janet!" he said. "Janet, listen— are you there?"

"I—yes."

There's something funny about your voice. It doesn't sound right. Now remember, Janet, I'm always here to worry about. Those policemen are a bunch of dumbbells. All that talk of arrests and things— anything. The whole thing will blow over."

"Yes, Rolf, it can't! Not until they find the person who really took the necklace. Don't you see that I've got to find out? I believe I did it!"

"Who they won't. I don't believe it. Mrs. Curtis doesn't. And Betty won't either after she's calmed down. There's nothing for you to worry about."

"I hope so!"

"I know there isn't. Well, I'll have to get back on the job. By the way, if—if you hear anything would you mind giving me a ring? I'll be at the office."

"Yes, I'll call you."

"I'll be very anxious to know that everything's all right."

JANET said goodby and put down the telephone. Rolf's words had both cheered and disturbed her. It was good to know he believed in her but if he were right about the police, if they failed to find the real culprit, she knew she would never be free of this cloud of guilt. They could not prove that she had taken it but they would believe it. Everyone would believe it. Mrs. Curtis would have to give up her position and Janet would not be been aroused. Betty, openly accusing. Those acquaintances who others who might come for her at any minute.

The pink-shaded lamp that stood beside her, gripping her hands together. "They've got to!"

She walked to the window and looked out. September sunshine fell on the lawn. Here and there were patches of color in the trees. Outside everything was quiet, peaceful. It would have been good to get outdoors, to feel that warm sunshine, to walk and walk until weariness overtook her. Janet turned away quickly. She could not go out. This room with its luxurious furnishings was a prison and she was a prisoner.

She felt something beside her and looked down. Tinker, the Persian cat, rubbed his arched back against her and looked up coaxingly. Janet stooped and picked him up. "Even the matter, Buster?" she asked. "I don't see that you have anything to complain of."

She rubbed his head and the cat, in response, raised his pink nose high in the air. Buster purred in deepest contentment. There was nothing whatever the matter so far as he was concerned.

Janet was sitting with the cat in her arms when Lucy appeared suddenly in the doorway. "Oh, Miss Hill!" she exclaimed. "Do you know what's happened?"

Lucy's eyes were wide. She crossed the room quickly. "Miss Hill," she said, "Patrick just gave it to me."

Into Janet's hands she thrust a newspaper. It was a folded early edition with a large picture of Betty Carlyle in the center of the first page. Above the picture were the words:

YOUNG SOCIETY MATRON REPORTS VALUED PEARL NECKLACE MISSING

"Isn't it terrible?" Lucy went on. "Does Mrs. Curtis know about it, do you suppose?"

JANET nodded. "Yes, she knows about it." The paper showed that the picture gave a brief and somewhat garbled account of the loss of the necklace. There were several Carlyle had reported the disappearance of the necklace, "worth $1200," to police. There were several "mystery angles" of the case, and that a suspect had been examined.

"The name of the suspect," the newspaper said, "was withheld but it is understood it is a servant who had access to the apartment."

"Do you mean Marie?" Lucy asked excitedly. "She's the only one they could mean! My stars—"

"No, it isn't Marie," Janet told her quickly. "They think I took it."

"YOU!"

Janet's tone was flat and mechanical. "Yes. The police talked to me last night. That's where Mrs. Curtis and I were. They asked me a lot of questions and they may come any time again today."

"Oh!" There was horror in Lucy's eyes. She had drawn back and stood staring at the other girl. "The police! She repeated. "You mean they'll come here?"

"I guess so."

The maid continued to eye her with undisguised alarm. "Oh, this is terrible!" she exclaimed. "If the police came here what will I do?"

"I guess you'll have to let them in," Janet told her. She was tired now. Terribly tired. She felt beaten, too. Now that the newspapers knew about it there was nothing more to hope for. They would print her name and probably her picture, being led away by the police.

"But why did you do it?" Lucy asked. "Didn't you know you'd get caught?"

Janet looked away. "I didn't do it," said, "but that doesn't seem to make any difference."

THERE was a step in the doorway and both girls turned. Mrs. Curtis was standing there. "What is it?" she asked. "Lucy, what are you so excited about?"

The maid pointed to the newspaper Janet held. "It's—that," she said. "About Mrs. Carlyle's necklace!"

Janet rose and handed Mrs. Curtis the newspaper. The woman uttered a low exclamation and then turned to Lucy. "I want all the servants to come here at once," she said. "Tell them immediately!"

Five minutes later they trooped in —Frederick and Bertha and Lucy hastily the cook. It was a brief meeting. Mrs. Curtis said that on account very sad of them to speak about the stolen necklace. No matter who asked they were to deny that they knew anything about it. "The matter," Mrs. Curtis said, "is in the hands of the police. I do not want any more talk about it. I am particularly anxious to keep it out of the newspapers. If I hear any more I shall ask for your resignations."

The maids and the cook and the gardener departed. Janet felt Lucy's eyes on her and then saw her turn away quickly. Lucy, like the others, was frightened.

Mrs. Curtis left the room and Janet was alone again. Half an hour later she heard voices in the living room. Every muffle was taut but the girl remained motionless. It was Betty's voice and her mother's. She heard the voices rising and falling. They were talking about her, Janet. She could not hear what they said. There was nothing to do but wait breathlessly.

The sharp ringing of the doorbell brought the girl to her feet. Now! They had come for her!

But there was no summons. A moment later Lucy, flitting through the hall like a frightened sparrow, appeared at the library door. "It's the police!" she whispered hoarsely.

WALLBRIDGE W.M.S.

The Women's Missionary Society of Wallbridge United Church celebrated the forty-fifth anniversary of their organization.

The Society was organized by Mrs. Levi Massey in 1888 with nineteen members from Scotts Church, Alfred, and Wallbridge and Wallbridge with Mrs. Massey as President. The Society steadily grew under her guidance and now there are divided, each church on the circuit organizing their own auxiliary but still claiming Wallbridge as their mother auxiliary. Mrs. Massey, their leader, Mrs. Massey was District organizer for a number of years. There are twelve life members belonging to Wallbridge Auxiliary.

A large number of friends from seven auxiliaries were present and letters and cards were received from those unable to attend.

The program began with music by Mrs. Edgar Lane.

Hymn 240 was sung. Mrs. N. T. Hinchcliffe occupied the chair while seated on either side were Mrs. Hinchcliffe's two Presidents, Mrs. (Rev.) Beckwith and Mrs. John Hinchcliffe. Hymn 241 "Crown of Our Fathers" was sung and the 23rd Psalm was repeated in unison. Rev. Mr. Plant offered prayer.

Mrs. Frank Dickens of Akens' Auxiliary gave the address of welcome and spoke highly of Mrs. Massey, as also Mrs. Hinchcliffe and an inspiring worker.

Mrs. Beckwith replied and spoke words of encouragement to all missionary workers and the need was great for workers for although countries were civilized they were not always christianized. Trio "Wonderful Mother of Mine" Mrs. Mc-Cann and Misses Foster and Snider of Frankford.

Mrs. Hall of Consecon, gave a very interesting talk which everyone enjoyed. She also read a poem full of more workers and said: "To do evil is bad, but to do nothing is worse."

Then followed a duet by Rev. and Mrs. Plant from Centenary Auxiliary.

Mrs. M. Sine of Scotts' Auxiliary was unable to be present and her Vice President, Mrs. Howard Dafoe held right tribute to relationship with Wallbridge Society as did Mrs. Detlor from Stone Church. A few remarks by Rev. Mr. Beamish and he closed the afternoon meeting by prayer.

Lunch was served by the ladies and a unique feature of the lunch was a beautiful birthday cake nicely decorated and trimmed with pink candles.

The cake was cut by the oldest life member, Mrs. Charles Hinchcliffe and the youngest, a wee tot Miss Jane Ketcheson.

A social time to enjoy the meeting and hoped all to be present in 1934 at the fiftieth anniversary.

WELLINGTON C. G. I. T. GUESTS AT MASSASSAGA

Massassaga—Master Howard Fraser, Rosemore, spent the week end with Master Jack Hall.

On Friday evening last the C.G. I.T. girls entertained the Wellington C.G.I.T. to a social evening, when the Rose girls served by tea box. They gave as their share of the program a pageant, "Beating on the Door." The Massassaga girls gave songs, readings and instrumental music after which ice cream and cake were served. All left remarking how well they had enjoyed the program.

Mr. C. Reed, Fish Lake, spent Thursday evening at Mr. Howard Wallbridge's.

Mrs. Valleau is reported to be gaining slowly.

Mr. Elmer May, Waterlown, returned home after the past few

A CLINICAL TEST

Proves That Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Quickly End Chronic Fatigue

A girl student, pale and rundown in health, was given a blood test on November 13, 1932. The haemoglobin content of her blood was only 75 per cent., her red corpuscle count was but 4,096,000. She was anaemic.

The physician who examined her, who knew the formula of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and their usefulness in such cases, told her to take two of the pills after each meal. She she did and one month later had increased her haemoglobin to 88 per cent. and her blood count to 4,388,000. She said she had more strength and felt better. Two months later both haemoglobin and corpuscle count were normal and she felt splendid.

When the haemoglobin content of your blood goes down your energy, vigor and strength go down. To restore them you must build up your blood. That Dr. Williams' Pink Pills do this has been proved by many clinical testquite the one above. Get a box at your druggist's today and start on the road to health. The price is 50 cents and each box contains full directions for the treatment.

SIDNEY MISSION BAND

Sidney Mission Band meeting was held at the school on June 2nd. Meeting was opened by singing "Brighten the Corner." Roll Call was answered by each repeating a verse of the "Lord is My Shepherd." Fourteen members answered. Scripture reading, Psalm 27: 1-14 was read by Ruth Whitfield. Leta Detlor and Alberta Symington gave a very pleasing duet, "Jesus Loves Even Me."

Everyone then joined in singing "Onward Christian Soldiers." Mrs. Ross Reid led in a very interesting story entitled "The King's Birthday." "Jesus is all the World to Me" was sung and the meeting was closed with the Lord's Prayer.

STONE CHURCH Y.P.S.

A very enjoyable social evening was spent by the members and friends of the Stone Church Y.P.S. on Tuesday evening, May 30.

The evening was spent in playing the old time games and after which a delightful lunch of weiners and buns were served around a jolly camp fire. The evening was under the direction of the president, Mrs. F. Jeffrey.

Annunciata Garrotto follows in the footsteps of Other American small-town girls to operatic fame

By CLARK KINNAIRD
Central Press Canadian

NEW YORK, June 5—The "corn belt" sing lullaby and lilted as a Sahara of the Beaux Arts has produced another operatic star, and critics who heard her on a tour of Italy and the Orient acclaim her the rise of the great lyric soprano.

She is Miss Annunciata Garrotto of Omaha. She is in New York preparing for the audition Gatti-Casazza will give her at the Metropolitan Opera on his return from Italy and for radio engagements. Like many another American artist, she had to go abroad to win her first recognition.

Feted by Omaha

Not that the home-town folk didn't appreciate her! Omaha declared a holiday when she returned and appeared in a two-hour operatic program with Lawrence Powers, Australian tenor, who shared leading roles with her on the world tour of the San Carlo Grand Opera company. It was the American premiere of both, and Omaha's music-loving group of Italian citizens by their enthusiasm turned it into as big a local event as a first night at La Scala or the Metropolitan.

Music Lovers Everywhere

The so-called intelligentsia don't know what they're talking about when they belittle the musical tastes of America's hinterland, Miss Garrotto says. There are just as many music lovers per capita in the small towns as in the big ones. It isn't the fault of the smaller places that the musical fare offered is poor. Good music is largely dependent on philanthropy—even in Europe the large musical organizations are dependent on private subsidies—and the large cities have the advantage over the small town in this respect. She points to the fact that most of America's home-born operatic talent has come from outside of New York and Chicago, the opera centers.

Rosa Ponselle and her sister, Carmela, are from Connecticut. Lawrence Tibbett was the son of a deputy sheriff in Bakersfield, Cal. Emma Redell is from Washington, D.C. Editha Fleischer is from a Pennsylvania town. Grace Moore is a native of Arkansas, and Grace Kerns comes from Jellico, Tenn. Marion Talley is a loyal Kansan. John Charles Thomas and Richard Crooks are small town boys. Gertrude Farrar was a product of New England.

Like Marion Talley, Miss Garrot obtained most of her musical training at home. She has loved ruffled crepe lying at the back with large silk accordion pleating. She has blue organdy gloves, and her picture hat of pink organdy was banded with blue velvet. Blue satin slippers completed the costume and her bouquet was of sweet peas and lilies-of-the-valley.

Miss Coral Jenkins, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid, and was attired in a lovely gown of yellow organdy with sash of light green. Her yellow hat was trimmed with green the same shade being used in mesh gloves and pumps. She carried carnations and lilies-of-the-valley.

Mr. Tom Jeffery, Belleville, brother of the groom was groomsman. Ushers at the ceremony, which breakfast was served at Locust Inn, Mrs. Jenkins, mother of the bride was becomingly attired in a pretty green ensemble with hat to match while Mrs. Jeffery, mother of the groom wore a handsome frock of delft blue printed georgette with a three-quarter length jacket of navy blue and navy hat.

Mr. and Mrs. Jeffery left on a wedding trip to Niagara Falls, the bride travelling in a smart ensemble of light blue crepe with navy accessories, shoes and purse. On their return they will reside in Belleville.

TABERNACLE W. A. HAS MEETING

On Thursday, June 1st at the Tabernacle, the ladies parlours after the regular meeting of the W.A. Group No. 1, took charge of the program which took the form of an old fashioned party. The members were in old fashioned costume. After singing hymn 154 Mrs. Horton recited the grace following which members singing the chorus after which readings were given by Mrs. Ferrow, Mrs. Laughlin, Sr. Mrs. Hoop, Mrs. Harrison and Mrs. McSwain. A duet by Mrs. Ferrow and Mrs. Gerow was much appreciated. After singing "Auld Lang Syne" Mrs. Gerow received the W.A. members and their guests, to the tea room. Tea was poured by Mrs. McMaster and Mrs. McEwen. Those who assisted in the serving were Mrs. Harrison, Mrs. Michaud, Mrs. Laughlin, Jr., Mrs. Burgess, Mrs. Mifflin Mrs. Thrasher, Mrs. Flinfield, Mrs. Evans and Miss Jean. Mrs. Laughlin, Sr. and Mrs. Horton catering as treasurer. A very enjoyable afternoon was spent by all.

TAYLOR—BALDWIN

A very pretty wedding was solemnized at three-thirty Saturday afternoon, June 3rd at the home of the bride's parents, 146 Yeomans street when Lillian Frances, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Baldwin became the bride of Mr. Harold Taylor only son of Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Taylor, Victoria avenue, this city. Rev. Mr. Wright, rector of Christ Church, performed the ceremony.

The bride entered the drawing-room on the arm of her father to the strains of the wedding march played by Mr. C. Templer. She looked very lovely in her gown of white satin with satin slip and trailing veil and wreath of orange blossoms. The bride carried a bouquet of white Killarney roses and forget-me-nots and wore one of the groom, a white gold Grum wrist watch.

Miss Olive Baldwin attended her sister as maid-of-honor and looked very pretty in her dress of pale blue crepe with Milan hat to match carrying a bouquet of Ophelia roses.

Little Miss Marcella Alderman, niece of the groom, looked very sweet as the bride's train-bearer.

The groom, a popular young member of the local police force, was attended by Mr. Geoffrey Abbott as best man.

During the signing of the register Mr. Richard Arnott sang "Beloved".

The groom's gift to the maid-of-honor was a tooled leather purse; to the best man, a gold cigarette case, to the organist, a leather billfold and to the soloist white gold cuff links.

A reception was held after the ceremony, the spacious rooms being tastefully decorated for the occasion. The bridal party received under an arch of bridal wreath centered with wedding bells where the wedding ceremony was performed.

The bride's attire was a lovely gown of ivory crepe with silk lace inserts and wore a shoulder bouquet of pink roses and boy-of-the-violets.

A delightful buffet luncheon was served to about one hundred guests, many attending from out of town, after which Miss Baldwin's gowning was supplied by the Commodore's Orchestra supplemented by Mr. Hudgins at the piano.

Mr. and Mrs. Taylor left on their honeymoon and after a motor trip through Algonquin Park and Muskoka lakes, will reside in Belleville on their return they will reside in Belleville.

JEFFERY—JENKINS

Picton United Church was the scene of a charming wedding at 4.30 o'clock, Wednesday, May 31st when Frieda Irene daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Jenkins, of Picton, became the bride of Mr. Charles Lapointe Jeffery of Belleville, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Jeffery 138 Victoria Avenue. The church was beautifully decorated with tulips, bridal wreath and lilies of the valley.—Rev. P. Wooden was the officiating clergyman.

As the bridal party entered the church, wedding music was played by Professor Walden. The bride who was given in marriage by her father, made a pretty picture in her gown of pink silk organdy with

ACKNOWLEDGING A GIFT

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am to be married very soon and I have received a wedding gift from the people who work with my fiance. All the names of the people who contributed were on the card.

1. Will you please suggest how I should word a letter of thanks? Should I address this to a certain person in care of the department in which my fiance works?

Some people who contributed are from a different department. Should I write a separate letter to that department?

Should I list in the letters the names of the people who took part in the contribution?

2. Do you think plain white paper would be better than this light tan paper?

H.

1. I'm so glad that you told me that, on the card enclosed with this gift was a list of the names of the friends who contributed. For I feel very strongly that the only polite and gracious way of acknowledging this kind of gift is to write a separate letter and thank for every contributor. Every person has contributed individually, and so each person should be thanked individually. That's only reasonable.

Your letters should be worded something like this:

Dear Miss Graham,

Thank you very much for your kind and generous thought in contributing to the handsome wedding gift which came to us from your Department. Tom and I appreciate most greatly your kindly plan for our happiness, and the beautiful tea set will always be to us the symbol of the friendliness of you and Tom's other colleagues. Tom and I are planning a very great pride and happiness, to ure this beautiful set in our new home, and we are looking forward to seeing you there after our return from our trip.

Thank you again most sincerely, and best wishes to you from us both.

Very sincerely yours,

I think that the conventional, dark-blue card, white paper example would be the most appropriate to use for these important notes.

PROPER TABLE LINEN,

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My husband and I will be in Panama, for about a week, and I want to buy all the linen that I can possibly afford, as it is very reasonable here.

They have lovely tablecloths trimmed in lace, also inserted with lace. My husband thinks we should not buy linen even on special occasions. I think it is perfectly proper to use linen, and will be anxiously waiting your reply.

Tablecloths trimmed with lace or lace insertion are very popular at present. Linen is considered by many kinds of decorating, and so many kinds of room interiors.

FOR A DAY WEDDING

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Would it be appropriate to give a purchase ticket as a birthday gift to a girl to whom I am engaged to be married?

2. Is it proper for a bridegroom to give flowers at the bride's church wedding, and if not, what is correct?

S.

It would be more appropriate if you saved this type of gift until later—after your marriage, to buy things for your new home. For her birthday gift, I am sure that your fiancee would like a gift that is more personal, something that she can always keep to remind her of the happy days ahead.

2. The Tuxedo is informal attire for evening wear, and is never appropriate for day wear. If your bride is wearing the traditional cutaway and dark striped trousers. If she is dressing informally, you might then wear a dark business suit.

Advice to the Lovelorn

Doris writes me a letter from a steamer bound for Bermuda. The trip was a present from her aunt and leisure in which to decide a highly important question—and she has decided to word that she's more at sea than ever".

Doris pride herself on being modern, and to back up that claim confesses that she is actually considering proposing to a young man who never has been able to come to the point. It seems he was the only child of a highly masterful mother the kind of woman whose children are never allowed to grow up. She always "dismiss little boys", or girls, as the case may be.

Suddenly this despotic mother of a grown son is in a state of indecision about everything. He has rather an elastic check and never had been a contractor, and the son looked after his mother's interests in that firm. The surviving partner has not admitted the son to the firm. Incidentally that partner and Doris had a sort of second-fiddle love affair.

The mother made bitter objections to her son marrying a girl in business. Doris in particular, and executed one of those cruel deathbed requests that are the bane of family this particular girl.

Doris concluded her letter to me with: "Don't you think it would be an act of justice to the young point blank to marry me?"

I feel like calling to her: "Please don't." Doris should never be allowed to get his bearings before any young woman undertakes to corral him or have a finger in his affairs. He's had a managing mother. Let's hope he'll find himself free, and realize that he's free, before Doris or any other woman, no matter how devoted she may be, shall make the slightest claim on him.

The B.Y.P.U. met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Smith with four-ten members answering the roll call. The meeting opened with a favorite chorus "Arm in Arm with Jesus", Mr. McNabb led in prayer. Hymn twenty nine was sung. A very interesting report was given by the members who attended the convention at Port Hope. Miss D. Clare rendered a very pleasing solo "When the tide comes in". Miss Myrtle Reid gave the topic entitled "Broken". Miss Aleita Horton put on a contest. Hymn sixteen was sung and the meeting closed with the Mizpah Benediction. The hostess served a most tasty lunch of sandwiches, cake and lemonade.

know what they're talking about when they belittle the musical tastes of America's hinterland, Miss Garrotto says. There are just as many music lovers per capita in the small towns as in the big ones. It isn't the sum of life smaller places that the musical fare offered is poor. Good music is largely dependent on philanthropy—even in Europe the large musical organizations are dependent on state subsidies—and the large cities have the advantage over the small towns in this respect. She points to the fact that most of America's native-born operatic talent has come from outside of New York and Chicago, the opera centers.

Rosa Ponselle and her sister, Carmela, are from Connecticut. Lawrence Tibbett was the son of a county sheriff in Bakersfield, Cal. Emma Redell is from Washington, D.C. Editha Fleisher is from a small town in Iowa. Mary Lewis is a native of Arkansas, and Grace Moore comes from Tennessee. Tenor Marion Talley is a loyal Kansan. Jeanne Dickson and Helen Freund Crooks are small town boys. Geraldine Farrar was a product of New England.

Like Marion Talley, Miss Garrotto obtained most of her musical training at home. She has loved to sing ever since she can remember. Her education was completed abroad, where she was discovered by opera impresarios and cast for leading roles. Her engagement for prima donna of the San Carlo company for its tour of the Orient followed.

Americans Highly Regarded

American artists are highly regarded everywhere abroad, she says. She has been invited to return to Europe for engagements. But she wishes to pursue her career in her homeland. There are greater musical opportunities in the United States than anywhere else, she believes.

Lawrence Power, who sang opposite her in the San Carlo company will launch an American career in coming months. Miss Garrotto australia recently designated him, along with Bert Hinkler, the aviator, Sir Hubert Wilkins, the explorer, and others, as its greatest sons. He is famed in Australia as the boy cricketer and a singer. He was captain of the Australian team and a member of the international team which played against England's best in 1920. Some day he may be opera's only tilted singer for he is a nephew and heir of Lord Tennant.

ACKNOWLEDGING A GIFT

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am to be married very soon and I have received a wedding gift from the people who work with my fiance. All the names of the people who contributed were on the card.

I wish you please suggest how I should word a letter of thanks? Should I address this to a certain person, in care of the department; to which my fiance works?

Some people who contributed are from a different department. Should I write a separate letter to that department?

Should I list in the letters the names of the people who took part in the contribution?

2. Do you think plain white paper would be better than this light blue paper?

1. I'm so glad that you told me that, on the card enclosed with this gift was a list of the names of the friends who contributed. For I feel very strongly that the only polite and obvious way of acknowledging this kind of gift is to write a separate letter of thanks to every contributor. Every person has contributed individually, and so each person should be thanked individually. That's only reasonable.

Your letters should be worded something like this:

Dear Miss Graham,

Thank you so much for your kind and generous thought in contributing to the handsome wedding gift which the girls in your Department. Tom and I appreciate most deeply this generous plan for our happiness, and the beautiful tea set will always be to us the symbol of the friendliness of you and Tom's other colleagues.

Thank you for planning, with great pride and happiness, to use the beautiful set in our new home, and we are looking forward to having you there, after we return from our trip.

Thank you again, most sincerely, and best wishes to you both.

Very sincerely yours,

I think that the conventional, formal letter is better paper would be the most appropriate to use for these important notes.

PROPER TABLE LINEN.

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My husband and I will be in Panama for a while, and I want to buy all the linen that I can possibly afford, as it is very reasonable here.

They have lovely tablecloths trimmed in lace, also edged with lace. My husband thinks we should not use lace on anything on occasions. I think it is perfectly proper to use them, and will be anxiously waiting your reply.

II.

Tablecloths trimmed with lace or lace insertion are very popular both now and then. They make a beautiful background for a table setting, both for formal and informal luncheons, and for all kinds of informal dinners. Indeed, I think that they are one of the most convenient kinds of table covers to have, as they lend a way of adapting themselves to different kinds of settings, and to many kinds of decorations, and to many kinds of room interiors.

FOR A DAY WEDDING

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. Would it be appropriate to give a purchase ticket as a birthday gift to a girl to whom I am engaged to be married?

2. Is it proper for a bridegroom to wear a Tuxedo at a morning church wedding, and if not, what is correct?

S.

It would be more appropriate if you saved this type of gift until later—after your marriage, to buy things for your new home. For her birthday gift, I am sure that your fiancee would like to have something more personal—something that she can always keep to show this important event in her life.

2. The Tuxedo is informal attire for evening wear, and is never appropriate for day wear. If your bride is wearing the traditional white wedding gown for the ceremony, you wear formal day clothes—cutaway coat and dark striped trousers. If she is dressing informally, you might then wear a dark business suit.

Advice to the Lovelorn

Doris writes me a letter from a steamer bound for Bermuda. The trip was taken as a period of quiet and leisure in which to dedicate a highly important question—and now she sends word that she's "more at sea than ever".

Doris prides herself on being modern, and to back up that claim confides that she is not overburdened with indecision about everything. He has rather an elastic job. His father had been a contractor, and the son looked after his mother's interests in that firm. The surviving partner has not admitted the son into the firm. Finally that partner and Doris had a sort of second-fiddle love affair.

The mother made bitter objections to her son's marriage to anyone. Doris in particular, and expected one of those cruel deathbed confessions that would bar that marry this particular girl.

Doris confides her letter to me with: "Don't you think it would be an act of charity to ask him point blank to marry me?"

I feel like cabling to her: "Please don't." And boy-should he intend to get his bearings before any other woman undertakes to control him or have a finger in his affairs. He has had a managing motherhood hope he'll find himself free, and realize that he's free, before Doris or any other woman, no matter how devoted she may be, shall make the slightest claim on him.

When girls, as courageous and loving as the young correspondent of mine is, reverse the old order, take things into their own hands and propose, they sometimes have been refused.

No man, no matter how shy he may appear really wants to be asked by a girl to marry her. It jars his sense of fitness to realize that his foremost masculine privilege has been taken from him.

Men are the dyed-in-the-wool conservatives; they may cross all the bridges, cut all the cables, but when it comes to picking out a wife, they do not differ very greatly from their own grandfathers.

So please don't propose openly and frankly, Doris, after you come back from Bermuda. Give that young man a year or two's grace. And then, follow that innate wisdom of the ages. Providence having endowed women with ways and means of knowing how to bring about a devious approach to a proposal—why fly in the face of Providence?

JEFFERY—JENKINS

Picton United Church was the scene of a charming wedding at seven o'clock this morning, when Frieda Irene daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Jenkins, of Picton, became the bride of Mr. Charles Lapointe Jeffery of Belleville, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Jeffery 138 Victoria Avenue. The church was beautifully decorated with tulips, bridal wreath and lilies of the valley. Rev. F. J. Woods was the officiating clergyman.

As the bridal party entered the church, wedding music was played by Professor Walden. The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, made a pretty picture in her gown of pink silk organdy with ruffled cape tying at the back with long silk streamers. She had a pink blue organdy gloves, and her picture hat of pink organdy banded with blue velvet. Blue satin slippers completed the costume and her bouquet was of sweet peas and lilies-of-the-valley.

Miss Doris Jenkins, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid and was attired in a floor length dress of organdy with sash of light green. Her yellow hat was trimmed with green the same shade being used in mesh gloves and slippers. She carried carnations and lilies-of-the-valley.

Mr. Tom Jeffery, Belleville, brother of the groom was groomsman. After the ceremony, wedding breakfast was served at Locust Inn. Mrs. Jenkins, mother of the bride was becomingly attired in a party dress ensemble with hat to match, while Mrs. Jeffery, mother of the groom wore a handsome frock of drill blue printed organdie with a three-quarter length jacket of navy blue and navy hat.

Mr. and Mrs. Jeffery left on a wedding trip to Niagara Falls, the bride travelling in a smart ensemble of light blue crepe with white turban, shoes and purse, on their return they will reside in Belleville.

TABERNACLE W. A. HAS MEETING

On Thursday, June 1st at the Tabernacle Church parlours after the regular meeting of the W.A. Group No. 2 took charge of the program which took the form of an old fashioned party. The members were in old fashioned costume. After singing hymn 154 Mrs. Horton recited the prayer response. The members singing the chorus after which readings were given by Mrs. Bellow, Mrs. Laughlin, Sr. Mrs. Horton, Mrs. Harrison and Mrs. Mc-Ewan. A duet by Mrs. McMaster and Mrs. Gerow was much appreciated. After singing "Auld Lang Syne" Mrs. Gerow received the W.A. members and their guests to the tea room. Tea was poured by Mrs. McMaster and Mrs. Bellow. Those who assisted in the serving were Mrs. Harrison, Mrs. Michaud, Mrs. Laughlin, Jr., Mrs. Burgess, Mrs. Mifflin Mrs. Thrasher, Mrs. Flindall, Mrs. Evans and Mrs. Ferry. Mrs. Laughlin, Sr., and Mrs. Horton acted as treasurers. A very enjoyable afternoon was spent by all.

HALLOWAY B.Y.P.U.

The B.Y.P.U. met at the home of Mr. Thomas Hamilton with fourteen members answering the roll call. The meeting opened with a favorite chorus "Arm in Arm with Jesus", Mr. McNabb led in prayer. Hymn twenty nine was sung. A very interesting report was given about a devotional approach to a proposal—why fly in the face of Providence.

Mr. Hamilton had charge of the business material in the absence of the president Mr. Ross. Plans were made for the annual picnic to be held on the 24th of June. Hymn sixteen was sung and the meeting closed with the Mizpah Benediction. The hostess served a very tasty lunch of sandwiches, cake and lemonade.

LIVESTOCK

Toronto, June 5 (CP)—Early trading on the Toronto Livestock Market was slow today with not enough cattle sales made to establish prices. Prices on butcher cows and choice veal calves were about the same as a week ago, while fat cattle, calves stronger in spots, hogs unsettled; lambs easier; sheep slow.

Greatest of Prison Films Contains Love Story

Spencer Tracy in a new role, that of a swaggering gangster who has finally arrived as Sing Sing, Bette Davis in the sympathetic part of his faithful sweetheart and Arthur Byron, as the prison warden, enact a powerful drama against the grim background of Sing Sing prison in the gripping picture "Twenty Thousand Years in Sing Sing which opened at the Capitol Theatre on Saturday and from the story was written by Warden Lewis E. Lawes, Warden of Sing Sing at Ossining, New York, and portrays prison life faithfully, with its humour and pathos, its hope and despair.

A moving story with its realistic characters likeable in spite of twisted outlooks on life, the picture is well worth a visit to the Capitol, not only for the interest of the plot but to see popular stars in roles that suit them to the ground up to difficult roles.

Spencer Tracy in the part of Tom Connors sentenced to Sing Sing but confident that things there will be made easy for him is much surprised to find Bette a comber in the prison, robs him of the slightest individuality in the eyes of authorities. His first rebellion is against the prison garb which is much too large, a trial to a man who entered the gates in the latest tailor made suit. The Warden says that he needn't wear a uniform and the Tom feels that he has made his rounding entertainment.

first conquest, only to learn that when one doesn't wear a uniform in Sing Sing, one wears practically nothing and even the debonair Tom demands a uniform when the convicts begin calling him "Grandpa." The Warden splendidly played by Arthur Byron, wins Tom's respect but the fear of being called "soft" keeps the convict in trouble. He plans to make a break with three others, but when the day decided upon is Saturday he recalls that Saturday is his unlucky day and refuses to go. The attempted break and its tragic result is one of the most gripping moments of the play.

Fay Connors' girl who has been trying to get him out of prison by the back door with Tom's political crook, is seriously hurt in a motor accident and then Warden shows his trust of Tom by allowing him to go to see her. Tom promises to come back "if it means the chair". Fay confesses that she was injured in jumping from Pinn's car and Pinn's entrance with money to buy her silence precipitates a fight with Tom, in the course of which, Fay shoots Pinn. The news of the convict killing", for Tom takes the blame and makes it appear as though he had murdered Pinn, brings the Warden face to face with dismissal for day pass and he does not come back. But the Warden's trust was not misplaced for he is last returns ..... to the chair.

The picture is out of the ordinary and marked as it is with lighter moments it provides an entertainment that one can't help enjoying. The clever cartoon, an interesting newsreel and an exciting episode of the "Devil Horse" complete a well rounded entertainment.

DOME MOVES UP TO $33.60

Gold Shares Pull Mining Market Out of Mild Tail Spin

Toronto, June 5 (CP)—The big gold shares pulled the Standard Mining Market out of a mild tail spin today and after a short adjustment they got in full speed forward to a strong close. Dome featured the active gold group, closing from a low of $30.80, to close at $33.60 for a net gain of $3.60.

Early morning sales were largely erased in the base metal section with exception of Nickel which closed off 40 cents at $17.15. Noranda recovered smartly from a low of $81.75 to close at $223.75, a net gain of 50 cents. Hudson Bay at $10.15 was down moderately.

In the big golds McIntyre was up nearly a dollar at the close. Lake Shore was about steady, Pioneer up 50 at $14.50, Wright Hargreaves up 10 and Teck Hughes was down 5 at 6.36.

Silver shares also improved in the afternoon, Mustang retaining its position at $2.90. Mining Corporation making a partial recovery to $2.30 and Eldorado holding steady at $3.02.

FIVE MILLION SHARE DAY

"Wet" Issues And Gold Strong Spot in Industrials

New York, June 5 (AP)— Stocks advanced strongly in the late trading today after early uncertainty. Rails rallied in the last hour after having "feared" losses. Leading gold mining shares were strong spots among speculation. Utilities were moderately higher. Allied Chemical and Homestake mining advanced about six points. Stocks were two to around four points included Santa Fe, Case, American Can, Telephone, Western Union, Dome, National Distillers, U. S. Industrial Alcohol, Celanese, Union Pacific and Alaska Juneau. U.S. Steel and New York Central firmed around a point each. Transfers approximated 5,000,000 shares.

STOCK MARKET CLOSES HIGH

Early Losses up to a Point Were Turned Into Same Gains

Toronto, June 5 (CP)—The Toronto Stock Market commenced the day's course today and became so enthusiastic in the late trading that half a dozen new high prices for the year were marked up. Early losses up to a point were turned into gains in many cases of an equal amount.

Brazilian climbed to 15, C.P.R. to 18, Ford of Canada to 15¼, Steel-ex to 134 and Nickel closed with a loss of 30 at 17.30. Distillery and oil issues led the industrial list early trend, Walker's common closing at 18¾, up nearly more than two points, British American Oil up ¾, International Petroleum at 15 and Imperial Oil unchanged, Superiest lost a fraction.

Utilities developed a strong tone and four issues hit new highs, Power Corporation, Bell Telephone, Winnipeg Electric and B.C. Power "B."

Agricultural implement shares slipped fractions, while bank shares were higher and heavy industrials chalked up an equal portion of losses and Steel of Canada, Hollinger, Hersey and Dominion Bridge were off at the close.

The amassing performances of Letty Grove, in which the tall Athletic southpaw did a chore of relief pitching almost every day for a week or so brings the ever-argumentative "Old Timers" to the fore again, ballyhooing one of their kind.

It seems that while Grove did a very handsome job, compared with modern baseball practice, he was positively loafing during that remarkably week—if you compare his work with that of Big Ed Walsh of the Chicago White Sox during the season of 1928.

In that historic year which saw a third-rate Chicago team in a desperate struggle to wrest the American League pennant from a high-grade Detroit club, Walsh personally appeared on the mound 69 times!

Big Ed pitched almost every day. Counting the off days which sprinkle every baseball schedule he started every three days, at least.

In addition to this, Walsh was in the bull pen throughout most of the other games warming up. He never knew when he was to be called upon and had to be ready to go if Manager Pinder Jones figured the club needed him.

The White Sox star actually started 49 games and finished all but six of these! And when they took Big Ed out it was because the batsmen were giving him poor fielding support or were not hitting, and there was no sense in tiring that magnificent arm in a game already lost.

The records show Walsh twirled 464 innings and fanned 269 men, better than one every other inning. He won 40 games and lost 15.

The heroic efforts of Walsh should have been rewarded with a pennant and world series glory and gold. But they were not.

Chicago did not finish even second.

Detroit won the championship and Cleveland nosed out the White Sox for second place. The Tigers' total fanned 15 Indians and held Cleveland to one run. But Eddie Rommel on the mound for Cleveland, pitched no-hit, no-run, no-man-reach-first-base game that day.

Win Double Header Through Two Well Pitched Games

YANKS, ADVANCE

Lead American Loop by Four Full Games

BY HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR.,
Associated Press Sports Writer

It appears to be the misfortune of more than one good ball club this season to be in the same league with the New York Yankees. It used to be that they just couldn't keep up with the slugging of the present world champions, and now they are finding the Yanks have an array of pitchers that are "poison" to the rival batsmen.

Philadelphia's Athletics, who had climbed to second place in the American League a few days ago, got a taste of Yankee flinging in a four-game series and wound up in the fifth notch again. They not only couldn't get the hits, but in four games, 46 batsmen were set down by the strikeout route. Seven fanned in the first game of a double header Sunday as Russell Van Atta outpitched Merrit (Sugar) Cain to beat the Boston Red Sox 4-3. They got the winning run on a sacrifice and Cesie Bluege's single by Johnny Welch after the heat forced Gordon Rigney out at first.

Chicago White Sox moved into fourth place ahead of the Athletics by unlimbering their big guns to win two games from the St. Louis Browns, 13-6 and 10-2. The Sox piled up a total of 31 hits and 46 bases against five St. Louis pitchers.

The Cleveland Indians and Detroit Tigers divided a pair of lowscoring games, Cleveland beating first 2-1 on a ninth inning rally then fell a run short in an eighth inning outburst and went down 4-3.

New York Giants, the only National League team to win two games out of a set of four double headers, moved into first place by the margin of five points over the St. Louis Cardinals. Brilliant mound work enabled the Giants to beat the Brooklyn Dodgers 2-0 and 6-1 as Hal Schumacher and Carl Hubbell pitched none allowed only eight hits between them.

National League

Cincinnati knocked the cards out of the leaf by winning the opening game 6-2 on the pitching and hitting of two former St. Louis players, Paul Derringer and Allen Vance, but after the Cardinals had put on a ninth inning rally to take the opener 4-2. Pittsburgh's Pirates scored seven runs in the ninth inning uprising, marked by Floyd Vaughan's homers to beat the Chicago Cubs 9-3 in the opener but two circuit blows by Paul Waner of Pat Malone's pitching gave their scoring in the second clash of Chicago won 2-1.

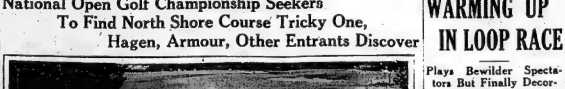
Eddie Holley's five-hit flinging and unearned run gave the last place Phillies a 1-0 victory over Boston but the Braves came back to slug out a 9-8 decision in the nightcap.

Cincinnati provided a Saturday upset by downing Pittsburgh twice by 5-3 and 5-4.

The American League was featured by the Yanks Saturday, when they came from behind after the Athletics had sent 11 runs across the plate in the third inning. The New Yorkers put a 10-run inning, aided by Ruth's homer with two on alongside less potent frames to win out 17-11.

BETWEEN INNINGS

Pepper Martin, fast-stepping St. Louis Cardinal infielder, refuses to give up the head-first slide into a base, though it is more dangerous than the foot-first dive. Insists it gets him there faster.



Walter Beck is returning to form and Van Mungo has just turned in his best game of it which indicates that the Brooklyn pitchers are, at last, becoming more effective. But Dodger hitters are still "off".

Paul Gregory is being tutored in the art of pitching by Ted Lyons, crafty veteran ace of the Chicago White Sox. That's why Paul's delivery resembles that of Lyons more than any other pitcher in the league.

Ernest Quigley, veteran National League umpire, officiates in other games in the off season. He is a well-known football official and a basketball referee. He formerly refereed the Harvard-Yale grid game.

The highest developments of civilization, it is said, have so far arisen in those realms of the bicycle race in which it has become mixed with other equally gifted races.

National Open Golf Championship Seekers To Find North Shore Course Tricky One, Hagen, Armour, Other Entrants Discover

Here's where national open entrants will toe-off in title quest.

Clubhouse of the North Shore Golf club, national open site.

Looks easy, but isn't—North Shore s 344-yard 11th hole.

BY HAROLD K. GEORGE
Central Press Sport Correspondent

Chicago, Ill., June 5.—There will be no sensational scoring in the national open golf championship over the North Shore Country Club links, near Glenview, Ill., June 8, 10 and 11, and the successor to Gene Sarazen — or Sarazen himself — must have a 72-hole total of less than 290.

That is the estimate of some of the nation's leading golfers who have practiced over the tricky course already.

Those who vouch for that estimate include such excellent golf authorities as Walter Hagen, Olin Dutra, Tommy Armour, Harry Cooper, Abe Espinosa, Horton Smith, Frank Walsh, Jack George Van Elm, the "businessman golfer".

All these stars have sampled the North Shore layout and have come away with figures ranging from 72 to 78. Armour lagged the 72, also a 74. Cooper and Espinosa each had a practice round of 73 and Dutra and Walsh took 75s.

There will be other aces trying out the course right up to tourney time and if they take the advice of Hagen, every entrant in the "big game" hunt will play the course at least once.

If the 1933 champion is to do no less than 290, then he will be bowing to Old Man Par, which is 288 for the four rounds, or 72 for each.

The North Shore course has been made more difficult and lengthened in several spots, chiefly on the second hole where the distance has been stretched 35 yards to a 486 total by moving the tee back.

The change also has shifted the angle of the tee shot and is certain to cause some trouble for the title aspirants. With the added length, narrow fairways at intervals plenty of rough and tricky greens, even the elite of the golfing world will find the strokes piling up.

M.F. HEPBURN TO PITCH BALL

Nationals Battle Old Rivals, Kingston on Wednesday

Mitchell F. Hepburn, leader of the Liberal party in Ontario, officially notified the executive of the Belleville Nationals, that he would gladly pitch the first ball of Wednesday's senior baseball game when the league champion Kingston Ponies make their initial appearance at the local ball park.

Smarting under the over-whelming defeat at the hands of Manager Jack Derry's Ponies the Nationals, with their backs to the wall are out for sweet revenge on Wednesday. Manager Mills has called a special practice for Tuesday night when at least one new face will be seen in the infield with intentions of bolstering up the inner works.

Manager Mills has three hurlers, who have rested for over a week in Ernie Smith, Ernie Holmes and Vinny Uzzeski to pitch against the Ponies, while the visitors will start their ace Chuck Fournier, they are left hander, or Tommy Godfrey, a right hander against the Millsmanaged club.

A few changes in the roster of the local club has been assured by Manager Mills in order to try and strike a winning combination. Of late a few of the younger Nationals have assumed hitting prominence but seemingly just have not been able to shake a compact of hitting in the pinches. Owing to the fact, that the greater number of the Nationals are under the age of 21 years and the club is being reconstructed, the executive of the team feel, that they have the makings of a real smart team which will be a credit to the community before fall. The period or re-constructing any ball club usually takes some little time but as Belleville has always been one of the best baseball cities in Ontario the rejuvenation of senior baseball, when these kids strike their stride is assured.

Two new umpires, who have never been seen on a local diamond have been appointed to officiate in the game. Hartley of Kingston will be the umpire in chief while Gordon MacLean, late manager of the Victorias, has been chosen to call the decisions on the bases.

FIRST LOSS IN 35 GAMES

Edmonton Grads Taken by Durant College by 59-52 Count

Edmonton, June 5—(CP)—Down one in the international basketball series with the Durant, Presbyterian College girls from Cardinal, Ont., Edmonton Grads, worlds champions, tonight will seek victory after their first loss in 35 matches.

After winning 34 straight games, including Dominion and International events, the Grads met a 43-25 defeat here Saturday night. With three of their leading stars off their personal fouls in the last few minutes of the game the Grads were outplayed.

The winner of the series will earn the right to represent North America in the women's olympics in London next year. The Oklahoma five are the winners of a recent United States national tournament, and Saturday night played under men's rules, in vogue throughout this country. In tonight's game women's rules will govern, the ones under which the Durant team is at home.

From evidence found in ancient ruins, it seems likely that the first farmers lived in Palestine.

WARMING UP IN LOOP RACE

Plays Bewilder Spectators but Finally Decorum is Restored

Amelisburg, June 5 (Special)—Consecon won their second straight game and put themselves at the top of the league as the only undefeated team when they smothered the local team under a avalanche of hits to win 26-5.

It was a well earned victory for Consecon and a discouraging game for Amelisburg. Inexperience on the part of the latter nine resulted in errors, which paited the way for many Consecon tallies. All of the Amelisburg runs were scored in the first two innings, while Consecon registered every frame at least tempted to stem the tide of hits, Irvin starting, later giving way to Tyler, who in turn was replaced by Will Cressey.

Score by innings:

Consecon									420	571	4—26
Amelisburg									200	000	0—5

Lineups:

Consecon—B. Black cf; M. Cook 3b; R. James, p; C. McConkey c; Hayes 2b; Phillips 1b; A. McConkey lf; Bennett rf; Clark ss.

Amelisburg—Adams 2b; A. Tyler ss; K. Crosby c; Creighton rf; Tyler 1b; C. Crosby rf; Irvin p; Canfield lf; Ferguson cf.

Umpires—Mattis and G. Cretney.

Scorer—Verner Bennett

Victoria lasted the sweeta of revenge and of victory here tonight when they won from their ancient rivals, Rednersville, by a 5-2 score. From a spectator's standpoint the game was one of the best, but for an umpire it meant only headaches. There was some of everything, misplays and apparently amazing consultations, and rulings quoted from the rule book and to top it all off a triple play not seen before in these parts at least. It happened in the fifth with Victorias at bat. Three men were on bases, none out, and George Cretney at bat. George poled out a low one to centre field where it was caught and then, almost faster than the crowd could follow, played second, second to third, and third to Bert Pointer scoring from third, but Ed Cretney was declared out for the plate. Just then a man stole off second toward third, and in the hubbub of chasing, Lyle Weese lagged him out. Rednersville players had run up their hats and began to congratulate themselves on a triple play, one with only one man scored, when somebody discovered that the man on first, between second and third was George Cretney, who already had been put out, and George Cretney at bat. George poled out a low one to centre field where it was caught and then, almost faster than the crowd could follow, played

CURRENT SPORT

Knocks and Boosts

Apparently we were not alone in our suggestion that Bill Frisch is a so-called set up to Tail Gate. "Hail it, who edits a harness horse column in the Toronto Daily Star also gives the proposed matched race the horse laugh. Of course, Bill Frisch has not some record to note in the past, but nothing in comparison with the Kingston pacer.

—oo—

All of which reminds us that the local race meet of June 16th is fast approaching. Secretary Kelcheson informs us that a large field of horses will be on hand in all classes. Just how many local horses will start at Da Kingston meet today is somewhat problematic as the classes are not graded to accommodate some of the best local horses.

—oo—

The Nationals relinquished their pacific night this evening to make way for the Victorias who are opening the intermediate season locally against the Brighton Intermediates. Coach "Chunkey" Gerver has been working his club quite regularly of late and hopes to get the jump on the other three teams in the loop. The Vics opened the season quite auspiciously when they trimmed Coach Walter Gerver's Gibbsettes last week and are now well on the way to another league title, they think. Incidentally in passing we have been informed that Tommy Walker is considerably somewhat of a record when the Vics defeated Napanee a week ago Saturday. Pointer not only used 32 local batters to the bench via the stake out route but threw out three batters at first base, then the ex-National hurler accounted for 25 of the 27 men put out, a very creditable record to say the least.

—oo—

Softball swings auspiciously into action this week when two double headers are scheduled in the local Men's Senior loop on Monday and Thursday respectively and the girls assume the spotlight when Leo Barrett's champion Belleville Fruit ladies play hosts to the much heralded Cobourg "All Stars" this evening at the Armouries lawn.

—oo—

There is talk in Toronto of the oldest senior league in the land, the Western City or Pil League disbanding. Baseball of major calibre has been played at the "Pile", the corner of Bloor and Christie Sts. ever since the T.A.B.A. was formed but owing to the rather poor financial support that organization is about to fold up. As a matter of fact it looks as though the entire T.A.B.A. is ready for the cleaners. When the patron starts to lose in buttons and what not into the cash box, well it's time to call it a day. The fans must remember that it costs about $2250.00 to equip a senior ball club, then there's the club's travelling expenses, that is when they play in a league like the C.O.B.L. Baseball can be operated on promises or good will. It takes the hard earned "Pigm ness" which have to be laid on the line after each game.

Extra frills are being planned by the executive of the Nationals for Wednesday's Kingston at Belleville ball game. To start with Mitchell F. Hepburn, Liberal leader in Ontario, is slated to toss the first ball. The executive endeavoured to have the Rt. Hon. Mackenzie King do these honors but owing to the fact that Mr. King's trails runs not arrive until after game time the project was shelved. But as leader of the opposition in Ontario Mr. Hepburn should capably do the honors.

President Charlie Meagher has also extended an invitation to Coach Dean Cromwell, Manager Jack Fralegh and all the members of the University of Southern California track and field team now relaxing at Mr. Fralegh's uncle's home in Bloomfield. Although no big authentic has been handed down on the matter we understand that the crack athletes from the sunny climes of California will be there in person but as to their staging a few events before the game proper we cannot say as yet. It would be worth the price of admission alone to see Bill Carbor, their champion pole vaulter, Duncan McNaughton, a Canadian and Olympic high jump champion, who is also a member of the team in action. The executive of the Nationals are trying to persuade Coach Cromwell to give a short exhibition before the game.

For the first three home games played by the Nationals the executive of the club allowed all unemployed into the games free. During the Peterboro at Belleville game last week the language hurled from the bleachers, where grats seats are provided, at the members of both clubs was of such a drastic nature that a policeman was detailed to quiet the offenders. This kind of proceedings has always been suppressed in Belleville whopever it was possible to apprehend the offenders. After the actions last week in the bleachers all persons out of employment wishing to attend a National home game will have to receive a special ticket which is being issued by the club and can be procured from any member of the club's executive. No longer will the unemployed be admitted through the turnstiles without a ticket. The executive of the club have been more than fair with all concerned and intend carrying out their previous intentions of issuing passes only to those worthy of such consideration.

With their ranks completely riddled through the loss of players the champion B.A.A.A. juniors bowed to the Wellington juniors by the score of 21 to 7 at Wellington Saturday. Manager Bob Rosher has been forced through the loss of every member of the 1937 champions to rebuild his team throughout. Despite the loss the Association sits unscathed some fairly good talent and will bear watching.

JUNE 5 -- MR. AND MRS. — A PRACTICAL SUGGESTION

TARZAN AND THE GOLDEN LION. No.

(Metropolitan New spaper Service) By Edgar Rice Burroughs.

Like an undisciplined mob the horde of priests and warriors followed Cadj to the summit of the lofty wall which guards the palace. They scrambled up pell mell, Tarzan's fierce cane to a halt outside. "Rocks! Rocks!" commanded Cadj, and in answer the warriors below the courtyard scattered fragments of stone from the crumbling palace walls and began to hand them up to the warriors.

Now Cadj shouted: "Defile not this Temple of the Flaming God or you shall know his wrath." For answer, Tarzan stepped forth from the ranks and cried: "La, your High Priestess, is here! Cadj is a traitor. Open your gates and receive your queen. Refuse her entry and we will take by force what rightfully is hers." As he ceased speaking, La stepped to the ape-man's side, standing where all could see her.

As the Oparians recognized La, murmurs arose among them, for Cadj had told them La was dead. The High Priest knew it would not take much to turn the scale against him. So shrieking to his men to attack, Cadj launched a stone straight for Tarzan. Only his wondrous agility saved the ape-man. The missile passed him, striking a Gomnagani. Now Tarzan called to his followers to attack.

Fiercely they ascended the rough wall in the face of the smoking bludgeons above. Tarzan, who had chosen Cadj as his objective, was among the first to reach the top. A hairy, crooked warrior struck at him with a bludgeon. Meeting in the summit with one hand, Tarzan caught the weapon in the other and wrested it from his assailant. At the same time he saw Cadj turn and disappear into the courtyard beyond.

LEAFS LOSE FOUR GAMES OVER WEEKEND

Rochester Takes Two on Saturday And Bisons Repeat Sunday

BEARS LEAD

Now Have Two Game Lead Over The Redwings

(By Herbert W. Baker, Associated Press Sports Writer).

The International League's leaders and the modern-day Bisons, Bears and Buffalo Bisons—emerged from Sunday's barrage of double-headers with double victories and all the honors.

The pace-setting Bears, taking advantage of excellent pitching by Jimmy Deshong and Vito Tamulis, whipped the Albany Senators 9-1 and 6-0 to increase their advantage over the second place Rochester Red Wings to two games. Deshong allowed 10 hits in the opener but was so effective in the pinches that the Senatorf broke through for only one run in the fourth inning. Newark in the meantime, clouted George Milstead and Ned Porter for 16 hits of which Johnny Wasilewood got four. Trulls allowed only seven hits in the nightcap and coasted in to victory after the Bears had solved Ray Prim for three runs in the first inning.

Buffalo defeated the slipping Toronto Maple Leafs, 5-0 and 7-3, extending the Bisonians' winning streak to five in a row. Ray Lucas hung up his second shutout and third successful victory after rejoining the Bisons when he limited the Leafs to six hits in the opener. Phil Gallivan's fine relief twirling saved the second game. He allowed only three hits in the last 4 2-3 innings.

Rochester split two games with the Montreal Royals, winning the first 4-2 and dropping the second 2-1. Pritz Ostermuller limited the Royals to six hits as he won his eighth game of the season in the opener. Tom Winsett's homer in the fourth decided the second encounter, a pitching duel between Tim McKeihan of the Royals and John Ogden.

Bud Clancy's single with the bases filled in the 11th enabled Jersey City to hand Baltimore a 6-5 beating but the Orioles came back with a heavy attack to win the nightcap, 10-2.

Montreal Royals provided the Saturday feature by downing Toronto in a double-ill by identical scores of 4-2. Homers from the bats of Topporer and Pepper gave Rochester a 10-8 win over Buffalo.

Yesterdays Stars

(By The Associated Press)

Frank Pritz, Cardinals, and Jim Bottomley, Reds—Former made three hits and stole two bases in opener, latter walloped triple, double and two singles in nightcap.

U. S. Congress is in Revolt Against President Roosevelt on His Economy Relief Bill Kill Main Clauses by Writing in New Features

BUDGET WRECKED

Roosevelt Must Have Bill as Prepared to Effect Recovery

By Harry Ferguson
United Press Staff Correspondent.

Washington, June 5 — President Roosevelt's program for economic recovery was on the edge of disaster today with Congress in serious revolt against him for the first time since March 4.

Over the week-end administration leaders sought and formula to placate congressmen and senators who have been away from White House control on the national industrial recovery bill, most important and counter-attack Mr. Roosevelt has yet made against the depression.

Senate Democratic Leader Robinson, cruised down the Potomac with Mr. Roosevelt, fully aware that the chief executive was determined that the recovery bill so ribbons and was prepared to meet again Monday.

Reports persisted that the President's advisers were consulting him with the Independent offices appropriation bill because the Senate has cut from 100 millions of money that can be out from veterans' compensation to 50 millions and the $40,000,000 his entire budget balancing program will be wrecked.

Knifing Main Feature

So far, Republicans on the Senate Finance Committee have led the attack on the industrial recovery bill, which is the most significant support from rebellious Democrats to the main features of the measure. One of these is the licensing provision of the club with which the administration planned to force reluctant industries into line if the attempt to obtain minimum wage, maximum hour agreements met with serious obstacles.

Chairman Harrison of the Senate Finance Committee who is trying to salvage something out of the wreckage for the administration, has announced he will make a strenuous floor fight to have the licensing provision written back into the bill when it reaches the Senate floor. Harrison is trying to restore the original provision calling for the $3,500,000,000 public works program to be administered by a single individual. The finance committee struck out that provision and substituted a board of three members which Harrison says would be controlled by the Senate.

Senate Hearings Expected

The most important fight in the Senate is likely to be almost today when the members delve deeper into the administration section. A total of $220,000,000 must be raised annually to handle interest and sinking fund charges on the $3,300,000,000 bond issue.

Opinions varied as to the reason for the revolt against the White House. Some senators said it was because of the administration's delay in distributing patronage. Others felt the new rebellion was over minor accessory gathered bulk and force like a snowball going down hill till it assumed serious size.

In the dirpedo room the silence and the darkness were penetrated by the groaning of the men across the body the warfare. Sweating and back and forth. Knowlton turning to the valves, Toler and the engineer MacDougal was holding up the trunks from the floor, where he would not drown. The prostrate man's body was in violent convulsions as the men still struggled to life the war head off him. MacDougal dipped his head in the bilge. She'll be off in a minute.

The struggling men, sloshing and slipping in the water, at last succeeded in lifting the torpedo clear, lifting off the man's body as another explosion rocked the ship.

"Starboard motor," said the only light in the control room.

"Starboard motor, Captain."

"Hold her steady, then, Captain," he said at last, answering Toler's question. "The circuit breaker was opened with an emergency sig- nal after which the minutes were spent in repairs. It was decided to have a ball team with Mrs. Benjamin Lloyd manager. Peggy Hall as captain and Hudson Ketcheson as manager. Honours for the next meeting are Misses Muriel Shorey, Freda Hinchcliffe and Marjorie Hall.

"Take her up!"

Sparks hurriedly took off the hydrophones.

"They're dead overhead, Sir," he spoke a new series of muffled explosions were heard.

"It's either—" Toler broke into coughing, "it's either die fighting the surface or die like rats from chlorine down here, Nelson, turn on those air valves."

"Throw her in!" Nelson repeated the order to Sparks. Sparks felt on the switchboard, at a moment then faced the Captain.

"Open the ballast, Sir."

"Then pump up the regulator tanks. Blow it out of the ballast tanks, and take her up."

The even metallic beat of the pumps ceased a moment later, and relief showed on the strained and grimy faces of the crew.

The men still coughing, now and then grasping for air, worked hurriedly at the manifold in the after part of the control room. The gauges on the gauge board registered loss of air pressure. The air line with a hiss into the regulator. The water level rose and fell in sight glass as the water was forced into and then out of the tanks by the pumps. The depth registered 200 pounds.

Sparks at the switchboard, was trying to scale "ground" on the motor circuits, by means of indirect connections of battery cells.

"Any luck on that main motor, Sparks?" Toler asked.

"No, sir," coughed Sparks. "She's dead—burned out."

We can't blow any more, captain," MacDougal reported, choking. "The air pressure and the gas pressure are equalized."

"That's all right," Toler said. "Put adjusting pump on the tanks."

"Shall I blow the water into the compartment Captain?" asked Nelson.

Toler coughed as he replied. "No sir, we'll try to get her up on power. MacDougal, put the pump on the main ballast."

The men gathered around MacDougal as he started the motor. The gears of the clutch meshed, and began smoking on the shaft. MacDougal worked impatiently.

Sparks even stopped chewing gum for a moment.

She's won't hold, Captain," reported MacDougal.

"Here wait a minute" said Toler, "Nelson, Sir. Get on the ballast."

MacDougal took a wrench, stretched over the manifold and tightening his head down smartly, began pounding part of the machinery.

"How light do you want 'em Captain?"

"Set 'em up full due."

The men worked then in silence. After a minute MacDougal backed out from the boss into which he had been forced.

"That's all she'll take."

"Then let her go," said Toler.

All eyes were fastened on the gauges. Toler, in the grip of choking desperation every move that MacDougal made. Slowly the pump motor started, chugged slowly for a moment, and then with the pump the motor speeded up and the chugging of the pumps stopped.

"Starboard motor," said Toler, coughed, and said:

"Starboard motor, Captain."

While he waited in the grim silence of the control room, MacDougal felt to cleaning his finger nails with a knife.

"Stop her," was up that clutch as far as it would go." At MacDougal's "Aye, aye, Captain," Toler let's take the clutch out and put the motor full speed ahead. The order was followed by a choking cough.

Every man in the control room was started into action by the order. Knowlton threw the door that had been fastened shut between the control room and the engine room. All work was suspended; the men stood by their posts, in silence and horror was beginning to dawn upon them of the awful grimy faces of Toler and Toler snapped out:

"Who's in there?"

"Only the dead," askeg MacDougal.

"My God—he's in there!" cried Knowlton his eyes turning back from the engine room to the men.

The faint shocking continued, weaker, less rapid. The slow scraping of bodies ceased. The voices of men. Knowlton started for the battery, crying to the Captain:

"I'm going in after that kid!"

Toler, his face a dull red, placed a powerful hand on his shoulder, holding him back. "Nobody can. If he's not dead now he will be all choke to death."

Knowlton pushed off the command-man, turned his back from Toler.

"Come on men, let's get going on the battery room, shut off the hoarse with emotion, his eyes wildly opened.

The pounding on the bulkhead came again—fainter; the hand wielding the steel instrument which clicking against the door was growing weaker. Now a man in the control room but fell, with that heroism new in time, he choking on the chlorine gas strong in his own nostrils, clutching at his throat. They felt they were going mad—but what could they do. Open the door and it would permit fatal gas.

Toler's hang gripped the chart board as he felt that his nails bit into the soft pine —the marks could be seen for weeks. The breaker, the rainier the blows became, the harder her they beat upon the hearts of the men. Sparks' gum looked like mag on the wad of gum between them. He nodded on the long line of his jaws standing out like whip cords. MacDougal's twisting hands bent the screw driver they held.

Suddenly the pounding ceased—the men of the men wildly, "Sing up!"

There came another feeble tap or two, and then all became quiet, The men, as was usual, were in their bunks.

MacDougal got up in silence took his fingers from his ears, and gave five-dollar bills out of it. He walked over to Knowlton still standing by the foot of the dead kitten, and extending the bills.

"Here you can have 'em, Mr. Knowlton."

In the same serious tone that MacDougal had used, Knowlton replied as he took the bills:

"Gardner, the sailor who had Nelson's job, is laughing so wildly when pounding on the battery room bulkhead, had stopped, was slowly and laboriously writing a letter.

"What yuh doin'?" inquired MacDougal.

"Writing home."

"Writin' home—goin' to mail it?"

"Why—why, I never thought of that!" He took the letter up, absently, an odd light in his eyes.

"Then you don't know why can't you hear me?" He jumped to his feet cried wildly. "The rest of you can have my air!" grabbed a revolver from among those hanging on the wall, threw open the door, put it to his head and fired.

Minister's Son Gathers Bottles to Assist in the Cent a Meal Plan

LONDON, Ont., June 5—(CP)—Although they were empty, the whisky bottles that clattered into the minister's back yard garden were to save a treat, discomforting to the clergyman.

So he called his son.

"Where did these come from?" he asked.

The youngster blushed.

"Whisky bottles sell for one-half cent each, so I gather them for the cent-a-meal plan."

This was a story told at the United Church Conference which closed over the week-end.

After Much Concentration Finds he Served Terms in Western Cities

PETERBOROUGH, Ont., June 5 —(CP)— J. W. Earle, transient, arrested on a charge of creating a disturbance on the highway, came in court.

"I have never been in court on a charge before," he told Magistrate O. A. Langley.

"Where before?" re-ched the Magistrate.

"No, Not in this province."

"Well, possibly you have been in jail in other places?"

"No, I don't remember that I have," defendant replied, knitting his brows in profound concentration.

"Were you ever in Regina?"

"Yes, I was only there for 10 days."

"And what was your address?"

"Regina gaol."

The conversation continued. Earle finally remembered having served terms at Regina, Swift Current, Moose Jaw, Battleford, Prince Albert, Sask., and Hamilton, Ont., N.B.

He was sentenced to 30 days in jail.

HAILED FOR ENTERING HIS OWN HOUSE

Rented House, But Rent Was Not Paid to Him

Cobalt, Ont., June 5 (CP)—Magistrate Budzatch was hailed to police court and given suspended sentence for entering his own house. Some time ago he rented the house to Frank Burke; but when rent time came Joe was delinquent with his rent. He consulted his lawyer about it and was told that he could forcibly enter the house in the absence of the tenant. So Joe smashed the door of the house with a sledge hammer and moved his self out. But it turned out that the tenant had paid the rent in the tax collector.

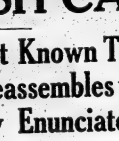
WEEK END TALK



Next Payment by Britain Due to United States June 15

London, June 6—(AP)—A special Cabinet meeting has been called for Friday afternoon, when it was intimated in official circles today, the government expects to have some indication from Washington as to what is expected in the way of a mid-June war debt payment.

London, June 6—(AP)—The question, of what Great Britain will do regarding her war debt instalment due to the United States June 15 may be taken up in the cabinet weekly cabinet meeting tomorrow.

It is regarded as more probable, however, this problem will be dealt with at a meeting set towards the end of the week especially for the discussion of the government's position upon the debts.

In any event it is thought that the government's decision is not likely to be known before the reassembling of the House of Commons June 13, when members of the House are expecting Neville Chamberlain, Chancellor of the Exchequer, will inform them of his policy.

CARDINAL ILL

ANOTHER PRINCE TO MARRY COMMONER

Love Stronger Than Hopes for Kingdoms

New York, June 6—(CP)— For three young European royal scions love has proved stronger than hopes of kingdoms.

In a few or so, 26-year-old Prince of Asturias will marry a daughter of Alfonso, ex-King of Cuban girl, following precedent of German and Swedish Princes, who have renounced their royal claims to marry girls of unequal rank.

He who was Prince Lennart of Sweden is now merely Mr. Bernadotte, the happy father of a month old daughter and the husband of Karin Ericsvardt, a commoner for whom he gave up palaces and chose a lure-crown life.

Another Prince charming was married Saturday. Handsome Prince Wilhelm of Prussia defied centuries-old tradition, defied his fa-les-old tradition, defied his father's and grandfather's hopes, that he might some day rule Germany and chose as his bride a girl of Italian descent, of noble but not royal blood.

FURTHER REMANDED

Cobourg, Ont., June 6 (CP) — Yrgo Lauri, farm hand, held for investigation in connection with the slaying of Mrs. Mildred A. Cavan township aged recluse, appeared in police court today on a further charge of vagrancy and was remanded another eight days.

He is being held in Cobourg jail pending further inquiry by police.

HIGH COST WORK

1930 And 1931 System May be Returned to

OTTAWA, June 6.—(CP)—An agreement between the Federal Government and the Government of Ontario relief matters, is expected to be reached shortly, but it was stated at the office of the Minister of Labor, today, that nothing so far agreed upon would authorize an announcement that a policy of Public Works for relief purposes been adopted.

This was the only comment that could be secured here today on the report Hon. J. D. Monteith, Ontario Minister of Public Works and Labor, had forecast absorption of all the unemployed under a return to the policy of Public Works Relief.

There is considerable agitation from some of the provinces to return to a public works system but in some cases the Dominion may not be able to share the cost without borrowing from the Dominion Government. And, it is stated, there is a limit to which the Dominion may borrow for this purpose.

One Dollar Costs Seven

It has been estimated the cost of giving one unemployed man a dollar a day through Public Works, costs seven dollars because of the overhead and supervision costs. The result is an accumulation of public works that may or may not prove an asset but which, in all events, must be paid for if the debt is not to be realized.

Agreement with many of the provinces are expected to be announced shortly and it is that relief under Public Works system will be restored, as it was carried out in 1930 and 1931, remains a question to be decided.

FIGHT BEFORE MAIN ALTAR

Wm. Dorsey is Felled in Front of Altar in Boston

Boston, June 6 (AP)—Two policemen and two men alleged to have invaded the Mission Catholic church in the Roxbury district battled at the foot of the main altar early today. Finally William Dorsey, 29, was felled in front of the altar and Joseph Robinson, 23, was hauled from under a bench in the sanctuary.

Each was charged with breaking and entering and attempted larceny.

"An alarm system brought the police and six Redemptionist priests to the church. The priests stood ready to aid while the policemen battled with the men.

Britain, France and Italy Wait German Invitation of Four-Power Peace Pact

Rome, June 6 (AP)— Premier Mussolini, today in Senate meeting, said that "negotiations on the four-power pact have reached such a stage that in one sense or another they will arrive at a conclusion."

The Premier said he would address the Senate on the pact tomorrow afternoon if necessary.

Meanwhile the German Ambassador informed the Italian Government that he would present Berlin's answer within 24 hours. The delay was necessary, he explained, because Chancellor Hitler and Foreign Minister Von Neurath are out of Berlin.

Rome, June 6 (CP Cable)—Sir Ronald Graham, British Ambassador to Rome, today received instructions from London to initial the latest text of the four-power peace pact.

At the same time Henry De Jouvenel, the French Ambassador received similar instructions and thus the principal obstacle in the way of signing the pact appeared to be removed.

The Italian government is ready to sign, and the German Ambassador, Ulrich Von Hassel, is awaiting authorization from Berlin.

Sir Ronald and the French Ambassador forwarded to their governments last night the final text of the pact, which was agreed upon after long discussions in the last few days. These discussions centred principally on article three, which refers to disarmament and to the arms equality of Germany.

In the event Ambassador Von Hassel receives favorable instructions in time, it was possible that the pact would be signed soon enough to give Premier Mussolini an opportunity to make a speech before the Senate which was scheduled to discuss the Foreign affairs budget late this afternoon.

The general purpose of the Mussolini pact is to associate Great Britain, Italy, France and Germany in common policies for the preservation of peace. When it was originally presented last March Germany objected to the clause on grounds that the right of the smaller European powers might be prejudiced and that the question of the pact shall be brought within the framework of the League of Nations.

Charge and Denial Unemployed Incited to Approach Vice-Regal Car

Peterborough, Ont., June 6.—(CP)—Aldermen on a motion that the startled City Council last night with the charge which met instant denial that Alderman Fred Tuggey had tried to induce several unemployed men to approach Lord Bessborough's motorcar to lay their grievances before the Governor-General while he was passing through Peterborough recently. "He tried to incite a small mob during the passing of His Excellency," McNabb asserted.

Alderman Tuggey flatly denied the charge and when McNabb, to support his statements, asked William Childs, unemployed from the gallery, "Tuggey didn't tell you to do it, did he?" Childs declared he was standing on the curb with some other unemployed at the Governor General's car approached.

"Alderman Tuggey crossed the street and came over to me," said Childs, after His Honour had told Tuggey to let the man speak. "Everything me on this Bodger," he said: "That's where you fellows ought to be, out in front of that yelling fool and you two would not here on the sidewalk," I can prove it."

"I never made any such statement," declared Alderman Tuggey. "Before God and man, I never made such a statement."

The incident followed a heated discussion on police estimates. "All unemployed relief has been misinformed," Tuggey said. "What I did say was that the speed they were permitting the Governor-General to drive through here was fatal." But afterwards someone was going to stop him."

CATERPILLARS DELAY TRAIN

Millions of Worms Are Stripping Trees in New Ontario

Sudbury, Ont., June 6 (CP)— Canadian Pacific freight train was delayed for more than two hours today just west of Sudbury because of thousands of caterpillars on the track.

The engine's supply of sand exhausted, the wheels skidded on the rails and the train was forced back into Webbwood for more sand.

Millions of the worms are stripping foliage from poplar trees. The Ontario Forestry Branch has notified Dr. J. M. Swayne of the Dominion Entomological Branch at Ottawa of the menace. Around Walford gardens have been stripped bare.

Not in 30 years have black flies been so conspicuous in the bush, bush travellers also report. According to World Reports" an abundance of mosquitoes means abundance of crops.

BRITISH CRICKET

London, June 6—(CP Cable)—Middlesex, Surrey, Hampshire and Somerset scored one-sided victories in first-class county cricket matches concluded today while Warwickshire and Northamptonshire also scored clean-cut wins.

Four Bit Grand Opera Packing 'em in at New York, While Burlesque Dead

New York, June 6 (AP)— Grand opera at four-bits is packing the Metropolitan opera house, indicating that New Yorkers are not as hard-hit as had been suspected.

Mr. Verdi's Opera dealing with the little Egyptian girl, Aida, has been a good regular standby opera for quite a spell, but not even the fondest enthusiasts of opera figured the piece could stand a "run" in a theatre where movies and vaudevilles had failed to excite bravos.

Whether is was the opera or the price, all the 6,500 seats in the huge theatre were taken for the opening Saturday night, and similar business had continued at subsequent performances. The four-bit opera being presented at the price of a three layer sandwich, but it is being embellished with such accessories as elephants and camels to lend it some good old fashioned Egyptian atmosphere.

The audacity of producers in presenting entertainment many years old has been typical of the commercial spirit of the generation in Broadway. Such ancient upstarts as "Aida," "Uncle Tom's Cabin" and the Gilbert and Sullivan repertoire have made their sponsors lame carrying money to the bank.

There is something in the whole situation to inspire philosophic study; grand opera a sell-out, and burlesque shows two blocks away in the throes of extinction.

It must be the elephants.

PROBE INCOME TAX RETURNS OF PARTNERS

Senate Committee Asks Power to Extend Investigation

TAX DEDUCTIONS

Stock Transactions to be Studied by Committee

Washington, June 6 (AP) — The United States Senate Committee investigating J. P. Morgan and Company decided today to ask additional power to inquire into stock transactions of the firm partners affecting their income tax returns.

In a two-hour closed session, it was agreed not at present to go into the income tax matters being pressed by Perdinand Pecora, committee counsel.

The committee adopted a resolution on the ground with other phases of the inquiry while a sub-committee drafts a proposed ruling for presentation, to be presented to the Senate.

The resolution was offered by Senator Glass (D. Va.) and Chairman Fletcher (D. Fla.) supported by Pecora.

The counsel for the inquiry has sought especially to bring out income tax reducing transactions carried out by Thomas S. Lamont, William Ewing and Harold Stanley of the Morgan firm.

The resolution expressed the "sense" of the committee that; it should inquire into stock transactions with a view to taxing powers of the government.

GHOST TOWNS COME TO LIFE

Shades of Olden Golden Past Revivified as Metals Climb

San Francisco, June 6.—(CP) — Ghost towns of the old west — Tombstone, Virginia City; Leadville; Tonopah; Angels Camp and Goldfield — are coming to life again and gilded American history a few pages back is away be clothed with the living flesh and blood of a mining revival as metal prices continue to soar upwards.

Signs of resurrection appeared today in an Associated Press survey of the mining areas of California, Nevada, Nevada, Arizona, Utah and Idaho. In each state operators and engineers of long experience were expanding to some degree and in some of them old mines were being reopened, stirring with newly injected life.

Gold is the objective of the present operations but the activities also are looking forward to the possibility of prices even a war-time level and another profitable ones more.

Gold is still king! in spite of its legal divorcement from the dollar, it has passed through the United States cash registers.

16 PASSENGERS IN BUS KILLED

Lucknow, United Provinces, India, June 6 (AP)—Eastern motorbus passengers, including a woman and two children, were killed by a mail train today at a grade crossing. Only three of the occupants escaped, and they were injured.

LOOT ATTEMPT IS THWARTED

Armed Men in Raid Are Believed Escaped Convicts

Rison, Ark., June 6 (AP)— A band of between five and seven heavily armed men who Sheriff Roy Morrison said he believed were from the Kansas convicts were thwarted in an attempt to loot the town today after the early morning kidnapping of the night watchman.

Lights were turned on and an armed guard of citizens paroled the streets after the alarm had been given that Deputy Sheriff W. A. Dyer, night watchman, and Ed Perkins and Sam Rogers, a Negro, had been kidnaped by three armed men from in front of Harry Thomasson's merchandise store, about 1 a.m.

Thomasson, wakened by Perkins and Rogers, who told him they were in load of hay from Stuttgart, witnessed the departure of the three men when he got up to meet Perkins, and warned the latter that they would return to "loot five or six safes." Their car bore an Oklahoma license.

250 EMPLOYEES ARE AFFECTED BY CUT

Protest Will Be Made by the Brotherhood

STRATFORD, Ont., June 6.—(CP)—Close to 250 employees of the Canadian National Railways here will be affected by the retirement of a 10 per cent wage reduction, effective July 1, the members of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Employees. The wage cut will come into effect July 1 and is the second reduction which has been effected. It is probable that an appeal against the cut will be made by the Brotherhood.

A little 18-pound, portable radio set, hip-pocket size, that will soon receive voice messages, is being tried out by U.S. Forest Service workers.

Automobile of Ancient Vintage is Regularly Seen on Country Roads

"Is this where I purchase my 1923 automobile?" asked an old elderly gentleman, who entered the office of Provincial Police, in license office last Friday afternoon. "Yes sir," replied Mr. Ketcheson, "you have come to the right place."

"A 1910 Ford roadster, and it's in good condition," was the old man's unexpected reply.

Upon closely examining the application Mr. Ketcheson ascertained that the car was owned by the man making the application, Mr. Fred E. Clarke, Victoria Ave., Trenton. Mr. Clarke has owned the ancient motor car since 1932, when he purchased it from the late Sir Adam Beck in the city of Toronto.

Mr. Ketcheson, after the information received from Mr. Ketcheson, that the automobile was in operation, and has been in constant use, during the summer months, for the past 21 years. It is one of those Ford type of automobiles, that boasted of the well known "brass band" which today would be explained as having a brass covering around the radiator, which incidentally are the old carbide lamps are also lined on the outside with brass, which is kept shining like gold.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarke can be seen occasionally driving on the country roads in the vicinity of Trenton and seemingly are deriving as much enjoyment out of their car, which they have now driven for 22 years. They did the day they purchased it, when automobiles were a luxury and were passed upon as an amusement as they speeded passed horse drawn vehicles at the monstrous speed of 12 or 15 miles an hour.

Flier in Need of Rest And Not Willing to Take Chance

HEAD WINDS

At Present Only 54 Minutes Ahead of Record

OMSK, Siberia, June 6.—(AP)—James Mattern, solo round-the-world flyer, who landed here today from Moscow, announced he would continued his flight tomorrow. His plane was in good condition but Mattern decided he needed a rest.

OMSK, Siberia, June 6.—(AP)—James Mattern landed here at 1.35 p.m. today (Moscow Time), 8.35 a.m. Eastern Standard Time from Moscow.

Mattern thus required 12 hours, 21 minutes to fly from Moscow to Omsk, a distance of about 1400 miles which he negotiated without stopping, averaging almost 130 an hour.

Head winds were strong between Moscow and Omsk, slowing up his normal speed, but he knew about them before he left the Soviet capital. He started out knowing that he was running into gradually unsettled and cloudy weather, complicated by rain.

Omsk, a modern city of about 115,000 population, is situated in the middle of a fertile area on the right bank of the Irtysh River.

It is a big commercial city east of the Ural mountains, the dividing line between Europe and Asia. It is on the Trans-Siberian Railway; Mattern's progress is from it from the north and south, and caravans from the Central Asiatic Republic visit it.

New York, June 6.—(AP)—Jimmy Mattern set out from Omsk, Siberia today with a 54 minute lead on the Post-Gatty record up to that point, but lost this advantage when he crossed the 75th record holders flew over Omsk without stopping.

The long Texan, who is seeking to lower the round-the-world flight record from Post and Gatty, was 72 hours, 54 minutes out of Floyd Bennett Field, when he landed in Omsk.

Up to that point in their history-making flight in 1931, Post and Gatty elapsed time from Roosevelt Field was 74 hours and nine minutes.

Instead of stopping at the Siberian City, Post and Gatty flew on 400 miles to land at Novo-Sibirsk with an elapsed time of 76 hours and 36 minutes. That same day the Post-Gatty record at Irkutsk, landing with an elapsed time of 91 hours and 59 minutes.

Mattern this has 18 hours and 44 minutes to catch what may be needs at Omsk and 23 hours and 23 minutes in Irkutsk in time to equal the Post-Gatty record at Irkutsk.

The Texan's representative here said Mattern plans to remain in Omsk only a few hours.

GOLF MATCH IS CALLED OFF

Owing to the untimely death of His Honor Judge J. R. Madden of Napanee, Wednesday's Belleville Golf Club versus Napanee Golf Club match in the latter town has been postponed until July 19th. The game referred to is a scheduled match in the B.N.T.P. League. Hometown golfers throughout the district feel the loss of His Honor Judge Madden as he was one of the pioneer golfers of Eastern Ontario, respected and honored by all who came in contact with him on the links.

PRACTICE IS SCORNED UPON

According to information given out by the highway department the practice of drivers leaving with their elbows out of the left front door of cars is dangerous practice, pointed out by the department this procedure by overtaking automobile drivers, who are about to pass a motorcycle. Upon seeing an elbow projecting from the car window, sometimes mistakes the elbow for a signal for a left hand turn and the same may cause serious motor accidents especially if an after sun-down. To date the matter has been but suggested but later more drastic steps may follow.

TEMPERATURE 82 ON HOTTEST DAY

Belleville sweltered Tuesday on the hottest day so far this year. Only a faint breeze which blew over the district gave relief from the blazing heat of a hot sun which drove thermometers up to the high-est mark, 82 above at noon. Low-est reading officially recorded at the city pump house was 62 at 8 a.m. above during the early morning. The high temperature of yesterday in contrast with the low of 43 and 79 above on Monday, the first intensive loom in the offing as a probability of relief to the present heat which has gripped the city and district since the beginning of the week.

INJURED IN FALL FROM LADDER

In an attempt to assist at house-work in her home, Mrs. Yeomans street, this morning, Mrs. Wm. Schryver, well known resident of that district fell from a ladder she had been standing on and received a nasty cut on one arm. Neighbours assisted in rendering first aid until medical assistance could be secured. Several stitches were necessary to close the wound.

ONE PRIZE FOR EACH CLASS OF PUNTS

Final Arrangements Made for the Summer's Sport

Some discussion featured the meeting of the South End Athletic Club at their club house last night, being called for the purpose of making final arrangements for the part of the regular races to be held this summer, commencing this coming Wednesday.

It was finally decided that one prize would be awarded for each class of sailing punt. Four classes have been named. A longer course will also be laid out this time for the larger boats, with more policing of the harbor by power boats during the race to prevent accidents in case of windy weather. The same course, however, will be used by the smaller boats as has been used on the last race held. Measurements of the boats, which were taken by the committee on these measurements and safety, will stand as they are now unless changes have been made in any of the boats.

A. L. I. Officers Hosts to Staff Hastings-Prince Edward Regt.

Guests Present A. L. I. With Handsome Silver Pitcher

Monday evening in the Officers' Mess of the Argyll Light Infantry in this city, the commanding officer, Major E. A. Deeth, and officers of the unit, were hosts to Lt.-Col. Yates, M.C., officer commanding the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, and some thirty other officers of that battalion. This joint meeting of these urban and rural battalions of this immediate vicinity, has been for some time in contemplation and last evening's happy gathering of the officers of the two units proved most agreeable to all who were privileged to be in attendance.

May Hold "Tattoo"

In replying to Major Geen's words of praise, Lt.-Col. Yates made the proposal that the county and city battalions hold a "Tattoo" during the coming summer, as the agricultural grounds here, which met with hearty approval of the officers present.

Details for this event will be worked out at an early date when sanction is received through military headquarters at Kingston.

Major Geen, in his remarks, complimented the two officers of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment who were last week made King's Counsellors, namely Lt.-Col. C. Donnan and Captain Howard D. Graham, mayor of Trenton. He also complimented the battalion on having on its roster of officers, men who had proved such valuable staff officers, a distinction that few units in Canada could make claim to.

O. C. Replies

Lt.-Colonel Yates, on behalf of his officers thanked the Argyll Light Infantry for the most hospitable evening its officers had proved. Major Blakey of the 49th. Regt. was the first occasion such an event had taken place and he trusted a repetition of the gathering would be forthcoming at some future time. His unit had no place for such a meeting with its companies scattering thru-out two counties, but it was a happy evening and as a token of his officers' appreciation of it, and the kindly and friendly spirit that had prompted the innovation of such a meeting he called on Captain Broad, mess president of his unit, to make a presentation of some tangible, lasting recognition of the affair.

Silver Pitcher Presented

Captain Broad then presented to Major Alford, mess president of the local unit, with a most handsome and suitably engraved silver pitcher. The plate makes another addition to numerous pieces that have been presented to the officers of the Argyll Light Infantry heretofore. The kindly attitude of friendly relationship between the two units was generally acknowledged by Major Alford.

Throughout the affair proved most enjoyable to all attending.

GROUPERS AT ZION'S HILL

OBITUARY

JAMES BATEMAN

A much respected and esteemed resident of Thomasburg passed away this (Tuesday) morning at the residence of his son, Dr. R. M. Bateman, 1031 Sinclair Ave., Toronto. A month ago the late Mr. Bateman underwent an operation, and following this, had gone to Toronto, to remain with his son during his convalescence. The deceased was born in Madoc township, some 75 years ago and had farmed in Huntingdon previous to his removal to Hungerford in the Thomasburg community. For some 20 or 25 years he resided in Huntingdon and during that time was a member of the township council for a number of years; for 30 years his home had been on his farm at Thomasburg.

The late Mr. Bateman was a member of the Thomasburg United Church, the Orange Society and an Oddfellow, in which order he had held prominent offices. He was a Conservative and took an active participation in the political contests of that party in the constituencies where he resided.

His wife predeceased several years ago and four brothers have also passed away, two of whom were the late Robert and Joseph Bateman of Madoc. To those left to mourn his loss is extended the sympathy of a wide circle of friends of the deceased and friends of the family survive.

The immediate family remaining are three sons, Dr. R. M. Bateman, Toronto, Mr. Whose time of death occurred; James of Thomasburg, and Irvine at home, and one daughter, Miss Lillian of Toronto.

LATE ROY ROSE

The funeral of the late Roy Keeler Rose took place this afternoon from the residence of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alvin H. Rose, 5th. concession of Thurlow to the Roslin Anglican Church for service there at 2.30 o'clock. The Rev. F. R. Graham, rector of Roslin, conducted service at the house, the church and at the graveside in Roslin cemetery. A large number of friends and neighbors were in attendance to pay their last tribute of respect to a most popular young man of the district whose tragic death by drowning Friday evening has had cast a pall of gloom over the section of the country where he had resided.

Acting as bearers were Messrs. John Townsend, Arthur Reid, Kenneth Twidale, Percy Reynolds, Willie Cox and Grenville Prentice.

Floral tributes:

Spoken Word—Father and Mother.

Baskets of Flowers—Sister and Brother-in-law; Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Kelly; Charles Rose and Mr. and Mrs. E. Palmer.

Turney; Mr. and Mrs. J. Akonsbrack.

GEORGE NOBLE

At the residence of his daughter, Mrs. Delbert Weese, Coleman St., George Noble passed away on July morning following a year's illness. The deceased was born in Prince Edward County 83 years ago and had resided there all his life; for the past four years he had made his home with his daughter in Belleville.

To mourn his loss immediately remaining are two sons, George A. and Harry of this city; two daughters, Mrs. Isaac Conners and Mrs. Delbert Weese also of Belleville, and a brother, Peter, resident in Picton.

Letters to the Editor

To Editor Ontario Intelligencer:

Belleville, Ontario.

Dear Sir:

The writer wishes to defend the present system of music, as it is taught in the schools throughout the Province of Ontario.

As a rule the critics are those least conversant with the subject.

1.—These people who have no children attending school are those who are so indifferent they do not interest themselves in the development of education.

2.—Those who have no musical education.

3.—Those who can afford to have private tuition for their children.

A few years ago I was under the impression that the "Solfa" method was not sufficient to teach our boys and girls. What I did not understand, and what the majority of people do not know, is that now, after a thorough training in notes and time by the Solfa method, the pupil is transferred as quickly as possible to the staff. I am thoroughly convinced, from experience, that music as it is now taught in the schools of Ontario, is the only way, and a most ideal one for our children, collectively.

Our own Richard Johnson, of Metropolitan fame, has encouraged music to be taught to the children of his own home city (Orillia). He has also stated his reason—that a child's mind should be developed through the ear, as well as by sight.

The pupils of Wallbridge School, Sidney township, can prove to anyone who would care to investigate, the suitability of the method used by the Department of Education in the Province of Ontario. They will welcome anyone who wishes to attend their classes for observation, and will prove to them that after two years' study, they are proficient in reading and singing from the staff, and that by the end of June they shall have accumulated knowledge which embraces formation of chords and scales, besides all the other things necessary to intelligent singing of simple songs, and part singing.

I thank you, Mr. Editor, for the opportunity of sending this system of teaching music.

Yours truly,

Richard Johnson Vandervater.

Foxboro, Ontario.

THE CAPITOL IS CONFIDENT OF ECONOMIC IMPROVEMENT

The general belief that trade is on the upgrade is partially shared by the owners of the Capitol Theatre.

Manager Holmes announces that expensive additions and improvements to the Northern Electric Sound System have just been completed at the popular downtown theatre.

Each year quite a large amount of money is spent in internal and external improvements, and up to date cooling, heating and sound have all received special attention. Hereby ensuring comfort for the theatre's large clientele.

Future bookings promise even increased entertainment, and include "Peg O' My Heart" with Marion Davies; "Letting in the Sunshine" introducing England's new Chaplin, Albert Burdon, who was seen as the comedian in "Maid of the Mountains"; "The Cohens and Kellys in Trouble" and "Reunion in Vienna" in the Sidney-Murray team in a new hit; "The Silver Giant," Edward G. Robinson's latest, and all the British productions.

Such bookings promise crowds at the Capitol and will bring entertainment of the highest class to Belleville.

Suggested Amalgamation of 2 Fire Halls to be Considered by Committee of Council

Member of Underwriters Committee Asked to Confer

LITTLE BUSINESS

New Oiler Likely in City By End of The Week

A member of the Underwriters Association will be asked to meet at the special committee of the City Council with regard to the location of the two fire halls in the city under one roof, according to a resolution passed by the council at their regular session on Monday night. In 1930 estimates were given the council on the cost of amalgamating the two halls and the Underwriters at that time were agreeable to the location at the end of Victoria Park for that purpose. Whether they are of the same mind at the present time will be determined at the meeting soon to be held.

In opening the discussion, Alderman Harry Hill, chairman of the committee, thought the amalgamation of the two halls would be a greater saving to ratepayers. The Number One hall was in a bad state of repair and that something would have to be expended and immediately to make the place habitable for the year by Fire Chief Ashley said. Hill, "and there is liable to be an accident as the floor is not in good shape and will probably loss of life if the roof should cave in or the floor give way in fixing up the hall, the city is spending without getting a return, while an amalgamation can be made for around $7,000, which would be worth while. It will be a saving in the neighborhood of $2,000 to fix up the Number Two hall and the expenditure must be made at once."

Advocated Amalgamation

Alderman Marshall—"I was one of the special committee appointed and after looking carefully over the situation found that the new station should be included. The space where the police station now stands could be used in market space and would bring a rental of nearly a hundred dollars a year. The saving in fuel with this added revenue would decrease the interest on the debenture debt about one-half. A first class fire hall and police station can be built in the city for around $50,000. I am not advocating that the new station be a new one but I think it is a matter the council should give some consideration to and be ready to proceed next year."

Ald. Donahue was against any plan to amalgamate the fire halls and the police station under one roof. "The plan was accepted," said Ald. Donahue, "so amalgamate the two fire halls at a cost of around $7,000 and that should be enough. The Number Two hall is not falling down and it is good enough with a little repair for a good many years to come. The city is not rich and the taxpayer is carrying a sufficient load at the present time and I for one would be against any more suggested by Alderman Marshall. The police station will cost the city of Belleville for many years and it is good enough and to burden the taxpayer with a heavy load of $50,000 and interest at the present time is not good business."

Ald. Brickman agreed with Ald. Donahue with regard to the heavy cost and thought that the plan as submitted for the amalgamation of the two fire halls was enough. The alderman asked if the same service could be given by the fire department by using one fire hall only and Ald. Hill told him that it would be a considerable saving and the work of the brigade would not be hampered.

Alderman Harker—"I think the opinion of Alderman Hill is the most feasible and would support a motion to have the Underwriters down at once to discuss the situation."

Mayor Tice took exception to the remarks that were drawn and the Underwriters' permission was received to build the two fire halls together on Victoria Park. This ended the discussion and the recommendation previously mentioned was passed.

Referred Back

A letter was received from the Radio Commission intimating that vouchers be given for work done instead of direct relief but on the council simply read the communication and referred it back to the committee for further consideration.

Ken Bunnett was hired as driver of the oiler and R. Newton as "all man" by a recommendation of the council. The City Engineer suggested that two members of the council proceed to Brantford before taking over the machine to see if the Waterous Company had fulfilled their contract. The new oiler will be brought to the city by the end of the week. Incidentally, another petition was received from those residents on Bridge street asking that the street be not oiled this year and the matter was referred to the committee on oiling.

The city auditorium will be finished by Wednesday and it is a credit to the contractors and the city as a whole. It looks quite well in the new coat of paint and new hardwood floors and the council passed a vote of thanks that will be in vogue when it is opened. Outside organizations concert, etc., for charity will pay $25.00 a night; local organizations concerts, etc., not for charity will pay $15.00; local organizations, concerts for profit charging admission for purposes will pay $15.00; all public meetings not for profit charging admission for which no admission fee is charged will pay $10.00, and meetings in the interests of the city will have the hall free of charge.

Ald. Hill, Dudley and Mrs. Lillian Mikel were appointed as councillors representing the Belleville to serve on the Canada Exhibition Association for the coming summer. The Bell Telephone will install two fire alarm boxes on the market for use of the patrons. The Kiwanis Club was given permission to hold a Carnival in the city from June 19th to 24th and the Belleville Fair Ground was given the contract for 2,000 tax notices and slips. One by-law dealing with the revision of building licenses in the city was given its third reading, the remaining no further business the council adjourned.

Those present were Mayor Tice, Aldermen Hill, Donahue, Brickman, Hale, Imhoff, Harker, Marshall and Armstrong. Alderman Armstrong was in the chair.

GIVE BACK POSITIONS

Jews in German Upper Silesia to be Reinstated

Geneva, Switzerland, June 6.—(AP)—Upper Silesian officials under Leader Hitler's Government pledged his word before a public League of Nations Council meeting today, that Germany will give back to Jews and others they recently lost in German Upper Silesia.

The question of Germany's treatment of the Jews in Upper Silesia was brought before the League Council May 30, when Frans Bernheim, a German Jew, presented a petition charging that the barring of German Jews from professional positions constituted a Polish-German convention guaranteeing certain rights regardless of race or religion.

Caustic words passed between Friedrich Von Keller, German representative, Osusky of Czechoslovakia, and the Norwegian representative, Christian Lange at the meeting today.

Herr Von Keller charged Lange with having misinterpreted the good word of Germany when the Norwegian referred to the necessity of preventing local officials from misunderstanding the purport of general laws and insisted that Osuski went beyond the agenda when he brought to the problem of minorities should be handled by the League Assembly.

ENGLAND'S MOLLISONS SEEK THREE NEW FLIGHT RECORDS

Three new world records are the objectives of Captain and Mrs. James A. Mollison, the former Amy Johnson, world-famous fliers. Their plans call for (1) non-stop flight from London to New York; (2) then, following one day's rest, non-stop flight from New York to Bagdad (6,000 miles), then back to London, for a total distance of 12,000 miles. Success would mean (1) the first London-New York flight; (2) the first two-way North Atlantic crossing; and (3) the world's long-distance records. ELECTRICAL BUILDING AT QUEENS BURNS

Fleming Hall, Oldest Unit of University Now in Ruins

SHORT CIRCUIT

Radio Station is Destroyed Whole Loss Being $200,000

KINGSTON, Ont., June 6—(CP) Fleming Hall, Electrical Engineering Building and one of the oldest units of the Queen's University group, was reduced to a smouldering pile of ruins today in a spectacular fire which caused damage estimated in excess of $200,000.

The fire believed to have been caused by a short circuit in the electrical wiring system, destroyed the University Radio Station CFRC and equipment valued at thousands of dollars. Professor D. M. Jenkins, head of the Electrical Engineering Department, said the damage was well covered by insurance.

Half an hour before the blaze was discovered the University night watchman had made his rounds of the hall and reported that he had found everything in order. While he was inspecting another building the lights were extinguished suddenly, and he immediately sensed some serious trouble had developed in the central power plant located in the basement of Fleming Hall. When he reached the building, sheets of flames already were eating their way through the interior. They rapidly spread to the Upper storey, following a sharp explosion that brought the chemicals in the laboratories and burst through the roof.

Flames Gain Headway

When firemen reached the scene in response to a general alarm sent at 2.30 a.m., the flames had gained such headway they could do little but protect adjacent buildings. Shortly after several streams of water were brought to play through the windows the roof of the hall collapsed, showering embers in all directions.

Residents of neighboring houses rushed to their roof-tops with pails of water to extinguish sparks and hundreds of spectators gathered at the gates of the University to watch and to keep them out of danger. The glare of the flames was visible for many miles.

About one year ago a disastrous conflagration swept through Kingston Hall the Arts Building, causing damage of about $100,000, and 25 years ago the old medical building was destroyed. Four years later the Henry Athens was gutted by fire with a loss of approximately $85,000.

The original building in which science was taught was remodelled about 25 years ago from a foundation established by Sandford Fleming, former Chancellor. During more recent years the building had been modernized to house the University radio station and central power plant.

RAIL TRAFFIC SHOWS INCREASE

London, Ont., June 5 (CP)—"Exceptional increase" in Western Ontario railway traffic was reported during May, railroad officials announced today.

Although railway officials declare May is not usually a month of heavy traffic the increase during the past 30 days has been marked. "The gain is distinctly not a seasonal upturn but indicates clearly a real business improvement," J. K. Paisley, Canadian National Railway freight agent here said today.

GREAT DAM IS STARTED

Will Create Greatest Artificial Lake Man Ever Built

Boulder City, Nev., June 6 (CP)—The world's greatest dam started to rise today.

Without ceremony the pouring of concrete into the river bed foundation for Boulder Dam from which the mighty Colorado River was diverted last year, was set to begin at 11 a.m. for more than two years of this pouring—7,000,000 tons in all—will continue. Finally rise a massive concrete structure 730 feet from the foundation rock and sufficiently high to raise the height of the Colorado 582 feet to create the greatest artificial lake man so far has set out to build.

August 1, 1935, is the date the engineers of the United States Reclamation Service say the dam will be finished. It will be 1,180 feet across, and will require 3,500,000 barrels of cement in its construction.

HORSE BOLTS WAGON UPSET

Driver, Grand Girdwood And Bill Chambers Cut By Glass

TRENTON, June 6.—(Special)—What might have been a serious accident occurred yesterday afternoon at 5 p.m. on Dundas street, opposite the Post Office, when the bread wagon, owned by the Trent Valley Bakery, upset after a trace had broken and the horse, driven by Grant Girdwood the driver, sustained cuts on his arm by flying glass while Bill Chambers, who was riding on the wagon, escaped injury. The horse bolted from the wagon after the upset, going direct to the barn.

HIT BY FALLING BRICK

Harry Thurston received painful injuries to his head and left hand when he was struck by a falling brick at the old building next to the Trent Cottons Factory. Dr. Parks of Consecon was on the injured man. Four stitches were required to close the head wound and three in the hand.

TO APPEAR FOR THEFT

Miss Maude Munn, Dundas street reported to the police on Sunday evening, that five dollars had been taken from her purse in the cloak room of Grace Church during the evening service. A youth residing in Smithfield was later arrested and will appear this afternoon charged with theft.

ADDRESS ON MILK HEARD

The Trenton Rotary Club were addressing by Dr. A. E. Berry of the Department of Health on their regular weekly meeting at the Gilbert House at noon today.

Dr. Berry chose "Milk" as his topic, discussing the process of pasteurization with lantern slides. "Milk is not a perfect food, but it's the best we've have", stated Dr. Berry. Many epidemics of different municipalities have been traced to dangerous unclean milk. After these epidemics, pasteurization has been enforced like shutting the door after the dog has fled.

Dr. Berry said the department of health could not enforce pasteurization as it was up to the different municipalities although it is the standard method.

Many arguments are put up against pasteurization of milk but experiments have proven that no harm is done to the food value by pasteurization.

Many women attended as guests of the Rotarians to hear Dr. Berry speak.

C.P.R. WIN

The C.P.R. defeated the Foreign Legion last night 8-5 putting both teams on equal standing in the Trenton Softball League. Errors by Wylie at short for the Legion and unnecessary base running lost the game. Grandon pitched for the C.P.R. taking four hits on four trips to the bat, the last for three bases. Another sensational catch by Bowler hard but he was ably supported in the field. The only homer was hit by Kidd. of the C.P.R. in the fourth inning.

Brant in the Legion box started very shaky, walking four, but settled down later to finish a good game.

Line-ups:

Foreign Legion—Whitehead, 2rd; Wylie ss; Johnson 2nd; Brant p; Marsden lf; Whitehead, Sr. cf; Whalen lf; Johns rf.

C.P.R.—Grandon c; Begin 2nd; Jordon 3rd; Kennedy lf; Kidd c; Johnson cf; Long 1st; Weese rf; Bowler p.

Ingenious Device to Catch Cat Naps While in the Air Explained by Jimmy Mattern

FLYERS GOING TO THE MARK

(By The Canadian Press)

While Jimmy Mattern continued his "round-the-world" flight today, British, Spanish and Italian aviators were completing plans for trans-Atlantic flights.

Mattern landed at Omsk, Siberia, at 1.35 p.m. today 5.35 a.m. (E.S.T.).

The famous flying Mollisons, Capt. James A. Mollison and his wife, Amy Johnson, will start from London for New York Wednesday if the weather is good. From New York they plan to fly to Bagdad and thence to England.

In Cebedelle, Italy, 100 Italian aviators are tuning up more than a score of planes for a mass flight by stages to Montreal and thence to Chicago, to start in a few days.

Capt. Mariano Barberan and Lieut. Joaquin Collar announced they will hop off from Spain to Chicago days for a projected hop from Seville, Spain, to Havana.

SUN POWER AS ENERGY SOURCE

May Supersede Water Power States Delegate

Vancouver, June 6—(CP)—Done with formalities of greetings, delegates to the Fifth Pacific Science Congress began major discussions in a dozen committee rooms today.

Harnessing the sun's power may supersede water power as a source of energy in the future if large scale development of a power plant at the Smithsonian Institute, Washington, D.C., proves practical, Dr. C. G. Abbot, Secretary of the Institute, told the first regular public congress delegates. He prophesied great potentialities for chemical use.

Dr. W. S. Adams, Director of the Mount Wilson Observatory, California, outlined in a paper his theory that the earth is regular in its cycles of 11 years. At present, the sun is comparatively free from spots on the surface exposed to the earth, he said. Dr. Adams discounted any connection between weather or the earth and sun spots.

Robs For Children Freed on Probation

London, Ont., June 5 (CP)—"It really isn't such a bad old world is it, mum?" Mrs. Hammond told 21, married, as he walked out of the court room today on probation. Hammond, who has been out of work for a long time, was charged with breaking and entering and theft of $15.50 from a store. He needed money for food for his two children.

J. H. Vanstone, the man Hammond robbed, secured counsel for the 21-year-old man and was instrumental in securing his release.

Next Stop For Intrepid Flier is Omsk in Siberia

WELL AHEAD

At Present He is 5 Hours 15 Minutes Ahead of Post-Gatty Record

Moscow, June 6 (AP)—Fifty-one hours and 37 minutes after his take off from New York the smiling Texan Jimmy Mattern arrived here amid a cheering welcome and set, barring unstated flyers knew, changing because necessary plane repairs kept him here nine hours and 17 minutes. But he was off again in the red-white-and-blue Century of Progress at 1.14 a.m. (5.15 p.m. Monday E.S.T.), flying over established routes to Omsk, Siberia.

Despite the delay occasioned by the necessity of repairing two trays apparently resulting from ice, that loomed during the Trans-Atlantic leg, Mattern was five hours 15 minutes up on the record established in 1931 by Wiley Post and Harold Gatty.

Due to the unfavorable weather conditions over the shorter route he had planned to follow to Alaska via Yakutskhe, he decided on the longer route of 4,100 miles, 1,400 miles east of Moscow.

"Then I crossed my legs and with my right foot put a slight pressure on the left rudder, which equalized the pressure of a power plant and even course.

"That's how I got my cat naps."

"I feel fine, but I would like to have about six hours sleep," he said when he arrived.

Then to more water hops—If he fulfils his plans—remain before him, the sea of Okhotsk and the Bering Sea, and Nome, Alaska, his goal. His main purpose, he said, was to set a mark which no one wants nevertheless to break the record of Post and Gatty of eight days, 15 hours, and 51 minutes.

COAL PRICE REDUCTION

Reduction in the price of coal as announced some days ago even if it has come in a period of the year when little coal is being burned is still a subject of interest. The reductions are welcomed.

Fuel has been in the unenviable position of being the last and only commodity except gold to escape feeling the depression. How rigidly the price has been maintained for the last four years people know only too well, with a fivure unchanging no matter what it was last place in the rest of the business world.

AN ANCIENT SONG

At the graduation exercises at the Collegiate on Friday, Col. W. N. Fonton, M.A., quoted verse from the old Harrow School song, banded down from Elizabethan days. These lines would form an appropriate heading for your interesting historical re-scripts of twenty, thirty, forty and fifty years ago, published daily and eagerly scanned by all our appreciative readers:

"God give us boldness to believe,
Courage to play out, whether earnest or fun.
Fights for the fearless and goals for the eager,
Thirty, and forty, and fifty years on."

TWO WAYS OF WARRING

The west may laugh or smile (if it should smile at so cruel a thing as war) at the Oriental notions of war and truces and yet such a manner of fighting may drive home the thought to westerners that the Occidental way of fighting is savage. The Oriental must take a breathing space but the western armies, intent upon slaughter of flesh, blood, nerve and bone would laugh at a truce which was a mere "breathing spell."

And yet, as an afterthought, we should, perhaps, realize that warfare is so foreign to the western man that when he is at it daggers are drawn and he cannot allow a lighter thought to mingle with the whole nasty, horrible business. The Oriental way is more leisurely but the western way is more deadly, it is more the act of man almost mad by fighting. Because war is so unnatural, and especially in modern, there is no holiday, no truce for western armies.

TIME'S PASSAGE MARKED

Time's relentless ravages with the lives of men, is brought out clearly in a glance over the list of the executive officers of the Old Boys' Reunion of 1910. Honorary Presidents, Sir Mackenzie Bowell; honorary Vice-Presidents, William Johnson, Arthur McGinnis, W. B. Northrup, E. Guss Porter, 1st Vice-President, Capt. D. V. Sinclair, and treasurer, L. W. Marsh, of that year, have all passed from the scene of mortality, and only one officer remains, Col. W. J. Gerow.

The chairmen of committees of that reunion lost only one by death, Dr. H. A. Yeomans. The other chairmen were J. V. Jenkins, W. Ross Ostrom, Arthur McGie, Ald. R. C. Chown, and Harry J. Clarke, all living though several do not live here.

But again in the ranks of the reception committee death's fell hand has fallen. James A. Ross alone left. Those who have died are Judge Fraleck, Senator H. Corby, Col. S. S. Lazier, Col. Dr. Farley, Col. P. Ponton, Judge Bingham, Thomas Hoskin, Hugh Walker, Donald McLean, James Cummins, Thos. S. Carman, Nathaniel Vermilyea, and Allan McPhee.

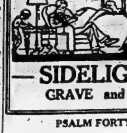
Twenty-three years ago this list was intact, today but a remnant remains. To have met in 1910 was something long to be remembered as it is many years later to have attended the events of that summer have held aside their labors.

If results of any value it is surely shown by such a list, though of course, twenty-three years is a long stretch of time, almost a quarter of a century.

THE QUESTION

A question has been canvassed during the past few weeks as people seem to be in doubt as to what is actually putting up prices. New York Times says that a fundamental change in attitude may be at the base of the rise in commodities and stock prices, perhaps, even more so than inflation.

The Times looks to the Economic Conference as a key to what will happen in the world.



Probably this doubt is what has always been witnessed during a recovery, though the depression of 1929-32 has made the people more than ordinarily skeptical.

PSALM FORTY-ONE

How blest is he with pity for the poor,
Who turns no hungry being from his door!
The Lord will help him when misfortunes come,
The Lord will deliver him from ways of doom.
When ill, his strength and courage shall not fail:
This is the heaviest blow of all to feel!

But, O, my Lord, in mercy raise me up,
Let not my enemy taste triumph's cup!
Give your compassion as a deathless sign
Your favor my way will ever shine;
And as a token of your boundless grace
Give me the light eternal of your face!

"THE BUSINESS MAN should take a foremost places in the ranks of the ambassadors of world peace. TREMENDOUS FORCES are gathering to battle for a better world for all to live in—for a better world for some to live in—or for a world still staggering drunkenly crazily somewhere, nowhere, to destruction unless the good God again intervenes to counteract man's savage stupidity. Efforts to better economic conditions in the world are being made on every hand but the forces of selfishness and greed will have to be defeated before mankind will be able to see the final glimmer of the millenium which might be.

PRESIDENT FRANKLIN ROOSEVELT is facing perhaps his hardest fight in his efforts to create a publicly owned and operated hydro electric development similar to the Hydro Electrel Commission development in Ontario. Immense power has been harnessed at Muscle Shoals in the Tennessee Valley but thus far it has stood idle except to furnish private interests with limited amounts of power at low prices. Big Business in the United States is satisfied to let the government develop the power if it can sell it at its own price, and will not surrender to the President's policies of public ownership and operation without a struggle.

ANOTHER DICTATOR has successfully crossed the North Atlantic Ocean,—seems to be getting easier all the time. James Joseph Mattern (U.S.A.) did the trick, and after landing himself in a field landed safely at Oslo, Norway. Napoleon said that an army travels upon its stomach but this lone eagle flew on his nerve for all the food he took with him was half a dozen oranges. Some dietticians tell us that the more we eat the less efficient we become, and if it is a fact that Caesar's legions marched, fought and conquered all the then known nations of the world on one meal a day, looks as though moderns have made a dangerous habit out of a necessity of nature, fuel for energy replacement, recharging batteries, as it were, just a bit too strongly each day. However, with so many schools of diet it's just a bit complicated which to choose—and so, we'll just naturally choose the diet that pleases us best—if any.

Bellevile gave a hearty welcome yesterday to Lord and Lady Minto and their handsome daughters. Mayor R. J. Graham met the Viceregal party at the Grand Trunk station and accompanied them on their special train to the market square where a large crowd was assembled. It was twenty minutes after four o'clock when the train arrived in the square. A guard of honor with Capt. Doidge in command was in attendance. The other officers were Lieut. Brown and Lieut. Hayes. When the Governor General and his party appeared on the train platform, the soldiers presented arms, the band played "Rule Britannia" anthem, cheers were given, a few introductions followed and then the visitors met the prominent citizens entered carriages and drove to the grounds of Queen Victoria School. Following was the order of the carriages and their occupants:—No. 1—Lord and Lady Minto, Mayor Graham and Capt. Doidge. No. 2—Ladies Eileen and Ruby Minto, Capt. Graham and Mr. Northrup. No. 3—Mrs. Graham, Stewart, Mesdames Graham and Bleecker. No. 4—Mesdames Mc-P. Lieut. Col. Halliwell, Mesdames W. D. Ponton and J. W. Johnson. No. 5—Ald. Pope, Ald. Did you ever hear about Willie? Harvey said. Eat your vegetables first and then you have room to work on your meet, that's the order of play and you know it, he said.

Then Willie tryed to work on Willie said, and pop said, Now Willie, this is serious, you'll eat your vegetables or you wont eat anything.

Then I'm not hungry, Willie said. And he put down his fork, and me and Gladdis couldn't help but see his inevnitivness, that's all. Now Willie, grandmother lives with now how you can eat your vegetables first without any trouble at all, she said.

And she took his plate and tore off all the peez and spinnitch except a teeny little bit of each, saying, Now Willie, eat the peez and nice vegetables for grandmother.

Willie looked at them, one taking him about 3 mouthfulls, and ma said, There, you see, the principal of the thing is the important thing and the principal has been upheld.

MAN'S LOVE AND WOMAN'S NOT THE SAME

Startling Analysis by Dr. L. E. Biach of Love

BY LOUIS E. BISCH, M.D., Ph.D., Famous Authority on Health And Psychology

When a man falls in love there is more of the element of selflessness in it than there is in a similar experience on the part of a woman. This holds true even if his love affair is a highly idealized and romanticized one.

What man experiences when he falls in love is a conquest, a material pleasure, a sort of sensual enjoyment. Woman, on the other hand, finds in love an opportunity for the exercise of duty, devotion, sacrifice and even self-abasement.

When a man makes the object of his desires his own, his ego mounts markedly. In fact his achievement may so inflate him as to make him rather a disagreeable fellow. He plumes over his victory, he has no sympathy whatever for his defeated rivals. And the more popular the lady of his choice the more elevated if actually notorious—and the more jealous the rivals, the more his success, the prouder does he feel.

This explains why men often marry women whose intellect is far above question. Indeed, they often seem to go out deliberately in getting their names to women who have been divorced, thereby giving rise to those who have appeared in newspapers linked with a prominent name.

A woman is proud, too, when a man lends her his name. But her pride, however is motivated by reasons different from those of man. She glories, for example, in the ability of having at last found a single love for whom she can sacrifice; also that she has cultivated other traits which will make her revenge every woman tends quickly to pamper and spoil a man, to be a good of her husband and children, thus forcing her own personal ego to take a back seat.

In the love game the man always seems to be thinking of himself. When a woman flatters him he is apt to believe it. He also likes to believe things she does not know or understands him. He enjoys being taking her to places where she has a golden twilight of romance. He like to introduce her to new voices and new faces to think she only shares with him.

During the preliminary love bouts women, as a rule, are apt to make themselves as alluring and as irresistible as possible. They even accomplish this they willingly "make believe." They assume an old-fashioned mid-Victorian pose as a "vamp" and according to the best traditions of the past. It merely signifies a kind of humility that will go far in order to be liked and accepted.

The man, sex, as such, may be something quite different from love. He may, indeed, consider it a thing to be ashamed of. Love may bring back the personality of his sweetheart or wife. Often it is a negative instinct to him that is something to be overcome. He is driven by love enough not to allow it to interfere with his business or career.

Psychologically the man wants to separate sex and love. To her it is so closely linked with her maternal strivings —which invariably are present—that she is very thought of sex seems sordid and vulgar.

Dr. Bisch's Daily Diet Hint

The best way of cutting down menu cost is to study the caloric value of various foods. For this one, suit a look on diet, which can be obtained from a public library. You will find that inexpensive foods are not always the most nutritious; also that high priced delicacies and expensive foods may be selected that are both appetizing and satisfying.

Reflections on Art of Living

Address by Mr. E. V. Illsley Before Belleville Rotary Club

"Some reflections on the art of living" was the subject of a very interesting address before Belleville Rotary Club Monday by E. V. Illsley, local manager for the Bank of Commerce. Quoting a sage who said the human life in its work is like making a living but in making a life, Mr. Illsley went on to analyse the best things in life, what really constitutes success, and how the best things of life are always overlooked, and the end of the journey complete success in this endeavor would never be achieved until the law of the Golden Rule was applied in its entirety to the every day law of business and life generally. Only then will all national problems be rightly solved.

Mothers Heroism

A tribute was paid to the mothers of all time for their heroic and self less lives, giving birth and caring for the future leaders of the nation who have come, for the most part, from the humble homes where want was always perpetually close. These sons of the humble homes have become the leaders of the nations and the mothers are entitled to all credit for self sacrifice and heroism in the face of hardship and discouragement. Adversity is the great tea, master and disciplinarian. Let us win and retain friendships, said the speaker and be so-minded that we can take possible rebuke from a friend and mend our ways accordingly.

Brief reference to the delights and benefits of working in one own garden of watching nature perform the miracle of creation of flowers and vegetables—of the chaste music and the finer things of life which are close at hand, pleasing and helpful outline of how to make the art of living serve the very best purpose for man and mankind.

Industry must regulate itself wisely for the public good, if it is to escape regulation from without. —Charles M. Schwab.

FINE PROGRAM GIVEN AT BRIDGE ST.W.M.S. MEETING

Speakers Tell of W.M.S. in The Dominion of Canada

The regular monthly meeting of the Bridge Street Church Women's Missionary Society was held in the ladies' parlor Friday, June 2nd.

In the absence of the President, Mrs. Judge Deroche, presided.

Meeting opened by singing hymn 241 "Wonderful Story of Love."

The minutes of the last meeting and the treasurer's report were read and adopted. Mrs. F. E. O'Flynn paid tribute to the life and work of Mrs. Berkeley, one of our Life members, whose death since our meeting has passed on to higher service. Mrs. Deroche then took the meeting over to Mrs. Pinkie, whose program was in charge. The subject being the 8th and 9th chapter of the Study Book "Work of the W.M.S. in the Dominion of Canada."

Mrs. Stewart gave the Bible reading the 102 psalm, after which Mrs. O'Flynn led in prayer. Mrs. Hunter sang very sweetly. "We shall not walk alone any more." Mrs. Pinkie invited the women of the churches who have been the first and foremost to practise systematic giving, and to waken and feed missionary behavior, by constant missionary intelligence. The noblest achievement of the W.M.S. has not been schools, homes and frontier hospitals, but vetliant Christ-like women, and an ardent Christian atmosphere at home.

Mrs. McEwan gave a paper on the Canadian Congregational Women's Board of Missions. She said it was organized in Ottawa on June 10th, 1886. A public meeting had been given the women to come to a parlor meeting at the present time, but only four women attended. Such was the feeble beginning of the two cents per dollar era forty years ago. Independent existence it retained as a noble auxiliary to British missions.

Mrs. J. D. O'Flynn spoke of the Methodist Church, Canada, which was born on June 7th, 1890. The first women's society called Dorcas was sent to support the Indian Girls' Home at Crowstand, N.W.T. It is impossible to compute the good accomplished by this society. It grew to be a great Canadian-like service, and in its sense of responsibility for the welfare of women and children in the Dominion.

Mrs. Brooks spoke of the work of the W.M.S. of the Presbyterian Church. Previous to 1914 it was in two divisions, the Western and the Eastern. The former included all the Canadian provinces the Maritime provinces. The society has depended for vitality and prosperity on the devotion and self sacrifice of members and officers of the auxiliaries Presbyterians, and the general society, whose names are unknown to record fame but whose names are known in the Kingdom are nevertheless, the women who have been faithful to give the everlasting gospel until these last days in the earth.

Mrs. Pinkie spoke on the W.M.S. of the United Church of Canada, and said the United Church was the fruitless to carry out the motion of the three churches. "Thou shalt love Christ." Mrs. Pinkie was by power, but by my Spirit said the Lord of Hosts," and "Feed my lambs," unto you do it."

Mrs. Pinkie spoke on Community Missions, and said this department has as its motto "Christ for Friendliness." There are 20 community centres in the East, and 13 in the West.

Mrs. Hunter stated the W.M.S. seeks to serve the women and children of both the Japanese and Chinese in 4 centres in Canada. The only home for Oriental women in Canada is in Victoria, and the response to the needs of it has been encouraging.

Mrs. McEwan spoke of the work of the Medical missionaries, which has proved a boon on the frontier, educating people in the good home terms of health for themselves and children.

Mrs. Cartley spoke on Boarding schools and school homes. She said the W.M.S. had 18 boarding schools providing 2 homeless infants, one for 580 children.

Mrs. F. E. O'Flynn stated the W.M.S. had an interest in nine centres in Canada. It also employs several field nurses on the reserves, who minister to the sick in lonely places, many miles from a hospital.

Hymn 125, "There's a Royal banner given for disney" was sung.

Mrs. Cartley gave a summary of the 7th chapter of the Study Book on "A half Century of Missions."

She stated the United Church is carrying on its work with a very able staff of 13 superintendants. The Board of Home Missions believes that the United Church has a responsibility for every group of people in the Dominion of Canada and Newfoundland, Anglo-Saxon or Non-Anglo-Saxon.

The Board finds no construction camp too remote, no community too remote, no farming community too scattered to carry home the message, but that it endeavours to send workers with courage and cheer, the service rendered by the Board has so thrilled the members with generous response of the members everywhere in Canada to the appeal of the Board for funds for the rescue of the workers in the dried out areas. The response the East made to the appeal of the West in 1930 has linked the East and West with ties of understanding and helpfulness and has discovered in the church a capacity for sacrifice, and sympathy that inspired a confidence and devotion of our membership that will make a worthy contribution toward transforming our beloved land from sea to sea into the Dominion of Canada.

Mrs. Deroche closed with prayer and asked all to remain for a social half hour.

SHE ATE ALL-BRAN TWELVE YEARS WITH FINE RESULTS

Delicious Cereal Relieves Constipation

Read this very enthusiastic letter:

"Something like eleven or twelve years ago, I began eating Kellogg's All-Bran. When I started, it was for relief from constipation, and I believe it was one of the first products of this kind on the market.

"My friends often laugh at my devotion for All-Bran. It gives such a clean taste in the mouth, and I do not feel satisfied until I have had my All-Bran.

"If Dr. Kellogg Company should ever stop manufacturing All-Bran, I don't know what I would be going to do. I am sure I would be greatly disappointed."—Miss Amy Person. (Address furnished upon request.)

Science says that All-Bran provides "bulk" to exercise the intestines, and vitamin B to further aid digestion. Also iron for the blood.

The "bulk" in All-Bran is much like that of leafy vegetables. How much safer than taking patent medicines—often harmful. Just eat two tablespoonfuls daily for most types of constipation. For serious cases, try it three times daily. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Sold in the red-and-green package. At all grocers. Made by Kellogg in London, Ontario.

Weddings

BRENTON—ROBLIN

On Saturday afternoon, Bethesonville United Church Parsonage was the scene of a pretty wedding, when Miss Ruth Roblin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Owen M. Roblin of Corbyville, was united in marriage to Mr. Willis Lorne Brenton of the same place, Rev. Charles Gandling.

The bride looked lovely in a gown of hortson blue triple sheer georgette and lace, with grey shoes and hose and matching accessories and carried sweet peas and lilies-of-the-valley. She was attended by her cousin, Miss Eleanor Gibson, Latta, who was charming in a hortson blue coat dress of crepe with grey shoes and hose. Mr. Gerald Brenton attended the bridegroom as best man.

The bride received many useful and beautiful gifts to the bride was a white gold wrist watch set with diamonds, to the bridesmaid a white gold and enamel compact and to the groomsman a white gold tie clip.

The bride's mother wore navy blue georgette with grey accessories and the groom's mother was in brown crepe, also with matching accessories.

Following the ceremony a wedding dinner was served to the immediate relatives at Dickens' Coffee Shop in Belleville, which was beautifully decorated for the occasion. Yellow and white being the color scheme used. The bride's cake formed the centrepiece and a large white bell was suspended from the ceiling with streamers reaching to the corners of the table. A basket of Ophelia roses and orange blossoms was also used.

Later the bride and groom left by motor for Niagara Falls, Detroit, Erie, Michi., and Chicago. For travelling the bride donned a swagger suit of brown tweed with fox fur trimmed accessories. On their return they will reside at Corbyville.

DISTRICT SCOUTS GUIDES SEEN IN DRESS PARADE

Two-Hundred and Seventy-five Assemble at Stirling

STIRLING—Sunday, June 4 was a long to be remembered day in the annals of Stirling, it being the occasion of a mammoth Dress Parade of the Boy Scouts and Girl Guides of Stirling and the neighbouring towns. The Scout body which was under the parade in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church for a special scout service, assembled at the High School grounds under the direction of local Scout Master Tom Ward, at 10.30 p.m. beneath a cloudless sky. The well-ordered parade of some 275 Scouts and Girl Guides and Brownies led by S. M. Tom Ward followed by Lieut. Commissioner Steve Weir, Dr. Wall, Mr. A. E. Dobbie and Mr. J. B. Belshaw began the march to the Presbyterian Church. The Colour Party composed of P. Joslin and T. L. Clarke was closely followed by the Belleville 12. piece band which furnished the excellent music for the parade. Next came the Belleville Co-Operative Guides under Commanding Officer G. H. Griffin with Lt. Cook, second in command and Band Master A. Skelhon. The Sea Cadets boys number twenty-eight. Behind them marched the Stirling Guides led by Comm. K. Mundy and Lt. L. Ward at the head of a troop of fifteen Irish Guides. In succession came the First Frankford Troop of the Guides, twenty-five in number, under Com. Mrs. E. E. Ketcheson and Lieut. Beth Badgley. The next Brownie Troop of twenty Owls was also First Frankford with the Brown Owls headed by Eleanor McPherson. The Tawny Owls under Pat Rostee, The Tawny Owls under Lieut. Eileen McLaren and the Sixers under Catherine Murray. Thirty-four Guides of the First Belleville Troop under S. M. Brown, Lt. L. J. White and P. L. A. Allchin, son and twin came next in order followed by the First Frankford Scout Troop under S. M. Pollard leading a troop of twenty scouts. In succession came the First Campbellford Troop of seventeen Scouts under S. M. Sergeant and A.S.M. Collard and the First Marmora Troop, 10 in number under S. M. Percy Grey, A. S. M. G. Sabine and T. L. Dan Smith. Next came a group of ten Cubs from the latter town led by S. S. R. Grey. The Second Deloro Troop of eight Scouts headed by B. M. W. Sinclair, Scout Master and ten Cubs under S. S. W. Reynolds. The premier was terminated by the First Stirling Troop whose S. M. T. Ward led, first unit in the parade, and was headed by A. S. M. Don Ward and A. S. M. Rev. E. W. Rowland. The arrival of each troop was heralded by the standard-bearer of its own contingent and followed by the Scouts in their full dress, they formed a splendid pageant as they marched along with even stride, to the martial music.

The Scouts, arriving at the church on the stroke of 11, marched in double file up the aisle with the strains of the organ march played by Mrs. Chas. Allen. The area in the entire centre of the church and several of the side pews were reserved for the Scouts alone. The church was beautifully decorated for the occasion with flags and flowers.

Services opened with the singing of "Holy, Holy, Holy" followed by the Invocation by the Pastor, The choir softly sang a praise selection which was followed by the reading of the First Psalm and the congregation singing "Onward Christian Soldiers" in which the Scouts and Guides participated heartily. The Scripture lesson was that of Daniel. All hearts united in a short prayer led by the pastor and in which came the offering and the hymn "Dare to do right, Dare to be true" Mr. Koffend preached an inspiring sermon holding up the live of Daniel as an example of old as examples from which the youth of today might take his inspiration.

All stood at attention for the National Anthem and received the benediction with bowed heads. Slowly the scouts filed out to make way for the Cenotaph.

Arriving at the Cenotaph with flags unfurling the parade formed a horseshoe formation about it. Rev. J. A. Koffend gave a beliefsity of those who were being honoured, who had "gone West" in the Great War, then respectfully placing the wreath upon the cenotaph for which all hats were removed and the leaders gave the salute. With the entire congregation standing, the Last Post was played. Then facing the east, the "Reveille" was played to be followed by the observing of a two-minute silence. The ceremony was concluded with a prayer led by Mr. Koffeng in which he asked that the Scouts might grow themselves strong and give of their best, even their very lives as the Scouts had done, should occasion demand it.

Marching to the High School Campus, the horseshoe formation was again assumed and Rev. E. W. Rowland with a few well-chosen words thanked all those who had participated in the service and helped to make it a success. Reeve West corroborated Mr. Rowland's statement and S. M. Tom Ward expressed his gratitude to all those who had been there to make the church parade such a splendid success.

A luncheon was served at the High School by the First Troop of the Stirling Scouts after which many of them motored to Oak Lake to enjoy an afternoon of swimming and boating. Great credit is due Scout Master T. M. Ward who expended so much time and effort in making the parade possible and the event was one that will long be remembered in the annals of Stirling.

BALL GAME

The local Girls' Softball team journey to Madoc on Friday evening and engaged in a tilt with the Madoc aggregation with the latter emerged on the long end of a 38-9 score. Due to an accident on the way the Stirling girls were forced to take the field with two Madoc players on the line-up and by the end of the first inning, the Madoc Squad had piled up a 20-1 score. With the arrival of the rest of the team, Stirling tightened down and at the end of the fifth frame, the game was called with a score of 38-9 in favour of Madoc. The return game will be played in Stirling on Friday evening on the High School Campus and with a little encouragement, the Stirling girls should win, local girls hope to be able to reverse the score:

Measure 3 cups sifted pastry flour (or 2½ cups bread flour), add 3 teaspoons Magic Baking Powder, sift together and sift again together 3 times. Cream ⅓ cup butter; gradually add 1 cup sugar and beat until light; add 2 egg yolks one at a time and beat well; add alternately with dients alternately with 1 cup milk. Add 1½ teaspoons vanilla and 1 teaspoon almond extract. Mix well. Fold in stiffly beaten whites of 4 eggs. Bake in well-greased 9" layer-cake pans in moderate oven (350° F.) 20-25 min.

FILLING AND ICING

Cream well ½ cup butter. Gradually add 2 cups sifted confectioners' sugar. When smooth, put 4 tablespoons of mixture in small bowl and add 1 egg yolk slightly beaten and 1 tablespoon cream alternately with 1½ cups confectioners' sugar and ½ teaspoon vanilla and almond extract.

To the 1st mixture add 1½ cups confectioners' sugar with 3 tablespoons cream. Beat until light and smooth. Add 1 square melted chocolate and 1 teaspoon vanilla. To ⅓ of this mixture add a drop or two of pink fruit coloring or cochineal.

This gives a white icing and pale yellow which make this delicious cake very attractive. Put some of the yellow mixture between the layers. Cover sides with yellow icing, then putting shredded coconut over this. On top of cake, put thick dabs of the 3 colors, and run a fruit prong-fork through from circles so that the colors are prettily mixed.

Magic Mystery Cakes are the talk of the Dominion. Be sure to take part in these exciting contests

WOULDN'T you like to find a cheque for $250 in your mail box? Then name this Magic Mystery Cake. The name you suggest has just as good a chance to win first prize as any other.

Mrs. Clarry Hunt created this Mystery Cake. It's unusual, attractive and practical . . . the kind of cake that will suggest dozens of suitable names to you.

Read the recipe. Then call the family together to choose the one name to send in as your suggestion. It costs nothing to enter

If you bake at home, follow Mrs. Hunt's advice—use Magic Baking Powder. Magic is always dependable. That's why the majority of Canadian cookery experts use and recommend it exclusively . . . why it ousells all other baking powders combined.

Remember—there are 63 cash prizes in this big contest. Decide to enter right now!

When you bake at home the new, FREE Magic Cook Book contains tested recipes for dozens of tempting dishes. Send for it. Address Gillett Products, Fraser Avenue, Toronto 2.

GOLD SHARES CLOSE HIGHER

Mining Market Reduced to a Slow Pace With Prices Holding

TORONTO, June 6.—(CP)—The Standard Mining Market was reduced to a slow pace this afternoon with prices barely holding although most of the gold shares closed a shade higher. Base Metal stocks weakened a little and silvers were about steady.

Dome rushed up to $34.50 but faded to bid and closed at $33, up 50 cents. Lake Shore gained about 25 cents to bid $90 after an $92.50 premier $9 to 15.75.

Activity was strong in the early session but fell back to $17.15 off 3 cents. Noranda dropped 25 cents and Coast Copper 50 cents. In the silver group mining corporation gained 7, Nipissing 5 and Castle 2 while Kirkland was unchanged.

There were some weak spots in the medium-priced gold group, recessions of 5 to 6 cents getting to Joe, Granada, Macassa and Kirkland Lake. Premier was strong up 7 at $1.10.

REFLECTS SELL-OFF IN N. Y.

Whole Interlisted Group Slips Back in Recession

TORONTO, June 6. — (CP) — Stocks, weakened sharply on the Toronto Stock Exchange this afternoon coincidentally with a sell-off in the New York market, which dropped some to $17, Smelters to $128 off 5 points.

The whole interlisted group slipped back though selling was not of a pressing nature. Bell Phone dropped a point, Canada Malting 1-2 and Ford 3-8.

In the oils losses of about 1-2 were General and Distillery and Silver, sticking the whole interlisted lower ground. Walkers common slipped to 17, off 1-4, and general recession were taken by Brewers and Distillers, and the Beer issues, including Canada Malting and Canada Malting and Canada Bud.

Utilities were off until the last half hour but the last hackers of the group closed with small gains intact. Bell Telephone dropped its gain and closed at 101. Heavy industrials did well in the morning session. Steel Hersey rolling up 1-2, and Hamilton Bridge to a new high but the beg quotations were shaded in the last few minutes.

IRREGULARITY SEEN IN MART

NEW YORK, June 6.—(AP)—Stocks churned about with considerable uncertainty today, up slip a regularly lower in late trading. Reduction of the rate in the preferred dividend was an unsettling influence after the market had firmed in the early hours. Santa Fe common was off around four points while the preferred lost about 6. Other losses of 1 to around 2 were shown by American Water Works, Union Pacific, Allied Chemical, Case, American Can, and Chalmers at 14.

U. S. Steel, Western Union and General Motors were slightly higher. Sales in prominent issues approximated 6,000,000 shares.

LONDON VIEW OF DOMINION

Suggestion Made of National Government in Canada

"Financial Service" says:—

A partner of Pitfield, Mackeson and Co., Members of the Montreal Stock Exchange and Montreal Curb recently returned from Canada has made some notes of impressions gathered there. A summary of the impressions gathered in England was recently sent to the firm's clients. It makes most fascinating reading and we publish herewith extracts:

London is observing Canada closely and is not by any means satisfied with things in this country. They cannot understand why we do not put our house in order and they lean toward the opinion that we have been offered forced to do so by circumstances—which would not be a pleasant process. They wonder why we do not balance our budget, handle our railway problem, and reduce the number of legislative bodies. They say that if to accomplish this we require a National Government—a thing the merging of the political groups here is glorious when compared to South Africa, where more divergent personalities than Herzog and Smuts could barely be found, and yet South Africa united for the country's good when faced with a national crisis. They say these are no days for party politics as we expense of the country and they point to the way in which other countries have submerged their domestic political problems. They also refer to the courageous way of Australia in dealing with their situation two years ago. The result that Australia's world credit now stands higher than ever although with an incomparably lesser national worth behind it. They know that our Federal Government has advanced large sums to Western Provinces and think we should be able to force a reduction in the number of legislative bodies as they consider we are ridiculously over-governed.

They don't like our way of dealing with our unemployment, rather favor the Beatty plan, and say that it is politics that interfering then we should have a National Government and get on with the job.

They are rather sour over the Canadian situation as they look back to London during the past few years, they got confidence that are our bear friends and that we should be very careful in the type of security which is offered in London. Those companies that have gone to London under sheer stress of economic situation they don't grumble about, but they are sick over the ones that cracked easily and proved to have been hollow shells.

They fully realize that the U.S. market is flooded for the past few years, as our borrowing experiences there have not been good due to the exchange situation and also to the drastic way the borrower's credit is ruined in New York by their habit of unnecessarily marking down values on every trouble that appears. They know that we will have to meet our obligations in the dollar gets nearer to a parity with the pound, but then London is our natural market and they seem prepared to lend to us, but only on B.C. Pioneer terms—underlining completed and we realize confidence. They deplore the fact that Canada would like to see a better class in politics where the best brains would be in the country.

They feel that the First Mortgage Bonds of the bankrupt paper companies very good, particularly Price Bros. and Abitibi. They realize a merger of the paper companies is the only solution, but doubt if we can bring it about owing to the lack of financial leadership in this industry.

They view of inflation in Canada is startling share values is that the older established proven companies are in good financial position and with fairly substantial bonded debt are the ones to benefit as inflation will enable the retirement or reduction of these bond issues to the advantage of the ordinary share.

They think our dollar is going lower.

Livestock

Toronto, June 6 (CP)—Early trading on the Toronto Livestock Market was slow today with not enough cattle sales made up to 11 a.m. to establish prices. Hogs generally opened steady with yesterday's closing levels, but trade was slow. Calves steady; hogs unsettled; lambs steady; sheep slow.

Receipts were: Cattle 650; calves 500; hogs 630; sheep and lambs 300.

Cattle in all grades yesterday totalled 700 head. Opening bids were unchanged to 10 cents on all grades, except butcher cows. Cows were steady to 10 cents lower. Bulls were steady at $3.50 to $3.75 per cwt. for choice.

Veal calves opened unchanged at $5.50 to $6.00 for choice with common grades unchanged to $3.50.

No hog sales were made up to 11 a.m. and no bids were made for f.o.b. for bacons or $5.50 off cars. No definite bids were made.

Lambs sold at $11. per cwt. for choice and at $7.00 to $8.00 for cull. Sheep ranged from $6.00 to $2.25 per cwt. according to quality.

40 POLICEMEN SAID TO SCENE

Disgruntled Men Said to be Pillaging Stores

St. John's Nfld., June 6—(CP)—Forty policemen were hurried aboard the steamer Argyle today and despatched to Little Catalina, where disgruntled unemployed men were said to be pillaging stores.

A message from the outport, requesting assistance from the capital, stated the men had been dissatisfied since they were required to work for the dole.

Declaring they had to walk six miles to work and back to their homes, they refused to comply with the order and proceeded to help themselves when dole was withheld.

Although the men had quieted down after taking enough provisions to last them for several days, breaks were feared and officials at Little Catalina believed the police should be prepared.

Dole residents at Catalina, Melrose and other places had expressed themselves as quite satisfied with the arrangements whereby they would work for their money, and sportsmen and officials were surprised to hear of trouble at Little Catalina.

It was believed, however, that the chief objection at Little Catalina was to the distance the men would have to walk to their work. The authorities said this difficulty would be adjusted as soon as possible.

HEAD OF THE SECRETARIAT ON DOCTRINE

Geneva, Switzerland, June 6 (AP)—Here is the doctrine that Sir Eric Drummond of Great Britain learned from 11 years as head of the League of Nations secretariat:

First, never make a threat; second, tell the truth; third, place all your cards on the table.

Sir Eric, who is retiring as Secretary-General explaining his views today at a farewell luncheon given by the International Press.

"And then," he said, "applies to individuals as well as to nations."

CITY IS RUN FROM PRISON

Mayor in Jail Will Call Council to Meet Them

Grand Haven, Mich., June 6—(AP)—Mayor Lionel Heap, who took office on May 1 was a prisoner in the Ottawa County jail here today under a writ of mandamus execution for failure to pay judgment.

The Mayor, who agreed to accept service of the writ was taken to jail immediately went to jail, said he would consult the affairs of his office from the jail.

One problem the faces was attending city council meetings but it was likely he will ask the council to meet in jail.

Mayor Heap is serving in jail for failure to pay a judgement of nearly $8,000 awarded to his sister in law Mrs. Edna M. Heap, former partner him with dissipation of the assets of her late husband while he was administrator of the estate. He asserted that his trouble was "all political" and said he would not pay the judgment.

HARRY HEILMANN has become a one-man.

And thus the same fate that has been the lot of George Sisler, his greatest rival at the peak of his career, has also claimed the one-time champion batter of the American league.

Though they attained stardom and the rank of greatest hitter in the major leagues, the careers of Heilmann and Sisler were early shadowed by one bad break.

It was a tough break for Harry that he should be with the same team as Ty Cobb and for a great part of his career his own worth was hardly noticed because of the brilliance of the George Peach.

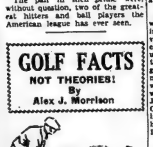
It was Sisler's bad luck that sinus trouble should put such a sudden and devastating end to his playing career—just when he was at the peak.

t-r-t

HEILMANN, After a failure to come back with Cincinnati in the National league, has just signed a contract with a Detroit semi-pro team. He was forced out of his job with the Reds by illness in the middle of the 1929 season.

Sisler is playing semi-pro baseball with a St. Louis nine, chiefly to advertise a sporting goods store of which he is proprietor.

It must be tough to turn sandlotter in the same city in which one was the big league "big shot." But Heilmann and Sisler are taking the change in their fortunes with the same determination which brought them to the top in the American league.



t-r-t

HEILMANN wound up an 18-year major league season with a lifetime batting average of .342. Sisler had a 17-year big league career and averaged .341 at the plate.

Sisler batted more than .300 against National league pitching. And so did Heilmann. Sisler twice batted over .400. Heilmann once. Sisler hit .300 or better for 13 seasons. Heilmann for 12 years.

The pair in their prime were, without question, two of the greatest hitters and ball players the American league has ever seen.

WITH VERY SHORT APPROACHES IT IS BEST TO PUT A RIGHT ONTO GREEN

ALEX MORRISON says:

When playing a shot from a few yards off the edge of the putting green a player very often gives himself the worst of it by trying to roll the ball through heavy grass.

Likewise, even a pitch shot that lands on the rather rough ground that is found in front of some greens very often kicks off line.

It's always best to use a club with enough loft to pitch the ball onto the smooth putting surface where it will run truly.

Ralph Ibey Whiffs 14, Hurls Victorias to Win Over Brighton

Locals Now Lead Loop With Two Wins And No Losses

The Belleville Vics, behind the stellar pitching of Ralph Ibey, who hurled a masterful game in the pinches, shut out the Brighton Athletics by the score of 5 to 0 at the local Exhibition Park yesterday afternoon thus branding themselves as a potential aspirants in intermediate O.B.A.A. circles in Eastern Ontario. Despite the reverse of score however, Mr. Wall Shannon, on the hilltop for the losers, hurled one of his best games letting the locals down with the same amount of hits as his team mates garnered. Both clubs annexed but eight hits apiece during the game. The winning places the Vics well to the fore in the Bay of quinte League, with two wins and no loses.

They was in rare form striking out no less than 14 Brighton batters, while Shannon sent back but 6 local hitters via the strike out route. The defensive play of the Victorias spelling defeat for the Brighton team, when they committed but one error, whilst the visitors were guilty of two bad misplays. Although both clubs annexed eight hits the Victorias made their hits sound when they connected with men occupying the sacks. Besides hurling a creditable game, they led the local hitters with a single and a double to his credit.

On two hits and a passed ball the Vics scored one run in the first and duplicated this feat in the second. On a walk and two hits the Vics added another in the sixth and two more in the seventh. The plate in their favour in the seventh, when they collected two hits and an error was also committed. Although the Brighton club hit safely nine hits in every innings except the third, and ninth, they kept the scoring singles well spread and romped home to victory.

The lineups:

Belleville Vics—Haslett ll; Palmer rf; Green cf; Slater 1st; Darrah 2b; Flagler ss; Loft 3b; Ibey p; McGuire c; McDonald 1b.

Brighton—Sundle 2b; Wright cf; McKinnon ss; Quick rf; C. McKinnon 3b; Pugh lf; Wall lf; Pugh c; Brown rf; Duffy lf.

HILLOCK HAS FIELD DAY

Three Horses Driven by Him at Meet All in The Money

Wilmer Hillock, trainer of the Quinte Stabling and owner of Vernon McKinney Jr, had a field day at the race meet staged by the Kingston Driving Club on Monday in that city. His own horse won the 2.16 pace with a mile in 2.10 1-4 while Catherine Grattan owned by Frank Orr was fourth in the 2.21 class, Bella Patch winning the race and breaking the track record held formerly by Bill Patch. She went a trip in 2.06 1-2. W. J. Grattan the other horse in the Hillock string was third in the 2.26 class the miles being around 2.12. Mr. Grattan's action in the record breaking mile by Bertha Patch was clocked in 2.10, which is not bad for a green one with only a year's racing under her belt. W. J. Grattan showed plenty of kick in his race but had to overcome plenty of interference because of the large entry and his time stamps him as a colt of real promise.

Louie Bennett, who has been training his string at the fair grounds raced Guy Elewah and won in the 2.26 class, finishing second money and Guy Elewah fifth, both mile heats. The summary: The racing was all on the heat a race plan and the customary distances observed the rule. The next meet will be held in Belleville a week from Wednesday and some of this best horses in training will be on hand. The evening's card of harness racing and the track was in excellent condition.

CAN START PRUNING

Guelph, Ont., June 6 (CP)— Pruning operations on the trees lining the highway near here were delayed owing to the heavy sap in the branches. Two weeks ago when men started work they discovered nests containing eggs attached firmly to the trees. They were given orders not to disturb them. Now, however, the eggs have hatched and the birds flown so work may be resumed.

Amateurs, Unknowns Have Small Chance To Take Crown in Battle of North Shore

By HERB GRAFFIS
Editor of "Golfing"
Written for Central Press and The Ontario Intelligencer

CHICAGO, Ill., June 6—Champion Gene Sarazen is the pros' choice for second place in the National Open golf championship which begins Thursday over the North Shore Golf Club's meadows. Fairly extensive interviewing of the pro talent brings out the general expression that "it will be a fight between me and Sarazen," but Sarazen, the reigning Roman, has a slightly different notion about the finish.

Considering the spring training session of gallavanting around in Henry L. Doherty's palace trailer Sarazen pitched camp handy to the North Shore club, played a few practice rounds and said: "My 286 will win by one stroke."

"It will be one of those finishes where the cry will be 'the guy has four strokes to win and five to tie'," continued Gene, "and I will be the one with the four."

Considering that 286 is plenty of thrift in the use of championship strokes, the Sarazen declaration has some of the other contestants punch-drunk before the going. They may start, playing Sarazen while Sarazen won't know they are on the job, with Jones and the Italian lad sufficient edge.

WALTER HAGEN, Leo Diegel and Billy Burke of the Glenview herd and Tommy Armour and Bobby Cruickshank of the immigrants are given the best chances to snatch the open trophy from Sarazen's possession.

Armour has been playing better practice rounds over the links than any of the others who are giving the Open venue its dress rehearsal. He is a better shot score registered during the trial hea's and in some of his rounds has he been higher than 76.

Despite the 6,200 yards of marathon pounding called for at the North Shore course there is no great terror invested in the sheds. It is a course that puts a premium on accurate second shots. Those are where Armour demonstrates his ability as a master.

Tommy hasn't been indulging in exhibition golf this spring and that gives him an advantage. Hagen has been playing scores of exhibition matches and so has Sarazen.

Joe Kirkwood is exhibi. A in showing how ridiculous golf with its inconsequential scoring does to a good game.

Joe is a much better golfer then his tournament record shows.

Joe is short because he plays so much exhibition golf on scoring importance he can't get himself focussed for the shots at birdies that chirp for the champions.

BILLY BURKE, Whitty Cox and others of the gone-native who were not given places on the Profession-al Golfers association team to defend the Ryder cup in England, will put up a desperate play for the championship. Burke and he is carries with it the tenth place on the international pro money list and that is held cop for the champion if he happens to be a homebred who has not been named.

No one is inclined to rule out Phil Perkins as a championship possibility after his fine showing in championships as an amateur. However, Phil this year has experience the sudden psychological handicap some of the pros used to mention when Bob Jones was in the field.

They say that the Open title ennui is overcome by those who are pro, but with an amateur the Open is a case of "everything to win and nothing to lose."

GEORGE VON ELM, although a "business man" pro, can't be ruled out without having the pro psychological angle of not having him. And George never is to be neglected when figuring championship possibilities.

Of the younger professionals Denny Shute, Horton Smith, Ky Laffoon and Mortie Dutra, Frank Walsh, Craig Wood and Ed Dutton Smith may be conceded far better than outside chances.

However, when you get around to figuring the amateur cradle roll you can hook that Johnny Farrell, Johnny Goodman, Johnny Fischer and Ralph Guldahl are not having much of a hankering to buy a ticket on them at lengthy odds.

Seasoned campaigners like Harry Cooper, Al Espinosa, Johnny Farrell, Al Espinosa, Ed Dudley and Woody Wilson McDonald over the 72-hole route of the National Open championship generally are found sets sobbing for nurse before the halfway mark is reached.

Whoever wins this year, there is only the most extreme chance that it will be a surprise victory. The course's tricks are just those that the experienced players can handle but when those who haven't been smarted up by extensive tournament effort get with the shifting winds that blow over North Shore there will be many championship possibilities blown away.

TWO MAXS ARE RESTING UP

Max Baer

Max Schmeling

New York, June 6—(CP)—Training for the match, Max Baer and Max Schmeling can afford to take things easy until they square off their 15-round heavyweight duel in the Yankee Stadium Thursday night but there was no rest immediately in sight for promoters Jack Dempsey.

There's no doubt Jack has worked harder the last couple of months in his new role than he ever did when he was getting ready to defend his title before a capacity 80,000 two years ago and the end had not yet come today.

The major task confronting him was the converting of the stadium into a fight arena. As soon as the New York Yankees completed their double-header with Boston today Dempsey planned to move in a small army of workmen to act up the ring and arrange the seats. Once that's done to his satisfaction, all he'll need to worry about is the weather.

Tentatively at least Dempsey has been promised fine weather. Jamey H. Short, head of the New York Weather Bureau, says Thursday "probably will be fair."

Backdoor Handouts are Better Says Transient to Reporter

Has Travelled 20,000 Miles And on Way Home

Hitch-hiking is about the only thing that's still flat across the border. Business is booming. Men are going back to work. Shops are re-opening. Good times are coming back in the towns of last Year and the year before. And not least of all, backdoor handouts are getting better and better all the time.

That's back in a lot of standpoints that are being handed out, and the somewhat queen's scowl and crap as much as she used to.

Harold MacKendrick, transient home town Halifax, now en route to the east after having spent the last two years "humanizing" around here and there through the U.S.," sealed his weary flanks on the carbridge near the Park Monday afternoon and consented to be interviewed. He spoke freely of times as they were, and as they are now across the line".

"Things are getting better. Even the bees on the box cars are feeling the result. Handouts from the backdoor are getting bigger and better tasting all the time; there's even meat balls in the sandwiches they're handing out. She was tough going for a while, though," reminisced MacKenzie.

Canadians have yet to feel the actual result of better times, according to Mr. MacKenzie. That was one of the things he noted as soon as he had crossed the line into Canada, one dark night in the west, where there were no immigrations men to handle the crowds. In that part of Canada the West, times are tougher than ever are here in the east. He bases this assertion on the size and quality of the lunches handed him by the backdoor route. Ontario a weary traveller is often invited in to sit at table and eat, but in the West a good many of those have moved on the table for themselves. But things are looking better even out there.

MacKenzie has travelled by his own reckoning during the past 2 or so somewhere in the neighborhood of 20,000 miles. Most of the travelling has been on box cars, with the odd ride in cars and trucks. A few States he was wise enough to keep out of altogether. Georgia, for example, "They're pretty tough down there what with their chain gangs and so on", Mackenzie is now on his way home. Things are getting better in Canada, and he's going to be here to take advantage of them when they come.

CURRENT SPORT

Knocks and Boosts

Apparently something went amiss up at Toronto the relightful campaign yesterday afternoon. Athletes, interested spectators and the whole ringing pile waiting in vain for Southern California field team to put in an appearance.

It seems, that Coach Dean Cromwell and a few of the boys were having a friendly argument and visited the local seat of knowledge regarding as to the possibilities of using their jumping pits in the afternoon. All concerned speedily gave their consent but the athletes never put in an appearance. The athletes around for some time we wandered down to the "Y" where Joe Sherit interviewed the Mentor. Cromwell had borrowed their vaulting pole and was going to work on his track and field teams at the Helen Pak grounds.

Mr. Cromwell inspected the local Y.M.C.A. and assured Mr. Sherit that his athletes would give a local demonstration this week. In the meantime the boys are enjoying golf, fishing and society.

While on the above subject Presidemi Charlie Meagher tells us that the Southern California team under Coach Dean Cromwell, were approached relative to staging a few events previous to Wednesday's baseball game. Mr. Cromwell consented in view that the track and field meet in Belleville a week later. Mr. Meagher just forgot to tell the press until stage. Regardless as to the number of events in which the Cromwell team and its personnel will be present at the game.

Belleville lost another hockey player over the week-end, Roy Cotcert who so auspiciously cavorted about along the left boards for the local Doherty's last winter, has taken up his residence in Brockville along with Bill Sherry and Elwood Dudley. Just whether this means, that either local team players will be moved to the Brockville all-terminal or not is quite problematical. Bill Sherry was a welcome addition to Brockville hockey circles, we understand.

Congratulations are in order to Charles "Chuck" Jeffery upon his recent joining the ranks of the benedicts. "Chuck" buried 'em from the fork side for the Belleville and the local intermediates for some years and was married yesterday.

No less a personage than Joe Corcoran, of the Queensbury A.C. of Toronto, dropped into the editorial office this morning and informed us that the "event and events article" would be back in the midst next week. Joe has either "Hitherd" laid low or has a headliner, as it looks as though the fans will see some real high class grapplers at work.

Girls' softball was officially opened at the Exhibition Park last evening when Leo Barrett's Belleville Fruit lassies nosed out "Short" Ellis' "Shell Ball Stars" by the score of 10 to 5. Manager Frank Dameniou used all four girls in the box on the mound so as to give them an even chance. The evening's inaugural game, judging from the crowd, which numbered fully 500, in the enquiries is the only logical place to play girls' softball. Again the skill-chemist of the children blinding the playing field was quite in evidence but it might be well to suggest that this practice of allowing the youngsters inside the baseball park be obliterated before some of the youngsters are hurt or a player to sustain severe injuries. It would be a great pity for the individual star among the ranks of the Fruit lassies but, Helen Smith who batted at second for the latter, is about our ideal of a girl softball player.

Behind the superb pitching of Ralph Ibey the local Victorias experienced little difficulty in disposing with the Brighton Athletics in a league game yesterday. The score was 5 to 0 about indicates the play. Defensively the Athletics were the best they lacked finish, when appearing at the plate. Incidentally Walter Shannon, the visiting submarine hurler, pitched a pretty fair game of ball game. As a matter of fact if his team mates had have given him a few runs to work on maybe Shannon would have upset the Gerow-coached clan. As it was the locals hit in the pinches and deserved the win, that was theirs. Belleville now lead the Bay of Quinte League with two wins and no loss. Ralph Ibey whiffed just 14 Brighton batters.

Manager "Penney" Mills will have his chances cut for a workout this week-end in preparation for Wednesday's Kingston at Belleville senior game. Although nothing definite has been handed out we understand that a new infielder will be given a thorough trial this evening. Vals' inner works need considerable bolstering, especially at third and short, where altogether too many balls are going through for undeserved hits. Either Ernie Holmes or Vern Trumble will assume the mound duties to oppose "Chuck" Fourtin or Tommy Godfrey. The locals are hoping that Godfrey gets the Pony call as he has never met with any too much success against local hitters in the past.

The College Hill softballers experienced little or no trouble in disposing of Eddie Shapero's McNabbs at the Cricket Field last night by the score of 9 to 5.

Defeat Cobourg All-Stars by Even Series With That Club

With a barrage of home runs in the seventh innings the Belleville Fruit girls gained sweet revenge in defeating the Cobourg "Allstars" by the score of 10 to 5 at the Armouries ball park evening. Some two weeks ago the "Allstars" took Frank Domenico and Rodgers into camp to the tune of batting last evenings win doubly sweet. The game, which unexpectedly opened the current girls' softball season, was played before a crowd of fully 500 fans who enjoyed the pastime throughout.

Coach Barrett started "Tel" Morgan on the hilltop but later used Molly Gray and Bobe Lewis, hereby giving all his three best hurlers a piece of the game. Dolly Canning did the receiving honors for the first two pitchers, while Muriel Leavey caught the slants hurled by Miss Lewis. Rita Oliver hurled the entire game for the "Hoot" Gibson team from Cobourg and gave little exception to the seventh, when the locals scored four runs, hurled a masterful game.

Five four base clouts were registered by the Fruit lassies, when Morgan, Smith and Dell Hyde hit for circuit with Doris Blaind connecting for two home runs, Davidson and Turpin hit for the circuit for the visitors. Other all pitchers used hurled excellent ball, while on the hilltop, Helen Smith, the local second baseman, carried the bulk of the Fruit team's defensive work. Virginia Owens, Olive and Pellow led the visitors in the field.

The line-ups:

Cobourg— Austin, Ryley, Trey, Turpin, Oliver, Owens, Pellow, Davidson and Matheson.

Belleville Fruit—Kelleher, Tuttle, E. Thrasher, Smith, Dell, Morgan, Rowbotham, Blaind, Canning, Leavey, Gray and Lewis.

The shot echoed through the ship, and the acrid smell of powder smoke diffused through the control room. Gardner dropped to the deck with the shot. Instead of being aroused to action or speech, the rest of the men stared at him with backbone eyes.

Wearily, at length, MacDougal dragged himself to his feet, picked up the automatic in the corner, took out the clip and handed it to the Captain.

"You'd better take care of this, Commander." Then he turned to the men. "If any more of you mugs want out, use a bayonet. Don't stint the air with gunpowder."

"All right, gentlemen," said an unidentifying voice, "who's next?"

Two sailors were sitting side by side; the head of one fell over on the shoulder of his fellow. The latter started to push him away, looked, startled, into his friend's face, then put his arm about him to keep him from slipping to the floor.

Then the engineer his face a death-like mask, go slowly up, "I'm goin' in and get a little shut-eye. When yuh get that pump workin' call me, Mac."

"Okay."

The engineer, uncertain on his legs, walked slowly forward and disappeared. Hardly an eye followed his exit.

CHAPTER XII

A WOMAN'S LOYALTY

Captain Toler got up from the manifold and went, swaying a little, to the switchboard. He bowed, then stretched out a hand to steady himself and it came into contact with a small rough wheel. The roughness awoke something in the man's mind. It was an emery wheel.

"Nelson! MacDougal!" he called. The two men approached him. Nelson's eyes staring, his footsteps halting. "Get a couple of wrenches," said Toler. "Pound this emery wheel into dust. Put it into the clutch and maybe it'll hold."

Without a word in reply, the two men went to the wheel. Nelson tried to take it off the sprocket, but he was too weak; his hands fumbled and faltered at the task until MacDougal gently pushed them aside and himself removed the emery wheel. He placed it on the bench, took up a wrench and began to pound it. Nelson slowly pulled up a low stool beside the bench, sat down on it and started pounding the emery. His blows were weak and ineffectual. They became slower, slighter, until he did not crack the emery, then ceased altogether, and Nelson slipped off the stool. MacDougal continued pounding the emery. Captain Toler lifted Nelson's head.

"All right, son!"

"It—so sleepy Maw——" Nelson smiled, then laughed gently. "...So sleepy...."

Toler stooped and took Nelson up in his arms and, immediately the Lieutenant's body went limp. Toler looked at him a moment, gently lowered the body to the deck, straightened up, and said:

"Shake it up, MacDougal."

MacDougal did not reply for half a minute. Then he stopped pounding and scooped the dust up in his hands.

"All through," he said.

"Oh——ry it."

"Aye, aye, sir."

As he threw the dust into the clutch the men dragged themselves wearily about him to witness their fate, their aspects surprisingly incurious. MacDougal, at a nod from Toler, set his lava grimly, deftly, in the switch. There came a dull, grating sound from the clutch. It ceased. The pumps started, and a change came over the faces of the men; eyes pleated, sagging spirits arose; hope was alive again. But no one spoke. As the pumps continued working steadily and the depth gauge to register zero, Toler addressed his crew.

"We're giving up. When we break surface, all hands on deck; man the gun. We'll fight."

Steadily the ship climbed to the surface of the Adriatic, broke through the waves. The hatches were hurriedly flung open. Gaunt and determined men rushed, stumbling, from the hatches to the gun; some of the men dragged ammunition to the gun with them. Toler, Knowlton, Nelson still weak and sleepy-eyed, and Radford took the bridge. They looked about for the German destroyers. Far away on the horizon they perceived three columns of smoke, momentarily growing more distant, faintet.

With the knowledge that the enemy had gone, strength seemed to seep from the men; they threw themselves panting on the deck; they looked like corpses, beginning to breathe and revive under the open air. They sucked the air into lungs with quivering sighs. Hollow-eyed, too weary to talk, they lay like dead men, staring up into the sky.

It was gray morning when the Al-16 battered and rent, entered Manfredonia harbor and docked alongside the submarine tender, Bushnell. Toler and Radford were on the bridge, white and gaunt-eyed. Some of the crew lay about on the deck. Others, dirty, oil-streaked, unshaven, and wet, sat silently at the mess table in the battery room; still others were snoring in their bunks. The bulkheads were streaked with streamers of rust where rivulets of salt water had leaked through the strained seams. Some of the men at mess were too tired to chew; their food stood untasted before them. Among them came MacDougal, making a request, rather than giving an order.

"I want eight chefs.... to give our dead shipmates a hand."

Double the number asked for got wearily to their feet and followed him.

Knowlton, packing in his quarters, was surprised to see Toler's face. The Commander stood in the middle of the cabin, his back to Knowlton.

"You sent for me, Sir?"

"Report aboard the lender."

Toler did not look around at him.

"Place yourself under arrest awaiting the inquiry. I'll request that it be held as soon as possible."

"Thank you, sir." Knowlton waited a moment, but Toler having said nothing more to say, did not even then turn toward him. After a moment's hesitation, Knowlton said in a low but deliberate voice:

"I want you to know, Captain, that I'll never be able to forget what you've done nor to forgive myself for it."

"I'm not surprised," Toler did not turn. "That's all Knowlton."

GLORIA SWANSON IN "TONIGHT OR NEVER" AT THE CAPITOL

Gloria Swanson in "Tonight or Never," based on the fiery and tempestuous Nelson stage success, comes to the Capitol Theatre tomorrow. Produced and presented by Samuel Goldwyn, it brings that producer's opulent and lavish hand to play fashioned by the greatest stage genius of this generation, the late David Belasco, as the last and final effort to his distinguished career.

"Tonight or Never" is a Gloria Swanson returned to the emotional tempo of her first talking picture, "The Trespasser," or the earlier silent "Sadie Thompson." It gives her a warm, fervent role, rich and strong in mature womanly feeling. Mervyn LeRoy, that enterprising youthful director who won world-wide acclaim for "Little Star Five" and "Little Caesar," directed "Tonight or Never." The settings, depicting gay, romantic Budapest and carnival Venice, were designed by Willy Pogany, distinguished painter.

Miss Swanson sings no songs in "Tonight or Never," largely, it is said, because Producer Samuel Goldwyn insisted on the right of way for the rapid action of the story. But there are improvised snatches of song from Miss Swanson, mostly operatic airs, and there is quite a little of Budapest's native melody from string and gypsy orchestras. No picture of the Danube capital would be complete without it.

Chanel,—Mlle. Gabrielle Chanel, distinguished Paris designer and fashion authority, whom Samuel Goldwyn brought to Hollywood last Spring to become style arbiter of his pictures, introduces her first screen fashions for motion pictures in the elaborate wardrobe of Miss Swanson. Evening gowns and wraps, afternoon frocks, street and sport suits, pajamas and costume jewelry are included among the original Chanel creations for "Tonight or Never."

Melvyn Douglas, the young stage player who last year created one of the outstanding personal successes of the season in the Belasco stage production, not only duplicates his stage role on the screen, but has earned for his performance opposite Miss Swanson the accolades of engagement tonight.

"20,000 Years In Sing Sing" concludes an exceptionally successful engagement tonight.

TARZAN AND THE GOLDEN LION. No.

As Tarzan drew himself to the summit he was immediately engaged in combat with other warriors of Opar. With the lithesome ape he knocked them to right and left, so great an advantage did his great height and strength give him over them. Leaping to the pavement he saw the High Priest disappear through an archway at the opposite end of the courtyard. Several priests and warriors sought to impede the ape-man's progress.

Seizing one by the sinkien Tarzan swung the body about him, clearing a pathway as he ran. Cadj mistook it to be his ally ahead of his pursuer, for he knew the intricate mazes better than Tarzan. Believing that soon Cadj would find a hiding place where it would be difficult to dislodge, Tarzan put forth every effort to prevent him from reaching the comparative safety of the underground passage.

With another bound Tarzan would be upon Cadj, But as he turned through the doorway into the court, a noose, cunningly laid, closed upon the ape-man's ankle and he was thrown heavily to the ground. Only half conscious, he felt them raise him from the ground and carry him. Presently he was deposited upon a cold stone surface. Slowly he regained his senses and realized that once more he lay outstretched upon the sacrificial altar of the Temple of the Flaming God, And above him stood Cadj, the High Priest, his evil face contorted in a grimace of hate and the anticipation of revenge, long deferred.

CHAPTER XLV

McKEWAN of the detective squad entered the living room, hat in hand. "Good Afternoon," he said. "Your maid said you were here, Mrs. Carlyle. Thought I might as well come over and get this thing cleared up."

"Oh, Mr. McKewan, have you found out anything?"

"We've found the necklace."

"Oh!" The woman's voices came in a chorus. Betty Carlyle was leaning eagerly forward, Mrs. Curtis, severe and rigid in her straight-backed chair.

"Where did you find it?" Betty asked. "What did she do with it? I mean—"

"I'll answer all your questions," the detective told her. "But first I'll take a look at that."

He reached into his pocket, drew out a small black case and handed it to her. "See if that's your necklace," he said.

The lid of the box sprang open at Betty's touch. Inside on a square of white satin lay a string of pearls. Betty held them up to the light, smiling. "Of course it is," she said. "I've never seen any others with a clasp like this."

McKewan nodded. "I found them in a pawn shop," he said.

"A pawn shop!"

Mrs. Curtis interrupted. "I think I'd better call Janet," she said.

"Yes, better get her in!" Betty nodded eagerly. "I want her to be here."

"I don't believe that will be necessary," the detective began but Betty was already on her feet. "I'll find her!" she said, and disappeared through the door.

She was back a moment later, cheeks flushed and eyes triumphant. Janet followed her into the room, paused and looked questioningly toward Mrs. Curtis.

"Sit down, Janet," the older woman said. "Mr. McKewan has found the necklace."

Janet saw the box lying on the table and stepped forward. Her pale face was suddenly transformed. "Oh, I'm so glad!" she exclaimed. "I'm so glad!"

BETTY CARLYLE darted a swift glance at the other girl and frowned. McKewan cleared his throat. "Well," he said, "I thought maybe you'd rather we talked it over in private but if this is the way you want it, all right. The necklace was in a pawn shop down on Mulberry street. Been there nearly a week. You see, we were sure it was an amateur job so this morning, just on a chance, we checked the pawn shops. Found it in the second place we went. The fellow who runs the shop told us a man brought the necklace in last Monday."

"You say it was a man!" Mrs. Curtis asked.

"Yes." McKewan hesitated. "I guess there's no reason to beat around the bush about it," he went on. "It was your husband, Mrs. Carlyle."

"My husband!" Betty's eyes were like two angry fires. "Not Rolf! Oh, no, he couldn't—!"

The detective nodded. "I'm afraid there isn't any question about it," he said. "I've already talked to him. It seems there were some debts he had to pay. In a hurry. He didn't want anyone to know about it."

"You mean—he admitted it?"

"Oh, yes. Nothing else for him to do. He'd used another name on the ticket but it was easy enough to trace. As soon as I showed it to him he admitted the whole story. Pretty badly worried, I guess."

Mrs. Curtis had found her voice. "Oh, Betty!" she exclaimed. "My poor little girl!"

"He said," McKewan went on, "that he didn't really mean to take the necklace. He was going to put it back just as soon as he could get the money. Said he didn't think you'd miss it. The pawn broker only allowed him $300 on it."

Betty Carlyle was on her feet. "A thief!" she cried. "Oh, my God! Lying to me. Stealing. He's been gambling and lost again, that's what he's done. I told him the last time I wouldn't give him another cent. He stamped his foot, make-backed foot. "I hate him", she cried. "I'm sick of the sight of him and I never want to see him again. I won't even give him for this as lon gas I live. Never! Never! Never!"

Over-wrought emotion had its way. Betty sank into a chair, sobbing violently.

Her sister bent over her, murmuring comfortable phrases, stroking her shoulder and trying to quiet her. The detective shifted uncomfortably in his chair and looked about the room. All at once he sprang forward.

"She's fainted!" he exclaimed. The two women turned. Janet Hill's eyes were closed. Her head had tilted back against her chair and her face was the paper white.

McKewan said, "She ought to be lying down. Can someone get some water?"

ROLF CARLYLE let himself into the apartment. There was no light in the living room, grayed with dusk, but from beyond came a faint glow. He walked on until he reached the door of the bedroom, stopped on the threshold.

"Well, he said, "I didn't know whether I'd find you here or not."

Betty was surveying herself in the full-length mirror. She wore a black dress with a scarlet bow on one shoulder. There were no sleeves. It was a dress she often wore to supper parties.

"Why, yes, I'm here," she said coolly. "Where have you been?"

Rolf entered the room. "I thought maybe you'd be at your mother's," he said. His voice sounded strained. "I couldn't go there. Betty—I didn't really mean to do it! I mean—the way it looks. I thought I'd have the money back in a few days. You hardly ever wear that necklace and I was sure I'd have it back before you'd miss it. I had to get the money to pay Tom Jamieson. Don't you see, Betty—?"

She turned to meet his gaze directly. "I see perfectly!" she said. "Everything. I see that you're a liar, cheating, good-for-nothing and that's all you'll ever be. I see that you've lied to me and humiliated me but you won't have a chance to do it again."

"Betty! Won't you listen to me? I tell you I didn't mean to take the necklace. I've put in the most horrible day I've ever spent in my life. I've been through hell. My God, Betty, I've said I'm sorry. What more can I do? Don't you understand what I've been saying?"

SHE moved towards him, eyes defiant, her face colorless from anger.

"I understand," she cried. "You're the one who doesn't seem to be able to do that. I'm getting out! Do you hear that? Getting out! I was a silly little fool to marry you. I only did because I'd had a fight with Van Bannister and wanted to show him I didn't care. You didn't know that, did you? Well, it's true. I've never been in love with you and you've been getting to be more of a nuisance every day. I'll have stood it a little longer if you hadn't tried to pull this latest stunt but this is too much."

"You can't do that!" Rolf exclaimed.

"Oh, can't I? Well, just watch me. I'm leaving tonight and I never intend to see you again as long as I live!"

"But you can't! You are my wife and I guess I have some rights. I'll have something to say—"

"All right. Try saying it. I'll have you arrested for stealing my pearls if you do. You've never supported me since the day we were married. Why, I could divorce you a dozen times! Oh, I know what I'm doing—I've been talking to a lawyer this afternoon."

"You really mean that?"

She picked up a wrap and drew it around her shoulder, a small velvet bag lay on the dressing table and she picked that up, too.

"Frederick's down stairs with mother's car," she said. "Maybe you noticed. If you have anything else to say to me get in touch with Trumbell and Schaeffer. They're my lawyers."

Rolf took her arm. "Betty," he said huskily, "couldn't you give me another chance?"

She drew away from him. "Don't touch me!" she exclaimed. Raising her carefully painted face she added, "You thief!"

CHAPTER XLVI

BETTY CARLYLE set off for Reno three days later, the interior of her pearl necklace. She wore a smart brown suit and a tiny, audacious hat as she boarded the train. Her lips were a bright scarlet and her lashes carefully mascaraed. There were half a dozen pieces of luggage to be carried on and stowed in the compartment. Betty kissed her mother and joked in a set of tremely modern fashion but her laughter was brittle and slightly high-pitched.

On the day before her departure she had amazed Janet by apologizing for suspecting her of taking the necklace. Janet was rather sorry for Betty. She was carrying on, trying to take the matter of her divorce in a flippant, sophisticated manner but her pride had been deeply wounded. For the first time Betty Carlyle had known humiliation and it was a bitter blow.

A real estate company began showing Betty's apartment to prospective renters at a "sacrifice price". As easily as, within a few hours, life had become a hideous turmoil, it drifted again into quiet routine in Mrs. Curtis' home. Still, there was a difference.

Mrs. Curtis showed it most. She tried to be philosophical and treat the situation with unconcern. There were only two persons to whom she talked about what had happened—Rachael Thornton, who had been her confidante for years, and Janet. "It's a dreadful thing to be in the pen," Mrs. Curtis told Janet, "and yet in a way I'm glad. Betty was too young to marry. And of course she couldn't know what that man was. I never liked him! I couldn't tell Betty that, but I've known all along he'd make her unhappy."

"That man" was Rolf. It was the only way in which Mrs. Curtis ever referred to him from that day on.

To Mrs. Thornton she said a lot of not as though people look at divorces nowadays the way they did when you and I were young. I think this could happen to Betty—!"

SHE refused to accept invitations and much of the time kept to her room. Janet found her there one afternoon two days after the arrest of drawers. The lower drawer had been pulled out, revealing a pile of old photographs, a pile of garments and children's toys. In her lap was something white.

Mrs. Curtis held it up. "It's the dress Betty wore for her christening," she said. "Mother saved it and first little pair of shoes. Aren't they tiny? Here's a photograph of her wearing this dress."

The photograph showed an infant with a fuss of dark hair and a pair of solemn eyes. The handsome baby dress was decked with ruffles and lace and one tiny hand had caught at the full skirt.

"What a pretty baby!" Janet exclaimed.

Mrs. Curtis nodded. "She was," she said. "I suppose it's foolish of me to save all these things but some times I like to look at them. There's another picture here I like better—" She leaned forward, sorting through the pile. "It was taken when Betty was four years old. Her hair always curled naturally, you know. I combed it around my finger. Oh here's the picture!"

For half an hour longer she revealed her treasures — pictures of Betty as a dimpled girl, pictures of her first party, snapshots at the beach and riding a Shetland pony. She showed the curly woolly dog that had been Betty's favorite companion in her baby days and a beloved doll. There was a picture of Mrs. Curtis herself with a tall young man standing beside her—the picture made on the day she married Betty's father.

Later when Mrs. Curtis came down stairs Janet noticed that her eyes were red-lined. They had been redlined frequently during the past week. The following morning she was ill and Doctor Roberts was called to the house.

"It's just as I've told you before," he said warningly. "You can't overdo, Mrs. Curtis, and keep your health. You mustn't worry and you must have plenty of rest. The condition is nothing to become alarmed over if you'll take care of yourself. Otherwise these spells will continue—"

HE left with instructions that Mrs. Curtis was to spend the rest of the week in bed. Janet came back from seeing him to the door and sank into a chair at the bedside.

"Mrs. Curtis," she said, "I've been thinking you weren't need me here after Betty comes back."

(To Be Continued)

"THE WORKING MAN" STORY OF BIG BUSINESS HAS GEORGE ARLISS

George Arliss, beloved by theatregoers the world over, has found the perfect role in his latest picture, "The Working Man," a Warner Bros. feature, which opens a three days' engagement at the Brilo tomorrow. (Wednesday).

It is a highly spiced comedy drama of modern business and youthful folly in which the star appears as a short-tempered, softhearted champion of "big business" who starts from his own affairs to straighten out the lives of his orphaned children of his former employer's competitor.

Slightly reminiscent of "The Millionaire" but boasting a more dramatic story and even finer production values, "The Working Man" is said to furnish Mr Arliss with his most human role in a story that is filled with humor and dramatic situations, replete with thrills.

As "Reeves," grumpy bachelor head of a manufacturing concern, who goes fishing for a vacation only to find that the expedition leads him into the most exciting business battle of his life, Mr. Arliss is in his element, and displays all the qualities that have made him recognized as the foremost actor of the screen today. It is a story filled with humor and amusing situations, replete with thrills.

Aline MacMahon, who has appeared in other Arliss pictures, had the first sympathetic role in a long time, as the play's leading feminine part. Theodore Newton, redheaded young actor from New York, has an important role as brother to Miss Davis. He showed such promise in "The Working Man" that he has been signed by Warner Bros. to a long term contract. Seven before the Arliss picture was released.

CYRUS CURTIS PUBLISHER OF POST IS DEAD

Rise From Newsboy to Publisher Epic of Business World

83 YEARS OLD

Interested in Many Leading Publications of Magazines

Philadelphia, June 7. —(AP)— Cyrus H. K. Curtis, whose rise from newsboy to publisher was one of the epics of American business; died today at his home in suburban Wynnewood of a lingering heart ailment. He would have been 83 on June 18.

One of the world's greatest magazine and newspaper" publishers, Mr. Curtis passed away at 2.10 a.m. (Eastern Daylight Time).

He had been ill since May, last year, when he was stricken with a heart attack, while on his yacht Lyndonia, near New York, and was hurried to this city aboard the vessel.

Five days later his wife died suddenly. She had taken a room in the hospital to be near him and passed away in her sleep from a heart ailment from which she had suffered for a number of years. She was his second wife and a second cousin.

Chairman of Board

Mr. Curtis was chairman of the board of the Curtis Publishing Company which publishes the Saturday Evening Post, Ladies' Home Journal, and the Country Gentleman.

Also Mr. Curtis was President of the Curtis-Martin Newspaper Inc., which publishes the Philadelphia Public Ledger and the Philadelphia and the New York Evening Post and owns the Philadelphia Inquirer Company, which publishes the Inquirer. He was a member of the Inquirer Board.

The Publisher left one daughter, Mrs. Mary Louise Curtis Bok, wife of Edward W. Bok, for many years editor of Ladies' Home Journal, and the Curtis Child.

John C. Martin, vice president of the Curtis-Martin Newspapers, Inc., is the husband of the former Miss Elsie Wedgewood Pitzhugh, a daughter of the second Mrs. Curtis by her first marriage.

Although in close touch with his vast publishing interests, Mr. Curtis had not been in his office much in the last year. Last October he resigned as President of the Curtis Publishing Company to become head of the Board of Directors. He was succeeded as President by George Horace Lorimer, editor of the Saturday Evening Post.

Started at 19

As a youth of 19 Mr. Curtis took a job as salesman at $10 a week in a Philadelphia store. At the end of a year he turned to advertising. In 1876 he sold the magazine and again turned to advertising. Later he and his brother-in-law, Hamilton Mayo, started the Tribune and Farmer, an agricultural magazine. From this publication the Ladies' Home Journal sprang. Mr. Curtis' first wife, Alice Knapp, died in 1909. Later day critized a column devoted to women's interests in the leading publications. Many automobiles, particularly Packards, were registered along curbs in the business section as were damaged and a number of persons narrowly missed serious injury or death by falling trees and debris.

Huge Hail Stones

Ottawa, June 7.—(CP)—Damage estimated at more than $100,000 was caused by a sudden hail storm that struck the suburban districts of Ottawa at eleven o'clock this morning, particularly at Cyrville where some 150 market gardeners were the greatest sufferers. Green houses and hot-beds were destroyed by the pelting hail stones and the young plants flattened.

Many farm green-houses were destroyed and one at Rockliffe, within the limits of the city, had 1,000 square feet of glass shattered. Horses and other farm animals ran in panic and there are 15 minute barrages of hail stones as large as golf balls.

Ice Cold Water from Icy Well No New Thing for Northerners

When residents of the district of Bancroft ask the traveller to have a drink of cold water from any of their wells, they mean exactly that, according to two Belleville men who paid the village a visit over the week end.

"Have a drink," urged Mr. T. Bateman, of Bancroft, to the two visitors.

"Cold as ice," remarked one of men who filled the tin cup from the bucket.

"It ought to be" answered the host. "Take a look at the inside of the well where the water came from."

Lining the well was several feet of ice, with just a small hole chopped through which the bucket was raised and lowered. According to the owner, it is not unusual to have the ice remain in the well until well into midsummer each year.

ACCUSED BANKER AT COURT

Showing little effects of the attempt; he made to kill himself last month Joseph V. Harriman, head of the defunct Harriman bank, is shown (LEFT) as he arrived at the New York Federal Court to answer charges of making false entries in his bank's books. The banker who was assisted in court by his physician, pleaded not guilty to the indictment. His $25,000 bail was continued and the trial date set for June 19.

Industry in Britain on Definite Upward Trend 114,755 More at Work

Good Business is Ahead Manufacturers Assured

Better Times Reported F rom Various Parts of The Country While Marit imes Find Depression Has Reached Its Depths

(By Jack Hambleton, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

TORONTO, June 7.—(CP)—Canada's ship of business is sailing steadily towards the sea of prosperity. The tide has turned and shoals and reefs and it isn't all plain sailing, but barring disaster the Dominion should fair to dock all good business point with only a few scratches.

That the depression is passing is indicated in reports presented today at the annual general meeting of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association here. From all parts of the country with the exception of the Maritime comes reports of better times—and in the east the depression is little behind the times in the country, has reached its depth.

H. S. Leckie, Vancouver, presented the report of the British Columbia division. "Undeniably there ... conditions in British Columbia are showing definite signs of improvement.... every promise of abundant crops this year.... exceeding in some lines those of last year," he said.

John Burns, Calgary, speaking for the Prairie division: "There has been a marked improvement in conditions in the last few weeks.... A much brighter outlook for the future prevails.... rise in farm products was a favorable factor. Farmers are looking forward with confidence."

The Ontario report: "Notwithstanding the unusual character of the present business situation, there are reports of new industries and new manufacturing arrangements being opened up in this province.

In the Toronto Area ... are approximately 100, providing for the investment of capital.... to the extent of about $4,000,000 and the employment of about 3,000 persons.

The Quebec division: "Artificial aids industry is one of the brightest spots.... depressed state of pulp and paper industry serious factor.... home industry being well supported."

The Maritimes: "Do not attain the peak of prosperity or reach the bottom of a business depression until some time later, than most other provinces.... In general past months reached bottom.... Agriculture well maintained.... coal production increased in New Brunswick, dropped off in Nova Scotia."

The Ontario Division, the report said, has appealed to employers to include as much work as possible; urging record construction programs need with; asked suitable public works be placed on farms and provision be made for land clearing. Unemployment in Nova Scotia, the report said, is responsible for the limit of possibility as shown by reduced earnings in published financial statements and in current price levels of stocks. Decline in stocks in excess of demand are offered in Montreal, the report said. Bank clearing months brought peak loads in Montreal, the report said, in past months in 1931. The Industrial Index had not shown its usual increases, but the revenue from domestic service "has continued to record growth."

PLAN OF LOVE NEST ENDED

New York Boy and Girl of Seventeen Foiled by Parents

Bonfield, Ont., June 7—(CP) Romantic venture of a youthful New York couple came to an abrupt end here today when the respective fathers turned up and took their children home. There matters were not disclosed.

The couple, both 17, arrived at Noobonsing near here a few days ago intending to make their way by canoe to Mattawa where they could "hew a love nest out of the forest" and live the simple life far from the parental eye.

They were last on their way to view a prospective home site when their fathers overtook them. Somewhat disappointed at the turn of events the runaways being "persuaded" to return home and to forsake their pioneering scheme.

Settlers who came in contact with the couple claim they hitchhiked here from their New York home; a distance of more than 500 miles.

GUNS, STONES IN MINE RIOT

Eight Men Injured in Clash Over Picketing

Springfield, Ill., June 7—(AP)— Eight men were wounded, five of them by gunfire in a clash between rival miners and peace officers at the Peerless Mine, a mile northeast of here today.

The Peerless is operated by the Peabody Coal Company and members of the United Mine Workers Union.

A small group of National guardsmen, brought here from Camp Grant, were on rumors of an impending outbreak, and arrived in the present just before the clash. Miners were picketing the mine when officials from the United Mine Workers Union, a rival organization, clashed with united miners enroute to work.

The first shots were fired when rocks were hurled by stones and the guardsmen fired into the crowd. Among the latter was Herman Schwaberg, a picketing miner, who was wounded in the right arm.

EXPLOSION KILLS JAPS

Tokyo, June 7 (AP)—Three explosions in the powder magazine of the Hamamatsu Air Corps Station today killed one death or injured to more than 10 persons.

Several buildings were destroyed. Expectations were that the casualties would prove to be much less.

Hamamatsu is 120 miles southwest of Tokyo.

House of Tomorrow with Outer Walls Even of Bathroom of Clear Glass

Chicago, June 7.—(CP)—Outer walls, even of the bathroom, of transparent glass, reminiscent of the airplane hangar—shelf beds for the youngsters—a three-decked, 12 sided, six room structure of steel, glass and plywood—that's the "House of Tomorrow", opened for inspection today among the model homes at the Century of Progress Exposition.

This odd looking dwelling was the brain child of George F. Keck, architect and was launched in the 1933-modern style by Irene Castle McLaughlin, director of the Chicagoans. The building was designed around its utility features, and the steel studding and joists, the heating and plumbing systems and fixtures are left bare to stand on their own for structural beauty, aided by all-very metal paint.

In the centre of the Duodecagon is a huge hollow steel core from which radiate the dividing walls of the various rooms and both serves as a central non-conducting system of heating, ventilating and lighting.

Entering around it is a steel and cement stairway, as severe as a fire escape.

No Official Proposal from Debtor Nations as June 15th Draws Near

U. S. Holds View First Step Must Come From Debtors

NO REQUESTS

Next Instalment Due on Friday of Next Week

Washington, June 7 (AP)—As the date for collecting the next war debt instalments approaches, the United States Government is standing by the principle that a debtor nation can approach its creditors and lay its case before them, but that such a move must be initiated by the debtor.

Various statements of an informal nature have been received from debtor nations in the course of the last few months but they have not laid before the Washington government any official proposal or request for reconsideration of the funding agreements.

One week from tomorrow the next instalment, totalling more than $140,000,000 will be due. The British cabinet will meet Friday to discuss the situation and there have been intimations in London that some new pronouncement was expected, but officials here now say it ever was officially discounted here.

TAXING POWER TO BE STUDIED

Assessment And Municipal Acts to go Under Probe

TORONTO, June 7.—(CP)—Sir Thomas Wardle, Provincial Treasurer Minister of Finance has been reappointed by Premier George S. Henry of Ontario to conduct an inquiry into "effects of the assessment and municipal act through which municipalities obtain their taxing powers," it was announced in a report submitted by the Ontario Division to the annual convention of the Canadian Manufacturers Association today.

The statement read to delegates said:

"Information has been received by the executive committee and though not definitely announced for public information the Prime Minister has pledged himself privately to some improvement in the general taxing powers of municipalities and Sir Thomas White to act as Chairman of a commission to inquire in-to the effects of the Assessment and Municipal Act through which municipalities obtain their taxing and licensing power. The executive expressed the opinion that this inquiry should be broad as possible to take in all matters affecting taxation imposed by other jurisdictions with the object of overcoming if possible the duplication and overlapping of these imposts on industry."

NICE BREEZE AFTER DROPPING PENNY

William "Kling" Hogwe, official starter of the gun and whistle which sees being held late today, surveyed the calm surface of the harbor during the morning, and then, following the old time-honored custom, threw a penny into the water of the bay near the foot of Victoria Park and solemnly whistled for wind. Shortly after twelve o'clock noon a fresh breeze sprang up, which helped the racers along their course. Fifteen boats of all classes were expected to start with the opening signal of the harbor's gun late this afternoon.

PROSECUTES FOR FIRST TIME

B. O. Donnan, K.C., local Crown Attorney, appeared as the prosecuting attorney in Wednesday morning's police court for the first time since he was appointed King's Counsellor. The police court docket was rather light on Wednesday with but a case of infraction of the H. T. A. and a charge of slander. Neither case proved to be of much public interest, however.

TRADE SLACK IS TAKEN UP
Belleville Factories See Real Signs of Recovery
Signs that the slack in employment and industry is beginning to be taken up are not wanting in Belleville, according to factory executives. "Business is surely on the increase," commented Mr. O. A. Freeman of the Stephens-Adamson Manufacturing Company. "We are actually or business for us as yet, but in the number of inquiries which are very much more numerous and which precede in our business a greater output.
"Yes, we are receiving a great many inquiries. In the social business there has been little change but we do not expect it at the beginning of a recovery. The new business always drags behind some months with it."
"But there seems to be quite a change of spirit which looks towards better times." Mr. Freeman remarked in closing.
The Houston Lumber Company, which was running about half time last autumn is on full time at the eight hour day and looks for further expansion of business. Mr. Houston told a reporter that "business seems to be picking up." There is not so much new business in the city as sales for repair work but from the outlook at the present time is a great improvement in the demand for materials for new construction. We feel that conditions are getting materially."
A few days ago a similar expression of opinion as to the revival of business particularly in the roofing the building trade was voiced by Mr. W. S. Trask of the American Hardware Corporation.

PRUDENTIAL AGENTS ON TRIP TO BOSTON

Belleville Office Leads in Production of New Business

Owing to Belleville being one of the leading offices in the production of new insurance written, A. D. Kenol, local manager of the Prudential Insurance Company, has been advised, that several members of his staff and himself have been invited to attend, the company's Conference of leading representatives, to be held at Swampscott, near Boston, Massachusetts, during the week of June 19th. Those attending the conference in addition to Mr. Kenol are Alvin Bell, Harold Ingram, of Belleville, Harry Sager, Trenton and Robert Sadler, Napanee.
This makes the third consecutive trip the Belleville office has won and speaks volumes for the confidence the public have in life insurance in this locality.

COUNTY POLICE COURT

Two cases were heard in the county police court yesterday following arrests made over the week end by the R.C.M.P. for infractions of the Excise Act. Both charged with the possession and manufacture of illicit liquor and the offenders were sentenced to six months at hard labour. He chose the latter.
David Maracle of Deseronto, pleaded guilty to a charge of manufacturing illicit liquor in his own home in the township. He was appeared before Magistrate Palmer at Deseronto. The R.C.M.P. constituted a ten gallon still which was in operation on the Maracle property on Saturday. Maracle was fined the usual $200.00 or in default of payment, will serve six months at hard labour. He chose the latter.
Francis Casibo, Madoc Township, pleaded guilty to a charge of having one gallon of moonshine in his possession, when arrested on Saturday by the R.C.M.P. Casibo appeared before Magistrate Casemore at Madoc yesterday and received same fine and sentence was meted out as in the former case. Casibo also chose the jail sentence.

SEE SIGNS OF REAL PICK-UP

Various Activities Find Evidences of New Optimism

Business conditions in the city have shown a greater improvement generally during the past few months than has been noted for the past two or three years, according to leading business men, and workers.
In the insurance business collections have been better than for the past three years.
"We've gone more business within the last few months than the company has done since 1931" declared Mr. Geo. Reid. "Collections especially have never been better. That proves something."
Mr. Jack Hanna, city trucker, sees immediate revival of conditions generally. During the past few weeks he has helped more several families to better locations. Workers that have been unemployed for some time are now returning to various jobs while factories in the city, according to work received by him have shown a decided spark in activity lately. One factory cited by him was the Bell Shirt Company, soon to install new machinery which is expected to add to the list of workers of that industry.
Signs Multiply
At the office of the Frontenac Paper Box Company in the city, hopes, were held out by Manager Reg. Monnfet for immediate revival. Factories which depend on the paper box trade, carrying shade for the local company have shown their increased business lately by reducing far in excess of previous orders some months. Shipping is also the better," declared Mr. Monnfet.
Deacon Shirt Factory reflects the trend of better times by working overtime lately. Several evening's a week and keeping the full staff employed.
Workers in the more common jobs questioned here and there about the city find business improvement has shown itself to them in longer working hour, and increased pay cheques. Distinct revival in the small departments of local business was seen.

PARTIES NOT KNOWN AS YET BY POLICE

Only Small Change Taken From Belleville Yulcanizing

Unidentified robbers broke and entered the premises of the Belleville Vulcanizing Company, Moira street, sometime last night or early this morning and made off with a small amount which had been left in the cash box. No evidence of the identity of the criminals was found by the police, however, thus leading them to believe that known persons had consummated the robbery.
Entrance was gained into the building by way of a side window which was found open by Constable Arnott, while on his beat. Sergeant Thomas later joined the constable on the beat and the building was thoroughly searched but no trace of the robbers could be found. Only a few pennies were reported missing.

Horticulturists Meeting in City

District Meeting Held Here For First Time

Meeting for the first time in Belleville, about twenty members of the Ontario Horticultural Association District No. 2, assembled at St. Thomas Parish Hall this morning for registration. The district is composed of societies in Hastings, Lennox and Addington, Prontenac and Prince Edward County, with J. B. Belshaw of Stirling being District Director.
The program for the day includes visits to the Ontario School for the Deaf, the Dominion Laboratory, a luncheon in St. Thomas Parish Hall as well as the annual business session.
The visitors motored to the O. S. D. at eleven o'clock this morning where they were received by the Superintendent, Mr. H. B. Fetterly, and Miss Catherine Ford, directress of boys' workshop and were escorted on a tour of inspection of the school.
Included in an interesting explanation of the work pointed out the annual task of building speech for children who know nothing of the art of speaking. The visitors were then shown some of the different stages of development in finishing with children who had just started school in September to entertain scholars.
"The method of feeling speech movements, ability to lip read, the wonders of the Radio Ear, the rhythm work, fascinated the delegates who confessed as they never had before the tremendous task and wonderful accomplishments of the teachers of the deaf.
Upon returning to the city the delegates were served luncheon by the ladies of St. Thomas Church and the interesting program for the afternoon began.

MURDER COUNT REMANDED

Sudbury, Ont., June 7 (CP)—Charged with murdering Leo Trudeau during an alteration over whisky in the kitchen of Burwash Industrial Farm May 22, Joseph Belanger of Ottawa appeared in police court today and was remanded to June 14. The remand was named at request of the Crown who hopes to proceed with the preliminary hearing on that date.

Score Buried Under Bricks

Winona, Ont., June 7 (CP)—About a score of children were buried beneath falling bricks, laths and plaster when a cornice of the public school crashed through the roof during a heavy thunderstorm. Only one child, Gerald Willbur, aged six, was reported seriously injured.

Pandemonium reigned in the dark frame building as the terrified children ought to free themselves from the debris. Within a short time, however, the more seriously injured child was rushed to hospital and quiet was restored among the others by Rev. D. H. McLennan, neighboring clergyman.

The minister restored order among the pupils and set about assigning hymns during the height of the storm. Sister Mary Ann

Warned by the ripping wood as the roof was torn away, the children stamped in their seats and most of them e. aped the full force of the hurtling bricks and other debris. Several were buried in the wreckage and were released only after desperate efforts had been attracted to the scene. Frantically they began to uncover the children, some of whom were completely hidden in the wreckage.

As fast as they were uncovered the pupils were taken by truck or wagon or carried by hands to be cared by homes. An emergency call brought three doctors to the scene and among them the work of administering aid at the various houses was neared.

Bell's School erected more than 10 years ago, is located midway between Hamilton and Guelph in a typical farming district.

Toronto, June 7 (CP)—Castle: a black shadow across the sky that; soft southwestern Ontario enveloped in darkness, a blustering thunderstorm swept over this area today, leaving in its trail a deluged countryside and disrupted communications. Electric lights and power were spasmodically severed by lightning that left power plants temporarily out of commission.

Shortly after noon at the height of the storm in Toronto communications to Western Ontario were still disrupted. Reports of any damage were lacking.

PROTEST OVER RELIEF HOUSE

Belleville Man Hold Out Against Quarters Offered Free

With his personal effects and household furniture piled on Ridley Street, near the C.N.R. Charles Singer, since noon yesterday, Mr. W. Day by up to noon today still held out against moving into the quarters located in the old Bell Telephone Office, at the old Bailey's rink. A wife and two children, aged two and three years respectively, according to Mr. Day, are ill and are now being kept by friends. Mr. Day is not working for one and a half years by any steady job.
On Tuesday, according to Mr. Day, he took his household up to his door at 57 South Front Street, where he had been living, and transported himself and family to the quarters on Ridley Street, once used as a garage, and before that as skaters when the old rink was in operation. Once there, Mr. Day refused to move in, and piled his household effect and furniture in the street. He spent Wednesday morning he set up the family cook, stove in the yard and worked hard, fast for himself, since then he has been keeping lonely vigil, refusing for some reason to do the part of civic officials.
According to Mr. Day, the roof of the building he is supposed to occupy is in poor shape and repairs necessary. Two open toilets, one at each end of the building, cause Mr. Day much concern, he declares, says. On his own statement, although as, he declares, the roof is bad, the building would be fixed up, and toilets installed in accordance with civic regulations of that district he said, had been taking up a petition to have the building condemned, due to some other empty house.
Mr. Day's attitude, however was suggested by Mr. Day, himself, declared Miss H. Lynch, of the Continental Restaurant, when questioned today. "In the present quarters all over the new job caused by the unbelievers who do not believe in signs—even wet paint signs.

SIGNS—

A gentleman who makes his living as a commercial traveller and who has been driving his car on these roads for the past two or many years has come to the conclusion that one sees more by signs, especially traffic signs made of printing than in any other way. For example, he states, an arm protruding from a machine ahead on the road may mean any of the following things: The motorist is (1) taking ashes off his cigarette, (2) going to turn to the left (3) warning a small child to stop up, (4) going to turn to the right, (5) pointing to the scenery, (6) going back up, (7) going to the left, (8) telling his wife he is sure the front door is locked, (9) waving a friend in a passing car, (10) going to stop.

NOT WORKING—

Whatever confusion still finds a good medium for outlet on the side panels of the decrepit cars one may see on the road and streets is said out of the city. For example a high note of artistry was reached in the lettering observed on one side panel of a machine which pulled up under its own power with a terrific clatter to a downtown curb yesterday. Printed in white chalk across the door of the car was the sign: "This Door Not Working—Who Is?" Out of the opposite door stepped three college boys appearing youths who strode in to a nearby cafe with the usual Hawaiian Islands benevolence of such youngsters.

SHIP AHOY—

In an obscure barn in the city a youthful boat builder has laid the keel for a small sailing craft, upon her which will take the water of the Bay of Quinte some few months hence, on the first lap of what he hopes will be almost a world tour. Plans for the launching of the time being spent in the South Sea Islands. Other smaller boats from the one he is building have done it, he points out, so why can't he? Interviews in the neighborhood of thirty feet, the little boat will have a lot of added equipment necessary for deep water sailing. It will be single handed, however, and it will be a great help to his limited finances, and scant material will permit. DRAGGING HUMANITY DOWN, SAYS BISHOP

Bishop McNally Attacks Sterilization of Control

Hamilton, June 7.—(CP)—Warning the people against the evils of sterilization, Joseph Hospital they "might encounter legislation which would militate against you" Rt. Rev. J. T. McNally, Bishop of the Roman Catholic Diocese of Hamilton, last night denounced the practice of birth control, sterilization of the unfit and advocates of these measures.
He turned his criticism on one who "had promulgated the degrading doctrines of birth control." He also referred to "one who is a leader in public life" whose suggestion of sterilization was described by the bishop "as such to drag humanity down."

PAINT POINTERS—

Almost in the same class as the back seat drivers are the work directors, who for want of a better name could be called "paint pointers." A store owner of the city who finds a little spare time on his hands and then decided to fall in line with the local paint-up-clean-up campaign, and improve the shining hour by brightening up his store front. With a new can of paint and a brush the proud man set to work and soon had a good start made on the transformation of the woodwork. Before he was half through the job he had also acquired a couple of paint pointers. "Three of them were total strangers who stopped and seized the opportunity to point out streaks in the paint that had escaped the paint brush. One of them was a nearby store owner who hung around for half an hour, telling him how to hold the brush and another was his wife who told him she didn't like the color. When he finally finished the job and hung up he "wet paint" sign on it, he came back to find thumb marks all over the new job caused by the unbelievers who do not believe in signs—even wet paint signs.

SIGNS—

A gentleman who makes his living as a commercial traveller and who has been driving his car on these roads for the past two or many years has come to the conclusion that one sees more by signs, especially traffic signs made of printing than in any other way. For example, he states, an arm protruding from a machine ahead on the road may mean any of the following things: The motorist is (1) taking ashes off his cigarette, (2) going to turn to the left (3) warning a small child to stop up, (4) going to turn to the right, (5) pointing to the scenery, (6) going back up, (7) going to the left, (8) telling his wife he is sure the front door is locked, (9) waving a friend in a passing car, (10) going to stop.

NOT WORKING—

Whatever confusion still finds a good medium for outlet on the side panels of the decrepit cars one may see on the road and streets is said out of the city. For example a high note of artistry was reached in the lettering observed on one side panel of a machine which pulled up under its own power with a terrific clatter to a downtown curb yesterday. Printed in white chalk across the door of the car was the sign: "This Door Not Working—Who Is?" Out of the opposite door stepped three college boys appearing youths who strode in to a nearby cafe with the usual Hawaiian Islands benevolence of such youngsters.

SHIP AHOY—

In an obscure barn in the city a youthful boat builder has laid the keel for a small sailing craft, upon her which will take the water of the Bay of Quinte some few months hence, on the first lap of what he hopes will be almost a world tour. Plans for the launching of the time being spent in the South Sea Islands. Other smaller boats from the one he is building have done it, he points out, so why can't he? Interviews in the neighborhood of thirty feet, the little boat will have a lot of added equipment necessary for deep water sailing. It will be single handed, however, and it will be a great help to his limited finances, and scant material will permit. Flat Denial of Statement by Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen Made by President of Canadian Press

Newspapers of Canada Not Bonused Out of Public Treasury

ANNUAL MEETING

Statement Made Libels Newspapers And Post Office Dept.

Quebec, June 7 (CP)—M. E. Nichols, President of the Canadian Press, today issued a flat denial of the recent statement by Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, Conservative leader in the Senate, that the newspapers of Canada are bonused out of the public treasury to the tune of $6,000,000 a year. Mr. Meighen's statement was made in the Senate during a discussion on newspaper postal rates.

"The Canadian daily newspapers are the recipients of no government bonuses, subsidies or any other kind of government favors," said Mr. Nichols, who is also Managing Director of the Winnipeg Tribune, in the course of his presidential address to the annual general meeting of the Canadian Press. He added that only the exceptional publisher makes a profit on distributing the daily newspapers to readers by mail.

"Distribution of daily newspapers through this channel does not as a rule net a sum sufficient to cover the bare cost of production of the newspaper," Mr. Nichols said.

"Are we to understand the post-office department cannot move those newspapers to the people, who subscribe through the mails without increasing a loss of $6,000,000 a year? Must the newspaper, in order to make that branch of the postal service self-sustaining, charge the rural reader a subscription rate, that would compel the people of Canada, outside the cities, to go without newspapers altogether?

No Truth in Statement

"If we are to believe that such is the case, we should have to conclude that the postoffice department is a very poor public service and that its administration is grossly inefficient. Personally, I do not share that view. Our quarrel is not with the postoffice department. It is with the member of the Senate who, in making such a wild statement about newspapers being bonused from the public treasury to the extent of $6,000,000 a year, libelled the newspapers and thereby the postoffice department as well."

Repeating that Canadian dailies are not bonused in any amount from any source, Mr. Nichols explained, that for a few years the government voted $50,000 a year to the Canadian Press. This sum entirely was employed to bridge gaps in the Canadian Press wire system, wide stretches of country in which no daily newspapers were published. The grant covered the cost of the Canadian Press from the position of serving its members to a position where it was able to serve the nation's vital interests as well.

"The grant was withdrawn in 1924," said Mr. Nichols.

"The Canadian Press then assumed the full burden of a national wire system operating over hundreds of miles of thinly populated country. In all the intervening years the Canadian Press has continued to carry that load without a dollar of government assistance.

C.P. Holds High Place

"I do not think I am too daring or too extravagant in my claims in giving the Canadian Press a high place among the agencies, which have promoted the achievement of confederation. The British North American Act tied the provinces of Canada together in a political union. As great transcontinental railway system tied them together in an economic union. Permanent union the Canadian Press to further promote the plan and the spirit of confederation in a way less tangible than acts of parliament and transportation systems but by means that are highly effective.

"The Canadian Press through the daily newspapers it serves, keeps the people of Canada in daily touch with each other. It carries reports of every notable occurrence that affects the political, economic and social life of our people.

"It keeps a record of Canada and of every day of occurrences and the trend of thought in every one of the nine provinces does more to promote national unity, national consciousness and national understanding than any other agency. It is a weighing of the factors and forces, that promote the building of a nation."

REDHEADS TO BE THE RAGE THIS SUMMER

Boston, June 7 (AP)—Redheads will be the rage this summer.

Redheads, not too red—just a sort of red brown, but technically as auburn.

And the redheads will wear their hair short. Not too short—just sort of down to the neckline.

That's the prediction made by experts of the Massachusetts League of Hairdressers during their annual meeting.

STEAMERS COLLIDE IN A HEAVY FOG

Collision 19 Miles off Boston and Neither Boat in Danger

Boston, June 7 (AP)—Coast guard headquarters here early today received a report that the steamer Santa Cecilia had collided with the Gloucester lightship, Gertie during a heavy fog 19 miles off Pollock Rip Lightvessel and was standing by.

Immediate details were lacking and coast guard craft were ordered to the scene.

Available records list the Santa Cecilia as a freighter of the Plant Steamship Corporation, of New York. They show her to be a 6,000 ton vessel.

Pollock Rip Lightship lies between the island of Nantucket and Chatham Harbor.

HON. JUSTICE W. A. LOGIE IS DEAD AT 67

Former Commander of Toronto Military District in War Time

NOTED JURIST

Appointed Judge in 1919 Noted For Independence of Thought

Toronto, June 7.—Hon. Justice W. A. Logie of the High Court Division of the Supreme Court of Ontario died late yesterday afternoon at his home, 279 Walmer Road, following an illness of several weeks.

William Alexander Logie, who was 67 years of age, and of Scottish and United Empire Loyalist stock, was born in Hamilton, Ont. He was appointed a Justice of the High Court Division of the Supreme Court of Ontario in 1919. His father was the late County Judge Logie, Alexander L. Logie of Wentworth County. He received his early education at Hamilton Collegiate and graduated from Queen's University in 1887 with first-class honors in classics, having won the gold medal and the Prince of Wales Scholarship. In 1888 he received his M.A. from Queen's and in 1893 his degree of L.L.B.

He was called to the Bar in 1890, and entered the legal firm of Chisholm & Logie of Hamilton, which is "in the ranks" of his profession when appointed to the Bench, never having conferred upon the title of King's Counsel.

Raised the Ranks

He rose from the rank of a private to Major-General in the Canadian Militia and occupied an appointment of vast importance in Canada during the Great War. It was in 1883, while still a student at Queen's that he enlisted in the 13th Battalion of Hamilton and in 1903 qualified for the rank of Captain. The following year he organized the 91st Regiment, Canadian Highlanders. Under his captaincy this regiment won the distinction of the Black Watch Royal Highlanders, and the Princess Louise Dragoon Guards and Sutherland High-landers.

While pursuing an artillery course at the Royal Military College, Major-General Logie was promoted in 1902. After commanding the 15th Infantry Brigade, Southern Ontario, he organized the 12th Brigade, Canadian Field Artillery, Howitzer. When the Great War broke he held the rank of Major-General. He assumed command of Military District No. 2 (Toronto) in 1915, which position he held throughout the war. During that period more than 100,000 soldiers were mobilized and transported overseas. General Logie was designated for overseas service and Canada decided that his services and skill in organizing were more valuable at home. He was already ability to understand and handle men was his distinction. It was said to have been due largely to his tact and ability as an organizer that at Camp Borden in 1916 was speedily quelled by the participation of but a few days after and frowning upon battalion commanders who complained of the appointments as social adornments of General Logie's staff, and criticisms of the shortcomings of raw recruits. General Logie was a prominent and lengthy service. He was a member of the Canadian Military Institute and the Toronto Club.

During his student days he was keenly interested in athletics, engaging in football, and was captain of the Queen's University team in 1886, 1887, 1888, 1889 and 1890.

A case over which he presided in 1925 in the Supreme Court of Canada, a member of the Klu Klux Klan was charged with murdering a negress in Barrie, The Klan was exempted by counsel for the defence in summing-up to the jury.

He had been off the Bench for some months, suffering at first from pneumonia. Recently he had suffered an attack of heart trouble.

In 1882 he was married to Miss Mary H. Wyle, daughter of the late James Wyle of Almonte. He was a Presbyterian and has always been big ate his widow; one son, Alexander Chisholm Logie, and three daughters, Edmund Morris and Mrs. Broan Heward.

Alexander Logie was a barrister in Hamilton when the Great War broke out. He was prominent for many years of the well-known firm of Chisholm, Logie and McQuesten. He immediately offered his services. Colonel Chisholm, his partner, had also been attached to the militia for many years and enlisted with the 126th Battalion, which still drew many recruits from the 91st Regiment and other local units.

Colonel Chisholm left Hamilton for Toronto yesterday afternoon upon hearing of the death of his former business associate and friend.

Thomas B. McQuesten, also a member of the firm, is President of the Ontario Liberal Association.

A military funeral will be held Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock from St. Paul's Presbyterian Church. James Street South, Hamilton. Interment will be in Hamilton Cemetery.

$15,000 FIRE IN TORONTO

Blaze Starts at Foot of a Dumb Waiter Chute

Toronto, June 7 (CP)—Damage estimated at $15,000 was caused by fire, which broke out early today in a four-storey building on Yonge St. in the downtown section of the city. The blaze started in the foot of the dumb-waiter chute and by the time the firemen had extinguished the flames flared above the top of the building. The fire fighters, hampered by smoke and terrific heat, fought the blaze with four lines of hose.

The stores on the main floor are tenanted by the Canada Dominion Company and a ladies' wearing apparel establishment. The floors above are hairdressing parlors.

Origin of the fire was not determined immediately.

ADVOCATES NEW CITY

Include Border Towns With Mayor and Eight Aldermen

Windsor, Ont., June 7 (CP)—Formation of a new city whose boundaries would include those of Sandwich, Windsor, Walkerville, East Windsor and Riverside, resulting in the elimination of separate boards is advocated by Thomas S. Brandy, Pharmacist, city clerk.

In outlining his scheme Mr. Brandy suggested that the new city be administered by a Mayor and eight aldermen, with a Board of Control, two from Walkerville, and one from each of the other municipalities. Five years after the new city is formed he would have new boundaries set up each on a population basis.

There had been no general leader for some years, the report said, although Colonel Ilsley had a record of bank receipts until the end of the year when they were massed together and entered upon one page of the cash book. It also said that the duplicate deposit slips were kept by the treasurer and that the bank manager refused to indicate any summary of these receipts. The total cash accounted of $6,216 by which actual cash deposits exceeded the correspondents entries in the cash book which auditors have been unable to certify. Condition of the housing commission books, Gibb's report continued, were in a chaotic state and it was evident no proper attention had been given to them.

Owing to the condition of records at that time, Gibbs said he had been unable to certify the audit.

GENOSHA HOTEL AT OSHAWA IS SOLD

$25,000 Cash is Paid and Balance Secured by Mortgage

Toronto, June 7 (CP)—Sale of the Genosha Hotel, Oshawa, Ont., and all its contents, to Eric A. Leach of Oshawa, for $75,000 was announced by order of Mr. Justice Charles Garrow at Osgoode Hall today. A deposit of $25,000 in cash and the balance will be secured by mortgage on the hotel property.

Application for the order was made to Mr. Justice Garrow by the London and Western Trusts Company, Ltd., who were appointed trustees under a mortgage securing an issue of $100,000 bonds totalling in principal $225,000. The company has also acted as receiver and manager of the property since Sept. 2, 1920.

SETBACK IN CONDITION OF GANDHI IS NOTED

Poona, India, June 7 (CP)— A sudden setback in the condition of Mahatma Gandhi, was reported concluded a three weeks fast in protest against the treatment accorded India's "untouchables," was announced this afternoon.

The Mahatma has lost 1-2 lbs in two days and, although there are no definite developments, the doctor ordered that the restrictions regarding visitors be tightened.

Manufacture of Arms Should be Restricted to State Owned Plants

Geneva, June 7 (AP)—Canada is convinced the manufacture of arms should eventually be restricted to state-owned establishments, the disarmament conference was advised today.

This stand was announced by Dr. W. A. Riddell, Canadian representative, in answering a question put to all governments as to whether the private manufacture of arms should be abolished. Great Britain, Germany and Japan opposed the abolition of private manufacture and announced themselves in favor of control.

Dr. Riddell asserted that Canada itself

ASSASSIN'S SHOTS MISS E. VENIZELOS

Mme Venizelos Hit Four Time by Bullets Intended For Husband

ON MOTOR DRIVE

Has Held High Office in Greece in Eight Terms

ATHENS, Greece June 7.—An attempt to assassinate Eleutherios Venizelos, several times Premier of Greece and a leading European statesman for many years, failed late Tuesday. Shots fired by an assailant wounded his wife and chauffeur. Mme Venizelos suffered four bullet wounds.

An assassin fired upon them while they were motoring from Kifissia to Athens.

Feughi Monarchy

Former Premier Venizelos is 69 years old. His half-century fight for democracy in Greece gained him the title of "The Modern Ulysses." His name of "The Venizelist Party leader" pledged allegiance to the Republic but fell.

General Nicholas Plastiras, a former leader of the Military League, which years before launching Venizelos on his career of power seized the Government on March 6 and was virtual dictator for fourteen hours. This month mysteriously prevented Tsaldaris from becoming Premier.

Friend to Allies

Venizelos had succeeded Tsaldaris as Premier on Jan. 17, only ten weeks after he had attempted to oust the Tsaldaris might form a coalition Government. On the basis of a pledge of allegiance to the Republic by Tsaldaris Venizelos agreed to tolerate the Government by his rivals. The Venizelists then flag uncertain majority.

Venizelos had been Premier since 1928. Previously he held the office in 1910-15, 1917-20, and 1924. He first came into prominence as leader of Cretan insurrectionary movements in 1896 and 1904. He was responsible for entering Greece on the side of the Allies, during the war, despite the opposition of King Constantine.

AFGHAN MINISTER TO GERMANY IS SLAIN

Attacked in Library of His Own Home

Berlin, June 7 (CP) — Prince Shirdar Mahamed Aziz Khan, the Afghan Minister to Germany, was shot and killed Monday by a man who attacked him in his own home in Berlin.

Police arrested Kemal Gyed, an Afghan student. Five shots were fired, one of which entered the Prince's lung. He was taken to a hospital and operated on immediately, dying a short time after.

Flier Sighted 600 Miles East of Omsk, Flying 200 M.P. H. on Fifth Leg of World Flight

Favorable Weather is Promised on 1,700 Mile Hop

WELL TO TIME

Has Chance to Catch up on Post-Gatty Record

Novo Sibirsk, Siberia, June 7 — (AP)—Jimmy Mattern was sighted here at 4:10 a.m. today Moscow time (8.10 p.m. E.S.T. Tuesday). He was flying high and fast towards Chita, Siberia, his destination in the fifth lap of his round-the-world flight.

This town is about 600 miles due east of Omsk, Siberia, from where he hopped off at 1.10 a.m. Moscow Time (2.10 p.m. Eastern Standard Time Tuesday). His average speed was close to 200 miles an hour.

Chita is about 1,100 miles east of Novo Sibirsk.

Mattern, a little behind the globe-encircling flight, record he seeks to better, zoomed across Siberia from Omsk confident of ultimate success.

Day Just Breaking

Day was just breaking, when he pointed his plane for Chita, 1,700 miles east of Omsk. Just three and 12 hours and 46 minutes after leaving New York.

Flying on the fifth leg of his lone journey was favorable weather with very light headwinds a clear sky and good visibility.

"Just right for me," he exclaimed, referring to Wiley Post and Harold Gatty, the trail blazers who paced him on Royalist Party leader, pledged allegiance to the Republic but fell.

REQUEST TO SELL BEER IN CLUBROOM

Money Derived to be Used For Relief Purposes

Windsor, Ont., June 7 (CP)—Request that the Border Cities branch of the Pensioners Protective Association be granted a permit to sell beer and wine in Veterans' Club Rooms and use receipts for care of indigent veterans was refused by W. H. Price, Attorney General of Ontario. The request took the form of a resolution passed at a meeting here last night and contained the suggestion, that the plan would assist in relieving the present acute condition of provincial treasury for relief of veterans. Resolution calls for repeal of legislation advertising of beer and wine.

Demented Man at Wheel Speeds Thru Intersection at 65 Miles Per Hour

Winnipeg, June 7 (CP)—An automobile, the man at the wheel demented, speeded through a down-town intersection late last night and several motorists and pedestrians had miraculous escape from injury or death. The car was travelling 65 miles an hour.

The speeding car crashed into the fender of a passing automobile, rolled over three times and John Haywood, barefooted, crawled from the wreckage, unhurt. He was without coat hat or coat, and was headed for the Red River when it crashed.

Police approached, Haywood dropped to the ground, pounded his head on the pavement and cried out: "Don't touch me or I'll put a curse on you."

Today he is a patient in the psychopathic ward of the general hospital, under observation.

A UNIQUE EVENT

This city is the scene of a rather unusual event, the meeting of the federal and provincial leaders of one of the great historic political parties of Canada at the same banquet and on the same platform, the Right Honorable W. L. Mackenzie King, former Premier of Canada and Liberal leader of the Opposition at Ottawa, and Mr. Mitchell Hepburn, leader of the Liberal party in the Province of Ontario. Belleville as one of the oldest settlements which has always taken a deep interest in provincial and national politics knows how to extend a welcome to these two Canadians.

Both Mr. King and Mr. Hepburn are known as fine platform speakers and will, no doubt, draw a capacity crowd.

The occasion is one not likely to be duplicated in campaign periods when leaders are too much in demand to come to one place on the same occasion.

"THE ELEMENTS SO MIXED"

Secretary of the Treasury Woodin is a man of many talents, two of the most pronounced meeting in him, the creative instinct in music and art as well as the ability to govern. People would generally not like to think of trusting the government of their country to some players they know, but then all are not musicians, in the best sense. There are musicians and there are musicians. There is the Lazare and there is Paderewski, who has been president of his native Poland as well as the leading pianist of the world and composer of distinction.

Men like Woodin and Paderewski possess with their executive gifts of government and their inclination for music a balanced nature which in the words of the classics is a gift of the gods.

There has been some comment of late upon the inclusion in the Roosevelt cabinet of so many literary and art figures just as there were in the Wilson administration, among them, Dr. Henry Van Dyke. Wisely chosen such men have not made failures in the task of government.

It may be that the world is seeing that real culture is a background for individual and state alike. The aristocracy must not necessarily be limited to wealth and birth, but must include aristocracy of thought, character, and talents and in no place should these be more prominent than in a government.

KNOW HOW TO PLAY

Children still have the edge on man. They know how to play. But how much adult sport is wearisome and utter prostration at the end! How much of it is participation and how much of it is seen from the spectator's standpoint! How many come home utterly weary from their "play." All because they do not put fun into it. Fun will not trouble itself with the capturing of a few championship crowns. The dog who plays with you on a lawn does not think of winning championships, he just throws himself into the real play and is happy.

If the day should ever come when anyone should try to steal away from a child the native gift of knowing how to play, it will be sad for the race. This does not by mean that supervision of play within bounds is not all right, but it does mean that the real element of fun (as when nature laughs) is the essential thing, that the prize is not all.

Organization of play may be necessary in the coming age of leisure which men are predicting is certain to come with the continued development of machinery, but surely there will be enough real sportiveness left to keep the fun and the play in sport.

"The play's the thing" once said a mythical figure in a drama, referring to the stage, but, the play of children is greater than any drama, and in very real sense "play's the thing."

CLOCK TRADE RECOVERED

Britain has recovered the clock manufacturing industry. It is believed that nearly one hundred times as many clocks will be turned out in the year 1933 as in 1930, the increase being from 28,000 to two and a half million. Millions of money have been turned into the industry and foreign competition has been successfully coped with.

Today Japanese and German clocks have been having their day, but with British clocks recovering the market, something of the stability of British manufacture is to be expected in the timepieces sold even in Canada.

Up to one hundred years ago British clockmakers virtually led the world.

For hundreds of years the clock has been one of the products which may have changed in style yet has not changed much in mechanism. At least the measuring of time has not changed.

YEARNINGS

Oh, to be out in the wilderness,
Far from the haunts of man,
Alone—completely alone,
Just for one brief span.

Away from the fret and worry,
Away from carking care,
From the things that tease and flurry,
And the man-polluted air.

Out in the virgin forest
Or the meadows with unturned sod.
Where the seeds are scattered by angels,
And the Husbandman is God.

Where the cataracts leap for the glory of it
With never a turning wheel,
And the glassy calm of river or lake
Lies unruffled by plowing keel.

Where the pine trees gossip in whispers
With the rustling bracken and fern,
Or deadly axe and rending saw
In blissful uncondern.

Where the noise and tumult of commerce
Are things unknown, unheard,
And the spoils of nature are garnered alone
By beast, or insect, or bird.

Where, from impish chatter of squirrel
To hymn of the hermit thrush,
All sounds are the background of silence,
Blend in one harmonious hush.

Just to wander unpurposeful,
To linger or run at will,
And eye and ear, and mind and soul
With the beauties of God to fill;

Subduing all excess passion
Blotting out strain and stress,
Quaffing elixir of worldly delight,
And communing with Infiniteness.

Then, should the All-wise will it,
Back to the struggle and strife,
But laden with treasures no man can filch,
And which last till the close of life.

AUTOMOBILE PARADE on the highways and byways Sunday betokens the fact that confidence has returned and folks are convinced that the worst is not on its way to the demnition bow-wows, but is convalescent after rather a severe indisposition. Some cars being used means more gasoline and oil and repairs and employment to many men in the sales and servicing of automobiles, besides the amount of money spent on refreshments by holiday trippers, which also furnishes employment. Confidence returns and with it normal trading and buying after a period of frozen business, and ere long the entire circle of employment is humming with renewed life, while soup kitchens and bread lines are relegated to the limbo of unpleasant things to be forgotten. Not that we will have as the Bible says, a certain percentage of the poor with us always—but who is really poor these days of plenty when no one goes hungry or lacks clothing or a place to sleep?

MORGAN AND THE MIDGET made the Front Page last week in a mild little sensation, with repercussions. The great money magnate, the man who as head of the House of Morgan, which is a financial power hard to estimate, dandled a circus midget on his knee in the sacred precincts of the Senate Chamber at Washington. The Senate was horrified and press photographers were ordered by the Senate authorities not to dare use the photographs taken for press purposes. The stunt was supposed to have been arranged by an over-enthusiastic publicity agent to enhance the drawing powers of the midget as an attraction. After much fuss and foolishness the suspicion was born that the stunt was not altogether spontaneous. This thought came after the great J. Pierpont Morgan had asked that the press photographers be not penalised. That the midget stunt was alleged to make the banking investigation ridiculous is now charged by some editorial writers who state that it was termed a "circus" by the Wall St. leaders from the start, and throwing in the midget was just a bit of color to make it stick. The mechanisms of Mr. Morgan and his ready questions and her equally as ready answers, while cameras and sound equipment recorded the incident looked too natural to be accidental—all of which proves once again that the Yankees know their publicity.

ESSENTIALS IN TREATING MENTAL CASES

Parents Not to Blame For All Cases of Feeble-mindedness

BY LOUIS E. BISCH, M.D., Ph.D., Famous Authority on Health and Psychology

Parents who have one or more feebled-minded children fall into two general categories. In one group are those who feel convinced that the child will eventually outgrow the mental trouble; in the other are those who feel absolutely hopeless about the future, treatment or no treatment.

The opposing views which I have mentioned are as extreme as my classification. To be sure, many other parents exist who are doing everything that is possible to further the progress of their unfortunate offspring. Nevertheless, it is astonishing how few really have a scientific attitude regarding the problem of defective children.

First of all, parents who have given birth to a defective child should not accuse themselves nor should they feel any sense of shame. Heredity may play a dominant role in the production of abnormal mental states, yet hundreds of cases exist in which no such morbid tendencies are discernable. In fact, a feeble-minded child may be born of parents who have had normal children before the patient's birth; one may even see where the children born after the defective one are likewise normal.

What is always essential is that a definite, accurate and scientific diagnosis be made of every child who is suspected of being retarded mentally, no matter how far carried or how slight that may be. Next, such a child should be placed under a specialist's care and his directions should be faithfully carried out.

X-Ray examination has of late been added light upon what already is known or suspected about such a patient. Mental tests still remain the most valuable means of determining what is wrong with a child's mind. These, however, must invariably be carried out by one interpreted by a psychologist experienced in this special type of work. Besides such procedures a thorough physical and neurological examination—the latter referring particularly to the organic state of the nervous system—should be given.

Nowadays, and as a routine part of the physical examination, attention is given to the "gland" system, to those endocrine structures which are so powerful in stimulating or in retarding mentality. In fact, with proper gland treatment more can be accomplished in improving feeble-minded children—especially those suffering from thyroid or pituitary deficiency — than in any other way.

Certain cases of mental defective ness are, of course, incurable. Especially is this true of the lowest grades, the idiots and the imbeciles. It is in the highest grades, the so-called "morons" that the great possibilities for betterment lie.

The educational side is likewise highly important in every feebleminded individual, and this irrespective of the grade of mental defect. That is why special classes have been set apart in public schools for such children while institutions, state as well as private, draw heavily upon the teaching possibilities in developing their charges both mentally and physically.

What I wish to emphasize most strongly is that no child, not even one who is only the least bit defective, should be allowed to go undiagnosed and untreated. Always find out exactly what is wrong and exactly what modern science has to offer in such a case.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

JUNE 7, 1913

To find $30 in bills being scattered and blown about Front St. was the surprise given Bertie Adams, a young boy, yesterday. He collected the green backs and reported the find to the police department. Miss Bott of the Marchmont Home claimed the money.

MP. A. E. Bailey is in Whitby attending the Bay of Quinte Conference of the Methodist Church.

Mr. Jack Dellor of the Molson's Bank, has returned to the city from Bancroft.

Mr. D. V. Sinclair has returned from Toronto, where he attended the Presbyterian General Assembly.

Mr. C. M. Reid of the Ritchie Co. will leave shortly on a business trip to Europe.

Mr. J. O. Herity has returned from Toronto, where he attended the annual convention of the Canadian Press Association.

30 YEARS AGO

JUNE 7, 1903

The arrangements for welcoming the Governor General, Lord Minto and Lady Minto were well nigh perfected and the energetic gentleman, Ald. D. V. Sinclair belongs much of the credit for the success of the affair. Mr. J. J. B. Flint made a gallant and imposing marshal of the day.

Dr. and Mrs. W. H. T. Peake have left for Calgary where they expect to make their home.

The artistic display of "plug" hats at the reception of the Governor General's party was the whole price of admission. It was most imposing. As relics of prehistoric days some of the hats must be very valuable.

Mrs. H. Green and two children and Miss Wilhelmina Green of New York City are in the city the guests of Mrs. R. Tuite.

"Pretty good fishing out there, Mr. Mayor?" said Lord Minto as the party was driving along the bay shore to the D. and D. institution. "Out of sight," said His Worship, Mayor Graham, diplomatically.

Dr. Bisch's Daily Diet Hint

Pickles and condiments in general, are excellent appetizers but should be eaten sparingly and then if you must. The food value of cucumber pickles is low, 92.9 per cent being water. Vinegar, in which pickles are prepared, is a dilute solution of acetic acid. In small amounts it activates the flow of gastric juice. In excess it upsets digestion.

As Knowlton was crossing the deck of the submarine towards the gangplank leading to the tender, he saw the submarine's base, starting direction of the torpedo room, carrying the casing-covered dead. He stepped aside to let them pass, following each of the fifteen covered figures with fascinated horrified eyes.

The bodies of the dead passed him, and he followed on board the tender.

He, too, was dead to the AL-16. Joan Knowlton would be waiting, trying to control her emotion, before her seating Talbot, Captain Toler, in her apartment.

"Oh, Dad, you've got to help him"! she cried. "Think what it means—the end of his career, dishonor, disgrace"!

"Think of the fifteen men who died—because of his disobedient orders."

"But he was all broken up about Brick," said Joan, her voice trailing. "When he saw that little boat he lost his head. Isn't that enough to excuse any man?"

"No, a man who cracks under any strain doesn't belong in the Navy."

"But I didn't think you could be so hard!"

"What I think has nothing to do with it. It rests entirely with the Court."

Joan pleaded for Knowlton. "But you could save him—if you wanted to."

"Perhaps—by lying."

"Suppose I do lie!" cried Joan. "It would give him another chance—save him from ruining his life!"

"I'm sorry Joan, but I wouldn't lie to protect anyone—not even myself."

I suppose your precious duty makes it necessary for you to send Knowlton to the gallows for shirking at his post."

"My duty to the Navy yes," said her father.

"For once you've got to forget your duty! I'm asking a personal favor—I'm asking it on my knees. I love him."

"Joan!" cried Toler, amazed and aghast. "You don't know what you are asking."

"Yes, Dad, I do. We've loved each other for a long time. Everything else is hopeless. Now, don't you see, if you break him, I'll go to him"!

Captain Toler looked at his daughter as though her words had sent his world crumbling about him. He struggled to control his face, set as hot words of anger fought for utterance. When he spoke it was with a deadly calm in face and voice.

"It's for you to decide, Joan, Either, you can kill Herbert and spoil everything for me, or you can stand your duty, because I'm not going to be made a fool of."

Knowlton confined in a cabin on the tender, stood at a porthole looking out. MacDougal entered, a suggestion of mystery in his bearing.

"A visitor to see me, Sir," Knowlton whirled; "A visitor? Who?"

"Shall I say?"

But the door opened and Joan stepped quickly inside.

MacDougal was hardly out of the cabin before Joan walked straight into Knowlton's arms. She was agitated and trembling.

"Oh, my darling"— she said, and fell silent.

"You couldn't have come here, Joan," he said, after a time.

"I had to see you. You had been helping, withdrew discreetly.

"Why, you're all right now, Joan," said Toler, "You're going to ram the mole and bottle up the harbor. It is the one man job. I won't be back. I'd like to have you with me."

"Sorry, You should have thought of that before."

"I thought you were a man of action"!

"I am, but my action takes me in a different direction."

"You're still time to redeem yourself."

"Thank for the invitation." Knowlton's voice was ugly and cutting. "I have a previous engagement."

Toler, realizing that his defeat was final, squared his shoulders, turned on his heel, and left the cabin.

"Good-bye, Knowlton, and good luck."

"Good luck to you, Commander." Flight Commander Herbert Smythe put down the book he was reading at the sound of light footsteps approaching his room, his eyes on the door, a smile on his lips.

"What kept you so long?" he asked Joan, as she entered. "The hours are endless when you are away."

"I'm sorry."

"Don't think me selfish."

"I don't."

"All this isn't very pleasant, for you." He grasped her hand, pulling out of this, Joan."

"How do you mean, Herbert?"

"They're shipping me back to England. I'll have a little down there to the life of an English country gentleman. But it's pretty—the old place. You'll be a lady of the Manor, with the farmers' wives curtseying as you drive by. Lots to do. There'll be help to pay for all this war—unemployment, poverty, misery new ways, reconstruction. Perhaps I'll stand for Parliament—I'm not standing down. Such fortune by my head still works. You'll help me write my speeches, won't you? Do you think you'd find in such a life enough to compensate for what's been taken from us?"

Joan completely astonished him by bursting into tears.

"Joan!"

"Oh, don't talk to me now, please. Why, dearest, what is it?" Why have I made you cry? I know—I'm a damned nuisance; I've got on your nerves. But we've got to go on; we've got to make the best of it. I'll help—do something in return for your help and devotion."

"Oh, Herbert, don't be so kind to

MOTHER, WIFE, ANXIOUSLY FOLLOW MATTERN'S ROUTE

Anxiety and pride are intermingled in the emotions of these two women, wife and mother of Jimmy Mattern, who made a "round-the-world" record as they watch his progress. me!"

"Kinds! It's you who are kind. Life puts a burden on those who are able to bear it. We must think of those less fortunate than we—"

"Is your ladyship preaching?" asked Joan, anxious to do something for him.

"Full of lumps, the damn thing!" He raised up with her help while she shook up and crammed the pillows. "Ah, that's better. Your hands are cool. You're tired—dying! He kissed her hand. "Poor darling! War was never meant for women."

Joan moved restlessly. "Shall I get you a cool drink?"

"No. Just sit here a while. I can rest now that you're with me.

"I'll put the flowers in the hall, shall I?"

"I don't mind them. I hate to see them wither—since you picked them."

But she took the vase into the hall to get out of his sight, to hide her emotion of desperation and indecision, torn between that agonized conflict of duty and desire. When, after a time, he spoke her name in some tenderness, she bent to herself, sank back into the bedroom and held his hands until he fell asleep. She stood looking at him, tears running over her eyelids, then stopped, kissed him gently, and backed out of the room.

Leaving Herbert Smythe him was going to be harder than she had imagined she felt the need of strength, guidance. She could not think of her father. She made her way into the hospital chapel. Soon she was kneeling at the altar rail, lighted candles before the Unseen shrine. Emotion grasped her: tears choked her. Soon she was praying sobbingly for help, her hands clasped convulsively together, her upturned face lifted to the image of the Crucified One. Broken phrases tumbled from her quivering lips

It was Knowlton, come to the hospital to be near her—perhaps to catch, unseen, a glimpse of her. He stared, almost unbelievingly, at the kneeling figure as snatches of her prayer came to him.

His face went gray as he realized that she, the daughter of the man struggling with her sense of duty to her husband — the emotion that overwhelmed her—and nor her determination could overcome. He realized how that unlived Joan could come to him without a vestige of regret, there could be no happiness together for them.

Sick in mind, stricken at heart, he left the chapel unseen by the woman agonizing at the altar.

In her apartment the following morning, Joan, in travelling costume, was packing her clothes in a big, sloppy way now and then to wipe away the tears that fell at recollection of the scene with his utter dependence upon her, Shaken by her farewell scene with him, not at all sure of the step she was about to take, it required all the force of character she possessed to go on with her packing, to keep from bursting into sobs.

At a knock on the door she hastily dried her eyes, went to the door and opened it upon Knowlton in civilian clothes, a mountain of luggage behind him.

Knowlton entered the room. "Tears? As a time like this"—

"Please forgive me, Tommy. Everything's all right now that you are with me."

"Well, this is a fine way to begin an elopement, I must say."

Joan threw herself into his arms clinging convulsively to him.

"Don't say that! I'll be all right now."

"I know what it is! Knowlton's lips curled scornfully. "That naval hero's husband scares you."

"Joan pulled away from his arms,

Advice to the Lovelorn

Here is a girl who is considering making a loveless match because her parents have never really been very fond of her. She wonders if she is an adopted child, and there is some mystery about her birth which accounts for their aloofness. Is she better off at home?

Dear Miss Fairfax:

From my earliest childhood I have become the cross of feeling unwanted by my mother and father. They give me anything but love. We have such a nice home, and a maid and they buy me lovely clothes —but I have never kissed my mother except on the cheek, nor my father has never kissed me more than two or three times in my life.

My parents seem devoted to each other, and when I go where they are I feel like an intruder. Two or three times I have tried to speak to my mother about it, but she just gives me a cool little smile and says "It's all imagination on my part. I have done all I can to make my parents love me, but it seems impossible.

Please don't think me foolish, Miss Fairfax, but I am one of those creatures who must be loved. I am only 18, but am terribly lonely and unhappy! Among my friends there is a man of 36, a widower with one child of 7. He is anxious for me to marry him. He knows the situation in my home, and has often spoken of my parents' attitude toward me.

He tells me he will try to make up to me for all I have missed in the way of affection, but while I respect this man and would love him as a friend, I do not feel I can love him in the least.

I have spoken to my parents of this offer of marriage and they tell me to do as I like—to make my own decision. I thought perhaps, as you are a stranger to me, that you would give me a little personal advice, for which I thank you.

Helena B.

If you were older, quite a bit older, my dear, I should advise you to marry the widower with a little hesitancy. But as it is, with all the years before you, and the chance of unhappiness underlying love unsatisfied awaiting you, I could never find it in my conscience to give you this advice.

You know what it is to be unloved in your own home. How much worse it would be after an experience of this kind, to go into a new home where you brought no love and where you knew you would be piling unhappiness on unhappiness, tragedy on tragedy. And it is not necessary that it would be like that, too. He thinks he could soon learn to love you, as many, many people have hoped to teach love and failed.

You are among the fortunate who do not have to worry over a job or money. You tell me you have a very comfortable allowance for spending. May I suggest that if you joined some social agency for the relief of people in distress you would be a lot happier.

The world is full of people just now who do not know where to look for their next meal, or their next night's lodging. It would ease your heart ache, my dear, if you would work among these distressed people, and I have a feeling that the love you have been looking for might come to you through this source.

CANADIAN AT COURT

MISS SIGNY STEPHENSON

Presented at the court of St. James by Lady Byng, Miss Mary Signy Stephenson of Winnipeg has arrived home after her trip abroad which culminated in her presentation to royalty. Miss Stephenson is shown here in the gown she wore to the court.

Weddings

JONES—RUSTON

A quiet, but pretty wedding took place at Bridge Street United Church at two o'clock this afternoon, when Ivy Mona, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thos. D. Ruston, 26 Cedar street, became the bride of Mr. Harry Nelson Jones, son of Mr. Nelson Jones, 31 Jane street and the late Mrs. Nelson Jones. Rev. R. H. Bell officiated at the ceremony.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father wore a lovely "Simplicity" model, hyacinth blue gown, of triple sheer voile and lace hat of shell pink. Her gloves were of silk mesh with organdy cuffs and she carried a bridal bouquet of Ophelia roses.

Miss Lily Furse, Toronto, was maid of honor and wore a pretty gown of dust pink crepe, while the bridesmaid, Miss Helen Jones, sister of the groom was attractively attired in yellow eyelet embroidered organdy. Both attendants wore gowns similar to the bride's and carried arm bouquets of roses.

Mr. Fred Stirland was groomsman. Wedding music was played by Mr. W. J. Hunt, organist of the church.

After the ceremony a buffet lunch was served at the home of the bride's parents, The bride's mother, Mrs. Ruston, in a smart gown of green figured crepe received the guests, with the bride and groom.

Later, Mr. and Mrs. Jones left on a motor trip to Toronto and western points, the bride travelling in a dark tailored suit with white crepe toque and matching accessories. On their return they will reside in Belleville. Among those at the wedding close friends and relatives were guests from Lindsay, Oshawa and Toronto.

BOURK—ANDREWS

The marriage was solemnized at St. George's Anglican Church, Clarens, on Monday, June 5th of Phyllis Mary, daughter of Mr. Robert C. Andrews, 264 Coleman street, Belleville and Mr. Robert Gaspard Bourk, son of Mrs. Thomas Bourk, Ottawa. The ceremony was performed by the bride's uncle, Archdeacon Snowden.

Only immediate friends were unattended. After the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served at the home of the groom's sister, Mrs. W. L. Thurlow, 198 Gladstone Avenue. After a motor trip to Quebec, Mr. and Mrs. Bourk will reside at 44 Catherine Street, Belleville.

FRY—MEIKLEJOHN

RYLESTONE — A very pretty wedding was solemnized at Ryl-stone United Church at seven o'clock on Saturday, June 3rd, when Bessie, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Meiklejohn, became the bride of Ray Fry, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Fry, Lambrick's Corners.

The bride entered the church on the arm of her father, to the strains of the Lohengrin Wedding March, played by Grant Meiklejohn, brother of the bride. The bride looked pretty in a white ankle length white triple sheer gown, with veil and orange blossoms, and carried a bouquet of Premier roses and baby's breath. Miss Ida Meiklejohn, sister of the bride, acted as bridesmaid, and looked very charming in a pink organdie frock, and white picture hat. The maids of honor were Miss Granville Meiklejohn attired in white eyelet batiste over pink taffeta, and Miss Ruth Simms. Lindsay Anderson, gowned in pink taffeta crepe with matching hat and accessories, Mr. Fred Fry was groomsman.

The mother of the bride wore a navy printed silk crepe dress with white lace collar, and picture hat and shoes to match. The mother of the groom was becomingly attired in grey with sand hat and brown shoes.

The ceremony was performed under an arch of white crepe, flowers and greenery, by Rev. Canon Bunt. During the signing of the register, Miss Emma Meiklejohn sang appropriately "O Perfect Love" accompanied at the organ by Grant Meiklejohn.

After the ceremony the guests assembled at the reception to the home of the bride's parents where a delicious wedding luncheon was served, by four friends of the bride. Misses Ina Stewart, Evelyn Barnum, Vivian Spencer and Marjorie McLeoun. Rev. Mr. McTavish, acted as toast-master and proposed the toast to the bride, which was very ably responded to by the groom. The following gave short speeches, Sanford Meiklejohn, Mr. Thos Fry, Rev. H. A. Bunt, and Mr. Allan Meiklejohn, Kingston.

Mr. and Mrs. Fry received some very beautiful and costly presents. The groom's gift to the bride being a silver tea pot. To the bridesmaid a turquoise and crystal necklace; to the maids, bracelets to match, to the groomsman, (Fred Fry) and organist, yellow gold watch chains with white gold monogram plate. Messrs. Grant Meiklejohn and Lindsay Anderson acted as ushers.

After the luncheon the guests assembled on the lawn where pictures of the wedding party were taken.

About four o'clock the bride and groom left amid showers of confetti and good wishes for a motor trip to Niagara and Kingston, the bride travelling in a blue swagger suit with hat, shoes and accessories to match. On their return they will reside on the groom's farm near Lambrick's Corners.

Guests from a distance were—Dr. and Mrs. Allan Meiklejohn of Kingston, Mr. and Mrs. Roger Meiklejohn, Stirling; Allan Meiklejohn, Toronto; Mrs. Ida Meiklejohn, Mrs. Ernest Meiklejohn, Mrs. Ernest Meiklejohn, Mrs. Ernest

BASE METALS ARE STRONGER

ard Chalks up Liberal Proportion of Gains in Trading

Toronto, June 7 (CP)—The Toronto stock market chalked up a liberal proportion of gains in today's operations, mainly food and base stocks taking a leading position in the forward movement. Smelters metals were unusually strong, led by Nickel which shot up about $1.50 a share and held most of the gain, closing at $18.38. Smelters finished 3 1-2 up at 132. Ford and Brazilian traded heavily and closed at the best prices for the day which was the best of the year in the case of Ford. The motor share rose up to 13 1-4 and Brazilian to 14 3-4, while C.P.R. gained 1-4 to 17 1-4.

The oil market was moderately off colour, Imperial, Crown Dominions and McColl Frontenac down at the close. Dominion Bank registered a quick advance to 23. Western Can was 3 points to a new high for the year.

WEAKNESSES OF DEMOCRACY

Sir Josiah Stamp Sees Lack of Adaptation to Reach Decision

DURHAM, N.C., June 7.—(AP)—Sir Josiah Stamp, distinguished British economist, said today the Democratic form of government here today and said one of the weaknesses was its adaptation for coming to a decision upon economic problems.

The noted Briton, chairman of the London Midland and Scottish Railway, member of numerous Specialists Societies and the British representative in 1929 on the Reparation Commission's plan, spoke on German economic and finance, delivered the commencement address at Duke University.

"Democracy," he said "is excellently adapted for dealing with all problems that do not deteriorate by waiting or which can leave them or suffer from the very process of discussions, and is suited to settle matters such as the questions of religious and civil liberty, national and local government and the like of the features of social life. But it is not well adapted for coming to a decision upon economic problems."

SENIOR GOLD STOCKS HIGH

Aided by Buoyant Tone in Wall Street And Heavy Buying

Toronto, June 7—(CP)—The senior gold stocks were active in the list volume today on the Standard Mining Exchange, a buoyant tone added by a buoyant tone in Wall Street through most of the day and by heavy buying in the senior line. Metals firmed also and silver shares were steady.

Gains of 50 cents to $1 were registered by Lake Shore, Dome, McIntyre and Noranda and gains of 5 to 20 cents by Pioneer, Hollinger and Teck Hughes. Wright Hargreaves held about steady, Teck featured the day's trading most of the trades for the whole day going through at $1.50.

Nickel had a sharp run up from $17.10 to $18.75 and the close at $18.80 showed a gain of 81 1-2. Smelters firmed to 1.29.

GRAIN PRICES STAGE RECOVERY

Heavy Selling at Opening Carried Wheat Down One Cent

Winnipeg, June 7 (CP)—Resting upon the basis of reported export sales, wheat futures prices recovered from early session losses of nearly a cent in morning trading of the Winnipeg Grain Market today. Values rallied to within 3-8 cent of the previous close for July futures at 42 1-2, October 84 1-2, and December 63 1-8 cents.

No certain foreign purchases of Canada's wheat was available, but sentiment seemed to be fair. Trading quickened from the opening activity on the recovery.

Heavy selling at the opening pushed prices downward, ignoring gains of nearly a cent scored in the Chicago market.

Pressure by liberal Canadian offers, Liverpool prices were lower throughout the morning, closing 1-8-3-8d lower.

Buying also was weak today opening 1-8 to 1-4 cent under the previous close.

Can Gov't. Bonds Improve in Price. Our Dollar at New High

New York, June 7.—(AP)—Stocks traded in heavy volume in a highly speculative market today. Metals and utilities were firm while rails were somewhat mixed. Industrials ruled steady. The firm, but leaders such as U. S. Steel, General Motors and Allied Chemical were comparatively narrow. Union Pacific; American Can and Santa Fe were the outstanding rails at times. Advances of around a point occurred in Radio; General Electric and Montgomery Ward. Other advances of 1 to 3 points were in Chrysler; Manville; Case; Chesapeake and Ohio and American Smelting. Utilities were firm, while coals showed some improvement; but corn was easier. Bar silver opened unchanged and then a gain of 1-4 cent at 35 3-4 cents an ounce. Copper was steady and bonds mainly irregular and lower.

Canadian Government Bonds improved, the 4s and 5s advancing 2-4 of a point each as the Dominion dollar reached a new high for the year. Stocks of International Nickel, Dome Mines and McIntyre Porcupine moved forward fractionally to 1 1-2 points. Bankers were unable to arrive at the special stimulating effect of Canadian currency other than to attribute it to sympathy with sterling.

BELLEVILLE ESCAPES RAVAGES OF STORM

Western and Eastern Ontario in Range of Disastrous Storm

Brewed in Western Canada, a thunderstorm swept the province with fury and disappointed dealers in the east later in the afternoon, leaving in its wake a trail of damage and injury to property and human life. The storm descended over Belleville about 4.30 o'clock, after taking considerable property damage as far as Ingleside. Following the path of the storm although darkness fell early in the afternoon, only a minimum of rain and observers but a falling of rain on the whole, to add very much to their recent gains.

Most shares apparently paid little attention to the inflationary implications of a further sharp advance in the Canadian dollar and preferred to speculate on new highs for the list of which reached new highs for the year or more. Commodities were a bit irregular. Wheat and cotton showed some improvement; but corn was easier. Bar silver opened unchanged and then a gain of 1-4 cent at 35 3-4 cents an ounce. Copper was steady and bonds mainly irregular and lower.

Canadian Government Bonds improved, the 4s and 5s advancing 2-4 of a point each as the Dominion dollar reached a new high for the year. Stocks of International Nickel, Dome Mines and McIntyre Porcupine moved forward fractionally to 1 1-2 points. Bankers were unable to arrive at the special stimulating effect of Canadian currency other than to attribute it to sympathy with sterling.

D. BELASCO'S LAST STAGE PLAY HERE "TONIGHT OR NEVER"

Putting "All-Star Cast" into moving picture advertising has gone out since the public discovered it meant that one by one the picture announced to anything. But Samuel Goldwyn, producer of "Tonight or Never," which comes to the Capitol Theatre today, has gone back to using the old star cast. That is, the people behind the production of the picture whose faces never appear on the screen but whose names make the screen-crazy sound like a page out of "Who's Who."

In the person of Gloria Swanson, who plays the romantic leading role in "Tonight or Never," he has a worldfamous star, and in Mervyn LeRoy, a young Hungarian stage. It was LeRoy's first picture, but his experience in this picture, he thinks he has a coming star. But it is in casting the minor parts that he seems that the names cluster thickest. No less than 14 of the 18 in the cast in was anything short of a famous example in his story.

The original play, done in New York last season as the final success of the late David Belasco's career, was written by the Baroness Von Hutzsky, queen of the contemporary Hungarian stage. It was adapted to the screen by Frederica Vadja, whose work on "The Love Parade" and "The Smiling Lieutenant" brought her the high degree of fame in Hollywood and who is already being mentioned as a likely choice for his successful stage plays like "Caprice" and "The Last of Mrs. Cheyney." And its director was Mervyn LeRoy, the youthful wonder who has recently come to the age of twenty-one directors with "Little Caesar" and "Five Star Final."

The physical appearance of the production was mainly taken care of by two noted experts. Willy Pogany, illustrator, designer, composer, artist, created the lavish settings to bring out to the full the romantic flavor of the Hungarian court where the story is laid. And the costumes which Miss Swanson wears in her role of the opera-singer who learns about love from a mysterious young American are the work especially for this production by Gilbert Clarke, known as one of the best known dress-designers in Paris, the capital of fashionable clothes.

"Tonight or Never" stays at the Capitol until Friday and is supported by comedy and News.

Spying on Sports

ARE THE PIRATES of Pittsburgh to have their ship scuttled for the second straight season via the infield?

Unless the St. Louis Cardinals slow up on that will not be a question. It will be an established fact.

However, this time it isn't the Pirate infield which may cost the once bold and belligerent Buccaneers the 1933 pennant. The infield in question belongs to the Cardinals.

When the season began the Red Birds needed a stronger infield in order to change their status as a second division outfit into that of pennant contender. And now they have uncovered that strength.

-:-:-

LAST SEASON the Pirates were raging toward the National league championship when they stumbled. The stumble became a collapse when Floyd Vaughan, youthful shortstop weakened under the terrific strain of playing stellar baseball with a pennant-hunting outfit in his first full major season. The Pirates weakened with him.

As it chanced, the Chicago Cubs were just near enough to the Pittsburgh club to take advantage of the Pirate fall. They moved into first place.

Later in the season the Pirates got back onto their feet. But it was too late. A weaker Cub team had already won the pennant.

-:-:-

THIS SEASON the Pirate infield is not the broken link it was last year. However, it is the Cardinal infield which may sadden Pittsburgh fans just as the pirate infield saddened them last season.

The acquisition of Leo Durocher, shortstop, from Cincinnati, and conversion of Outfielder Pepper Martin into an infielder are the two moves which have made the Cardinals.

The highly prized Red Bird mound staff has been turning in some well-pitched games but the Cardinal pitchers have not been the great factor in the St. Louis winning streak the infield has proven to be.

-:-:-

THE CARDINAL sport has nothing more behind it than the desire of capable players to win. Support of the St. Louis fandom has been wanting. Mound City citizens have failed to show the curiosities so called the Cleveland fans, for instance, earlier in the season when the Indians appeared to have a chance to get somewhere.

However, this is not intended to mean the Red Birds may be expected to collapse. They are playing the steadiest ball in either league series. Meanwhile, the Philadelphia Athletics who have turned the American league race into a farce.

The gaming gentry who figure the so-called odds against teams' chances to win a pennant now rate the Cardinals even with the Pirates. It doesn't appear too ambitious to rate them an even better bet, at this stage of the race.

BETWEEN INNINGS

JIMMY FOXX is so positive the fans that he received votes for three positions—first base, third and catcher—in the poll to determine the American league team in the Century of Progress game, July 6, in Chicago.

-:-:-

DIZZY DEAN, so far this season, has failed to be the heavy winner that the Cardinals he was expected to prove. The St. Louis pitcher lost five of his first seven games.

-:-:-

BABE RUTH plays left field in the Philadelphia, Chicago, Detroit, St. Louis, Boston and Cleveland parks, but is a right fielder in the Washington park and Yankee stadium, his home grounds.

-:-:-

ADAM COMOROSKY would be roaming the Brooklyn outfield if Manager Max Carey could produce Pittsburgh to part with him. However, the Pirates fear possible injuries to one of the Waners or Freddie Lindstrom would leave them stranded if Adam were not on hand.

-:-:-

PAUL KRICHELL, Yankee scout, looked over and recommended both of the New York club's "Big Three" collegians — Pitcher John Broaca of Yale and Pitcher Charley Devens of Harvard, now with the Newark Bears, a Yank farm.

-:-:-

TEX CARLETON, the St. Louis mound youngster, may be the boy who will win the National league pitching championship. He is the leading hurler in the loop and given no sign of weakening.

POP BOTTLES FLY WHEN REDS CARDS MIX

Former Teammates Tangle as Players Hold Batting Practice

A'S CLIMB AGAIN

White Sox Continue to Club Brown Hurling, Winning 5-3

(By Hugh S. Fullerton, Jr., Associated Press Sports Writer)

The stormy scenes of this year's "aggressive" baseball, hitherto monopolized by the New York Yankees and Washington Senators, have touched the National League and the drive of the St. Louis Cardinals toward the top.

Some stiff resistance to the Cincinnati Reds, plus the "riding" of one player by a former team-mate led the Cards into an embroglio yesterday. The actual fighting was confined to a brief flurry between two pitchers, Jemmey "Dizzy" Dean of the Cards and Paul Derringer of the Reds, during batting practice before the game. But before it was over, disputed decision led to ejection of two players, and two pop bottles were tossed from the stands, one of them striking Burgess Whitehead, a Cardinal sub, on the shoulder, and the umpires were escorted from the field by private police.

The Cards won the game 6-2, pounding out 11 hits while Bill Hallahan and Sylvester Johnson limited the Reds to four, and remained on the heels of the New York Giants. The teams are virtually tied for the lead.

Giants Still Lead

The Giants held their slim lead by battering the Brooklyn Dodgers for the third straight time, 7-2. They touched Owen Carroll for 4 runs in the second. Pittsburgh Pirates, recently leaders of the league, suffered their sixth straight defeat in seven games when Leon Chagnon weakened and gave the Chicago Cubs four runs in the 8th, and a 5-3 decision. The Phillies and Boston had an open date.

The Philadelphia Athletics continued their recovery from the shock of four defeats by the Yankees by climbing back into the first division with an 8-4 triumph over Washington, their second in succession. Home runs by Ed. Coleman and Mickey Cochrane in the seventh inning produced three runs that put the game away.

Herb Pennock gave 11 hits, but still pitched a shutout and Babe Ruth got the major league home run lead with his 11th, circuit blow off the season as the Yankees increased their lead with a double victory over the Boston Red Sox, 5-0 and 6-4. The Babe's homer came with one on in the seventh, clinched the second victory.

Chicago's White Sox continued the slaughter of the St. Louis mound department by hammering out a 5-3 victory over the Browns. Lew Blaeholder, starting his second game on successive days, again was the loser.

Detroit showed Cleveland down into fifth place with a 5-2 victory gained on the combination of Schoolboy Rowe's expert flinging and some late rallies that were aided by Cleveland errors.

Gandhi, meanwhile, is recovering satisfactorily from the three-weeks fast he recently ended.

ANYBODY'S FIGHT

The Difference between wrestlers and referees seems to be that a wrestler falls on his own back while a "ref" doesn't care whose back he falls on. Here, for instance, is Todd Tonneman climbing all over Bull Martin and Pat Farley during their bout in Belleville recently. After vainly trying to separate the grapplers, he disqualified both.

CURRENT SPORT

Knocks and Boosts

As the authenticity of the following will be completed for the opening of the "rassling" season in Belleville. About the only concrete fact that Mr. Cornwall was that the "Frail gen" at the Arena would be thrown open to the fans at "two bits" per sit down.

Apparently our recent comments on Umpire Reg Taylor's decisions proved somewhat of a boomerang as Mr. Fair ran amiss of the Dave Toronto Club during a game played in the West Toronto League last Saturday. It seems that "Pinky" Clarke of the Toronto suburbans took certain objections to Umpire Fair's decisions and in no way hesitated in telling the official to "get his himself a dog," or words to that effect. Fair chased Clarke and then arguments aplenty followed. The queer part of the entire proceedings in our eye is the fact, that "Pinky" has become quite an umpire baiter of late and being chased by Fair gives us a laugh, as the genial Reggie is undoubtedly the world's worst umpire baiter in his day and age. It never fails, however, as soon as a ball player finds himself slipping he at once assumes, that the umpire have it in for him or on the other hand really tries to lay his mistakes over onto the shoulders of the officials of the day. It was ever thus.

Here's how the Oshawa sport scribe described the incident: "Umpire Fair created quite a little excitement among the New Toronto players on Saturday when he banished "Pinky" Clarke to the fourth inning for using language unbecoming of a player in the field of play. From what we can learn of the affair Clarke disputed a called strike and after the umpire's behavior talking was cautioned to keep his peace. Continuing to dissatisfy the player called Reg. a "Numbskull" and was promptly sent out of the game. It was most apparent that all the players who have come to New Toronto this season from other Toronto Clubs have the idea they are playing in the West Toronto League and have to tell all and sundry that they are First Class baseball players."

With the current girls' softball season in full swing, President F. Deacon had a number of openings for the position as umpires in his loop, but it would appear that the umpire girls' softball this season should get in touch with Mr. Deacon or W. R. Vandervoort, secretary of the league, before the league meets next Monday.

REAL BATTLE FOR 2ND PLACE

Solters of Orioles And Tate of Montreal in Great Race

(By the Canadian Press)

The battle for second place in the International League Big Six between two Baltimore players and a Montreal catcher featured yesterday's games. Julius Solters, Orioles outfielder, retained second position by getting two hits in four tries to boost his mark to .304 while his team-mate Ralph Boyle lost five points and fell to .267. Tate pounded out a home run into third place. Tate got three hits in four trips up at Rochester and boosted his mark to .382, only two behind Solters.

GOLF FACTS

NOT THEORIES!

By
Alex J. Morrison

Ball with low flight and "low shot into wind" are actually half missed shots.

ALEX MORRISON says:

Everyone seems to admire the type of shot with a wood club which finds the ball traveling in a very low flight.

In order to send the ball in such a flight the club head must strike the ball much higher than it does when the ball is given a normal flight. The ball in a sense is "half topped."

It is easy enough to top the ball or miss the ball entirely when endeavoring to get such a result.

Furthermore the distance gained is never worth the demoralizing effect on your game. The normal flight of the ball is always best under any conditions.

SCHMELING TO GIVE WEIGHT

Max Baer is Young Tough Rival For Former Champ

(By Herbert W. Barker Associated Press Sports Writer.)

New York June 7.—(AP) — For the first time since he arrived in this country, perhaps for the first time in his career, Max Schmeling is being asked to give away chunks of weight to a young, tough rival, Max Baer, and on his success in solving that problem in the Yankee Stadium tomorrow night rests his chance of becoming the first ex-heavyweight champion in history to regain the title.

For if he whips the Brawny Californian decisively in Jack Dempsey's first New York promotorial venture, few experts doubt his ability to "take" either the aging Jack Sharkey or the matinee idol Jimmy Carnera who will meet for the title in Madison Square Garden's Outdoor Bowl in Long Island City, June 29.

Even those who believe the 2 1-2 to 1 odds on better in Schmeling's favor are satisfied, agree that in Baer the German will be facing his stiffest test. The 23-pound Livermore, California youngster has made tremendous progress in the last two years and his great strength and stamina.

Coupled with startling speed in so big a man, make him a formidable foe or any heavyweight in the business.

BOYS: There's Fun and Money in Owning a C·C·M Bicycle

EVERY boy who hasn't a bicycle is just dying to own one, because all the other boys have one with it. But besides fun, he can also make money with a bicycle.

Many a boy has paid for his own bicycle in a few weeks by delivering parcels. Then he has kept on making money for himself. Many boys deliver newspapers by bicycle, because it is so much easier and faster than walking. Other boys who have long distances to go to school use a bicycle to save time by riding bicycles. Older boys, through with school, have landed jobs as bicycle salesmen for factories and other business houses. A boy with a bicycle can certainly get a job much easier than a boy without a bicycle.

The boy who seeks a delivery or messenger job should have an easy-running, sturdy, "stand-up" bicycle that will stand up out of the repair shop'— in other words a C·C·M. He can't afford to risk losing his job with a "cheaply-built" bicycle that continually gets out of order.

BEAR'S TASK MADE EASIER BY SLUMP

Rochester However - is Hanging on to Pace Setters

RED WINGS WIN

Leafs Idle But Open To-day a Long Road Trip

BY HERBERT W. BARKER.
Associated Press Sports Writer

The slump of the Baltimore Orioles and Toronto Maple Leafs has made Newark's task of keeping on top of the International League standing somewhat easier, but the Bears so far have failed to shake off the Rochester Redwings.

Today the 1932 title-holders led the Redwings by only a game and a half but Toronto and Baltimore, in a virtual tie for third place, were nine games further in arrears and presented no immediate cause for alarm for the pace-setters.

Newark and Rochester both won yesterday while Toronto, simply by being idle, returned to third place. A few percentage points ahead of Baltimore, which was beaten by Jersey City.

Charley Devens and Marvin Duke held Albany to nine scored hits as Newark pounded out a 6-3 decision. Devens blanked the Senators for six innings but was replaced by Duke midway through the seventh frame when Albany scored one run on Jimmy McLeod's home run. Newark collected 12 hits off three Albany pitchers, Johnny Neun driving in four runs with a triple and single.

Rochester got the benefit of tight pitching by Tony Kaufmann and beat Montreal Royals 2-1. Art Smith pitched a strong game for the invaders but was the victim of Bob Parham's game-winning home-run in the sixth inning.

Jersey City bunched its five hits in two innings to defeat Baltimore 6-3. The Skeeters scored twice in the second inning and then added four more tallies in the third, three coming over on Val Picinich's homer.

FIRST LOSS TO CONSECON

Redneerville Left Them on Short End of 10-5 Count

Consecon, June 7 (Special)—Consecon's entry in the Ameliasburg league suffered their first loss here last night when the Redneerville nine left them on the small end of a 10-5 score. The game was fairly fast, but was marred by a number of errors on both sides which put in several runs. Wild pitches over the screen accounted for still more.

Walkom was back in the lineup for Redneerville playing his first game of the season at second. Art Demorest pitched well and for most of the game had good support.

James hurled for Consecon until the fifth when he was replaced by "Barney" Clark. The latter was pitched for runs in their first session at bat, the visitors played carefully; and kept Consecon of the score sheet until the third when Art McConkey scored.

The loss of this game puts Consecon in a tie with Victoria for first place, and Redneerville exactly half way, two wins, two losses.

Lineups:

Redneerville—J. Farley c; Tompkins 2b; Walkom 1b; Demorest p; H. Farley lb; Weese lf; Walkom 2b; Sills rf.

Consecon—B. Clark cf and p; Phillips 1b; Cook 2b; Hayes 3b; C. McConkey c; Wright ss; A. McConkey rf; Barret lf; K. Clark ss.

HOARDS WIN AT BONARLAW

Score Tied in Last Frame And Winning Run Scored on Error

Bonarlaw, June 7 (Special) — Playing at Hoards on Thursday last Bonarlaw softball team was defeated by Hoards in a very close game the score being 11 to 10.

Brooks was on the mound for Bonarlaw except in the fourth innings when he was relieved by Black and Smith twirled for Hoards.

At the end of the third frame when the score was 7 to 3 in favor of Bonarlaw victory seemed within their grasp but in the fourth Hoards got the break they needed to put them ahead of the visitors. Excitement ran high in the last innings when the score was tied and Hoards at bat and the local fans and a large number who ac-

CRYSTALACS OUT IN FRONT

Win From B.A.A.A. 6-5 While Wellington Defeats Moose 13-5

Behind the steady hurling of "Lefty" Phillips the Wellington Juniors defeated the Moose juniors by the score of 13 to 5 at the Athletic Field, while the local Crystalacs were taking the measure of the champion B.A.A.A. on the Fair Grounds by the score of 6 to 5 last evening.

Phillips let the Moose sluggers down with but three stingy hits while the "Lefty" management was forced to use two hurlers to beat the rejuvenated Bob Redmer-managed association kids by a single counter. Phillips, batting hurling a masterful game, helped himself to a single and a triple, while at bat.

The win places the Crystalacs out in front of the junior parade with two wins to as many starts while the Wellington kids have two wins and a loss to their credit. The Moose kids have won one start, while the B.A.A.A. have lost both games played.

Score by innings:

BEARCATS WIN IN LAST FRAME

Defeat Victoria in Exhibition Game by 9-7 Score

Victoria, June 7th (Special)—Staging a ninth inning rally the Delaney "Bearcats" of Belleville defeated the Victoria nine here at Mountain View last evening by the score of 9 to 7 after eight innings the two clubs battled neck and neck with the visitors eking out the win at the opportune moment.

The locals were minus the services of their star baseman, Dick Oreitny, who cavorts about in the infield and is considered one of the Vics leading hitters. Each team consumed two fast fighting-like double plays, D. Crawford laboured on the hilltop for the Victoria nine and pitched a steady ball through, out.

The score by innings:

TARZAN AND THE GOLDEN LION.

(Metropolitan New spaper Service) By Edgar Rice Burroughs.

"At last!" cried the High Priest. "This time, O, Tarzan of the Apes, you shall knowthe-fury, not of the Flaming God, but of Cadj, the man. And that, immediately." He raised the sacrificial knife above his head. Beyond the point of the knife Tarzan saw the summit of the courtyard wall. Just surmounting it was the head and shoulders of a mighty, black-maned lion. "Jad-bal-ja," shouted Tarzan. "KILL! KILL!"

Cadj hesitated, his knife poised on high. He noted the direction of the ape-man's glance and followed it. In that instant the golden lion leaped to the pavement and, with two mighty bounds, was upon the High Priest of Opar. The knife clattered to the floor and the great jaws closed upon the horrid face. The lesser priests who had seized Tarzan and had remained to witness his death, fled screaming from the scene.

Now remained only Tarzan and Jad-bal-ja and the body of Cadj within the sacrificial courtyard. "Come, Jad-bal-ja," commanded the ape man, "let no one harm Tarzan." . . . An hour later the victorious forces of La were over-running the ancient palace and temple of Opar. The priests and warriors who had survived eagerly surrendered. Now at La's command, the city was searched for Tarzan and Cadj.

Thus La, herself, leading a scrching party, entered the sacrificial courtyard. The sight that met her eyes brought her to a sudden stop. For there, bound to the altar, lay Tarzan of the Apes. Standing above him, his snarling face and gleaming eyes glaring directly at her, was Jad-bal-ja, the golden lion. "Jad-bal-ja," shrieked La, running toward the altar. "Cadj has had his way at last. Tarzan is dead!"

BUY NOW AND MAKE WORK

One I Love

by Laura Lou Brookman

© 1933 REA SERVICE INC

"Of course we'll need you."

"No," said Janet firmly. "There are lots of girls who could do the work as well as I can—or better. You won't be lonely with Betty here. I told you several days ago I wanted to go away. To some other town. I'd like to get a job in an advertising office again. I think that's where I belong, Mrs. Curtis. Maybe some day I could work up from a secretarial job to something better. That's what I want to do."

"But, my dear, I'd like to have you stay."

"That's what I was going to say," Janet went on. "I'll stay until Betty comes back. Of course I couldn't go away and leave you when you're not feeling well but I thought I should tell you now."

"You sure—?"

"Yes, I'm sure," Janet said quickly. "I've been thinking about it quite a lot." She arose. "If I lower the blinds do you think I might be able to sleep? Dr. Roberts said you must rest, you know."

Mrs. Curtis laughed, to try to take a nap and Janet tip-toed from the room.

Waiting on Mrs. Curtis, reading to her, seeing that she took her medicine and that the affairs of the household ran smoothly kept Janet from thinking too much about herself during the next few days. Her mind was a curious mixture of hope and despair. Rolf was going to be free but in a few more weeks Betty's divorce would be granted. Janet had understood from Mrs. Curtis that the suit was to be uncontested. Rolf was to be free—but she had to be excused from him.

Did it mean he didn't want to see her? Janet thought of that night only a few days ago in the moonlight. Rolf had kissed her, had hinted then that all was not well between him and Betty. But he had refused to listen. Of course he couldn't come to the house but he could have seen a message if he wanted to.

Rolf was in town, she knew. The only conclusion was that he did not want to see her.

TWO weeks passed and Janet spent most of them in the brick house, sitting with Mrs. Curtis, occasionally going for a brief shopping trip. Jeff telephoned to say he had been grapled an unexpected vacation. Only a week and it was really a business trip that he was to make. A few days in the New York office and a few days in one of the plants. He promised to call her as soon as he returned.

She answered the telephone one afternoon, expecting to hear Jeff's voice. It was not. Janet almost dropped the instrument tightly and lowered her own voice as she replied.

Rolf! Janet's heart leaped. "Maybe you think I have a lot of nerve to ask this but—would you go to dinner with me tonight—and dance?"

Janet's throat felt hot and tight. "Why, yes," she said, "I think I can."

"We'll go to Reigh's. I can't very well come to the end call for you. There was a slight pause. "How about meeting me at the old place? That's correct. Is that all right?"

Janet said that it was. She put down the telephone and hurried from the room to a mirror in the hallway she caught a glimpse of herself and noticed how pink her cheeks were. There was a light in her eyes that had not been there.

She met him the following evening just as they had planned. Rolf was waiting at the corner when Janet arrived. Reigh's restaurant was only a few blocks away and they walked.

Seated across from him over the softly shaded table Janet met Rolf's gaze. He smiled. Rolf was exactly the same. Nothing about him had changed in the least.

"You're looking mighty sweet tonight," he told her.

"That's nice."

His face clouded slightly. "I've got a lot of things I want to talk to you about," he said.

At the same time in a room in a hotel in Reno a girl lay face down on a bed. She wore a fragile peach-colored negligee and the chiffon handkerchief she clenched had been a pretty trifle before it was wet with tears. The handkerchief was a twisted rag now. There was a letter fallen to the floor and beside it a clipping from a newspaper.

Betty Carlyle clenched at the pillow fiercely. Her sobs came in great, choking gasps. "Oh, what will I do?" she cried. "What will I do?" She head fell to the pillow again and her shoulders shook convulsively. Betty Carlyle was crying as she had never cried before.

CHAPTER XLVII

IT was a long time before Betty sat up on the side of the bed. One of her small gilt slippers had been kicked off and lay on the floor before her. Her hair fell in a disheveled mass and her cheeks were swollen and red. She put one hand up and wiped away the tears that smarted in her eyes. Then she picked up the letter.

Mrs. Curtis had written it. The letter began abruptly, "Dear, unfeeling daughter—" and was devoted principally to bits of news about the people in Lancaster. Most of them were Mrs. Curtis' friends instead of Betty's. The Thorntons were taking a trip in their car. Emma Haynes had gone to Charleston for the winter. Mrs. Wilford had called and sent her love to Betty. The first two pages of the letter were devoted to things in Lancaster and then it was the paragraph that, seeing it a second time, stabbed at Betty's heart just as it had the first time.

"I clipped something from the newspaper I thought would interest you. You and Van used to be such good friends. I hope she's a nice girl and they'll be happy—"

The clipping was an announcement of the marriage of Miss Mary Katherine Gibbs of Boston and Van Allen Bannister II, son of Mr. and Mrs. Van Allen Bannister of Lancaster. The wedding had taken place in Boston the week before and the young couple had departed immediately for Bermuda.

Every word of the formal phrasing was stamped indelibly on Betty's heart. She read it through again and again and then, sobbing, fell back on the bed. It was true, then, she moaned. "I don't care what happens now! Oh, Van, how could you? How could you?"

There was no answer. No answer of any sort until there was a knock at the door and a startled maid announced, amid apologies, that she had mistaken the room for another. Betty shut the door on her chatter, the telephone rang a little later she took it up and said that she was sorry but she could not keep the engagement. Yes, a sudden headache. It was nothing serious. No, there was nothing to be done. She would be all right only she couldn't see anyone now. Not tonight.

THE waiter asked with a solicitous air, "We are everything satisfactory?"

"Everything was all right." Rolf assured him. "Now we'd like two raspberry ices and two coffees. Make mine a large one."

"Yes, sir." The waiter bowed and disappeared.

Rolf leaned forward. "It's great sitting here and talking to you like this," he said. "Makes me forget—a lot of things I don't like to think about. I know I've been a fool, Janet. All sorts of a fool! To think I let a girl like you get away from me—!"

The girl's eyes met his and then lowered quickly. He had said things like that throughout the dinner. Flattering things. The sort of things every girl likes to hear. But he shouldn't have said them to her—not the old way. He hadn't asked if she could give him another chance to prove he loved her.

"You were telling me about the new job," she reminded him. "What is there you don't like about it?"

He shrugged. "Oh, I don't know. It's small town stuff, that's all. They don't know how to get after the big money. This fellow, Jackley, has been running things for about fifteen years and he's been let alone anyone else. Got a lot of old fashioned ideas. Believe me, I told them a thing or two when I left the Atlas office! I told Jim McPhail exactly what I thought of his dumb advertising agency. Say, I said plenty—!"

Janet looked at him with troubled eyes. "But, Rolf, wasn't that a foolish? You might want a recommendation some time—"

"Not from him!" I'll get all the recommendations I want and they won't be from small town nickel-grabbers like Jim McPhail. I'm going to get out of this town anyhow. It's too slow."

"JANET, listen," he went on. "I might in bad all around here. It wasn't my fault. You know—well, about Betty's necklace. I wasn't going to take the damned thing. Just borrowed it for a few days. Betty didn't have any cause to throw a fit the way she did but now that it's happened I'm glad of it. It wasn't running around with her high-hat society crowd that got me in debt."

"Jealous!"

"Sure. Didn't you know that? Remember the row she started that night last summer when she came to her mother's and found you and me talking together? I guess it all started because I told her once I thought you were good looking. Oh, Betty's a jealous little devil all right."

The waiter set the dessert before them and poured the coffee. Rolf waited until he had gone. Then he leaned forward and said, "I knew they couldn't do anything to you about the necklace. You don't hold that against me, do you Janet?"

"No. I don't hold it against you."

He smiled. "Say, make a real girl! You're the kind to stand by a fellow when he's down. Look at me, Janet, I've got something to ask you. Would you" — he hesitated — "would you be willing to be engaged to me again?"

There it was — the thing she had been waiting to hear. He had said it. Rolf was asking her to marry him.

Somehow the lights and the flowers and the shimmering linen swam into a misty haze before the girl. It was the moment she had prayed for, dreamed of. He hadn't said it poetically or romantically. Just: "Would you be willing to be engaged to me again?" What did that matter? Rolf was waiting for her answer.

BUT he wasn't waiting. He had gone on, taking it for granted that her answer would be "yes": "We'll go away from here," Rolf told her. "To Chicago or one of the other big towns. I can get another job all right. We'll make a real start together—"

"But Betty—" Janet's voice was soft and low-toned. "We can't—I mean it wouldn't be right. You're still Betty's husband."

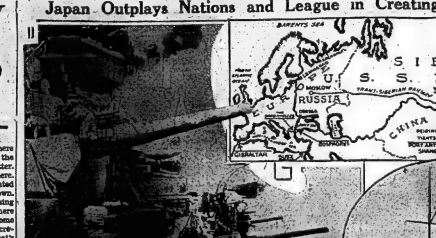
"For two weeks more. After that—say, baby, we'll show the world! You and I together!" He went on confidentially about the things they would do. In Chicago he'd get a job with one of the big advertising agencies. A place where they appreciated a live wire. There'd be a swell apartment. Janet was to have everything in the world she wanted. "Of course the just as first," he said, "I suppose you could get a job, too. But I'm going to make big money in a year or two. You won't need to work long. All I want is the chance and a little encouragement. You know, Janet, I've always been prettier than Betty. That little hat you're wearing and that blue dress make your eyes look blue. They're gray really, aren't they? You see, I haven't forgotten, Janet, honey. Let's get out of this place—"

Janet turned to rise and caught a glimpse of herself. There was a tiny runner in the new chiffon hose she was wearing. She excused herself and went to the dressing room.

There was no maid to assist her in repairing the hose but soap applied to the runner would keep it from spreading. Janet put her foot on a chair and carefully rubbed the soap in. She must not smear it or pull the threads.

The door of the room opened and she glanced up quickly. A small girl wearing a short fur coat over a velvet dress entered the room. She had very dark eyes and dark hair flowing beneath her bright red turban. Janet had seen her in the restaurant sitting at a table with two men and another girl. She was rather pretty and had an air of style though the fur coat and red turban were obviously cheap.

The other girl seemed to hesitate and then came forward. She crossed the room until she was directly in front of Janet, put both hands on her hips and said:



"I guess you don't remember me, do you? Well, I know you all right and there's something I've got to say to you!"

CHAPTER XLVIII

JANET said, "Why, yes, I remember you. Jeff Grant introduced us one day last summer. You're Miss — she hesitated—"Miss Calahan, isn't it?"

"So I made an impression!" the other girl said in shock surprise.

Japan Outplays Nations and League in Creating New Empire

Modern Japanese warship

Outmaneuvering the League of Nations, China, Russia and the signatories to the Kellogg pact, Japan, consolidates her position in the Far East, now faces Russia at her mercy ,through the bottling up of Vladivostok, Russia's only remaining warm water outlet to the Pacific. Japanese armies, through the invasion of Manchuria and North China, now are in a position to take Vladivostok through the cutting of the trans-Siberian railway and to effectively shut off Siberia from the Pacific. These would speedily follow any hostilities between the two nations. The importance of the Japanese moves to Russia can be seen when it is considered that Leningrad and Archangel are icebound annually, while Odessa, on the Black Sea, is shut in by Great Britain's control of the Suez and Gibraltar. The map above shows the situation completely. Below are views of Japanese and Russian battleships.

Antiquated Russian Vessel

Lowering the globe-girdling Graf Zeppelin to a position where it can be boarded by Wiley Post and Harold Gatty of eight days, seven hours and seven minutes, is the problem of James J. Matteern's solo flight on route from New York around the world to New York. Matteern, his ship, and route of his flight. Matteern took but six oranges as his food supply for the first leg of the flight from New York to Berlin.

"Yes, Dolores Calahan's my name. I've seen you a couple of times since but you didn't see me. Riding around in a big car with a chauffeur I guess you wouldn't notice anybody like me! But just the same I've got something to say to you and I'm going to get it off my chest!"

"Why, of course—" Janet began but the other girl interrupted. Dolores' dark eyes were defiant.

"What's the idea of two-timing a swell guy like Jeff Grant?" she demanded. "I saw you out there with your blond boy friend! It's because Jeff's out of town, I suppose."

"I'm in the world are you talking about!"

"I'm talking about you and that guy you treat Jeff Grant!" Dolores went on. "You needn't act so innocent! Because you can't get away with it. I'm not going to stand for it! I'm telling you right now I won't stand for it! I've the limit! You're the kind of a girl who thinks it's smart to be a fellow and string over her! and then give him the air. You don't want Jeff but you don't want anybody else to have him either."

"But—!"

Dolores stopped her. "Wait a minute," she said. "I'm not going to stop until I've finished. I'm not ashamed to admit I like Jeff myself and I tried to make him fall for me. I'm not the only one, either. I didn't have a chance and neither did any of the others. Why? Because he's so wild about you he don't know we're on the earth. Say, if you don't want him why can't you lay off? Give somebody else a chance, can't you?"

Janet was staring at her. "Do you mean you think Jeff is in love with me?"

Dolores tossed her head. "I'd be blind if I couldn't see that!"

"Why, I thought—"

"Yeah! You thought you'd play around a little and then you'd get your blond Barrymore and let a swell guy like Jeff break his heart! There ought to be something done about dames like you. You make me sick!"

"Just what," Janet asked in a strained voice, "makes you think Jeff Grant is in love with me?"

"I guess I saw the way he looked at you! I've seen him mooning over a picture of you he's got, too. Oh, don't try to deny it, innocent—"

"But he hasn't any picture of me."

"Yes, he has. A snap-shot with a couple of kids from Lancaster and one day I heard him talking to you on the telephone."

Janet remembered the snapshot then. Jeff had taken it the day of the picnic for Rosie and Tommy Silvani. She had had no idea that he had kept one of the prints for himself.

"Listen," Dolores went on. "I'll tell you one thing—the Calahans are proud creatures. I wouldn't be a little cheater like you for anything in the world. You'll go on just the same, I suppose. You'll break Jeff's heart and then laugh at him but at least I've had the satisfaction of telling you exactly what I think of you!" Good NIGHT, Miss High-and-Mighty Janet HIS!"

She turned in the air, with a quick whirl, she made her exit. Janet turned toward the mirror and a moment later she was still staring at her reflection there.

IT was three days later. There was no softly lighted table with flowers and gleaming silver and an orchestra in the distance as there had been at Reigh's. This table stood in the center of the middle aisle of a certain restaurant. Outside the sun was streaming down and the thermometer stood at the eleventh.

Jeff Grant said to the girl who sat facing him: "This is a fine place to stage a party."

"But I like it!" Janet told him. "The food's good and I always have liked to come here."

"Well, it's a b. with me if it suits you." He turned quickly as a waitress bearing a heavily loaded tray barely dodged his arm. "Looks as though everyone in Lancaster were eating here today."

"That's one thing I like about it. I miss seeing crowds."

Jeff laughed. "Crowds! Say, I've seen all the crowds I want for a while! New York was a nightmare. All night, I suppose, if you're used to it but, believe me, I was glad to get back to Lancaster."

Janet smiled. "Jeff," she said, "do you think it's hard for a young man to get a chance in business nowadays?"

"That's a funny question to ask. You mean a job?"

"No, not a job! I mean a chance to get ahead. To show what he can do after he gets the job."

"If a fellow's smart enough to make use of the chances that come his way he doesn't have to worry, I guess. There are plenty of chances—seeing them and making the most of them is what takes the brains! What is the dickens made you think of that?"

"Oh—just something. I've got another funny question to ask, too. Will you tell me the truth?"

"Maybe. Have to hear what it is first."

The girl's eyes met his directly. "Jeff, you're a liar," Janet said slowly, "why you gave that purse you bought to Dolores Calahan!"

Rolf Grant rose slowly in Jeff's cheeks. "Had to get rid of it," he said. "Couldn't keep it."

"Then you didn't buy it—because you were in love with her?"

"In love with Dolores!" he asked, astonished. "Say, for Lord sake—" The words were lost in sharp laughter. "Is that what you thought?"

Tears! Say, that's the craziest one yet. What's this all about, Janet? Who told you that? Dolores? I'll bet just thought you were, that's all—"

"But why on earth—?"

Jeff met his eyes again. "Betty Carlyle is divorcing Rolf," she said. "She's in Reno now. I—I thought maybe I'd run down there and send me to go to lunch with him today. I turned him down to come here and with Mrs. Walter Clarke.

"You mean—?"

His eyes asked the question and Janet answered. There was a pause in which the rattle of china and silverware and the steady hum of voices beat in upon them.

"Listen," Jeff said suddenly, "I don't know if you're going crazy or not. Either a lot I don't seem to understand and I've got to get straight. Come on, Janet! I want to talk to you!"

"Why, Jeff—!"

"Come on," he said. "There isn't a moment to lose."

"But we haven't finished lunch." Janet protested, magnificent. "Lunches can wait!" he said. "This is important!" He steered her through the narrow aisle toward the door. On the sidewalk outside he signaled a cab.

"But where are you going?" Janet asked.

"You'll see." They stepped into the cab. "Just head for the park," Jeff told the driver. "And keep going."

The cab started off with a jolt. Quite naturally Jeff's arm slipped about the girl's waist. Quite naturally his cheek brushed the velvet softness of hers. "Janet," he said huskily, "haven't you known you're the only girl in the world I care about? There never has been any other girl. Don't you know it was you and nobody else but you all the time?"

HER eyes were pools of happiness. "I thought it was Dolores," she told him. "And I thought I loved Rolf but I found out I didn't I've always loved him. It was the person I thought he was that I cared about. Rolf wasn't like that really."

"You're sure, dear?"

"Sure!"

"Oh, you darling!" His arms tightened about her. "Janet, you're so sweet. So—so wonderful!" His lips found hers and all at once the world became miraculous and breathless and beautiful. The miracle of Jeff's arms and Jeff's kisses. The miracle of the girl and the intoxicating sweetness of her. The miracle of youth and love and two hearts beating against each other.

There were kisses on her eyelids, now, her cheeks, her lips. "How soon will you marry me?" Jeff demanded. "This afternoon?"

She laughed. "I've promised to stay with Mrs. Curtis until Betty comes home. It couldn't be before that."

"When is she coming?"

"A week from Tuesday."

"Then that's our wedding day! I'm only making $50 a week and we won't have much but we'll get along. Another year I can get another raise. And I'm going to do everything in the world to make you happy. I've got $500 in the bank—"

"Five hundred dollars! Of, Jeff, we'll be rich!"

"I will," he said. "With you I'd be rich if I didn't have a cent. Oh, Janet, didn't you know all along—" He stopped suddenly. "There's something I forgot," he added.

"What?"

"Something important. I forgot to say, Janet, I love you. More than anything or everything in the world! I love you, darling. I love you!"

Her cheek was against his. She put a hand up and drew his face closer. "And I love you," she said. "Oh, Jeff, I love you!"

He told her in a manner completely convincing.

THOUSANDS HEAR TWO LIBERAL LEADERS

World Economic Conference Must Undo Work of Ottawa Parley Says Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King; October Provincial Election Forecast by Hepburn

Belleville Arena Crowded With Banquetters And Others When Two Li beral Leaders Bring Messages to Central Ontario Liberal Gathering

FISCAL POLICY UNDER HEPBURN FIRE

Mr. King Puts Line of Cl eavage Between Liberals And C. C. F. Group and Contends Unemployment Policy of Bennett Government Adds to Unemployment

The World Economic Conference which opens at London on Monday of next week will find a great part of its work in undoing much of what was accomplished at the Imperial Conference held at Ottawa last summer, in order for the Economic gathering to be a success, that the view expressed by the Right Honorable Mackenzie King, Opposition Liberal leader in the House of Commons, Wednesday night at the monster meeting in the Belleville arena under the auspices of the Belleville Liberal Association. Nearly one thousand people had risen to welcome Mr. King when about an hour before when he arrived as they were, banquetting and feasting with over five hundred or three thousand others had crowded into the seats of the rink from the first time and eight o'clock when the speaking began. Vying with Mr. King on the platform was the Provincial Liberal chieftain, Hon. Geo. Henry. Mr. King castigated the Bennett administration on its creation of the railway board with absolute power and in its removal of the Parliamentary control of the privileges which it was supposed to enjoy. He drew the line sharply between the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation organization and Liberalism, calling the former a conglomeration of everything of the stale under state control while Liberalism sought the greatest good for all and preserved the principles of individualism while avoiding privilege.

This was Mr. King's first appearance since the last session of Parliament and much of his address was a comment upon the work of the last session of the House.

Speaks at Length

That Ontario would have an election in October of this year was the view expressed by Mr. Hepburn, Ontario Liberal leader, and he felt everywhere he had been the public demand for a showdown on the spending policy of the Ontario Government.

The Right Honorable Mr. King referring to Mr. Hepburn's chances of carrying Ontario in the next general election, said that Mr. Hepburn and he had discussed the question of suitable cabinet material in the Liberal ranks.

Mr. Hepburn said he blamed tariffism not only in Canada but throughout the world for the chaos of the time and he paid tribute to the present crisis.

On the question of the famous section 98 he remarked "I believe in freedom of speech, and freedom of assembly. We do not believe in persecution and we believe the criminal code itself is sufficiently severe to take care of conditions which arise."

The Liberal party was not quoted as having any use for Communism, he said.

Two Liberal Leaders

Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King who assailed the Bennett policy of what he called economic nationalism. Mr. King spoke from the same platform as Mr. G. F. Hepburn, Ontario Liberal leader at a general election in October of this year.

Mr. Mitchell F. Hepburn, M.P., who assailed the cost of administration of Ontario Government and held large Liberal audience at the Arena in Belleville he expects a general election in October of this year.

CO-OPERATION

Civic Bodies and Organizations Materially Assist in Success

Some six hundred delegates registered for attendance at the second annual meeting of the Central Ontario Liberal Association, held in the recently remodelled City Hall of Belleville. Innovated about a year and a half ago under centralized auspices at Cobourg the association has aggressively gone forward from out, the now 11 Dominion and 11 Provincial ridings of Central Ontario. The interest and enthusiasm that characterized the birth of the body showed no falling off on Wednesday's meeting here. From every point of the district delegates had congregated and the business of the session was carried through with despatch. While the audience was assembling the "Log Cabin Boys" stirring quartet of this city dispensed music.

$1,000 TO KEEP HIM "FOR REST OF LIFE"

Eighty Five Year Old Man's Name Now an Indigent Patient's List

London, Ont., June 8.—(CP)—Five years ago 80-year-old John Walters, gave Strathroy Hospital $1,000 to keep him in hospital "for the rest of his life" and it might have look, as if like a bargain for John was none too strong.

But today, at a meeting of Middlesex council, John's name was among those on the indigent list of patients in Strathroy and Reeve Harold Currie opposed payment for the old man.

"They didn't think he would last more than three months," the Reeve said.

And in the meantime the hospital seeks payment of $518 on the account.

State Medicine Foe to "Meds"

London, Ont., June 8 (CP)—"State medicine was described by Hon. Dr. Raymond Morand (M.P. for Essex West) as "menace comparable to Communism" in an address at the annual banquet at the University of Western Ontario Medical School Alumni Association.

Urging members of the medical profession to "organize" to prevent them becoming "mere wards and hirelings of the state," Dr. Morand said unless these steps were taken the profession, "will be socialized within ten years."

TERRIFICALLY DESTRUCTIVE

Remark Over Bank Probe by O. P. Sweringen

Washington, June 8.—(CP)—The United States Senate unanimously today voted more power for its investigation of private banks and bankers, and soon thereafter O. P. Van Sweringen as a witness in the J. P. Morgan and Company inquiry characterized the Senate's procedure as "terrifically destructive."

"All business is of greater volume than a year ago," he had remarked, interrupting a long series of questions on involved financing of the extensive Van Sweringen railroad enterprises and the part taken by the Morgan bank.

Referring to full operations, he added "that's all we need" in connection with pending business.

"Business needs encouragement and not frightening," he went on philosophically.

"If I may speak frankly these inquisitions are terrifically destructive."

A moment later he said, "I should not have said that I did not mean these investigations, but—" he never finished the sentence.

Mollisons Unhurt in Field Crash

Mollisons Delayed Month When Plane Crashes on Field During Take-Off

Neither Flier Hurt as Machine Strikes Depression

PLANE DAMAGED

Decision to Fly by Full Moon Gives Intrepid Fliers Time For Repairs

CROYDON AIRPORT, England, June 8.—(AP)—Disaster overtook Capt. James A. Mollison and his equally famous flying wife such a end the outset of their adventurous attempt to break new aviation records.

Their large plane, carrying a three ton load, crashed at the take-off for a flight to New York, whence they planned to fly to Bagdad and then back to England.

Neither of the fliers was hurt. They have performed several brilliant air exploits individually, although this was to have been their first record-breaking undertaking together.

The machine had run about 30 yards when it apparently struck a depression in the field. Its landing gear was torn away; the nose was crushed; both propellers were curled up; the lower left wing was broken and the right wings were crumpled.

It turned a complete circle, but did not overturn.

The Mollisons next attempt is not likely to be made within a month as they wish to start with a full moon. That gives them ample time for repairs.

LEGALIZATION OF WINE CURE

Dry Administrator is Opposed to Repeal of Amendment

Washington, June 8 (AP)— Espousing "unalterable Opposition", to repeal of the 18th amendment, Major A. V. Dalrymple, prohibition administrator for the Ways and Means Committee today that legalization of naturally fermented wines would increase respect for law and bring needed revenues to the treasury.

Dalrymple was testifying in support of the Lea Bill which would legalize wines of from 11 to 12 per cent alcoholic volume and a tax per new beverage 30 cents per gallon.

"My observations as director of prohibition lead me to think that the passage of this bill would have a most beneficial effect upon the enforcement as a whole," Dalrymple said.

"The sale of 3.2 beer has very materially reduced drunkenness. It also has created a feeling of favor for enforcement which the law did not have. The Republicans think the wine laws would have the same effect."

OVERTURES ON WAR DEBT

British Ambassador Meets President This Afternoon

Washington, June 8.—(AP)—The controversial war debts payments due on June 15th received the attention of President Roosevelt today when he made an engagement with Sir Ronald Lindsay, British Ambassador, for this afternoon.

Sir Ronald has been making overtures informally to learn the American attitude on the debts. This is the first time he has come directly to the President, who is personally handling the war debts question.

The British Cabinet meets in special session tomorrow to consider the $75,000,000 payment owed the United States Government at midnight next week.

Mr. Roosevelt has given no indication of his position other than an expressed hope for payment of the instalments when due.

WILL NOT DEAL WITH REPORT

Knox College Controversy Not to be Aired in Assembly

Peterborough, Ont., June 8—(CP)— Contentious report on Knox College, Toronto, will not come before the general assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Canada it was announced today. The point in dispute is whether to reinstate the former principal, Prof. Thomas Eakin, who was demoted by the last assembly. A majority of the College Board of Management has recommended his reinstatement but a minority of the Board opposes it. For the past year Rev. Robert Johnston, Ottawa, has been acting principal of the college. He will present his report before sailing Friday for the Pan-Presbyterian Alliance in Belfast.

In advocating the reinstatement of Prof. Eakin the majority of the College Board of Management term his demotion "a direct transgression of the laws of the Church and a flagrant violation of the 'fundamental principles of justice."

The majority report of the College Board it is submitted "it is our considered judgment the situation, of opinion regarding the reappointment of Dr. Eakin is such that to accede to the (majority) request of the Board would produce an intolerable situation in the college, similar to that existing prior to his removal from the principalship, which situation was invalidated by the passing of the motion at the request of the Board, and issued in part in Dr. Eakins being relieved of principalship."

TRAINS CRASH CREWS ESCAPE

Six Men Have Narrow Escape at Chatham Early Today

Chatham, Ont., June 8—(CP) — Six men had a narrow escape from possible death today when a westbound Canadian National Railways freight train crashed into the rear of a Pere Marquette freight at the Chatham crossing just the easterly city limits.

Engineer William Perdue, fireman Charles Cunningham and Brakesman W. Laing all of London were in the cab of the C.N.R. engine and all escaped injury by jumping. Their train jumped the rails 750 feet east of the Diamond Road crossing along the line to pile into the caboose of the other train, entering the crossing the car was hurled into the ditch, badly wrecked.

The engine continued 300 feet past the diamond before coming to a halt.

London and Windsor wrecking auxiliary crews were still working early this afternoon, endeavoring to clear the eight upset cars from the right-of-way.

Cause of the collision was not stated.

BOLT STARTS THREE FIRES

Ten Thousand Dollar Loss at Burketon Village

Bowmanville, Ont., June 8—(CP) —Fire which struck when lightning struck a two-storey frame house at Burketon during the electrical storm which whipped through this district yesterday afternoon, destroyed the living building and demolishing three. Efforts of the Burketon Bucket Brigade proved of no avail in fighting the blaze which lapped up the wooden building like tinder and the Bowmanville Fire Department were rushed to the scene and prevented any lives being lost. Damage was estimated at close to $10,000.

The bolt of lightning first caught the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wreford Gibson and in a matter of a short gap to set fire to that of Ernest Gibson, a brother. Mrs. and children were in the house at the time but managed to escape.

Driving wind carried the flames as far as a barn on a nearby property owned by Mrs. C. Sanderson and completely demolished the structure with the equipment stored there. A fourth house 20 feet away was saved by the arrival of the fire brigade.

ASSAILANT OF GIRL UNKNOWN

Mysterious Slugging is Study of Peterboro Police

PETERBOROUGH, Ont., June 8. —(CP)—Police today are investigating a mysterious assault on Miss Marion E. Moore, 21, who was struck on the head last night and knocked unconscious by an unknown assailant. Miss Moore did not see the person who struck her. She left home to take her dog for a walk and when she failed to return her parents went in search. Her father found her staggering along the street.

"I got a blow on the back of my head and became unconscious. When I came to I started to walk home," said Miss Moore when she was able to talk. She was removed to the hospital today and again became unconscious.

A sharp increase in the price of eggs was noted on Thursday's market, when eggs sold for a figure the highest price of the current season. Vegetables and the poultry trade were predominated by mid-week market.

NEW HELMETS FOR POLICE OFFICERS

Following the recent issuing of new uniforms to the local police department, new helmets were also provided the officers of the law. According to Chief Kidd the new helmets are lighter than the older ones, which were issued some four years ago. Subsequent orders for three hats, one for each of the men filled, the three caps will be issued to the chief and the two sergeants.

OLD SOL HITS SUMMER STRIDE

Only the saving grace of a cool west wind prevented the scorching sun which flooded the city on Thursday from creating a new high record for summer heat. With the mercury climbing steadily all morning a mid-day, the 90 degree mark over 80 had been recorded, while indications pointed to a still higher mark later in the day. Rain is badly needed, according to farmers of the district.

SCHOLAR AT BELL'S 70 YEARS AGO

Serenely years ago Rev. Dr. Baker attended Bell's Schoolhouse, midway between Hamilton and Oakville which was in the centre of the electrical disturbance on Wednesday morning when a severe flash struck the building and blew in a wall on the schools who had preceded themselves by slumping in their seats. The building figured in the storm news of yesterday was, of course, not the building in which Dr. Baker received instruction. Rev. Dr. Baker recalls that back in the sixties the school building was supported by three posts.

CHRIST CHURCH CHOIR BANQUET A SUCCESS

Choir Under Miss Eva Lavoie Progresses During Year

The banquet held by the choir of Christ Church in the Parish Hall last evening, proved a complete success. The tables were charmingly decorated with yellow lilies and matching candles and forty-eight places were laid for the choir members and a few invited guests.

After a delicious menu supper there was an interesting toast list with Rev. G. G. Wright acted as toastmaster proposing the toasts to the King and to Canada. The toast to the Rector was proposed by Mr. Trump.

In proposing the toast to the choir, Mr. Tom Marshall commended the work of the organization during the past year. The loyalty of the choir to the church, and the faithful service it rendered, spoke of the co-operation and interest of all its members. Miss Eva Lavoie, organist and choir leader responded to the toast, outlining the work of the choir for next year.

Mrs. Reid proposed the toast to the guests to which Mr. Bateman, church warden, replied. The banquet which was held at seven o'clock was a very happy event, greatly enjoyed by guests and members.

Kiwanis Group Visit Oshawa

An ideal early summer holiday was enjoyed by a colorie of the local Kiwanis Club, when they sojourned to Oshawa Wednesday, to spend the day in the district sports' day, arranged for by the Kiwanis Club of Oshawa and Toronto. The morning was devote to golf and in the tournament, Harry Ridley of this city made a 79 grom score on the Oshawa Country and course, beating all competitors in the singles. Oshawa almost a record for an amateur on the Oshawa links, his score being only four over par.

The afternoon's program included softball games and horse-shoe pitching contests. The happy gathering of Kiwanis Club members from Midland, Orillia, Barrie, Riverside, West Toronto, Toronto, Peterboro and Belleville, terminated with a dinner in the Genosha Hotel at which some 225 guests partook of an excellently prepared and served meal.

Mr. George H. Rond, finance commissioner of the city of Toronto, and past lieut.-governor of Pennsylvania was the chief speaker at the banquet, and Mr. W. H. Moore M.P. also addressed the gathering. The Belleville Kiwanis contingent are sending in their day's outing report a most enjoyable day spent in the Motor City.

An interesting afternoon was provided for those not wishing to participate in sports, in a tour of inspection of the plants of General Motors of Canada plant. Detailed information of car construction was given by the executive and heads of departments to the parties overlooking the works.

Belleville Kiwanians today, report a most improved condition in the industrial activities of Oshawa. More men are now working than have been added to the motor plants of that city and orders have been received that will keep the motor industries of Oshawa busy for several months.

To attend the days events six members of the Kiwanis Club of Oshawa made the trip to Oshawa by plane, Mr. Moore also made a short trip by motor from Montreal to enable him to be present for the afternoon festivities.

DREDGE, SCOW NOW IN HARBOR

Work of Deepening Channel Will be Proceeded With

Complete with huge dredge, two large derricks and launch arrived into the Randolph MacDonald Company of Belleville, owned by the lower harbor, south of the city late Wednesday, prepared to carry out the work of deepening the harbor on work estimated to last for some two months.

On Thursday morning two engineers from the Department of Marine at Ottawa, were busy with transit and levels, laying out lines in the harbor which will be followed by the dredge. Little could be learned from the engineers, other than the plans called for deepening of the channels east and west of the present dock, with the further deepening of a turning basin for the boats farther south of the present dock. It is believed that the dredge of Belleville will be commenced by Monday of next week. It is believed that few local men will be given work thru' the operation. Cost of the work has been estimated by the department at $22,500.

Assistance was given the smaller tug of the Randolph Company in towing the dredge and barges from the lake by the "Salvage Prince," Kingston, under the command of Capt. Pike.

RESPONSIELE FOR SUCCESS OF MEETING

Mrs. G. Bonisteel and the members of the Belleville Horticultural Society deserve great praise for the success of the annual District Meeting of the Ontario Horticultural Society here yesterday. Careful planning ensured a smoothly running convention and the visitors were charmed with the program presented.

The society has done splendid work in the city and the wide-spread interest in horticulture aroused by the manner in which the society fosters flower culture has been notable in this community. The membership has grown considerably and the fall show promises to be a splendid success.

referring to the power company purchase. It was the advisability of the purchase that was under question.

Costs at Government

The provincial leader devoted most of his time to the attack on the costs of administration in Ontario.

Welcome to Mr. Hepburn.

Introduced by Dr. Arthur Dafoe, President of the Central Ontario Liberal Association, Mr. Peterborough Mr. F. Hepburn was greeted with a hearty and enthusiastic reception. Apparently overwhelmed by the cordiality and warmth shown himself and representatives of the party, the leader of the Liberal party in Ontario said gloomily that he office to officers and workers of this district. "Dr. Mayor Geo. O. Tite, one of the Pioneers' guests at the main table Mr. Hepburn paid the compliment of wishing him many more happy years to follow his birthday, which occurred on Sunday.

No question, declared Mr. Hepburn remained in his mind but that the Liberal choice at the polls during the coming election, Dr. J. Faulkner would be elected with the largest majority in the history of the application of sound, Liberal policy, he further declared. "If you want something, that could save Ontario and return it to a position of prosperity."

Decadence Claimed

Decadence of the country was claimed by the Liberal leader to have occurred under the office of the Secretary-Treasurer Premier Toryism we have had nothing but hard times," declared Liberalism to have always had prosperity," he declared.

How conditions had changed across the border in the United States since the election of a strong man who carried reform to the people, and commenced rehabilitation was cited by the speaker. "If would have another great reformer, Mackenzie King, join hands with Premier Hepburn and reunite the whole world with the immediate return to prosperity in the country that will follow the election of the Liberal party. The present government now not finds itself in calls for stern measures," Premier Hepburn declared, "or had shown its inability to meet the present situation throughout the world. In every country where that rule had been set up, had there has followed.

Answers Hon. McCrea

The Hon. Mr. McCrea was likened by him as appearing out of a hole to find what apparently was meant to have been an awkward questions. He came out the hole, he asked. me if I believed in repeal of Section 98", stated Mr. Hepburn. "To that I will answer, yes', I believe in freedom of speech and assembly, but not in the case of secution."

Instances of increase in pay, without the sanction of proper approval was claimed by the speaker, which took around to realize what it meant to the province. Mr. Mr. King referred to this as "the great day of our province" in inuting to the manner in which Mr. Hepburn had done away with the waste and extravagances of the Conservative party of the province. "I have only to look around and I told him that the only advice to young and old alike would be to wait for the day when Mr. Hepburn is returned to power to come out and make that appeal here now. Don't make it to us, for we know that we are opposed to the government. Come out now not only to us but to the people know who you are.

Appeal to Electors

"I am certain that Mr. Hepburn is the man to lead the Liberal organization in Ontario."

The Liberal leader at Ottawa went on to say that to make clear what self-government is. Self-government was established by the will of the whole people as voiced by the government. Large sums of money were paid to the ladies who presented the addresses to the two leaders, as he noted during the course of the speech were the names of revered Liberals in the province of Ontario and did credit to the province of Ontario. Politics is coming to be considered a business deals for gain and influences our lives."

In the same graceful spirit the Liberal leader at once extended greeting to Mayor Tice on his birthday, commenting upon the fact that that phrase—many happy returns—had been used by the speakers of all parties who had been and are to be nominated.

A Contrast of Parties.

Speaking on political matters in the province, Mr. Hepburn declared the vast audience that "it is going to be a fight to the finish in Ontario, what party is returned to power, and the issue will be clear cut with the Tory party. I ask you to contrast in these days before a general election the history of the Conservative party with the government of Sir Oliver Mowat.

"It is always the fact that where there are Tory governments there has been discontent. That has always been the case, but never in the history of the province has there been such discontent as there is today and did not many years ago that party that "there stands our great progressive Liberal party." (Cheers).

It mention this only the question of support at an election. The effect of a third party may be only to divide the forces opposed to Toryism. Today in Ontario the numbers in opposition represent a much larger group of the people of Canada than those who sit on the government side. I can explain it — when on the government side represent a minority of the people's reason for son of the division of the vote of the opposition. I appeal to all to unite on platforms for the well being of the people as a whole, not for the benefit of any class or creed. No matter who they are, so long as they belong to Canada and are British."

Unemployment Election.

Mr. King turned to the question of unemployment, declaring, "I believe," was his statement, "the stand we have taken represents the true position of the Liberal party. I believe you can solve the part in all matters legislation of the present government, in the short session after session since then are all a failure. The failure of the past and the widening has spread about to cause distress in this country. Before the general election Mr. Bennett said he would end unemployment. The first session a special session was called for the purpose of dealing with unemployment. Then the question has been before the government ever since in the form in all supplement, tariffs and the giving away of executive power belonging to the right parliament.

Dole Or Direct Relief?

The Conservative party leader discussed "these three points in turn, telling how Liberalism would solve the unemployment of commission to deal with unemployment, this commission to be given executive powers from various bodies, which could effectively deal with the problem and with the pressing problems, and to have power to use experts — and I am glad to see there will be a great organization to find work and means to work in this country for unemployed as well.

"We have made the same appeal to the government at that time. But they do not listen to us. All they asked for was a vote. Then they went on with millions. Then they asked in the next session for flotation of loans, which were given. We opposed this measure and it went through. Then they asked for power to formulate any policy? They said the money was to help people. Again they tried the dole policy of direct relief — in other words, the adoption of the policy which the party had said 'work for all, but not the dole'.

Recurring Problem.

"But there is another side to this unemployment question. With industry as carried on today there is going to be a recurring annual unemployment every year and also a recurring annual relief. Provision should have been worked out a plan of unemployment insurance. This is a matter which affected the provinces and which the Dominion Unemployment Conference was coming. But no policy was brought down by the present government. So four sessions have gone by with nothing done with the problem of relief and the unemployment issue which is certain to recur.

When Mr. Bennett came into power there were 300,000 persons unemployed in Canada. But unemployment has been increasing ever since. Now it is stated, that there are 800,000 unemployed in Canada. But this number has been increased by the numbered the total will be 1,370,000 in all. It is stated, therefore, that increasing burden lies—the burden of unemployment is rapidly increasing. Figures explained.

Idleness Increases

"We ask the country to deal with unemployment was to have a policy which will be effective. We ask to sort the idle into industry and on the farm. But since the Liberal party left power there has been spent $78,331,000 in direct relief, and this does not include municipal taxes totalling $38,694,000, making a total of $117,025,000 spent on relief since the government came into office up to March 31st of this year.

"All we have to show towards the solution of the unemployment problem is that 600,000 persons are employed. This total on unemployment has made the net funded debt of Canada in 1871 which was 118 millions. This has made the effect of many municipalities being brought to the verge of bankruptcy because of the work to be provided called upon to settle would be well high burdened. It was brought out in the last session, that one province borrowed money from Ottawa to pay the interest on money borrowed from Ottawa. This method has led the citizens to be overtaxed taxes. All along the line taxes have been increased to meet unemployment, all the taxes this government has increased the debt of Canada from $2,294,000,000 in 1930 to $2,-649,000,000 at the present. Liberals have increased the capital debts of Canada. 250 odd millions in the last government all this time paying its way. Liberals before 1930 made all expenditures out of current revenues. not a dollar out of public debt.

Power Executive Policy

"I want to show," Mr. King drove home his point, "that the government has failed to adopt a single constructive policy in unemployment. There has been no constructive policy, which would have prevented the self-respecting men and women from being elected to end unemployment had question.

The Liberal leader then noted. "There was one subject the government jumped into on its return at the polls—the tariff. The tariff must be increased. I contend the government had no mandate to raise the tariff. Mr. Bennett had a plan of a tariff truce conference nationalism. This was what Mr. Bennett had made up his mind to do. To up tariff walls around the country, to make the country maintain itself and keep goods from other countries out. To some people this seemed satisfactory. But Providence has not dealt with Canada in such a way as to make this possible. Canada has been blessed with greater sources and all else are among the boundries of nature. Can Canada isolate herself all the products from these vast resources? Is she cannot use the products that is be content? We must obtain markets of course, there must be perfect freedom of exchange of commodities. If there was that perfect freedom, many of the products modities there would not be any problem of monetary difficulties. Why I believe the trade problem is more important than the currency problem. I believe, that some of the problems of currency can be settled but I believe if we had trade settled, there would not be the unemployment problem.

Economic Nationalism

The policy of economic nationalism was established in 1930 by Mr. Bennett. He raised the tariffs against Britain. Only the Liberal Conference was to be held in London in the year 1932. The result of conference was that the increase of tariffs made it impossible for Britain to trade with Canada increasingly difficult for trade to go out. You can't believe that the people know what about the great body of the people as a mass. The statesmen, women and children in the house! be interrogated.

The people of our country was cut in half in the first two years of the Conservative administration.

Mr. King continued that trade with the Empire countries was reduced steadily since 1930. Trade was reduced since to the extent of sixty per cent. Mr. King declared that the reduction within the Empire before the trade agreements went into effect. Trade is within the Empire was doubled what it was afterwards.

Trade Agreements Attacked

The Liberal Leader was outspoken in his attack on the trade agreements away of power out of the hands of Parliament, through the executive council method. He castigated the Government for handing to its appointees powers in the jurisdiction of a railway or industry would be given to the Minister, Government, in using his directors. He referred to the Canadian National Railways. Only the other day the Government had modify the law giving control to the Canadian National Railways. Only the other day the Government had modify the law giving control to the railway problems. Liberals on the other hand stand for public ownership and public control. The present government, Mr. King declared, was the worst in the history of taking away control. The government had taken away from Parliament control to make what appointments it desired.

A successful fight against the giving to the Radio Commission powers to make appointments and assume the duties of the Civil Service Commission, was put up by the Liberals.

In one of the shortest speeches of the evening Mr. Fraser, Vice-President of the Central Ontario Liberal Association, introduced Mr. Dafoe, presiding, Mr. J. J. Duffus of Peterboro, paid a warm compliment to the Liberal Leader, which had characterized the meeting and the banquet as a whole.

A toast to the King proposed by Mr. Duffus was responded to by the assembly.

"This is not a speech-making occasion," declared Mr. Duffus, "we will attempt to adhere to that rule. Mr. Hepburn will be heard from here tonight for us to take up the cause." Mr. Duffus declared that he did not mention how pleased I am being re-elected as President of the Central Ontario Liberal Association."

A successful campaign," declared the speaker, "needed active workers, organization and money. Most necessity, in this district that requirement has been met.

Mr. Wm. A. Fraser, M.P., of Northumberland was then introduced by the chairman, in turn introduced Mr. Hepburn to the gathering. He took the occasion to remark that it was a great opportunity for him to be present at the annual meeting of the Central Ontario convention. He deeply appreciated the fact that he was able to state his views to the gathering. Mr. Mackenzie King and Mr. Hepburn were over the wonderful turmoil which was in the world, he declared. Unfitely, according to the speaker, it was a time of opportunity for a foregone conclusion. All candidates, he declared, were in the field in this field, "And for this election the men offering themselves to the voters were worthy of the confidence." (Applause).

Mr. Fraser be introduced by Mr. Fraser, Dr. J.-A. Faulkner, Liberal candidate for East Toronto, who was accorded vociferous applause; Colin Campbell, Liberal candidate for Algoma also received enthusiastic applause, as did James Hawthorne, Liberal candidate for Peterboro West.

Women Have Part.

Introduced by Mr. Fred Blarioom of Picton, President of the Picton Women's Liberal Club, a resolution was passed endorsing the action of the provincial party was seconded by Miss Clara Delaney, president of East Northumberland Liberal Association of Colbourne.

In moving the resolution, Mrs. Van Blarioom declared there was no question of "Votes for women" in the present day. "The women's active part in the present day is the decided. "We must make the best of conditions and improve them where we may." A sincere appreciation was made by the speaker for the aggressive policy adopted by the party. The executive of the Liberal Party in Canada, was cited as displaying more and more the qualities of leadership and statesmanship so badly needed at the present time.

In seconding the resolution, Miss Delaney took the occasion to commend the work of the ladies' auxiliary to the Liberal party. Mrs. Hepburn, the speaker declared, had enjoyed by him throughout the campaign. We as Liberals are fighting for what was seconded, Mrs. F. Aylworth, district representative of the Ontario Women's Liberal Association.

Among those who banqueted at the visitors' table on the vast platform were Mayor Geo. O. Tice and Mrs. Tice, Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Reid and Mrs. G. H. Stobie, Lt. Col. Geo. Hawkins, Mrs. Hawkins, Miss Hawthorne, Peterboro, Mr. J. O. O'Flynn, Dr. Allen, Mrs. Allen, Mr. Charles Wallis, Mrs. Wallis, Mr. and Mrs. W. Van Blarioom, Hon. Nelson Parkhill, Mrs. Parkhill, Mr. and Mrs. N.P. G. H. Holton and Mrs. Holton, Mr. and Mrs. W. Jas. Boyle, Mr. and Mrs. H. Harris, Mr. W. Turner, Miss A. M. Hurley, Mr. E. J. Hurley, Mr. and Mrs. Fraser, vice-president G.W.L.A., Mrs. F. Aylworth, District Representative, Mrs. Wm. Jas. Boyle, Mrs. Delaney, President Women's Liberal Association, Colbourne, Mr. and Mrs. M.P., W. H. Benson, Picton, S. B. Hathaway, Port Hope, and many others.

JOHN ST. W.M.S.

The regular monthly meeting of the John St. Women's Missionary Society of United Church was held on Tuesday, June 6th, with the President, Mrs. Wood, and the Call to Worship and a hymn was sung. Mrs. Brown read the minutes of the annual devotional period. Hymn 405 was sung after which the president conducted the business part of the meeting.

The subject was "Our Work in the Home Field." In the Diamond Jubilee of the founding of the missions of the Church, the various studies of the work of the Women's Missionary Society.

In the absence of Group Leader, Mrs. Robert Wood, Mrs. Wood was in charge of Miss R. Templeton, who read an interesting article on the remarkable changes in the past fifty years, which have taken place in the world of today's progress life, internationally, politically and in the commercial world.

Within 80 years Japan has emerged from a hermit nation into one of the leading commercial nations of the world, with a modern army and navy, railroads, steamships, postal, railway and telegraph systems which compare favorably with those of any other country in the world.

The pioneer missionaries, George Cochran and Malcolm MacDonald soon found that they could not reach the Japanese except by their men and children, so they made application to the Missionary Society for women missionaries and Miss M. J. Carruth went as the first woman missionary. She decided that Christian education for girls was necessary and in 1884 a boarding school was established at Tokyo. Many graduates from this school took so heavy a task, tender their services gladly. Miss Carruth was responsibly thanking too, Mr. Albert Miles, manager of the Bell Telephone Co. for the use of two General lectric Refrigerators, and Mr. Gordon Cooke, Mr. Keyes Supply Co. Ltd. for the use of two Kelvinator domestic electric refrigerators. To all who have so kindly and generously contributed to making the banquet a success, the women of Holloway St. Methodist Church, Bloomfield and Daly, Winnipeg and Eleanor Oulton, of Prince Edward Island.

4 NEW CANDIDATES IN FIELD FOR TODAY

Total of 29 Now Nominated By the Deadline

Halifax, June 8 (CP)—Four new candidates were in the election field today, bringing up to 29 the number nominated already chosen by the two major parties for the forthcoming Nova Scotia elections. Conventions at Baddeck, Guysboro and Pictou yesterday added to the ranks of the Conservatives and one Liberal.

Conservative candidates were: Dr. Alexander Lamont, Liberal candidate for Pictou; Dr. Alexander Lamont, Liberal candidate for Guysboro, and Mr. H. H. Fraser, Liberal candidate for Baddeck. The entry of the party at the Arena they were met by a guard of honor composed of returning men of this city, all wearing their full regalia of the distinguished guest to his place on the platform. There was no appreciative or this token of respect on the part of the returned soldiers.

Under the leadership of Mr. Wallace Nichols an orchestra composed of fourteen of this city's musicians rendered selections during the banquet while dancing the dinner and during the evening.

The pleasure and distinction of being invited to attend the one and only leader recently, when Kingsley-Harris, aged 22, and Miss Mary-Harris, aged 22, a well-known young couple, were asphyxiated while burning a wick on a stove in their home. Their bodies were recovered with much difficulty at the bottom of the thirty-foot well, in six feet of water and mud.

Gives Alarm.

Harris descended into the well first. When he failed to return, Kingsley-Harris followed in search of him, and he, too, was overcome. Both bodies were found by neighbors, who, on hearing the alarm given by the boy at loading service, hurried to the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell Harris, on Bridge Street.

Dr. Mitchell Church, John St. Church, Dr. Ross, Bridge St. Church and the Army and Navy Veterans, the women's organization of the Legion, undertook to heavy a task, tender their services gladly. Miss Carruth was responsibly thanking too, Mr. Albert Miles, manager of the Bell Telephone Co. for the use of two General lectric Refrigerators, and Mr. Gordon Cooke, Mr. Keyes Supply Co. Ltd. for the use of two Kelvinator domestic electric refrigerators. To all who have so kindly and generously contributed to making the banquet a success, the women of Holloway St. Methodist Church, Bloomfield and Daly, Winnipeg and Eleanor Oulton, of Prince Edward Island.

Mr. Carl Read of this city, had furnished the amplifying system for the occasion, enabling the voices of the speakers to all parts of the Arena. His services are greatly appreciated, too, by his Liberal friends present.

Throughout the mammoth undertaking of the Central Ontario Liberal Convention reflects credit on all those of its organization, who have contributed to making such a successful conclusion and on the committee in charge of the Belleville and its council in furthering such an ambitious project. Many of the citizens of Belleville, who have so actively lent their aid, are deserving of praise for the big event an outstanding occasion in the history of the city.

Some 4500 interested listeners in all heard the speeches of the evening. The Arena was thrown open to all at 8 p.m. and in a short time the seats were filled and the standing were filled. The press of Ontario was represented there by reporters from Canadian Press, Globe, Toronto Star and Mail and Empire.

HAVE CHARACTERISTICS

Melbourne, June 8 (CP)—Australians, according to Prof. Monitford, have two notable characteristics—large noses and small jaws. He attributes the prominent noses to life hot dry climate. Man breathes faster and deeper here, hence their noses develop. He hasn't made up his mind about the small jaws.

TWO SMOTHERED IN SIXTY-FOOT WELL

Double Tragedy Enacted at Nisula Concession of Goderich Township

Goderich, June 8—The farm of Edward Grigg, three miles south of Goderich Township, ten miles from here, was the scene of a double tragedy yesterday, when Kingsley-Harris, aged 22, and Miss Mary-Harris, aged 22, a well-known young couple, were asphyxiated while burning a wick on a stove in their home. Their bodies were recovered with much difficulty at the bottom of the sixty-foot well, in six feet of water and mud.

Gives Alarm.

Harris descended into the well first. When he failed to return, Kingsley-Harris followed in search of him, and he, too, was overcome. Both bodies were found by neighbors, who, on hearing the alarm given by the boy at loading service, hurried to the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell Harris, on Bridge Street.

Dr. Mitchell Church, John St. Church, Dr. Ross, Bridge St. Church and the Army and Navy Veterans, the women's organization of the Legion, undertook to heavy a task, tender their services gladly. LOOKING FORWARD

Continued indication of a more healthy outlook upon the world of finance and economics is afforded by the Canadian Manufacturers' Association and the executives engaged in industry everywhere. These healthy good signs are manifest across the great part of the Dominion, and the Maritimes which part of the country is less responsive to the new trend feel that the bottom of the depression has been touched.

While there are some parts and some industries which will not manifest immediate reaction to optimism, the consensus of opinion favors the upward look.

Industrial men of this city which might not be expected to see an immediate improvement have read the signs and found them intriguing and indicative of better business. These signs are more restricted to only commerce but are manifested in a greater demand for life insurance and other commodities.

Industrial men seem to feel that the Imperial Conference of last summer sowed the seeds of revival as it brought to a new township the spirit of commerce the realization of the advantage of greater freedom of markets for all nations. This no doubt had a hand in events which have transpired during the past year to culminate on Monday next in the great city of London when the sixty nations of the world will confer through their representatives on the immediate problems of the day.

Time was when economic problems might not have seemingly played so great a part in the national life but today that feeling is removed since the farthest corner of the world feels the effects popular from the great centres of commerce.

The impulse which first manifested itself about the first of March may by the time the World Conference on Economics is well under way have so strongly impressed the world conference that the success of the London effort will be assured. And if that is achieved and even though afterwards a great deal of labor and much trial may be necessary to restore world security and bring some really necessary changes, the repercussions will be felt not only in the centre but in the smallest hamlets and on the broad expanses of the country and on the concession lines.

MINIMUM WAGE

Ontario's Minimum Wage law is being studied by the United States. The past few weeks have seen an interesting development in the States. A group of employers in the State of New York realizing that in certain sections the purchasing power of the community had almost reached the vanishing point, because of the lowering of women's wages, petitioned the government of the State to enact a mandatory minimum wage. When Governor Roosevelt heard of this he telegraphed to eleven governors of other states in the union and requested them to do likewise. The result is that the minimum wage law of board has received many inquiries.

It is gratifying that the rates fixed by the Ontario Board are being paid, because a large number of employers sincerely endorse the principle underlying the law and gladly live up to its requirements.

The 1932 annual report points out that the board is administering not a fair wage but a minimum wage law, and merely sets the wage below which wages must not go. "The board asks no more for working women than society demands for its criminal, imbeciles, and paupers, viz., sufficient food, proper shelter and modest clothing."

The report says that the suggestion was made last year to declare a moratorium of the law, but this was declared impossible for humanitarian and social reasons. Another suggestion was that the rates be reduced, but as the rates are very low and are not raised during times of temporary expansion, so the board refused to cut the rates until the cost of living for a self-supporting working woman is materially reduced.

The budgets which the board has adapted are interesting. For Toronto the rate is $12.50 per week, made up of clothing per week $2.21, sundries $3.29 and board and lodging $7.80. Sundries for instance, include for a year, laundry $39.00, doctor, dentists and optician, car fare $48.00, reading matter $6.00, postage and stationery $5.00, recreation and amusement $20.00, insurance and trade union and incidentals, $20.00 for tooth brush, comb, soap, toothpaste, talcum powder, nail file, manicure set, hand lotion, pins, needles, thread, whisk, shoe laces, and so forth.

In the matter of clothing it is clear that no extravagance is possible. Following are the items under the total year's allowance of $115.05:—

Boots and repairs, 3 pairs $5.00, $4.00, $4.00; bedroom slippers, 80c., rubbers, 50c., galoshes, $1.50; repairs, $2.00, $17.80; stockings $7.50, underwear $2.00, nightgowns $4.00, costume slips 3.50, corsets and brassieres $5.50, kimono (two years) $1.00, hats $9.00, suit (half cost to wear two years) or skirt (three year, $5.00) and light coat (two years, $12.50) 11.25, winter coat to wear two years $8.25, winter dresses $10.00, summer dresses, two or three $10.00, blouses $7.50, sweater (two years) $2.00, aprons $2.50, handkerchiefs $1.50, gloves $3.50, scarf $1.00, umbrella, to last two years, $1.25.

That lie in rise?
This hope that lifts
Me towards the skies?
This faith which with

Too little known?
They flow, they flow
And never cease,
The springs of God,
Which give me peace!

SAMUEL INSULL, electrical kigg of Western United States, before he was tumbled from his throne, was one of the bitterest and most powerful opponents of public ownership of public utilities in the United States, and with his associates sought to discredit the achievements of Ontario's publicly owned Hydro-electrical development. According to Insull the Ontario experiment into the electrical development field was a rank failure. Of course he didn't tell the people that rates for electric light service had been cut in half in some cases, that plenty power had been developed and sold at reasonable prices, and that the farmers used electricity to light their houses and their barns and used power for milking machines and cream separators, besides other uses. Insull reached for the moon and got a piece of green cheese and a whole lot of time for reflection in the cell where the international extradition laws cannot reach him.

MAYOR GEORGE TICE celebrated his birthday anniversary just another milestone in a busy man's life, but made memorable through having the honor of welcoming to Belleville and Hastings County of Rt. Hon. William Lyons Mackenzie King leader of His Majesty's Most Loyal Opposition in the Canadian House of Commons, and Premier of Canada. To the many Liberals gathered from far and near Mayor Tice introduced their honored leader—so Irish in all, by and large, and Alpha and Omega, it was a day of Liberal rejoicing as Mayor Tice celebrated his own birthday and the Liberal stalwarts welcomed their Dominion leader.

SAMUEL INSULL came up from a clerk's stool in a Chicago office to be the billionaire electricity king of Chicago and the West. Looking for more financial and electrical worlds to conquer Insull invaded the East, the land of King Morgan and the legions of Wall Street. Here the mighty Insull proceeded to gather some of the power possessed by the lights and power companies into his organization. It is said that Wall Street interests looked with disfavor upon the activities of the Western magnate and threw a monkey-wrench into the widely scattered machinery of the Insull western enterprises. The rest is history. The Insull financial empire fell with a tremendous crash carrying ruin to many small and large investors and a shattering of the prestige of the name of Insull is a fugitive from justice — somewhere in Europe, and Wall Street is being investigated at Washington.

RIDING THREE IN A SEAT in an automobile cost the owner of the car just twenty-five thousand dollars. He was driving in Montreal one night, — it was raining and the visibility was consequently poor — he crashed into a pillar in a subway, and received injuries resulting in blindness. He sued the city and obtained judgment for the upward of fifty thousand dollars damages — but, because there were three in the driving seat $25,000 was deducted from the award. High price to pay for just taking a chance but it's never worth while taking any chances with such high-powered machines? A locomotive has rails to run on, and an engineer to guide it who has served years in learning the are of running a train safely. An automobile with more chances to do damage than the locomotive is run by a person who has learned little beyond the art of driving and some smattering of traffic rules — and the automobile has no rails to run on. It is any wonder there more casualties on the highway than on the railway? Wonder is that there are not many more.

LEFT-HANDED ARE PROBLEM FOR PARENTS

Left-Handedness Often Causes Feeling of Inferiority

Famous Authority on Health And Psychology

Children often find it easier to use the left hand than the right, and if parents are not careful the habit soon becomes definitely fixed.

Were left rather than right-handedness the rule, it wouldn't matter a particle if an adult used the left hand exclusively. In fact, right-handedness would then place one in the awkward class.

So many cushions, however, are based on right-hand manipulation—shaking hands, for instance, arm boards on desks and so forth—that the person who is left-handed soon finds himself crowded out and regarded as peculiar.

The nerves which have to do with motion of the hand muscles are situated along the Fissure of Rolando, one such fissure being on each side of the brain, running vertically upwards and at an angle about where the ear joins the head.

We say in neurology that "up the Simply say "center" but "nerves" in other words, the nerve cells at the bottom of the fissure control the fingers and not the toes, as one might expect, while those at the top of the fissure control the bottom of the body—the toes. Furthermore, the Rolandic Fissure on the left side of the brain controls the movements of the opposite or right side of the body, and vice versa. Usually the left Rolandic Fissure is more highly developed than the one on the right side; hence people are generally right-handed.

When the right Fissure of Rolando happens to be more highly developed, one should not look upon it as abnormality, if the child were trained early in life to use the left hand more than the right, we would soon become a race of left-handed people. As it is, however, left-handed persons are often embarrassed, especially when they grow to man's and woman's estate. For, after all, the urge to be like everybody else is a strong one, and for a child to be ostracized, which does not help the development of that child's self- and self-reliance.

Indeed, uncorrected left-handedness has often led to marked convictions of inferiority, and so has influenced adversely a whole life. There are cases where self-pity likewise has been pronounced, and there are women who have definitely given up the idea of marrying for no better reason.

Therefore we should try to rout out left-handedness as soon as we note it in a child. If a boy or girl starts to write with the left hand, place the pencil in the right. If he proffers his left hand, refuse it and ask for the right. And in order to increase the skill of the right hand, exercises which call for the use of the thumb and small muscle should be tried, such as knitting, sewing, embroidery and so like.

Perhaps it would be well if we could all be ambidextrous; that is, able to use both hands equally well. Such persons do exist but they are exceptional.

It has often been observed that, when attempts are made in a left-handed child to have him use

International Spy System In Europe Working Overtime

Frantically Trying to Gain Government Secrets Before Other Nation Gains Theirs

By WILLIAM HILLMAN
Central Press Canadian Writer

Paris, June 8.—Europe is again feverish with spy activities.

Hardly a week goes by which fails to bring reports of some spy—or alleged spy—arrested somewhere.

The pre-war period secret knew such language as "espionage". Now, after taking Kruschen Salts regularly I have lost 7½ lbs. in weight, and have much more vitality. Also I have a very good complexion, and I do not have those blotches of my head. Surely this must be due to my having pure blood, and I attribute the fact to my taking Kruschen Salts. I give my measurements below :

Before.		After.
Weight	148 lbs.	Weight	140 lbs.
Bust	... 34 ins.	Bust	... 34 ins.
Waist	... 31 ins.	Waist	... 29 ins.
Hips	... 36 ins.	Hips	... 36 ins.

" I made the above reduction in four weeks, during which time I must admit that I did not touch chocolates or sweets of any description, potatoes, butter or sugar. I kept to this for four months, and lost 35 lbs.

Paris, June 8—Europe is again feverish with spy activities.

Hardly a week goes by which fails to bring reports of some spy—or alleged spy—arrested somewhere.

The pre-war period secret knew such language as "espionage". Or perhaps the spies were better equipped to do their work and weren't caught so quickly.

Take some of the recent reports from the European newspapers:

Three men said to have been engaged in espionage on behalf of Germany, were executed at Grodno, Poland.

Professor Zydoux, of the Paris Polytechnic, sentenced in Rome to five years imprisonment for espionage.

A man arrested at Clermont, Ferrand is alleged to have confessed that he had been in the pay of the intelligence service.

Lieut. Basile-Stewart, the "Man of the Tower" cashiered and sentenced to five years imprisonment for his espionage while military secrets to "Marie Louise", a modern and mysterious spy.

A 23-year-old Hungarian beauty arrested as a spy in Trieste.

Fife arrested in Vienna for smuggling military information into Czechoslovakia.

Two Italian masons arrested at Nice on a charge of conveying military information across the frontier.

A complete revelation of the espionage and counter-espionage activity in Europe is impossible. Every nation is involved in trying to find out the secrets of every other nation, even nations outwardly friendly to each other. Secret agents of European governments, already overloaded with heavy expenditures, are frantically seeking every secret provisions for funds to be used for "intelligence" work.

Britain's wartime premier, David Lloyd George, once told the late Bradford: Visiting Committee, Messrs. Corham, Wheeler, Fepson and Williams.

The Ontario Government is backing the work of the Belleville Women's Institute in child welfare by appointing Mrs. Williams, President of the Toronto Playground's Association, to address a meeting in this city on the evening of June 27th.

Butter is selling at 25 cents to 28 cents per pound; eggs 20 cents to 22 cents per dozen; dressed chickens $1.50 to $2.00 per pair; potatoes 90c per bag.

The baseball match between the teams of St. Michael's and Ontario Street was won by the latter in victory for the Octavia St. School boys, the score being 9 to 2. The line-up was as follows: Octavia Street School — Hess, c.; Hall, p.; Wilson, 1b.; Latta, L. Boyd, C. McWilliams, W. French, R. Hopkins and Boyd Anderson. St. Michael's School —Logue, Winn, Meagher, Patterson, Ahearn, Burns, Walker, Black and Smith.

"GAINED NEW ENERGY

The improvement in this woman's figure, after she had lost 28 lbs. of unwanted fat, easily be understood from the comparative measurements which she gives below. Note also the striking effects of the treatment she used. Her method is evidently a good one, too.

" I am 34 years of age; I bought it, 5 ft. 3 ins., and about three years ago I weighed was 28 lbs. above normal. I was listless and without energy. Now, after taking Kruschen Salts regularly I have lost 7½ lbs. in weight, and have much more vitality. Also I have a very good complexion, and I do not have those blotches of my head. Surely this must be due to my having pure blood, and I attribute the fact to my taking Kruschen Salts. I give my measurements below :

" I made the above reduction in four weeks, during which time I must admit that I did not touch chocolates or sweets of any description, potatoes, butter or sugar. I kept to this for four months, and lost 35 lbs.

If honesty think it would not have been possible without the aid of Kruschen Salts, because as my weight is now normal for my height and age, I am able to keep it without dieting, but by combining with the Kruschen Salts alone."—(Miss) M. S.

Kruschen combats the cause of fat by assisting the internal organs to perform their functions properly—to throw off each day those waste products and poisons which, if allowed to accumulate, would be converted by the body's chemistry into fatty tissue. Unlike ordinary apologies, Kruschen does not confine its action to a single part of the system. Its tonic effect extends to the nerves, glands and veins.

Kruschen Salts is obtainable at all Drug Stores at 40c. and 75c. per bottle.

ABANDON ST. ALBAN'S AS CATHEDRAL LIKELY

Future Status of Church to Be Decided First

TORONTO, June 7.—What appeared to be a quite definite abandonment of the project of establishing St. Alban as the Cathedral of the Diocese emerged as one of the most important items in the first days session of the annual meeting of the Synod of the Diocese of Toronto of the Church of England in the Parish Hall of St. James' Cathedral yesterday.

Bishop Derwyn T. Owen, in his first charge to the Synod, referred to St. Alban's. His Lordship explained that a meeting of the Great Chapter of the Diocese a committee was appointed to go into the matter of St. Alban's and the chapter had accepted its recommendations, that the continuance and completion of St. Alban's as the Cathedral of the Diocese are impossible; that the present edifice be continued as a parish church or a collegiate church; and that discontinuance of St. Alban's as a cathedral shall not take place until such time as its future status shall have been determined and satisfactory arrangements for cathedral purposes shall have been made with another church.

Word was received on Tuesday morning that Mr. James Bateman Sr., had passed away at the home of his son, Dr. Russell Bateman, in Toronto, where he had gone a few weeks ago following a serious operation in Belleville hospital. Mr. Bateman was a highly esteemed lifelong resident of this community. His wife predeceased about eleven years. Left to mourn his loss are one daughter, Miss Hilliar Bateman of Toronto and three sons Dr. Russell Bateman of Toronto, and Manley and Ervine with whom he made his home, of this community.

The regular monthly meeting of Christ Church Women's Auxiliary was held at Mrs. R. T. Porter's home on Friday evening, June 2nd. There was a large attendance and several visitors. The meeting opened by singing "He Leadeth Me O Blessed Thought," followed by prayer and the Scripture reading. The secretary read the minutes of the previous meeting and some business was discussed.

Hymn 764 was then sung after which Miss Emma Porter gave a splendid detailed report of the annual meeting of the Ontario Diocese W.A. which was held in Brockville the early part of May. Mrs. Besser spoke briefly expressing the appreciation of the auxiliary to Miss Porter for the splendid report. Rev. Mr. Beaver also gave a brief address referring especially to the Restoration Fund.

Hymn 410 was sung and the meeting closed with the benediction. A dainty lunch was served. Several of the men of the congregation came in and enjoyed the lunch and a nice collection was received.

Gasoline thieves seem quite common around the village this last few weeks. Mr. Howard Thompson had all the gasoline drained out of his car tank in his garage one night last week.

MAN'S POTENTIAL LIFE IS 187 YEARS

Vancouver, June 7.—(CP)—Nature's deeper secrets — uncanny warning given fish before earthquakes, punning parwiki grown between animal and vegetable—were discussed today before the fifth Pacific science congress. Scientists gathered into two groups, physical and biological, each group listening to authorities, from both sides of the Pacific.

Life is not measured by years but by the rate of living, Dr. A. H. Hutchinson, of University of British Columbia, told the biological section. A fish he said lives, and grows according to the food it obtains—nothing is know to die naturally in the sea. Old age is unknown.

The slower the growing rate the longer the adult stage, he added.

According to this table, man has a potential period at present of about 187 years. Life can be prolonged according to environment, nutrition, diet and the slowest growth—an extended existence.

To be really happy and to avoid worry and mental over-strain we must be real.—Winston S. Churchill.

MRS. HUGH DAVIES INJURED IN FALL

Madoc, June 8—Mrs. F. E. Harrisell arrived home last week after spending the winter in St. Petersburg, Florida.

Mrs. and Mrs. Watson has arrived at her home in Madoc after spending several months with her daughter in Niagara Falls New York. She has moved into camp at Moira Lake.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy Naylor has taken up residence at Wallace Cove at their camp there, for the summer months.

Mrs. Hugh Davies had the misfortune to fall down steps at the cottage at Moira Lake, breaking both bones of her right leg near the ankle. She is reported to be resting easily and will remain at Camp Sagetrakra, Moira Lake during her convalescence.

About twenty-five of the members of Madoc Women's Institute joined the members of the Ivanhoe Branch for the lecture by Mrs. Tewrias at Ivanhoe Town Hall on Friday afternoon, June 2nd. Mrs. Alexander and Mrs. A. Kincaid presided at the piano during the programme.

Mrs. Tewrias spoke fluently and won the interested attention of her audience speaking on "The Ideal Member and the Member's Ideal." A dainty lunch was served by the Ivanhoe members at the close.

MORE PEOPLE RIDE ON GOODYEAR TIRES THAN ON ANY OTHER KIND

Guaranteed for a year

—but look at these tires after a year's use—seeing is believing!

Goodyear's greater mileage and inbuilt quality far outlast the guarantee. Look at the 12 different Goodyear Tires on 12 different makes of cars shown here. Each of these tires has been in service for over 12 months—the period of the guarantee—and has run from 6,500 to 9,000 miles—yet each is still sharp-edged, sturdy, ready to give a big bonus of trouble-free service.

You get a guarantee with almost any tire. With a Goodyear you get many thousands of miles of extra service. And that is a basic reason why MORE PEOPLE RIDE ON GOODYEAR TIRES THAN ON ANY OTHER KIND.

Mrs. L. Green and Mrs. H. Scott were tea hostesses at the Belleville Golf Club yesterday afternoon.

Mr. George Finch has returned from Toronto accompanied by his family and will take a cottage at Rossmore for the summer.

Mrs. Fred Hudon, who has been visiting at the home of her daughter, has left for London, Ont., to join her husband, who has been transferred by the Bank of Montreal.

Mr. H. Vernon Clarke, M.A., of Hamilton, son of Inspector H. E. Clarke was granted the degree of Bachelor of Pedagogy at Toronto University graduation exercises this week.

Miss Kathleen Jenkins of this city, was among those who received diplomas at the graduation exercises at Loretta Abbey, Toronto, yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. Dan Whalen and family attended the graduation of their daughter in Toronto on Tuesday. Mrs. Whalen's mother, Mrs. Reilly accompanied them.

Following the termination of the Liberal meeting in the Arena, on Wednesday evening, a number of friends in this district of the Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King and Mr. Mitchell F. Hepburn called at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Albert Faulkner where Mrs. Faulkner was the gracious hostess to those who came to pay their compliments to the Dominion and Provincial Liberal leaders who were the guests of Dr. Faulkner during their stay in Belleville.

The euchre party given under the auspices of the Thurlow Unemployment Relief had a fair attendance at the Prince of Wales school last evening. The prizes were won as follows: Ladies, first, Mrs. R. Murray; second, Mrs. F. Shortt. Men's first, Mr. R. Leech; second, Mr. Paul. Mrs. W. Clare won the door prize.

WEST HUNTINGDON W.M.S.

A very pleasant day was spent at the home of Mrs. Clifford Elliott on Thursday, June 1st, when the members of the W.M.S. were entertaining to a delicious dinner. A quilt was tied and the regular monthly meeting took place at the usual hour in the afternoon.

With the president, Mrs. Cook, presiding the meeting opened with "Jesus Shall Reign," with English Mrs. Wilson and Mrs. Putman led in prayer. The scripture lesson from Mark was taken by Mrs. F. Ashley. The secretary then called the roll and the minutes were read and approved.

Several business items were dispensed with. It was decided to buy yarn and each member help in knitting mittens for the sale. Some of the members expressed their appreciation of remembrances sent them when ill. The president stated that as many as possible attend the open meeting at Zion Hill on June 14th. Correspondence was read in connection with the W. A. Convention to be held in the Tabernacle Church, Belleville. Miss Sarah Wilson volunteered to prepare the temperance programme for the July meeting.

Mrs. M. Donnan and Miss S. Wilson responded to the Watch Tower. The devotional leaflet, "The Society Woman" was read by Mrs. G. Post. Mrs. C. Elliott gave a reading, "Jesus' Mother." "Jesus Thy Joy of Loving Hearts" was sung and Mrs. Clayton Hagerman gave an interesting reading "Diamond Jubilee," telling of the wonderful progress that has been made in China during the past fifty years and of the earnest prayers that were offered in China on the World's Day of Prayer for peace in that country. She also told of the interesting kindergarten work that was being undertaken there. Miss Georgia Pitman favored with a solo after which Mrs. Donnan gave a reading, "Pictured Arrows." A satisfactory report was received from the secretary, Mrs. McCurdy.

A hearty vote of thanks was offered Mrs. Elliott for her kind hospitality, also to the visitors for helping to make the meeting a decided success. The meeting closed with "I Love to Tell the Story" and prayer by Mrs. Ponce. Collection $8.05.

SENTENCED FOR PERJURY

Cobourg, June 8.—Everett Grieve of Hastings was sentenced by Judge C. C. Huycke to five months determinate and 13 months indeterminate in Guelph Reformatory yesterday on a charge of perjury. He was acquitted on two other charges of perjury. The charges were laid as the result of evidence given by Grieve at the trial of William Clapper, acquitted on a charge of theft of a revolver.

The heart, unlike many other things, can grow young again.

Baby is Kidnapped

Mrs. John Sneed

Nearly frantic over the kidnapping of her five-weeks-old baby, Mrs. John Sneed of Cincinnati is depending upon police to locate the missing child. The baby girl was taken from the Sneed home by a woman posing as a nurse. The mother did not become suspicious until she received a letter stating the child had been taken to a nursery.

Advice to the Lovelorn

"Why are widows conscienceless cads?" demands Elsie B. in a letter that fairly bristles with protest. Why indeed?

But are they? I have known plenty that were everything that is estimable.

It seems that this young lady was on the point of becoming engaged to the "nicest boy" when he fell into the clutches of a widow, who is now displaying a sparkler on the third finger of her left hand, and Elsie asks:

"Do widows who have been married once feel no obligation to play fair in attracting men?"

Now the unscrupulous, man-devouring type of widow does not happen to have come under my observation. But it may be she exists. A compelling number of my correspondents seem to think so.

We all know, of course, that many widows, and even more widowers, wish to remarry within a by the way, an extremely flattering testimony to the desirability of the wedded state.

It is quite likely that a lonely young widow, considering a man she could love, has more courage and initiative in putting over her idea than a girl would have. The fact that she has been chosen once as a mate for life-long mate gives her confidence, and her experience of marriage has convinced her that she knows all men. Why, then, she probably says, should she sit demurely in a corner, waiting, like the old-fashioned spinster, for the man to make a formal declaration?

Why not, rather, help the poor, tongue-tied creature to make up her mind? And if there is an Elsie in the foreground, as in the case of my young correspondent, the more skilful technique of the older and more experienced woman would make the young girl seem bold and insipid. At least that is what many young girls who write to me say. "I was no match for her," Miss Fairfax."

Perhaps the best advice I can give to these young girls, who have been complaining to me of late that good-looking young widows have been stealing the show and the beaux as well, is to start using a feud with this capable and knowing adversary. On the contrary, be very nice to them, while developing your own methods."

Cross-question yourself about these ladies. Is their talk interesting? Do they dress meaningly? Are they clever at organizing good times? Have they original influences? Can they turn out a good meal quickly?

One thing is certain. They never sit around in corners moping, feeling sorry for themselves, and inwardly complaining that the fun has passed them by. These ladies make their own fun.

You Can Be Lovelier This Way

New, wonderful MELLO-GLO powder makes your skin look fresh, tempting. Add to it a new French process, it spreads with surprising smoothness, stays on longer, hides tiny lines and wrinkles, prevents large pores. Ugly shine banished. No drawn or "pasty" look. No irritation with purest face powder known. Buy delightfully fragrant MELLO-GLO today. 50c and $1.00.

Fashion Flashes

A rush for ruching is indicated by the increasing popularity of the frock with ruffle trimmings. A new and lovely frock for evening wear is of white net in black effects in a tiny print design. Ruches of red mark the large armholes.

Still deeper are the back decolletages of many of the new evening frocks. A new model, of pale blue lustrous satin, has a draped bodice and high neckline in front, held by a necklace of diamante. This ends in back with a tasselled pendant that rests between the shoulders.

Get into uniform, the smart uniform of the white linen suit that is so smart and neat. With a suit of this type, no girl wears a black, red and white striped cotton blouse with a "pussy cat" bow.

Pick daisies, as favorite flowers for trimming. A small black hat is trimmed with bunches of white organdie daisies and a scarf of black and white organdie, that fastens with matching daisies.

A suitable pair for ensemble uses consists of the bag and shoe. A smart set for evening is made of royal blue flat crepe with pipings of silver, and a buckle of strass. The bag has a silver frame set with strass and blue scarabs.

Even if it rains the nose mustn't shine. And so one enterprising firm has an umbrella with a flat top resembling a pancake compact. And that is exactly what it is. The cover opens to reveal powder and puff, the powder protected by a sifter.

Correct Manners

Acknowledging Condolences

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My husband was buried last week. I am mailing you one of the cards furnished me by the undertaker. There are no children but we have a large family otherwise. Will you kindly tell me if this style card is suitable?

If not, will you please send me the correct wording, and how should such messages be signed?

L.

Instead of mailing these formalized cards supplied by the undertaker, I would like strongly to urge you to write a note of appreciation to each relative or friend who sent a message of condolence, either a letter or flowers.

Just a sentence or two is enough:

Dear Mary,

Thank you, most heartily, for your kind message of sympathy and understanding . It was a great comfort to me. And you were most kind too to send the beautiful roses....they touched me very deeply.

Very sincerely yours.

GIFT FOR A HOSTESS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Another girl and myself are going to a fraternity dance in another state. This girl has invited me to stay at her grandmother's home, of course I think is very thoughtful, as I know no one in that state. But here is the part that worries me—the gift.

1. I presume the grandmother is an elderly woman, as she is the grown-up grandchildren. I have never met her. When I arrive should I take a box of candy, or should I wait until I return home and send her a bread and butter letter, and a box of candy?

2. Will you be kind enough to tell me how the letter should be addressed.

G. S.

1. It's just as well to wait about taking the candy....it would be a pleasant and friendly thing for you to do, to take it with you when you go for your visit, and it would be fine for you to send on with your bread and butter letter. Or, as a matter of fact, to make this gift both times! Or perhaps you'd like to take a box of candy with you now, and later, when you thank-you letter, send a book to your hostess.

2. Tell your hostess of your "appreciation of her hospitality and of her friendly thoughts for your happiness and comfort". And then thank her especially for certain elements of her hospitality for which you know that she has made definite plans.

WEDDING ANNOUNCEMENT

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. Is sending a wedding announcement considered necessary as did for a gift? My co-workers have given a shower for me and of course I intend to send announcements to them.

However, this is the question. In my office, there are supervisors with whom I come in contact more often in a while. With one or two I have done committee work. Then there is the superintendent who knows all the people working under him in a business way. Is it necessary to send wedding announcements to all of these people?

2. For a while after my marriage I shall live with my sister-in-law. She has a beautiful home in which I wouldn't mind if any of my friends would visit me. However, since it isn't really my own home, is it proper to write "At Home" cards on the wedding announcements, or should it be omitted? I may live there for a year or two.

A.

1. A wedding announcement is not a "bid for a gift." It is simply a formal announcement of the news of your marriage, mailed after the ceremony has taken place.

If both wedding invitations and announcements are to be sent, announcements are sent to those who have been invited to the wedding.

2. Under the circumstances, I believe that it would be better taste to omit the "At Home" address announcement.

Apologizing About Food

I hope you're not the kind of hostess who apologizes about her food—"This isn't as good as I hoped it would be", or "My dessert didn't turn out well today", or "I'm so sorry that this shortfell".

Consider your guest. Such apologies naturally leave her embarrassed. Even the most articulate and gracious guest seems defeat in this situation, for all she can do is to say something that she hopes won't sound weakly non-committal or obviously insincere.

How much better for you, the hostess, to take the quality at the food for granted and let your guest do the same.

FINANCIAL MARKETS
NEW YORK - TORONTO - WINNIPEG

Bulls seize New York—Golds whirl upwards in Toronto and-New York—American Dollar Weakens—Commodities moved uncertainly.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, June 8—(CP)—A long list of new high prices for the year, volume around the best in more than a year and a sensational advance in International Nickel to more than $20 were features of the Toronto Stock Exchange markets here failed to pace along with Nickel but stocks depending heavily on commodities climbed into new high ground as the United States dollar continued to ease and commodities prices firmed.

Nickel's close at $20.25 was up $1.50 for the day. Smaltings gained 1 1-2 to 131 1-2 and other interlisted stocks were almost fascinated. Brazilian which closed at a new 1932 top off 1 3-8.

Food shares climbed with the trend. Weston issues jumped, the common eight points and the preferred 5. Canada Bread, Loblaw "A", Fpd, and Canada Malting were numerous advanced strongly. Oil shares limped behind showing more interest in metals than gains.

Irregularity developed in the Utilities with Bell Telephone and Union Gas showing narrow gains and the power issues mixed. Weak, fractional changes appeared in the beverages and the steel stocks also started an uncertain course.

TORONTO MINES

Toronto, June 8 (CP)—The Standard Mining Market warmed up with the weather today and the gold leaders were given an almost impressive send-off. Several issues made gains running as high as 84. Base metal shares were less demonstrative than Nickel and Noranda which expanded their market prices to new highs of the year. Europe is said to have joined New York and Toronto in the scramble for Canadian gold shares.

Dome was again in the forefront closing at $21.50 for a net gain of $3.50. It touched $27.00. Lake Shore closed with a gain of $3 to $48. McIntyre up $1.85 to $35.10. Pioneer up 40 to $16. Hollinger up at $10.45. Teck Hughes up 40 at $7.00, and Wright Hargreaves up 50 at $6.85. Bralorne was another 50 cents.

International Nickel was a sensational performer, climbing to $20.40, and closing at the top for a gain of $2. Noranda advanced $1.25 to $35.

Silver shares firmed.

WALL STREET

(By Victor Emanuel, Associated Press Financial Writer).

New York, June 8 (AP)—Bulls swarmed through the stock market in the early trading today, but met increasing resistance from profit takers and many forenoon gains of 1 to 3 points were reduced or cancelled. Volume was around its peak for the movement.

Associated with the morning rise was further weakness of the American dollar in foreign exchange markets, fresh murmurings of inflation and the continued excitement in nearly all lines of trade. Commodities moved rather uncertainly. Wheat was a trifle higher while corn and cotton eased slightly. Sugar was unproved, and copper maintained its recent steady tone. Bonds were a bit irregular.

Aside from Canadian mining shares, which moved substantially to their recent gains, most of the Dominion's bonds moved fractionally higher. The Canadian dollar again made a new high with a gain of 5-8 of a cent to 90 3-4 cents. The strength of Dominion currency was attributed by bankers largely to further sympathy with the buoyant pound sterling.

Mining and metal shares were again favored, although a number of materials came in for heavy trading.

Firm in Late Trade

Stocks were firm in the late dealings today after a heavy selling of rail issues had turned the market down in the forenoon session from the earlier advance. Metal issues were especially strong.

U. S. Smelting was up 2 points. Shares up to 1 to included Mclntyre, Noranda, Nickel, Calumet, Case, Allied Chemical and U. S. Steel, Anaconda, Amer. Can and Telephone were fractionally higher. Western Union was down more than a point. Issues off fractions to a point included Du Pont, Johns Manville, New York Central and U. S. Industrial Alcohol. Turnover approximated 6,500,000 shares.

Grain Market

Closing quotations on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange, as furnished by A. H. Ketcheson and Co., to-day:

WHEAT

July 62½; October 64¾; December 66⅝.

RYE

July 48⅞; October 50¾.

BARLEY

July 35¾; October 37¾.

Livestock

Toronto, June 8 (CP)—Early trading on the Toronto Livestock Market was slow with a fairly active light offerings in all classes. Prices generally opened steady to firm with yesterday's closing level. Cattle trade was light; calves were fairly steady; lambs unsettled; sheep slow.

Receipts were: cattle 20; calves 25; hogs 150; sheep and lambs 300.

The few cattle offered sold at prices unchanged from yesterday's. Medium to good butcher cattle brought $3 with a wide range of good cows selling at $3.50 to $3.75 per cwt.

Veal calves opened weak at $2.50 to $4.50 for common to medium grades with a few choice vealers at $5.00 to $5.50.

No hog sales were made up to 11.00 a.m. with no prices established.

A few lambs on contract brought $11.00 per cwt. with prices unchanged the balance. Sheep were very scarce.

AMERICAN DOLLAR DECREASES

LONDON, June 8.—(AP)— The American dollar weakened in today's hour's trading today to $4.13 1-4 to the pound sterling, a new low since Great Britain left the Gold Standard.

Market men were at a loss to explain their subsequent recovery, saying bank close was $4.05 7-8, and thus the quotation represented a depreciation of 8 points on the day. It was believed selling emanated from Paris.

SILVER PRICES

New York, June 8 (AP)— Silver prices advanced again today. Bar metal was quoted here at 39 1-4 cents an ounce, up half a cent, and futures on the average, had a similar gain.

GERMAN MORATORIUM

Berlin, June 8 (AP)—A general moratorium was declared tonight on credits to foreigners, brightening before the German bank crisis of July, 1931.

636 AR GRADUATED

Toronto, June 8 (CP)—Six hundred and ninety-eight successful students knelt before Rt. Hon. Sir William Mulock, Chancellor of the Toronto University and received their degrees, diplomas and certificates of scholastic achievement in the course of the convocation exercises held at the University today.

Cheese Market

Toronto, June 8 (CP)—The Toronto wholesale cheese market was steady today with dealers buying large colored, parafined and government grades at 15 1-4c.

Trading offered cheese to retailers at the following prices:

Large 19c; twins 11 3-4c; triplets 11 3-4c.

Old, large 17c; twins 11 1-4c; triplets 11 3-4c.

BUTTER, CHEESE MARKETS QUIET

OTTAWA, June 8.—(CP)—The following cable on United Kingdom butter and cheese markets was received at the department of agriculture today:

Market quiet with strong undertone. Butter, New Zealand 82 shillings per hundredweight (16:58 cents per lb at yesterday's exchange rate) Australian 80 shillings per hundredweight, (16:18 cents per lb).

Cheese, New Zealand colored 54 shillings per hundredweight, (10.92 cents per lb.); white 48 shillings and (9.81 cents per lb.)

Al Lopez, Brooklyn Dodger's pitcher, failed to live up to the name of his team when the camera recorded this hit of action during the game between the Dodgers and Boston Braves at Boston. Lopez failed to connect and allowed 5 of the Braves, when they collided between the home plate and third during a squeeze play.

FIRST NIGHT IN FILMLAND

"Tonight or Never" in Brilliant Setting at Capitol Theatre

Gloria Swanson as a great prima donna whose career overshadows her flawless in technique but without inspiration had the leading role in the Samuel Goldwyn production "Tonight or Never" which opened at the Capitol Theatre last night. With Melvyn Douglas who plays the romantic lead in the picture showering laurels with his reserved and distinguished performance.

The action of the play takes place in Venice and Budapest and the settings are splendid, under the direction of Willy Pogany. An unusual bit of photographic art in the picture showed Miss Swanson's face in tears through the frame of a violin, as it's aim as he plays at her table at dinner.

With Gloria as the discouraged Nella Vago driven frantic by her teacher's sadistic methods, Douglas lacks fire, and Melvyn Douglas as the mysterious Prince Rudolfo Sarno seems drawn by singer but whose profession she fears is that of a gigolo, a solution of her difficulties occurs to her and she visits the rooms of the stranger. The stranger "Jim" is enraged because she has thus cheapened herself.

They fall in love and His Excellency, Count Von Gronau, (Warburton Gamble) finds his engagement to the singer suddenly broken off.

When Nella decides to give up her career because "Jim" asks her, she discovers that he is really the American impresario Jim Fletcher, and the elderly s' fho is his constant companion is his aunt.

Alison Skipworth as the Madchesa and Boris Karloff as the Count are outstanding members of the cast.

An amusing college comedy and an educative newsreel completed the program.

ACCEPTS QUARTERS OFFERED HIM

Deciding to accept the help offered him by the Central Relief Bureau, Jim Reid, 21, moved into the quarters allotted to him at the Bureau's headquarters after having held out for nearly two days against accepting the quarters that he held out, his furniture had been piled on the side of Ridley Street road, near St. Charles Street, and his wife and two children were being cared for by neighbors. On Thursday, assisted by workers sent by the Relief Bureau, the quarters in the old rink were being cleaned and repaired and put in order. Furniture is being placed on the windows and a general cleaning up wash being given the place. Late Wednesday afternoon, also, the furniture and household effects, that had been moved from his former residence on South Front Street had been stored away inside the building. Neighbors of the family were busy furnished Mr. Day and family in order to assist them in settling down in their new quarters.

LEAKY GAS LINE CAUSE OF FORCED LANDING

OVERCOME BY GAS FUMES MATTERN FORCED TO LAND BREAKING PLANE STABILIZER

Four Hours Out of Omsk When Leak is Discovered

ALMOST OUT

Expects to Make Temporary Repairs And Fly to Krasnovarsk

(Copyright, 1933, By The Associated Press).

Moscow, June 8 — Gasoline fumes from a leaking gas line, which almost overcame him in the air, forced Jimmie Mattern suddenly to land near Prokopievsk, Siberia, Wednesday, the round-the-world flyer told the Associated Press today.

"I am still sick from those fumes," the flyer said in an exclusive telephone interview. He spoke from Berlova, a Workers' Settlement near Prokopievsk where he came down at 10 a.m. Moscow time yesterday (3 a.m. Eastern Standard Time) a few hours after Stanford Taylor from Omsk, Siberia, he had started from Omsk on the fifth lap of his round-the-world flight.

"I can't hold any food on my stomach, but I expect to get off for Krasnoyarsk in five or six hours," he said.

"I was four hours out of Omsk when I discovered a leak in the fuel line, and by the time I found out what the trouble was, I was in a bad shape from the fumes."

He added that he was almost unconscious when he brought the plane down on a small emergency landing field where the settlement.

Broke Stabilizer

"When I landed, I broke my stabilizer and I cannot make permanent repairs here.

They have helped me much as they can here, however, and I shall be able to get off from here with temporary repairs within a few hours and run into Krasnoyarsk, where there are facilities for fixing this stabilizer.

"I have already fixed the gas line and I am almost ready to take off as far as repairs are concerned.

"The only thing is that I feel too sick now, and I think I will wait a few hours until I get better."

Asked if he had gotten any sleep, Mattern replied: "Not much. I have been working on the ship ever since coming down. But I am not sore about anything and I'll probably feel very sleepy and I'll probably feel up some rest at Krasnoyarsk. Now is my elapsed time from New York now?"

He was assured that he was all right in response to a question about what his own log said. Mattern replied: "Well! I have kept track of time."

Asked the exact time he landed, the fli r gave the same rejoinder.

"I can't tell you exactly," he explained, "but I am just four hours out of Omsk when I found out what had happened and I came down as most immediately."

Having left Omsk at 1:10 a.m. on Wednesday, Moscow time, (5:10 p.m. Tuesday, eastern standard time), his landing would have been some time after 5:00 a.m. Moscow time (9:00 p.m. Tuesday, eastern standard time) or approximately one hour after he passed over Novosibirsk.

Very Greasy

"I climbed out of my plane by myself Mattern continued, "although I was so greasy I could hardly stand. Before I knew it there were a lot of people around me but I could not understand the questions they were shooting at me.

"They took me into a nearby house and by that time they found somebody who spoke English. They tried to put me to bed but I only sat down a few minutes and then went back to the plane."

"They have been awfully good to me, giving me hot drinks and food, but I can't keep any of it down. As soon as I get these fumes out of my system I'll be all right."

Mattern's landing place was five Kilometres (about three miles) from the little industrial settlement of Belovo, where workers of the surrounding Kuzentz coal basin have their homes.

To get him on the telephone it was necessary to communicate first with the manager of the Belovo Telegraph Station in which is the town's only telephone line with the outside world, and to prevail upon the manager to send an automobile to get the flier. Some three hours elapsed before the call for the request was made to the manager and the time when the aviator's voice came over the telephone into the Associated Press Bureau in Moscow.

PRICE HITS AT OPPONENTS

Liberal And Progressive Leaders Are Attacked

London, Ont., June 8.—Claiming absolute misrepresentation by the Opposition Party and stating that the Liberal party of Ontario is not composed of any big organization but a group of small bodies, Colonel the Hon. William H. Price, K.C., Warden-General of Canada, delivered a forceful Conservative address at the Ward 7 Conservative Association dinner at Springbank Park Wednesday night. Over 1,100 were in attendance. Colonel Price was the chief speaker, and was introduced by J. Percy Moore, M.P. for North London.

Aldermen Present

Aldermen J. I. Hodgins, President of the Association stated the Liberal Party in Ward 7 puts up the greatest fight in the city at election time and that the Conservative Association meets its greatest battle in that riding.

Although no hint was made by Colonel Price of a Provincial election this fall, his address might easily be taken as the opening gun to such a campaign. He attacked the address of Mitchell Hepburn, Leader of the Liberal Party in Ontario, Mr. Harry Nixon and Mr. A. G. Slaght. His address from the beginning to the end was one of an offensive and political attitude on the part of the Conservative Party in Ontario.

QUEER PRANKS PLAYED BY MIGHTY WIND

Hundred of Thousand Dollars Worth of Damage Wrought

ONE KILLED

Pupil Driven Into Hot Air Register by Force of Gale

By The Canadian Press

Queer pranks were played by the mighty wind, that raked Western Ontario yesterday accompanying an electrical storm responsible for hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of damage.

George Rowe, that Zorra farmer, had his ear neatly clipped off when he and companion took shelter in a barn. They were attempting to close the double-doors when the wind suddenly slammed them shut with Rowe's ear cut off as cicnly as with a knife. He is in Woodstock Hospital.

In Woodstock a metal garage was lifted from the car it was protecting and deposited undamaged on the front lawn of a house a half-a-block away leaving the undamaged car behind. Two other cars were exposed in similar fashion though the garages were wrecked.

Three-year-old George Heithoemer was in the bathtub of his Stanford home when the chimney collapsed under the fury of the gale but the ceiling of the bathroom held and he was unhurt. J. A. Triller in the same city found the hookup from his kitchen stove to the next lot despite the fact it was under a heavy stove and half the kitchen furniture.

A gust of wind at Kitchener lifted a garage and carried it 150 feet away to dash it to pieces on the railway tracks then tore the verandah from another house and carried it to the front lawn of the owner of the wrecked garage as though in compensation.

A member of the Kitchener-Waterloo Fire Brigade says that the building was struck on the head by a wind-deflected sparrow with such force that the bird was killed.

A second electrical storm struck Brantford last night stunned three men in the military camp at the airport. Fifty tents were ripped in the air and flung out with a broken ankle.

NO WAR DEBT DISCUSSIONS

Secretary Hull of U.S.A. Bars Talk at World Parley

Plymouth, Eng., June 8 (AP)— Secretary of State Cordell Hull here declared discussion of the war debts at the world economic conference would be carried today at the head of the American delegation aboard the liner President Roosevelt.

"We shall not go outside the details of the Lausanne Pact, Hull said, "and we shall not discuss Britain's payments of war debts to the United States next week."

"I can say emphatically that the war debts will not be discussed by us at all at this conference."

"The question of disarmament will also be outside the scope of the conference," Mr. Hull continued, "for that is a matter for Geneva."

Davis (Norman H. Davis, American representative at Geneva) and officials at Washington."

BLISTERING HEAT, WIND AND RAIN IN STATES

KANSAS CITY, June 8 —(AP)— Blistering heat, tornadoes and winds akin to tornadoes hail and lightning harnassed the United States in much of the area between the rockies and the Atlantic Wednesday. Nearly three score deaths, most of them due to drowning and heat prostration, were reported.

Deaths were most numerous in the Slaks, bordering the Great Lakes.

There were 11 in Illinois eight each in Wisconsin and Indiana, five in Western New York, and four each in Ohio, Michigan and Pennsylvania, including Tuesday, there have been ten deaths from drowning in Wisconsin.

Bloomington, Ill. and Paducah, Ky., reported maximum temperatures of 102.

PEOPLE WILL SIGN ALMOST ANY PETITION

Albany, N.Y., June 8 (AP)—Mayor John Boyd Thacher, 2nd, has what he considers is evidence that some people will sign almost any kind of petition.

The mayor read a petition protesting against creation of a certain sandlot baseball diamond. It was signed by thirty-five property owners.

Then he read another petition favoring the ball diamond. Seventy-five of the names on the second petition had also appeared on the first.

GEOLOGIST VIEWS STAKING RUSH

Toronto, June 8—Working in the easterly extension of the Swayze gold belt, over toward the Shining Tree area, H. C. Laird, Ontario Government geologist, reports to the Department of Mines that a great rush of claim staking is now under way in that section, and that since "word to" has been fairly effluged with requests from prospectors to examine their stakings.

Mr. Laird reports that many favorable geological areas, not showing on previous maps of the country, have been observed, and rather suggests that the area is ripe for something, of real importance in the near future. The township of Champagne, Groves and Cabot comprise the area which primarily he has under survey.

According to Thomas F. Sutherland, acting Deputy Minister of Mines, the province is due for a boom year in prospecting, following this season almost as many miners' licenses have been issued by the department as were issued during the whole of 1932.

JAMES RYRIE DIES

Toronto, June 8.—James Ryrie of the jewelry house of Birks-Ellis-Ryrie, Ltd., formerly Ryrie-Birks, Ltd., and originally Ryrie Bros., Toronto, died at his summer home in Oakville last night in his 80th year. He had been in failing health for the past year and a week ago pneumonia developed. He died surrounded by all members of his family.

The career of James Ryrie is one of the business romances of Toronto and Canada. Of Scottish-Canadian ancestry his father having been born in Caithness, Scotland, and his mother, in Three Rivers, Quebec, he was born in Toronto April 21, 1854, and was educated in the public and grammar schools of the city.

JAPAN BALKS AT AIR BOMBS AND CARRIERS

Confidence Lacking in Powers Fulfilment of Pledges

GENEVA, Switzerland, June 8.—(AP)—Japan produced a sensation at the disarmament Conference today by announcing that it was unable to accept complete abolition of bombing from the air and that the great powers abolish aircraft carriers.

Abolishment of air bombardment is a feature of the British draft convention but before the Conference all countries have accepted this point in principle, although the British desire to retain the right to resort to bombing for police purposes in outlying regions such as Northern India.

Ambassador Nagaoka Sato announced categorically that Japan was not in position to renounce the use of bombing planes because it was not confident that the powers would live up to their pledge of renunciation. There might be infractions he said.

The ambassador also fixed the following conditions for Japanese abandonment of air bombing:

1. An interdiction against practising warfare in the air in standing platforms.

2. An agreement which would prevent the utilization of civil aircraft for military purposes in wartime.

Attacking the London Naval Treaty, Mr. Sato said that it had resulted in an unhappy situation.

"The London Treaty should have become a scrap of paper on the signatories," he declared. "On the contrary, it has created a strong sphere of uncertainty and apprehension. From one side and another inflammatory speeches which were not calculated to appease the spirit of the interested peoples, have followed the conclusion of this treaty. Therefore the feeling of fear has not been strengthened.

When Mr. Sato had finished his speech adjournment was taken until this afternoon.

FATAL EFFORT TO SHOOT DAM

Riverman of 86 Years Pays With Life For Daring

Haileybury, June 8.—The swiftrunning waters at Lake Timiskaming claimed the life of a familiar figure in the district, when Dan McLeod, 86 years old, veteran riverman, was swept to his death when he attempted to shoot Hailevbury dam in a pointer.

The old man had not been recovered this evening, provincial police officers said. McLeod, it is said, was capsized in the rapids and shot through the sluice gates with terrific force. His body could not be seen later by his son swimming in the current and the old man, a former lumber jack here, he suddenly disappeared and was carried out of sight. The river runs fast at this point and the channel is marked by rocks, holes and "dead-heads."

According to Provincial Constable Stewart Young, who investigated the tragedy, he was warned by his son not to attempt the passage from the river. The father declared he had made more difficult trips before, the police said.

Madrid Cabinet Resigns When President Refuses to Make Ministerial Changes Suggested Opposition Piling Up For Some Time Against Gov't.

CHURCH MATTERS

President Turns Religious Orders Into Civic Groups

Madrid, June 8—(CP)—The government headed by Premier Manuel Azana resigned today.

The resignation came after a cabinet session and resulted directly from the refusal of President Niceto Alcala Zamora to make ministerial changes requested by Premier Azana. The Premier had asked that a new treasury minister be appointed and that the ministry of agriculture be split into two parts.

When the President informed him he would be unable to do this without consulting Republican minority leaders, the Premier declared Senor Alcala Zamora no longer had confidence in the cabinet.

Opposition to the Azana government, which was formed Dec. 15, 1931, has been piling up for some time. The cabinet's difficulties were increased materially recently as a result of a controversy over Spain's new religious law.

These laws, which were signed by President Alcala Zamora on Saturday last week, turned religious orders into civic groups, nationalized church property worth millions of dollars, Pope Pius issued an encyclical declaring the legislation constituted an attack not only on the church but on all religion, and members of the Spanish government were automatically excommunicated.

Radicals Restive

The radical Socialist bloc, headed by former Foreign minister Alejandro Lerroux, has been restive for some time and political observers had expected it to withdraw its support from the government.

Many government officials appealed to the radical socialist convention yesterday to continue their support, saying that Spain was undergoing a type of civil war between the parties of the right and those left. This civil war, government spokesmen said, was exemplified in the campaign against the Agrarian reform law and the religious law.

The Agrarian reform law provides for the seizure of the estates of men who were prominent under the monarchy, and for the distribution of this land among the peasants.

FOUND GUILTY OF PERJURY

Judge Deroche of This City Presides at Hearing

On Tuesday, Walter Hagerman appearing before Judge Deroche of Belleville, in the County Court on the Criminal Court, Napanee, on a charge of perjury was found guilty by the Judge. At the request of counsel for the defence, sentence was reserved until after the case of Walter Smith, being held on the charge had been disposed.

The case of Smith is to be tried by Judge Deroche on Thursday morning, June 8th at 10 o'clock and the judge is to give sentence on Hagerman at 2 o'clock on Thursday.

The charge against Hagerman arose out of a statement made by him at the inquest into the death of the late "Billy" Baker, that the Hagerman did not go to the Wilson Hill apartment on several following Baker's accident, to ask the Hills to say that he was present with Baker at their home the previous evening.

Mr. Kenneth S. Ham, the Crown Attorney conducted the case for the crown and Mr. F. R. Skale, K.C., of Kingston appeared for Hagerman.

The Crown witnesses, who were Mr. and Mrs. William Hill, their daughter Marguerite, and niece, Mildred Anderson, all corroborated their previous evidence that Hagerman had been at their home the night following Baker's accident, between 6.30 and 8.45 p.m. At that time he had asked them not to say he had been there the evening previous with Baker and had left the home with Baker.

Dr. H. A. Bruce Addresses Club On Education

London, Ont., June 8—At a largely attended luncheon at the London Hunt Club, held at Hotel London in honor of Lieutenant-Governor Dr. Herbert Bruce, scrub gymkhoi, former Chancellor of the University of Western Ontario; Hon. William H. Price, Attorney-General of Ontario, and G. Montague Harris, London, Eng., former Secretary of the Local Government Board of England.

"The only medicine for suffering, crime and all other woes of mankind is wisdom, the fruit of education," declared the Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario, in an address in which he stressed the value of education.

The speaker was introduced by one of the largest audiences in the history of the club by Colonel Henry Cockshutt, chancellor of the University of Western Ontario, at Fiftieth Convocation.

In the afternoon, amid a brilliant academic setting another class graduated including University of Western Ontario, and 234 degrees were conferred and 16 certificates awarded. The highlight of the convocation ceremonies came when Colonel Cockshutt conferred the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws upon the Lieutenant-Governor.

ODDITIES IN THE NEWS

Findlay, O., June 8 (CP)—weird discords came from the organ in the Findlay College chapel when the precommencement recital started. They packed hundreds of feet around the head-expanded pipes until the organ resumed its natural pitch.

Oklahoma City, June 8 (CP)—George C. Nicholson has filed suit for $50,000 against a niece, alleging a shaving brush it sold him infected his face and made it swell to twice its normal size. He asserted it was "a great humiliation to carry around an infected face." And he added "no one can feel frank and free with his friends and friends under such conditions."

(CP)—Policeman Taylor capturing three youthful burglars in a Paris store, found a shotgun with them.

Discovering the place had been entered Taylor saw he had three rifles to guard. So blowing his whistle, he fired a couple of shots at the front door, galloped around to the back and fired some more; then repeated the performance at the side.

By that time help came and he nabbed the suspects.

STATION L-O-V-E

BY CRAIG CARROLL

CHAPTER NO. 1

The two slips of paper burned in Judy's pocket book. She did not need to read either of them again. She knew every word by heart.

"Miss Allison: Report at WAOA tomorrow at 10 for an audition. Beauty Builders. Just talking. You ought to get it. Best luck" Dick Mason."

That was one of the messages. That was why she was on the Dundan road bus now, going downtown in the bright, cold morning, wearing the new brown wool crepe dress, the tan lapin jacket, the new brown hat with the brown and tan bow. Wishing. Thinking about Dick Mason. Wishing.

And thinking about the other message. The telegram.

"Judy: I am not going to send you any more money. You have been in Chicago six months without getting anywhere. Here come home.

"Father."

That message had come first. It came about 5 o'clock one afternoon before and for a long time after that Judy had just sat looking at the message. Wondering now how she would have to go home; how this had been just one chance of her life and she had failed.

She had gone downstairs to the tearoom. She sat alone at a little wall table until Mrs. Hoskins, who owned the tearoom, said: "Do you mind letting some one share your table? It's a crowded night."

"No," Judy said, not looking up. "Of course not."

A young man sat down. She noticed he had very strong hands, tanned, and that he wore a small ring on his index finger.

She went on looking at her father's telegram, not looking up, until at last she heard the man say, "May I have the sugar, please?"

She passed the sugar bowl. Some how it slipped suddenly from her hand tumbled upside down on the table, spilling sugar everywhere.

"Oh!" She felt her cheeks flaming. She looked straight at the young man. He was smiling, chuckling. He had thick hair, brushed smooth, wise eyes.

"I'm—nervous," she explained "Sorry."

"You looked worried about something. Could I help?"

"No. No. It's nothing. Nothing at all."

The telegram lay before her. Quickly she picked it up, crumpled it, stuffed it into her pocket book. She took down now and tried to eat. She couldn't eat. She just thinking what it would be like to go home a failure. She couldn't think of anything else.

"Pardon me," the young man said, after a long time. "I know this is all wrong. But—I've seen you often lately at WAOA. You do know. On the fifth floor."

"Oh. I live out there."

"My name is Dick Mason."

"Mine is—" She stopped. This wasn't the thing one does. Of course not. But he had a nice smile. He looked—nice. That was the only word. All right. "Mine is Miss Allison."

He grinned, made an exaggerated bow.

"Charmed, Miss Allison. Charmed indeed!

"Then they both laughed, because they both wanted to laugh, and after that it was an autumn evening, and after all..... After a while they talked. About Chicago. About how nice it was to be in Chicago.

"I'm going home Tuesday," she said dismally.

"You shouldn't."

"I have to."

"But why?"

Afterward it seemed like a terrible thing to have gone; but she handed him the telegram from her father, not saying anything about it. He hesitated a moment. Then he read the message.

"That's—bad. Can't you do anything to keep from going?"

"How can I? I'm an organist. There's nothing for organists."

"Isn't there anything else?"

"I can't. Since little I used to let school plays. That's all. I can't run a typewriter or take dictation. I can't run an adding machine. I don't know how to sell shoes or ride on streetcars."

"You have a nice voice."

"Oh—"

He added, quickly, "You see, voices are my job. I'm a— don't laugh now! I'm a radio announcer."

"Oh!" It was interesting that at this time she had listened to the radio back in Hiawatha; heard music coming from Chicago, from New York; heard pompous, cultured voices, introducing the announcements —heard, now and then, a warm, friendly, real voice. Like this voice.

"I'm on the staff at WAOA. Chief announcer," he said, with a touch of extra pride. "After I thought— I thought—Wait!" His eyes sparkled. He was nice, Judy thought. "Wait a minute! I've got it. You have a lovely voice. Really. And good diction. Gosh!" He stared at his wristwatch in obvious surprise. "I had no idea it was 7:30. I'm on the air in fifteen minutes. Got to run. But—I'll have a note in your mailbox tonight. About a job. A job you can get, I think. Don't worry about it. And—You won't worry about it. And—You won't thirty me down?"

"Thrown you down?"

"You'll try for it?"

"Of course, Oh, of course. But—" She ought to protest. She oughtn't to take help from a man she didn't know. Not even the small help he was. Not even from Dick Mason. "I—"

He was already halfway to the door. It wouldn't do any good to argue. She could see what it was about later.

"Remember!" he said. "I'm counting on you! 'Bye."

"Bye." Judy had said, in a small voice. And the young man had gone and now Judy, riding on the bus, remembered that Mrs. Malone had been smiling, had said, "Nice, isn't he? And so different from most of our young men. A really fine young man, Miss Allison." Maybe making again. Judy had thought. The one thing Mrs. Malone loved was to see her "young people" she called them all "my young people"—to see her young people going places together. She was proud of three marriages she personally had caused by careful introductions.

Judy had put the telegram back into her pocket, got up hastily, paid her check, came to her senses. She went out later, alone, to the early little movie around the corner and ran a German film and she could not understand German and the hero was homely. So she went home and to bed, and tried to sleep, and tried to believe she was not going back to Hiawatha after all. Sleepless. Remembering that Dick Mason's shirt was thick, and brown and brushed back smoothly; that his tie was striped; that he had a very small dimple in the exact centre of his cheek.

She awakened to a sharp, loud knock and she knew at the first moment of wakefulness that only Mrs. Malone would be knocking so early. Early? The clock said 8.30. She'd been asleep for hours and hours.

"Yes."

It was Mrs. Malone.

"Miss Allison, Mr. Mason left a message for you. He said it was very important. He said he'd see you—down there. He said to be on time for sure. He said—"

Judy opened the door, saw Mrs. Malone smiling maternally thought "Matchmaker!" said, "Thank you, Mrs. Malone," closed the door, read the message from Dick Mason. He wrote with funny, fine flourishes. A nice, friendly way to write.

"Miss Allison: Report at WAOA tomorrow at 10 for an audition. Beauty Builders. Just talking you ought to get it. Best luck. Dick Mason."

She couldn't understand for a moment, Talking. Talking? Oh, of course. Talking on the radio. But she couldn't. She didn't know anything about radio. She'd read about studios and microphones and all that, and the girl who used to live across the hall had acted on the radio once and she talked a lot about it. But—no. She couldn't—possibly. Of course not.

She started back to bed. She stopped. Her father's telegram lay on the dresser. You have been in Chicago six months without getting anywhere. Now come home. Father. Not getting anywhere. A failure. Not getting a perfect stranger tried to help and she wouldn't. And so different from most of our young men. A really fine young man, Miss Allison." Maybe making again. Judy had thought. The one thing Mrs. Malone loved was to see her "young people"—she called them all "my young people"—to see her young people going places together. She was proud of three marriages she personally had caused by careful introductions.

Judy had put the telegram back

"I'M NERVOUS," SHE EXPLAINED. "SORRY."

Three blocks. She looked over her shoulder. Three minutes to 10. She couldn't go in! Couldn't!

There was the building, enormous, grim, with long rows of windows blinking at the sun. There was the door.

She began to run along the high wide corridor.

The elevator at the end of the hall. "WAOA" over the door. She saw the clock. One minute left! She ran headlong, crowded into the car somehow.

"Twenty-seven," she gasped, weakly.

"Twenty-seven," a calm voice said from just behind her.

Judy looked quickly. A tall blond girl, with a new black hat over one ear. A very sure sort of girl.

The door closed. And Judy knew if the door had not closed she would have run out of the car again. She would have turned back because she couldn't possibly have a chance, because she couldn't possibly get the right expression.

"Have you talked on the radio before?" Some one would ask, and she'd say meekly.

"Have you acted on the stage?" And again she would have to say—"Why —no!" "What qualifications have you?" "Why—no." "Don't know. I—I thought perhaps, I—" And then what could she say? That she was a prize music student back in Hiawatha? That she had been studying the organ for eight years now? Organ! And she wanted to talk on the air.

The telegram burned in her pocket. Un-book. The telegram from her father. She knew what it would be like, getting off the Hiawatha train at Hiawatha, knowing she'd never get on the train again for a year. She knew how her father would smile.

"Twenty-seven. Studio floor!"

The elevator door slid open. Judy was standing before the door and people streamed past her. Mostly girls. Well-dressed, confident-looking girls.

Helpless. Hardly sure what was happening, she was borne along with the stream. She found herself there, and then here before her, and back of the desk a girl—just the sort of girl Judy had expected to be there.

"Whom did you wish to see?"

The girl hadn't even bothered to look up. Just went on typing, with a big pad with typewritten lines all over it.

"I—I—"

Judy felt a hard shove. "Hurry up, there," said. The blond girl was behind her, hard-eyed now, with something stylish in her manner. Judy wondered quickly, vaguely, if this girl really knew her work. She didn't look as if she did. But the strange, scary desperate stare was gone from the girl's face. "I had an appointment for an audition."

"What appointment?"

"I beg your pardon?"

"What account, I said!"

"I—I—"

She means what company was it for?" the blond girl said in a harsh voice.

"Oh. The Beauty Builder. Mr. Mason told me to come—"

"Um—Sit down over there."

Careless, still not looking, the girl behind the desk waved one hand toward the wall. Judy saw a hard bench. A hall room bench. And one really hard one could sit on. Over the ceiling, two talking loudly, a man smoking a cigar, a long cigarette in an even longer holder.

"I—" Judy began.

"Over there I said. Come. There are a lot of others waiting," the girl at the desk said.

"Yes. Thank you."

Judy wandered through the crowd found a place at the extreme end of the bench, sat down. Around her, stranger than anything she had dreamed about. Sitting in the living room in her home in Hiawatha, listening to the radio programs from Chicago, she had wondered a little what a radio station was like, what it looked like behind the scenes. Now she saw, and she knew no more than before.

MINISTERS LEAVE FOR NEW CHARGES

West Huntingdon—It is warm enough these days to go fishing. That may seems to be maturing rapidly, in fact, some of the farmers are planning to start haying next week.

There has been considerable changing among the preachers and school teachers of late. Rev. C. A. Sale, who is pastor of the United Church has been transferred to the Whitby Lake circuit in Renfrew county. He is being succeeded by Rev. D. J. Merriam of Bridgewater. Rev. Roy Scamehorn of the Stockdale circuit of the Standard Church is also leaving for a new circuit east of Ottawa. Mr. Scamehorn is well known here and his many friends are sorry to see him leave.

Miss Evelyn McIlroy, who has been teaching on the Ridge Road for the past five years, has secured a position on the teaching staff at Foxboro. Up to date the trustees of the Ridge Road school have not engaged another teacher. Miss Fraser has been re-engaged as principal of the school here for another year.

A number of neighbors gathered at Mr. Jas. McGowan's on Thursday and assisted him with his planting ground.

Mrs. James Sharpe and Mrs. Summers of Mount Pleasant visited at Mr. Melville Doman a couple of days last week.

Mr. Phillip Carr had charge of the church services on the Rawdon circuit on Sunday while Rev. Mr. Joblin was away to conference.

Mr. Arthur Wilson took charge on the Eggleton appointment as Rev. C. A. Sales conducted the funeral of late Mr. Elliott at White Lake.

The Cottage Prayer Meeting under auspices of the Standard church was held at Mr. George McCurdy's home on Wednesday evening.

Mr. H. Hollins of Cooper, visited his sister, Mrs. George Post over the week end and attended Sunday School and church on Sunday at the United Church.

Mr. and Mrs. Irs. Simmons of Foxboro, were Sunday visitors at Mr. and Mrs. Peter McIlroy's.

Mrs. Clifford Elliott entertained the Women's Association of the United Church on Thursday. A number of Moira ladies were in attendance. Collection amounted to $8.

This town is slowly but steadily growing. Mr. and Mrs. Horton have rented the Wright house situated on South Front Street, and intend to conduct an ice cream parlor and hot dog stand. No doubt this will prove quite profitable as there are none from Ivanhoe to Foxboro. All extend a cordial welcome to Mr. and Mrs. Horton to this community.

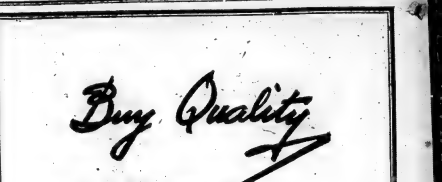
Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Langdon and son, Wilfred of Toronto, spent a couple of days recently with Mrs. J. J. Wilson.

Miss Muriel Milligan of Newburgh spent Saturday and Sunday with her friend, Miss Evelyn McIlroy.

Mr. and Mrs. Georges Holden and Miss June of Sine, Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Brough and family of Zion's, were Sunday visitors at Mrs. Mrs. Sandy McCurdy. "Sunnybrook Farm," Ridge Road.

A large number from here attended the funeral of the late Roy Rose on Monday. The parents have the sympathy of this community.

Mr. Neil McLeod, who is working the James Haggerty farm, is clearing up a field south of the cheese factory, and in so doing is giving some of the unemployed work. More work of this nature might be done at this time and would be profitable for all concerned.



Mr. Lorne Wilson took a load of baseball players and fans to the picnic at Oak Lake on Saturday.

L.O.L. No. 300 held their monthly meeting on Monday evening. District Master Samuel Twiddy made his official visit.

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Sarles on the arrival of twin boys, but sorry to report that one has passed away.

Finland's 1933 budget estimates have been balanced at 870,000,000.

HORTICULTURALISTS

in high terms of the luncheon so well served by the ladies of the church. Reply to the speech of welcome was made by professor Bensils, of Kingston, who thanked the Mayor for his cordial welcome, saying that Belleville had two claims from the point of view of horticulturalists, that of beauty in its ideal site and in its homes, and that of pride in its achievement of its Horticultural Society.

The gathering then adjourned to the auditorium of the hall where the business of the meeting continued. Masses of white and pink peonies and purple iris in the decoration of the stage made a delightful background, receiving warm praise from flower lovers.

Garden Magic

Mr. Belshaw called upon Mrs. D. W. Boucker, M.Sc., of Kingston for the first address of the afternoon and in her topic, "What is a Good Garden," her hearers found much insight and to treasure. The spirit and charm of the garden were emphasized in the splendid paper rather than the practical point of view, for these more obvious qualities are liable to be overlooked by the close attention to the arduous work of cultivation. The spiritual side of the garden is independent of the size of the plot. The selection of the garden furnishings for a garden magic is easily obtained in the humble cottage area than in the rich man's garden which misses the personal touch.

A good garden is always at its best and its visitors do not need to be told that "it was a shame they hadn't come around when the tulips were in bloom." There is something of interest the whole year round in a good garden.

Garden Love

In an interesting manner Mrs. Boucker sketched the "good garden" of the past, how it has changed from early days in the twentieth century conception of a good garden. Romantic and beautified garden, the monastical garden required plenty of herbs for medicinal and table use in their cloistered areas. When the adventurer of war made work outside the confines of castle walls safe, gardening became more popular. The Tudor and Elizabethan gardens of which the famous Hampton Court with its great masses of bloom was a splendid example, the Jacobean wall gardens and finally the domestic gardens of the present day were described by the speaker.

Age old writers had described a "good gardener" variously as a friend of "flowers, fruit, shade and water" "a room out of doors." Mrs. Boucker, as well as collecting authority ideas of good gardens had interrogated her friends. Men, she questioned, invariably demanded lots of bloom, and a lawn. They were apt to specialize in one plant. A small boy's ideal garden was simply expressed. "Strawberries," he answered, when Mrs. Boucker asked him.

Women's Desires

The speaker gave in detail women's desires in a good garden. One was privacy, this could be obtained by a fence or a good hedge, the latter not as expensive as one imagined if grown from seeds; a restful corner—this meant a permanent seat which might be a rustic or stone bench; trees, and here the speaker dwelt on the fact that the planting of trees was neglected by impatient and restless gardeners who wanted quick bloom. In a few years a beautiful tree, noble and inspiring would result from planting a sapling when one moved into a house. A well defined plan on paper made for a long confining garden, whose design was not too conspicuous. Provision should be made for plants to give away and thus give stimulus to young gardeners, and for cut flowers. The final elements in a good garden as outlined by the speaker was fragrance, the night scents of a garden being one of its greatest charms.

Rev. A. Koffend of Stirling, favored the audience with a well rendered vocal solo accompanied by Mrs. Koffend.

Centered in a Garden

Mr. W. R. Crowe of Bowmanville, delivered a final address on the subject of the "Value of Horticultural Societies to Member, School and Communities." The fact that a garden was of divine inspiration should never be overlooked, he said, and continuing, showed how the garden contributed to man's happiness. Gardening made for content, for the possession of a garden and its very peaceful environment excited dreams from prominent horticulturegreat influence in a man's life.

"Where you find a lovely garden you usually find a soap-box orator," said Mr. Crowe.

Gardening promoted good health, filling the mind with loveliness, and helping the body to maintain its full vigour and buoyancy. A garden meant cheerfulness and faith. The love of planting was an act of faith.

Organized effort to beautify the community insured a community spirit, co-operation and friendliness, the last attributs being a special virtues of gardeners, amateur and professional. Secrets were shared and individual successes discussed not guarded jealously.

Reading Children

There was great work to be done among the young people, they should be taught to care for things that grow, they should be given beautiful school surroundings and lovely parks in which to stroll and play. A nation of garden lovers should be the aim of horticulturalists. All Canadians were stockholders in the real estate of a great country and from love of their own particular corner they would help develop a race that appreciated the dignity of trees, the restfulness of green grass and the beauty of flowers.

Mr. Crowe, who is manager of the Kingsway Nurseries of Bowmanville, gracefully devoted some time to answering questions on practical gardening from which his hearers derived much benefit. Reports of various societies were then heard. Mrs. Drinkwater reporting for Tweed; Mrs. George Scott from Harlowe; and Mrs. W. M. Ross from Stirling and a letter from Mr. W. S. Herrington told of Napanee activities. As a whole interest is increasing in the work although membership is somewhat lower.

Inspect Laboratory

The visitors had the privilege of inspecting the Dominion Parasite Laboratory, Dundas Street, Mr. Gerwhart explaining in an interesting manner the aims of this branch of the Dominion Department of Agriculture. Insect population depended upon a law of multiplication, weather, food supply and natural enemies. In primitive conditions insects were kept in check by their enemies but the balance has been upset by man's system of agriculture. Some insects have been unfortunately, imported from foreign lands, but came without their enemies. The object of the Laboratory in Belleville is to breed the parasites which will prey upon such insects. This being the only laboratory of its kind in the warfare against injurious insects in Canada, parasites from this centre are sent daily to all parts of the Dominion.

The work of the local Laboratory is chiefly the rearing of the pests site which preys on the corn borer. Insects are not eradicated but controlled by this means. Interesting specimen were shown to the visitors and the various stages of parasitical development explained. The Laboratory maintains a garden and greenhouse for providing food for the insects and the visitors were invited to visit them. At the conclusion of the highly interesting talk and demonstration, the thanks of the visitors was expressed by Mr. Belshaw. The Belleville Nurseries were then visited before the summer annual meeting came to a close.

"Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen, before I convey the words of welcome to the members of the Central Ontario Liberal Association to this city, I would ask the officers of the Association to convey my personal and also as mayor of the city my welcome to the Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King and Mr. W. H. Sinclair, who are not present this afternoon, but will be in the city for this evening's dinner.

"I appear before this vast audience this afternoon not as a member of any political party, but in my capacity as chief executive of the city to extend a gracious welcome to all the distinguished visitors who have come to such numbers to this political gathering.

"More especially do I welcome to Belleville that brilliant Canadian, who has repeatedly filled with honor and distinction that high office, the greatest gift the people of Canada have it in power to bestow, our former and future Prime Minister, Right Honorable Mackenzie King.

I welcome also the aggressive leader of the Liberal Party in the Province of Ontario, the Hillsdale Hepburn, who, if persistent manner to be credited, may also come to fill another exalted office before many months have passed over. I also, especially include in my welcome, Mr. W. E. N. Sinclair.

It is not for me to express an opinion upon the reliability of such reports or anticipations but rather to tell you that our city reciprocates the honor of having been chosen as the meeting place for your important a gathering as I see assembled here this afternoon. I regret your short brief visit to this city will be enjoyable in every way and that you will carry with you only the most pleasant memories of Belleville by the Bay" on your return to your various homes."

Resolutions

At the meeting of the Liberals of this section of the province in the City Hall, Wednesday afternoon, the following resolutions were drafted by the two associations and ratified later at the meeting and met with the hearty approval of the delegates and presentation for their consideration.

Resolutions' committee consisted of Colin Campbell, Addington, chairman; Fraser Aylesworth of Madoc; Peter McLaren and W. H. Gilroy of East Hastings as members. The committee reported while the "framing of the first four of the six resolutions as mentioned forthwith.

The Business Committee were responsible for the last two of the resolutions. This committee consisted of Lt.-Col. Ponton Bawden, of Kingston as chairman and the following as members, P. A. Bagley of Deloro; C. F. Allison of Napanee and G. W. Taylor of Cobourg.

Leaders Endorsed

1.—Resolved that the Central Ontario Liberal Association as assembled do express their confidence in the leadership of the Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, especially as shown by the work of the Liberal opposition in the House of Commons during the session just ended.

2.—Resolved that the Central Ontario Liberal Association now assembled in convention do on record as having every confidence in the present leader of the Ontario Liberal party, Mr. Mitchell F. Hepburn for the very efficient way in which he has conducted his campaign for the Ontario Liberal party and the uniting efforts made by him to prevent the present Ontario Government from making wasteful expenditures and also protecting the people of Ontario the great need of staple and honest government.

Henry Regime Criticized

3.—Resolved that the Central Ontario Liberal Association as assembled wish to severely criticize the extravagance of the present administration and especially for having spent two dollars for every one collected during the last fiscal year and their utter failure to carry out its promise to balance the budget. We do further criticize this false economy practised by the government in not cutting down on the number of permanent employees, expensive boards and commissions and in cutting down on grants given to municipalities for schools and highway construction.

Sinclair's Home Leadership

4.—Resolved that this association approves of the energetic and constructive criticism of the government offered by the Liberal members or the Legislature during the last session under the House leadership of W. H. Sinclair.

Organization

5.—Resolved that this meeting cannot express too strongly upon all the ridings the necessity of thorough organization. A complete canvass of each polling subdivision of the independent voters should result in many votes for the Liberal candidates.

6.—This committee has heard with a great deal of surprise that ridings have contributed such a small amount to the Central Association during the past year, be it therefore resolved that this meeting go on record that all delegates on their return home should immediately report to their local executive the absolute necessity of their contributing to the support of this association and that steps be taken to raise the necessary funds and that Riding Presidents make remittance to the Association secretary of the amount available.

President's Address

The President's address was the next item on the program and Mr. Duffus' remarks were brief. After his expression of the appreciation of the association for the kindly welcome of the Mayor, he conveyed his sincere welcome to all those who had done their duty to be present. "Since a Conservative government has so successfully lifted depression I feel assured all Liberal meeting will be successes," said Mr. Duffus. When the Central Ontario Liberal Association was formed a year and a half ago it embraced 18 Provincial and 11 Federal ridings. The Conservatives must have taken cognizance of our organization for there was now but 11 ridings for each of the Houses in the district covered by the association. This will necessitate some readjustment of the association and this will be done as speedily as possible with consideration for the best judgment. Selection and nomination of Liberal candidates for the Provincial ridings will continue immediately and the Federal seats would be chosen after the provincial selections had been made.

Mr. Duffus was most complimentary in his reference to the work of the Liberal Association of Belleville and that of Mr. Hollon and the splendid efforts in making arrangements for the second annual meeting of the association. The secretary he gave special mention for the arrangements of this convention. Dr. J. Albert Faulkner for his arduous and successful duties as treasurer and E. L. Mowat, vice-president of the association for her timely advice in the organization. To all who had assisted in making the convention a success he duly acknowledged the association's dutiful appreciation. Miss Mowat as vice-president; C. H. Hollon as secretary and W. A. Fraser, M.P., honorary treasurer had never been remiss in their duties and had rendered him loyal support.

Tribute to Hon. N. Parliament

The second main matter of address was a tribute to the work the Hon. Nelson Parliament had performed in the cause of Liberalism throughout Ontario and more particularly to the members of Central Ontario. His services had been gladly rendered as chairman and member of many deliberation toward the promotion of Liberal interests in Central Ontario.

Save for travelling expenses the Hon. Nelson Parliament had received no remuneration; his services had been gladly given for the party cause. He was the founder of the Central Ontario Liberal Association the Hon. Nelson Parliament had travelled 30,000 miles in the interests of the party in this district.

W. A. Fraser, M.P., the speaker also paid words of highest commendation and his fine record in the City of Madoc, was also the recipient of the president's words of commendation as one of the party's stalwarts, who had rendered outstanding service to the cause of Liberalism.

President Duffus also gave the well wishes of the convention to Mayor Tice on this, the anniversary of his birthday. Following Mr. Duffus' reference to this occasion in Mayor Tice's brief address.

And after cheers sang "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow."

Report of Secretary

The report of the secretary of the association was the next following item on the agenda of the afternoon and was a detailed report. This was the first year of the organization's activities, and secretary Hollon had been most successfully acquainted with what had already been accomplished from the observations might be carried out in the future. Mr. Hollon referred to his remarks relating to the future activities of the association, voiced the appreciation of the Liberals of Central Liberal Association on the wonderful records of the efforts of Belleville had accorded the meeting of today. Every member and member of the City Council he stated his organization had received every assistance from the association. To Addison Thomas Marshall, chairman of the Market and City Property, he added most emphatically to thank for his efforts in preparing the City Hall for the reception of all who were attending the convention. The renovated premises were a credit to Belleville and it was due to Alderman Marshall that preparations had been completed in time for the meeting of this afternoon.

Captain Hollon's report by the committee adoption elected the confidence the association had in him as its secretary.

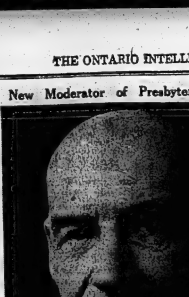
The election of the sessional committees and their reports are noted elsewhere in the issue of this issue.

W. A. Fraser, M.P.

The cause of Liberalism and the policy of the party was eloquently and forcibly brought home to all hearing him by W. A. Fraser, M.P. of Northumberland, the next reported as honorary treasurer of the association.

Those who had founded the Central Ontario Liberal Association had established an organization, ming-year all the present officers were expeditiously re-elected and in the nominating speeches due credit was given for the services they had rendered.

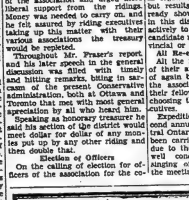
Hon. Nelson Parliament



The Hon. Nelson Parliament called on as chief organizer of the Liberals in Ontario gave one of his battle encrusted addresses that evoked enthusiasm throughout the hall. Assailing the Conservative party, both as a party in charge of Dominion and Provincial affairs, Mr. Parliament pointed out their shortcomings and optimistically predicted that party's defeat at the next election.

He had devoted weeks of time in organization. To his work that his results were showing—had already shown here—and Liberalism in this district was prepared most actively to defeat any Conservative candidate named either for the Provincial or Dominion Houses.

All Re-elected Officers Speak



All the re-elected officers spoke of their appreciation of the honor of again being chosen to represent the association and confidence of their fellow members in once more choosing them to act as their executives.

Expeditiously the work of the second annual convention of the Central Ontario Liberal Association had been carried through to credit is due to those in charge for such a well conducted gathering. The singing of "O Canada" concluded the meeting.

NEW MODERATOR OF PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

Rev. H. R. Grant, of Port William, who was elected moderator of the Presbyterian Church at the General Assembly being held in Peterboro.

Thinning Out—a Stern Duty

Only a hardened professional or an amateur gardener calloused by long years of experience will thin his plants properly without some hesitation. The pulling up of some seedlings seems wasteful but usually from one packet of seeds many more plants than are needed are raised, and a few properly spaced so that they may develop to their full capacity in the long run will give far better returns than three or four times their number too thickly planted.

There is very danger that the "average gardener will transplant his seedlings from pan and seed beds too chickly unless he watches himself carefully. The surest way to take a too full rule or a stick cut to the right length as to the distance apart the plants should be set and to set the plants at each end of it moving the stick along. In this way the planter will be held rigidly to the proper distance. The temptation to do so to "hunch" and think. "Oh well, it won't make any difference if they are a little thicker." However, it does when the plants mature.

The proper distances usually are given in the directions on seed packets and it is the wisest plan to follow these strictly, particularly in the case of head lettuce and flower plants making large leaf growth and whose leaves furnish the edible portion of the vegetable.

Another way of making spaces is by taking a piece of rope about a rim of the wheel on a wheel hoe at proper distances and then running the wheel down the row, the places where the plants should be being planted then being marked.

Proper spacing always provides for room to cultivate properly and cultivation is one of the most important factors in a successful crop.

REV. GRANT IS MODERATOR

Elected at The General Assembly Being Held Peterboro

By J. F. SANDERSON
Canadian Press Staff Correspondent

Peterboro, June 8.—Rt. Rev. H. R. Grant ,Port William, was elected Moderator of the Presbyterian Church in Canada Wednesday night at the opening of the General Assembly.

He succeeds Very Rev. Robert Johnston of Ottawa. Only one other minister was named tonight for the highest office in the church—Rev. J. S. Shortt, Barrie. The vote was 93 to 66.

Dr. Grant, with many years of field missionary work in the West, has been known as the "Sky Pilot of Foothills." In the early days of the West he was stationed at Pincher Creek, Alta., and later at Fernie and Prince Rupert. He has spent 36 years in the Canadian West.

Business sessions will open tomorrow and will continue a week or ten days.

Retiring Moderator Presides

Presiding over the opening session was Rev. Robert Johnston of Ottawa, moderator for the past year. Beside him sat Rev. W. G. Brown of Saskatoon, moderator in 1931.

A large crowd thronged St. Paul's Church tonight when the retiring Moderator gave his valedictory sermon. Before the end of the service Dr. Johnston will sail for Belfast to attend the Pan-Presbyterian Alliance, a world-wide organization.

In his farewell sermon, Dr. Johnston pleaded for a keener spirit of corps within the church.

During his year as Moderator, Dr. Johnston said he travelled 26,000 miles in the interests of the church. Being acting principal of Knox College, Toronto, added considerably to his ordinary duties and every week he travelled at least once between Ottawa and Toronto.

The first minister nominated for the position of Moderator in 1933 was Rev. Dr. Shortt, Barrie, Ontario. He was nominated by Rev. Dr. Scarborough, Saskatoon, who alluded to his long life as a field missionary in the West and outstanding general service in the church for many years.

The next man to be nominated was Rev. H. R. Grant. His name was placed in the lists by Rev. W. G. Brown, Saskatoon.

This closed the list of nominations and a standing vote decided the issue between the two prominent candidates. Dr. Shortt received 66 votes and Dr. Grant 95 The vote was made unanimous on Dr. Shortt's motion.

No More Piles

How to End Terrible Agony Without Cutting or Clamps

Thousands of Pile sufferers do not know that the cause of Piles is internal. Ordinary remedies act on the lower bowel.

That is the scientific truth about Piles—the real reason why salves and suppositories do not give permanent relief—why they cannot shrink or remove the cause.

Another thing: bleeding or protruding Piles will only go when you actually remove the pressure and one minute before External treatment can start do this—an internal medicine should be used. HEMROID, the prescription of Dr. J. S. Leonard, succeeds because it stimulates the circulation, drives out congestion, shrinks and restores—in almost dead tests

Hemroid does have an almost unbelievable record of success. Why waste time on external remedies or worry about an operation—then if S. McKeown and druggists everywhere invite every sufferer to try HEM-ROID with guarantee of money-back if it does not end their Piles, no matter how long you have suffered.

Weird Umpiring and Dumb Baseball Help Defeat Nats in C.O.B.L. Fixture Wednesday

Most Incompetent Umpires Seen in Belleville in Ball History

MANY DISPUTES

Holmes Hurls Sweet Game And Then Tosses it Away

For the second time within a week the Belleville Nationals suffered from adverse decisions at the hands of umpires unfamiliar with the locals dropped the weirdest ball game ever played in Belleville on the champion Ponies by the score of 6 to 4 after thoroughly disrupting his first and last C.O.B.L. game as far as the Belleville Club is concerned had presented the visitors with four runs by the calling on ball and strikes. The general confusion went so far, that Manager Mills after he had been ejected from the game, threatened to pull the Nationals from the field at the suggestion of the local's executive. Never in the history of the Central Ontario League has such an exhibition of poor umpiring been demonstrated as was given by the Kingston official who incidentally did not seem to know even the rudiments of the game.

Holmes Pitches

Behind the stellar pitching of Ernie Holmes who after a hard fought best game of the season tossed away the club's golden opportunity in the ninth when he threw wild from the plate thus allowing the winning run to be registered, which coupled with a subsequent error of omission by Pete Chambers lost the ball game even after the official at the plate had presented the Belleville four grand runs. Holmes with a wide sweeping curve, let the hard-hitting Ponies down with but five singles, only two of which were registered in the one innings. Two Mills-managed crew, on the other hand assumed the offensive early in the game in scoring position during practically every innings but failed to connect with the much needed hits in the pinches. The locals collected six hits from the deliveries of Chuck Fournier, slight left hander of the Ponies, who pitched his usual steady game throughout.

Trouble relating to the inadequate manner of umpiring on the part of "Shiner" Hartley was manifest early in the game when Hewitt Smith, manager, protested to Hartley, who threw his bat over the Kingston bench from his position at the plate after being called out on strikes by Hartley. His action went unobserved by the official. Constant wrangling at the umpire continued throughout the game until the sixth innings when Umpire Hartley literally groaning at the pitches called four Kingston batters, in succession out on strikes. Manager Mills then threw down his catching mitt and protested loud and long. The official ignored Mills and finally with the last at once established when the local pilot connected with President Meagher relative to pulling the Nationals from the game as a result of a protest to President Swanston of the C.O.B.L. After some 30 minutes of discussion when the fans howled loud and long for Umpire Hartley to go, the two team managers decided that Mills should remain in the game while the donnybrook continued.

Sounds Death Knell

The demonstration during and after the game sounded the death knell on home umpires or umpires being used who have not had experience on the diamond in minor leagues before advancing to senior company. For years, past, the question of home umpires has been a big bear to and about the Central League but yesterday's exhibition should terminate the system which has proven to be the down fall of senior baseball in Eastern Ontario.

Mitchell of Hepburn Liberal leader in Ontario, clutched the first ball of the game to Mayor Thomas Baker, who promptly smacked the ball back at the pitcher. Harry H. Johnson, president of the Canadian Association in Ontario, also assisted.

GRADS LOSE THEIR TITLE

Tossed From Basketball Fame by Durants of Oklahoma

Edmonton, June 8 (CP)—Defeat that was a long time coming today had tossed Edmonton's Commercial Grads from the Women's Basketball throne and thoroughly disturbed the crowd that watched Durant, Oklahoma's Presbyterian College squad finally break down the steadily barricade in all sport.

Durant won the third straight game in the fifty-game series the Grads here last night 45-43, scoring the winning goal from the field a minute before the final gun when a highly indignant crowd of 4,500 swarmed out on the court and threatened to mob Referee Herman Smith of Penca, Okla.

Smith, who worked with George Farmer of Edmonton in officiating in all three games, shouted for police protection. With no police in sight two city firemen, with big iron helmets keys in their hands, escorted the referee to his dressing room.

A fist fight between two women spectators during the height of the demonstration provided a high-light to Edmonton's hostile farewell to a world championship that has rested here for more than 10 years.

NAPANEE TAKE IT ON CHIN

Philips of Picton Outhurls Tommy Pointer And Wins 2-1

Behind the masterful pitching of Doris Philips, their ace left hander from Wellington, the Picton intermediates won their second start in the Bay of Quinte League yesterday at Picton when they defeated the Napanee Oldtimers by the score of 2 to 1 in a pitcher's duel during which Philips beat Tommy Pointer, elongated left hander of the mechanicals of the Napanee County League.

Pointer, who hurled a two hit game, was afforded poor support on the part of his catcher, Dave Stinson, whose two glaring errors paved the way for the two counters registered by the home club. Pointer struck out 15 Picton batters, while Philips sent 14 Napanee hitters back to the bench via the strikeout route. Although Pointer allowed but two hits Philips was nicked for but four safeties, none of which went for extra bases. The game was purely a pitcher's battle which was witnessed by one of the largest crowds in years.

The win brings the Picton club up even in the league race with the champion Victorias of Belleville, both clubs having don their both starts, while the Gibbards have yet to register a win in the league the same being true of the Brighton club.

The score by innings:

PUNT RACES A SUCCESS

Weather Adverse to Fast Time in First Series

Maurice Callaghan's "After You" won the first punt race in the series of punt races held under the auspices of the South End A.C. in the "A" class, while Ed. McIlwain's "Let's Go" took the honors in class "B" with H. Pringle's "Skippy" winning in class "C" honors and Chas. Dolan's "Bag of Trouble" took class "D" honors on the Bay of Quinte off Victoria Park yesterday afternoon. With a large trophy as class, which will be given to the winner garnering the greatest number of points during the season's racing the punt races arranged by the S.E.A.C. have assumed an interesting nature.

Following the events which broke locally Wednesday, the sailors in their punts experienced considerable difficulty in manipulating their boats to the best advantage. At no time was there a steady wind in which the punts could be sailed adequately, while the breeze actually piled down to a dead calm at times. Despite this adverse condition for sailing the pilots covered the allotted distance in excellent time.

Following the completion of the races on Wednesday it was announced, that the next meet would be held on June 14th when all boats entered in the day their numbers displaied on their sails.

The results:

Class A—1st. After You, time 2 hours, 26 min. 2nd. Volunteer.

Class B—Let's Go, time 2 hours, 31 min. 2nd. S-Mary Lou.

CHICAGO CUBS ON EVEN KEEL AFTER SLUMP

Playing Unbeatable Ball During Past Two Weeks

SMALL LEAD

A's Stage Rally And Tie Pastime With Foxx's Homer

(By Hugh S. Fullerton Jr. Associated Press Sports Writer)

If it were not for the fact that a couple of other clubs which had head starts have been playing almost unbeatable baseball the Chicago Cubs might be earning themselves a "triangle handicap" for their brilliant work during the past couple of weeks.

The Cubs floundered badly during the early part of the season, apparently feeling that the absence of Kiki Cuyler, on May 20, they were in smooth, place and their prospects of getting out appeared slim. Then they started winning games. Now they have rolled up a record of 14 victories in 19 starts, have climbed to fourth place where they are pressing the Pittsburgh Pirates hard.

In about the same period the Cards have won 14 games and lost only three while the Giants, doing their best to keep pace with them have made a record of seven victories in nine starts, beginning with the Memorial Day double header.

The Cubs smashed the Pirates down into defeat for the second successive time yesterday, winning 7-2 on the strength of a thunderous 12 hit attack against Bill Swift and Remy Kremer. They scored all their runs in two big innings to offset Guy Bush's wildness and reduced Pittsburg's margin in the league.

The Boston Braves tightened their hold on first place by defeating the last-place Phillies 3-1 in the only other National League game scheduled as Ben Cantwell pitched shutout ball up to the last inning, giving only six hits.

American League

The Philadelphia Athletics and Washington Senators, who have been battling each other around for a great rate, again furnished the high spot in the American League, when they struggled to a 13-13 tie in nine innings when a downpour of rain and darkness halted the game in the 10th after Washington had scored another run. The Nats batters piled up 10 runs in the first two frames on the strength of singles when the A's staged a five-run uprising in the eighth when Jimmie Foxx's eight homer of the season, coming with two on base, as the climax.

The net result was to give the Chicago White Sox undisputed place in the standing by two percentage points over Cleveland. The Sox downed the St. Louis Browns for the Fifth consecutive time, 4-1 in a tight duel between Ted Lyons and Rumn Sisler that was not decided until the last two innings. The Detroit Tigers cut loose in the sixth inning with a batting spree that clouted a four bagger to start the rally and defeated the Indians of Cleveland 3-1 as Tommy Bridges limited them to six hits in all.

The New York Yankees and Boston Red Sox had an off day.

LOOKS LIKE A BIG NIGHT

Fight Faithful Expect Knock-Down Drag-Out Affair

(By Edward J. Neil, Associated Press Sports Writer)

New York, June 8.—(AP)— The prospect of a knock-down, drag-out fight between the two fistic mighty foemen in the heavyweight division, Max Schmeling and Max Baer, when the fight is definitely today to the point where 60,000 of them, gathered in the Yankee Stadium to move tonight on the Yankee baseball field.

There was no title at stake nothing but the prestige of one of the biggest punching arguments the big fellows have staged in years, but it was the greatest match in prospect to warrant Jack Dempsey's promoting talents in his first metropolitan venture as a promoter would bring a $250,000 gate attendance usually reserved for a title fray.

The fight is considered to such an extent, that choice ringside locations that had fallen into the hands of speculators brought as high as $25 for single seats originally priced at $10 and $15 seats in good locations commanded $18 each. Counting the ringside there was about $200,000 in the box office starting the last days business. About 20,000 rush seats in the bleachers were scheduled for sale starting at 4 a.m.

While the last minute rush for space in the big Yankee Stadium Baseball Park turned Dempsey's fight headquarters into something of a bedlam, the warriors quietly prepared for battle. Schmeling, a strong favorite at 2 1-2 to 1, motored casually in from his training camp at Lake Swannanoa to be in time for the weighing in ceremonies at the New York State Athletic Commission offices this afternoon while Baer "put the finishing touches" to Atlantic City, was domiciled somewhere in the quiet of the suburbs.

POSSIBILITY of Gene Tunney becoming a member of the New York commission is scored in the late William Muldoon instantly springs to mind with the passing of the old "Solid Man."

This first, thought is based on the sound reasoning that Tunney with his knowledge of the ring and the personalities in the sport is especially qualified for so important a post.

However, there would be another reason for choosing Tunney. The former heavyweight champion's exemplary habits suggest him as a most fitting successor to Muldoon.

The Tunney story and the life of Muldoon have many parallels. And, it might be suggested, in Tunney the commission could find the proper man to carry on the ideals to which Muldoon throughout his ring overlordship was so faithful.

DRINKING and smoking were anathems to Muldoon. Good health was next to godliness in his creed. He detested the cheap chiseler type and which infest the boxing business.

Beginning his career as a wrestler and turning from the mat to the stage, Muldoon fought upward, keeping his ideals, until he became virtual dictator of the ring.

Though James Farley was boxing commissioner until recently, the present Democratic general was inclined to let Muldoon have his say and so many of Muldoon's ideas became facts that were highly important to boxing.

Muldoon's dislike of mixed bouts was the chief reason Jack Dempsey never met the colored Harry Wills. The first Tunney-Dempsey fight was held after Muldoon demanded that Tex Richard attempt to arrange the match. The $50,000 Metropolitan system in Madison Square Garden was made useless when Muldoon barred smoking in indoor New York arenas.

ALL THIS is brought forward here to show that Muldoon's successor should be an exceptional one for the professor—as Muldoon preferred to be called—was an exceptional man.

Muldoon, himself, probably would have selected Tunney as his successor. He was fond of Gene and the former champion liked the old man immensely. They were good friends up to Muldoon's death.

The two co-operated in the establishment of the heavyweight championship trophy, known as the Muldoon-Tunney trophy.

The death of Muldoon is the fall of a great stronghold which has defended and protected boxing in these perilous times. Unless some one with great prestige in the sport, someone whose name will mean something to the fight public and the fight crowd, in short—someone like Gene Tunney succeeds Muldoon, boxing may find the struggle becoming more difficult.

Umpire Hartley of Kingston, of Belleville Nationals?

The above score is what should have been published as the sequence of yesterday's ball game, despite the two misplays of the locals in the ninth.

How any club executive can conscientiously recommend such officials as the Kingston club has presented to the C.O.B.L. this season is beyond human conception. To make matters worse it is understood that Umpire Hartley, even when he tried, made a failure in officiating during junior ball games in the Limestone City, and then they recommend him to work in senior company. Why?

Some time ago we received a copy of a letter sent out by the executive of the C.O.B.L. in which the following statement was included: "The above changes were made by the president on account of the Kingston Club taking exception to Mr. Walsh as an umpire, due to the fact that his name was not submitted to them." To make this quite clear to our readers, "Flat" Walsh applied to the league executive for a berth as an official, but apparently was not wanted by the Penles' club. Again we ask, why? When in Kingston recently we were told by the Pony executive that Mr. Walsh did not wish to officiate, but during the wrangling referred more than one member of the Kingston club assured us that they, personally, wanted Walsh, but his services apparently were not wanted by the team's executive. Again we ask, why? Is it possible that Walsh is too honest for them down in the Limestone City?

After the exhibition of so-called umpiring given by Umpires Gray and Hartley the locals would be justified in refusing to accept any Kingston official, now that Walsh has been barred by them. We contend place the entire blame of yesterday's donnybrook, as a matter of fact it was worse than a donnybrook, on Hartley's shoulders as we believe that, he tried as best he could. The entire situation lies in the fact that the Kingston club recommend such an incompetent official. Even the Kingston players objected strenuously to Hartley's decisions throughout. When Hewitt Smith tossed his bat clear from the batter's box over the Kingston dug out he should have been banished from the pastime, not that we condone Smith at all as the decision against him was putrid, but for the sake of the looks of the thing.

Undoubtedly something relative to a change of umpires in the C.O.B.L. has to be done or senior baseball is doomed in Belleville. It is not a case of "the Nationals can't take it," but when a club, and especially a young team such as the Nats, are on the receiving end of two poorly umpired games as we have the last two played against the Penles, they have a kick and a legitimate one, too. The executive of the Nationals did not expect to romp through the C.O.B.L. in a walk this year but merely wanted to reconstruct their club for future years. But when a team is literally robbed out of games then it's time to call a halt.

For the past four or five years the Nationals' executive have fought the Penles' battle at league meetings while no later than this spring they held out at Oshawa until the Penles were accepted into the proposed interlocking schedule. All concerned wanted to drop Kingston except Belleville. And the local delegates, even then, had no time for their kindness and consideration the Penles' executive have sent such officials on the diamond as Gray and Hartley. After viewing the past two games we cannot blame the veteran umpires of the league in their quietly fading out of the picture.

Despite the decision handed out the locals still had a fighting chance until they summed up the works themselves in the ninth, when E. Chambers pulled an error of omission which was followed by two glaring errors by Holmes and then "Sonny" Green committed one, after the damage was done. Had Chambers covered second on the potential force-out when Joyce hit Green, possibly things might have been different. Holmes, on the other hand, played the best game of the season, allowing the Penles but five stingy singles. Then again, Belleville had enough base runners stranded on the paths in the early frames to win two ordinary ball games, but it looked as though their hearts were literally broken by the weird decisions of Hartley.

Financially men's softball has been a complete failure in this community for some time past. Despite this Joe Delaney has made arrangements to bring down from Toronto the fast Royal Arcanum men's softball team for a game on Saturday evening. Following the wrinkles of the Wall St. League, the Delaney "Bearcats" have looked good for further competition and when approaching by the Royal Arcanums relative to the possibility of meeting the locals here Manager Joe readily grabbed the opportunity. The game is scheduled to be played at the Cricket Field on Saturday evening. In all probability either George Jenkinson or Jerry Bawden will bart for the Bearcats who are at present leading the local Men's Senior Softball League.

SOUTH END A.C. GIRLS WIN AT REDNERSVILLE

Possibility of Loop Being Formed Between Teams

The local South End A.C. girls' softball team journeyed to Rednersville on Wednesday evening where they defeated the Quinte Athletic girls by the score of 7 to 5 in a friendly game. Both clubs were at full strength and a large turnout of interested spectators witnessed the pastime. Following the game it was announced that the local club, the S.E.A.C. girls, may enter a proposed league in which the above two teams will go to make up the league roster.

GOLF FACTS

NOT THEORIES!

By Alex J. Morrison

ALEX MORRISON says:

When you have a short putt of from two to four feet on which a great deal depends you'll invariably tighten your hold on the club.

You do this because you're worrying about missing the putt!

It doesn't take but a small amount of worry and tension in your wrists and forearms to cause you to miss even an 18-inch putt.

Keep your wrists and forearms relaxed by gripping the club lightly in your fingers and these short putts will begin to drop for you.

TWO GAMES IN S. HASTINGS LEAGUE

Two games were played in the South Hastings League last evening when the Carleton Shoppers' defeated the Shannonville nine in the latter village by the score of 4 to 1.

The second game, which was played at Foxboro was won by the home club when they defeated Melrose by the score of 7 to 5. Both games were keenly contested as the scores indicate.

JUNE — 8 — MR. AND MRS. — THE FLIGHT OF TIME

TARZAN AND THE GOLDEN LION.

(Metropolitan New spaper Service) By Edgar Rice Burroughs.

At the sound of La's despairing words the ape-man moved his head and spoke to her: "No, I am alive! Come and release me. I am bound tightly and only Jad-bal-ja has saved me." With a joyful cry the High Priestess ran to do as Tarzan requested, but paused before the menacing attitude of the golden lion. "Down, Jad-bal-ja," commanded Tarzan, "let her approach."

At that, the golden lion lay down beside his master and stretched his whiskered chin across Tarzan's mighty chest. La came then, and picking up the sacrificial knife cut the bonds that held the lord of the jungle captive. Then she saw beyond the altar the silent figure of Cadj. "Your worst enemy is dead, La," said Tarzan, "and for your deliverance you may thank Jad-bal-ja, as I thank him for my life."

Bounding from the altar the ape-man gave La a smile that illuminated his handsome face. "You should rule now," he said, "in peace and happiness and friendship with the people of the Valley of the Palace of Diamonds." That night there was great rejoicing. Tarzan and the Bolgani and the headmen of the Gomangani sat in the gorgeous banquet hall of Opar as guests of La, the Queen.

Surrounded by the priests and priestesses arrayed in barbaric splendor, they ate from the golden platters the ancient Alnailax dishes that had been fashioned on a continet that exists today only in the legends of antiquity. Upon the following morrow the golden lion were to set forth alone upon their return journey to the land of the Waziri—and home.

OLD DAZZY DOESN'T DAZZLE 'EM ANYMORE

By HAROLD E. GEORGE
Canadian Press Sport Correspondent
ST. LOUIS, Mo., June 8—Dazzy Vance's days as a major league pitcher appear to be numbered.

Strikeout king of the National league from 1922 to 1926 inclusive, and once the highest salaried pitcher in baseball, the unconditional release or "sale" of the big Nebraskan by the St. Louis Cardinals to one of their farms this season or possibly before the 1934 season opens, wouldn't be surprising to many baseball writers.

The ex-great Dazzler once hurled four consecutive games. That was way back in 1923 with the St. Louis Cardinals, in the unpublished opinion of scribes.

Dazzy Vance

THEY SAY it is Vance's own fault. Content to overpower batters from start to finish when he was king of the National league, he neglected to develop a slow ball which would have equipped him better to combat the turning point of his career.

Regardless of what the Dazzler failed to do to freshen his baseball days, he compiled an amazing strikeout record during his 11 seasons with Brooklyn—and he was well paid for his services, too.

Vance rose from a $3,500 salaried pitcher after his sale to Brooklyn by New Orleans in 1922 to a $35,000 man in the boom days of 1929. His pay checks from the Brooklyn club totaled $168,500.

Eighteen victories in his first season as a Dodger brought him a raise to $5,000 in 1923, with a promise of a $500 bonus for winning 15 games. Eighteen more victories in 1923, although he suffered three more losses than in 1922, brought him still another raise this time to $8,000.

IN 1924 VANCE earned that "prime grand". He struck out the stupendous number of 262 batsmen, which was 121 ahead of the second man who happened to be Burleigh Grimes, then a Brooklyn teammate, was the most effective pitcher, and turned in 28 victories, which is rare in this era of baseball.

Twenty-eight victories gave Vance the upper hand in salary demands and he finally signed a three-year contract at $17,500. He led the Dodgers 22 victories in 1925, slumped to third in 1926 and came back with 16 in 1927. Then from 1928 to 1932 he was a perennial holdout and was finally signed at these figures for that period: 1928, $20,000; 1929, $25,000; 1930, $30,000; 1931, $23,000; 1932, $15,000.

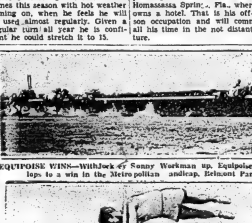
Vance won 187 games in return for the $168,500 he received from the Dodgers. His average pay was $15,318.18 per season and his average pay per victory while in the service of Brooklyn was $902.02. That average may go up if he wins no more than five games this year for his salary now is between $7,500 and $10,000.

THE DAZZLER reigned as strikeout king from his first full season in the majors—he pitched and lost three games for the Yankees back in 1915—until 1929 when he was dethroned by Pat Malone of the Cubs.

Vance fanned 134 in 1922, five more than Wilbur Cooper of the Pirates. In 1923 he increased it to 197, which was 46 more than Adolfo Luque of Cincinnati. Then he ran it up to 262 in '24, good for 221 or 71 ahead of Luque in second; dropped still further in 1926 to 140, but was still supreme by 13 over Charley Root of the Cubs.

In 1927 Vance's victims amounted to 184 and in 1928 he mowed down exactly 200 and, in addition, was the most effective pitcher, the second time he had won this distinction.

In 1928 Malone was runnerup, but in '29 Malone topped Vance by 166 to 126, and there was another pitcher in between them.



The next two seasons, 1930 and 1931, Vance had to bow to Bill Hallahan of the Cardinals, 173 to 177 and 150 to 159, respectively. Last year was his worst season, only 103 falling for Dazzy's fast ones, while Dizzy Dean's faster ones took a toll of 191. Now the Cardinals have all three of these Yankee pitchers.

VANCE'S TOTAL strikeouts with Brooklyn were only seven short of 1900, 450 more than Red Faber has had in 19 seasons with the White Sox and 600 more than either Jack Quinn or Luque, who have also spent much time in the majors.

The only approach to Vance is Lefty Grove of the Athletics who has 1,414 for eight seasons. Grove has averaged about five more strikeouts per season than Vance has, but to tie Vance's record he must fan 378 in the next three seasons.

Vance is 40 on the record book year or two may be added to that as being nearer correct, but that's what the baseball records say and Dazzy doesn't dispute it. Vance believes he can still win 10 games this season with hot weather coming on, when he feels he will be used almost regularly. Given a regular turn all year he is confident he could stretch it to 15.

Dazzy realizes he hasn't far to go, but when his arm is gone, one probably will find him down at Homassasa Springs, Fla., where he owns a hotel. That is his off-season occupation and will command all his time in the not distant future.

George Arliss Magnificent in His Most Human Picture

"The Working Man," which opened to a large audience at the Belle last evening is grand entertainment; a vibrant story with George Arliss at his sparkling best, in a real and inspiring story, expertly directed, beautifully cast with a fast tempo that never lags.

"The Working Man" is easily George Arliss' greatest and most down-to-earth picture which carries a tremendous appeal for every type of movie fan.

It's a human, timely dramatic story. Never have we seen George Arliss to better advantage. Not even excepting his exquisite characterization of his enormously popular picture, "The Millionaire." That should give you a fair idea of what a grand piece of motion picture entertainment is in store for you when you go to see "The Working Man" so you surely must do.

A New Arliss

Especially entertaining it is to see George Arliss after a period of ardeate, dignified, characterizations, unbend on his favorite role, "The Working Man" George Arliss portrays with every nuance, an irascible highly successful business man, a sentimentalist who is short tempered, who starts off on a holiday fishing trip and ends up with a most exciting business adventure.

Behind him he has left his business in the hands of his nephew (a comfortable comedy role) almost drove Arliss, as Reeves, to distraction. While on a fishing trip he runs into his life-long old crony, Reeves becomes acquainted with the son and daughter of his former bitter business rival. These children, grown to manhood and womanhood, reckless kids interested solely in having a good time, without any regard for the business their father had left them. Reeves has been appointed as their guardian and succeeds in untangling their business affairs and while doing so nearly ruins his own company because he has become his own competitor.

A Treat to Watch

Watching Arliss was indeed a treat, one moment he had the audience in tears, the next he had them sitting tensely on the edge of their seats and then he would have them roaring with laughter.

Bette Davis plays the leading female role opposite Mr. Arliss and gives a delightfully pleasing performance as the spoiled, fast living but unqualified daughter. Theodore Newton as prominent young lady who is set upright by Mr. Arliss as the adopted parent. Miss Davis together with Gordon Westcott and Theodore Newton as newcomers to the screen, succeed in instilling in "The Working Man" an unusual atmosphere of youth, gaiety and tender romance.

"The Working Man" is ideal entertainment for the entire family, and this reviewer gives the picture his unqualified endorsement for those who enjoy a delightful screen mixture of comedy, pathos and drama with the inimitable Arliss flavor throughout. "The Working Man," will be repeated again tonight and Friday, matinee and evening.

Foreman Scaling Mine Wall at Time of the Slide

FLASH

Edward Phillips, injured in the rock slide, succumbed to his injuries about 2.30.

Crushed by a miniature landslide of shale and talc in the Henderson Talc Mines at Madoc today, Mr. Edward Phillips, foreman of the Henderson Talc Mining Company was brought to the surface by comrades suffering from severe shock paralysis and both legs badly broken. And with both smashed above the knee, while the other leg received a compound fracture above the ankle, Dr. G. Eagleson, of Madoc was called in attendance on the injured man and set the fracture. His condition is described today as temporarily critical. Mr. Phillips is the only man in the mine that it was said, had been in the danger of scaling the side of one of the chambers when a considerable quantity of the shale and talc loosened and fell. Trapped by the weight of the stone, it was some time before he could be dug out. Others with him escaped injury.

BREAD KNIFE SLAYS THREE

Raymond Irizarry Ends Screaming Quarrel, Wounds Self

New York, June 9 (AP)—A 10-cent bread knife cut its way today to a tragic climax in the life of Raymond Irizarry's "in-law" problem.

As a screaming quarrel in a little east side flat reached its height, Irizarry, 33 year old laborer and man of the house reached for the knife.

"I am tired," he said to his wife, "of supporting your mother and sister on the money I make."

He stabbed the mother-in-law, Mrs. Julia Vizarrondo. She stumbled out on the landing and died. He plunged the knife into the abdomen of his sister-in-law, Cecilia, 20. She fell dead.

Then he mistakenly his young wife, Ricarda. She ran screaming into a neighbor's flat and died of her wounds.

Irizarry, still holding the knife, ran into the street. As he dashed along madly, a shouting crowd followed him—at a safe distance. Policeman lunged toward him. He sidestepped, darted into the traffic and stabbed himself in the chest. He is not expected to live.

6000 MILES IN BIRCH-BARK CANOE

No Assembly, Says Dr. Taylor, May Review Action of Another

Peterborough, Ont., June 9 (CP) —The Knox College rupture took a new direction before the Presbyterian General Assembly today.

Rev. Lewis Fowler, Lancaster, Ont., a graduate of Knox, students who made the charges in 1931 that started all the trouble today came to the defence of Pro. Thomas Eakin, in the discussion.

"Come out from behind our cloaks," said Rev. Fowler charging that, evidently determined to undermine Prof. Eakin had used the original charges against Prof. Morrow to further their own ends.

Rev. W. Brown, Saskatoon, a former Moderator today opposed reinstatement of Prof. Eakin. When the College Board of Management made that recommendation it placed the matter before the Assembly. The 19 men who formed the 1931-32 committee, then, would be tried for the demotion of Prof. Eakin and the dismissal of Prof. Morrow.

Charges Denied

Rev. J. W. MacNamara, Toronto, one of the Clerks of the Assembly denied charges made yesterday by Rev. E. Taylor, Hamilton, that the original documents relating to the Knox College investigation had been made public to a few selected people. The papers were the property of the Assembly, he said, and had never been passed from his possession after the disbanding of the committee except on order of the dismissal of Prof. Morrow and the demotion of Prof. Eakin.

"There is no power by which one Assembly can bind the action of another," declared Dr. Taylor.

FALSE ALARM CHALKED UP

Wisps of smoke issuing from beneath the hood of an automobile near the Upper Bridge late yesterday afternoon, believed to have originated from the burning insulation in the car wiring, caused by a short circuit, led a resident of that section to send in an alarm to No. 2 brigade of the local fire department. Firemen arrived on the run, but the gasoline blaze had been extinguished when they appeared. A fake alarm was chalked up in the chief's book.

FARM WORKERS IN SMALL DEMAND

Although an undercurrent of optimism has been felt by workingmen and by officials of local industries during the past few weeks over working conditions for the near future, so far this month there has been little demand at any of the employment offices for either skilled or unskilled workers. Farm workers have been in little demand yet, owing to the early season, but it is expected that the call will make itself apparent within the next few weeks. Many of the unemployed of the city have been depending on odd jobs at this season of the year to tide them over the slack period.

NOT MANY FROM LONG DISTANCE

Although so far the absence of United States tourists at the camp has helped cut down the attendance this year, the number of those who have stopped at the tourist camp has more than balanced the number of those who to date last year. During May and up to June present last year an estimable number of forty cars had stopped. This year a slightly higher number had been registered. The majority of the cars are Canadian owned, and are from nearby points in Ontario. Long distance tourists have so far been absent.

FIXTURES TAKEN FROM HOUSE

Some time within the past two weeks burglars have ransacked a vacant house, 64 Murney St., and taken an assortment of electric fixtures from the walls and ceiling. Mr. Powell, who owns the vacant house in question, informed the police.

INSTALLATION OF SERVICES SLOW

Waterworks Department Not Rushed This Season

Dropping from a high total of from one hundred to one hundred and fifty water service installations in the city per season to almost zero so far this year, waterworks employees are experiencing one of the quietest working seasons in years. To date only one service has been installed by the department. Lack of building of new homes, on street that are not served by water mains or services this year is cited as the cause by the department. The past year for service installations was given as some three when a total of two hundred or more services were installed.

GUARD RAIL SAVES DRIVER FROM INJURY

Car Suspended When Entangled in the Wires

Losing control of her sedan as she was passing a slower moving truck, Miss Agnes Bruce, Westmount, Que., crashed her automobile into the guard rail, where it was suspended until later released, about two miles east of Marysville on the highway, early this morning.

Undoubtedly the guard rail, which is placed on the side of the road for the protection of motorists saved Miss Bruce from a serious accident and perhaps death as the drop from the roadside at this point is quite steep.

Miss Bruce was proceeding westward at the time and as she was about to pass a large transport going the same direction she lost control of her car, the latter skidded across the south ditch but tangled in the guard rail, where it became suspended. The front of the car was quite badly damaged. Traffic Officer Frink investigated.

Tests indicate that a large percentage of deaths in fires must be due to deadly gases from burning clothing.

21 S.S. Scholars Graduate at Special Service

Twenty-one children graduated from the Primary Department of Holloway Street United Church Sunday School to the main body of the school at an interesting ceremony on Sunday. Those graduating were: Margaret Moore, Helen Brown, Betty Dodds, Ruth McIntosh, Lorena Haight, Helen Macdonald, Allie Fuller, Elbie Gordonier, Lois Liddle, Ilene Bowler, Florence Dalnard, Hilda Sharp, Helen Salisbury, Harold Neal, Gerald Isaac, Basil Hall, Lyle Bedell, Bruce Bailey, Lyle Smith, Norman Cunningham, James Christie. Rev. Harold R. Neal was in charge of services assisted by the superintendent, Mr. James Hudgins.

The primary department, under the very capable superintendency of Mrs. C. Moore, assisted by Mrs. R. McMurray and Miss Alice Sweetnam, has done efficient and faithful service. The graduating class has been under the leadership of Miss Sweetnam, their recitation of the various passages showing careful training and gave evidence of great possibilities in memory work.

The required memory work included the Books of the Bible, the Apostles, the 23rd Psalm, Beatitudes, Apostles' Creed and several other selections.

A junior choir gave two very beautiful numbers and contributed to the beauty and helpfulness of the service. The superintendent, Mr. Hudgins, thanked parents and children for their presence and co-operation throughout the year and made the presentation to each graduate of a beautiful Bible. Rev. Harold R. Neal then addressed the children.

NAPANEE MEN GIVEN 1 YEAR

Found Guilty of Perjury in Respect to Evidence at the Inquest

Appearing before His Honor Judge Deroche on charges of perjury arising out of the evidence they testified during the recent inquest looking to the death of William Baker, Walter Hagerman and Walter Smith of Napanee were found guilty as charged and sentenced to one year determinate and indeterminate sentence of two years less one day in Ontario Reformatory.

Smith and Hagerman were arresting by Provincial Constable Kelly one week ago and elected trial, when arraigned before Magistrate Graham last week. Their arrest followed an investigation by the provincial police after an inquest had been held looking into the death of Wm. Baker, who it was alleged, died following a drunken brawl in Napanee. Smith and Hagerman were supposed to be with Baker at the time but denied all statements at the inquest. They were later convicted on the charge of perjury.

SCRAPPY GAME AT TRENTON

Manager And First Sacker of Winners Ejected From Pastime

TRENTON, June 9.—(Special)—The R.C.A.F. team trotted out with new sweaters last evening, but were defeated 9-1 by the boys of the Riverside Dairy. Two highlights of the game were when Manager Harry Burtt, of the dairymen, was put off the bench for arguing with Referee Burtt on a decision when Burtt sent Steenburgh back to second when the ball hit Miller in the coaching box. A few minutes later, Roy Smith, the milk lads first sacker, was put out of the game for his remarks about the strikes and balls called by Burtt. Outside of this the game was well played. The flyers failed to get on first base for five of the seven innings. Despite being out of form with two on in the fifth and lost the last chance of the game when he retired the side. Chase pounded a homer deep into left field for the only circuit clout of the evening. Langdon was hit freely by the flyers but only for short infield flies.

"FLY YEAR" GOOD FOR CROP SAYS FARMERS

Visitors to North Say Mosquitoes Are Thick

Tanned by the hot sun, and still suffering from the effects of the blood hungry mosquitoes they met on their trip, Mr. Jamieson Bone, who had been on a short visit to Wellesley Lake this week in company with Mr. C. M. Reid, returned to the city today with first hand accounts of the mosquito plague which has gripped the north country this year.

"The pests were so thick, that anyone who is thinking of going back there to camp had better take plenty of fly netting, and keep the door of the cottage tightly closed," declared Mr. Bone.

Small red spots on the arms of himself and companion showed where the skeeters had settled, while other pests were being swatted. Hardly any black flies were seen.

On Thursday a high mark of 62 in the shade had been recorded at the lake, with a fierce sun roasting it to more than a hundred in the open.

Farmers declare a "fly year" to be an extraordinary good year for all crops. It's the moisture in the ground they explain.

Completes Sixth Leg of World Flight Landing at Krasnoyarsk After Short Hop from Belovo

No Time Given When Mattern Completed His Trip

MUCH BETTER

Apparently Recovered From Gas Fumes That Brought Him Down

Moscow, June 9 (AP)—Jimmie Mattern landed at Krasnoyarsk, Siberia, early today, completing the sixth leg of his world-circuit flight by an 183 mile hop from Belovo, Siberia.

First reports of the landing did not give the time he came down, but merely stated that the aviator was safe.

He had taken off from the miners' settlement near Prokopievsk at 4.10 a.m. today, Moscow time (8.10 p.m. Thursday, E.S.T.), apparently recovered from gasoline fumes that compelled him to land, almost unconscious, at Belovo.

A message from Krasnoyarsk several hours before the Texan took off from Belovo said airport officials were awaiting him and that all preparations for his reception had been made.

The weather, according to earlier advices, was favorable, although there was a threat of rain in the Krasnoyarsk vicinity.

Moscow, June 9 (AP)— Jimmie Mattern continued his round-the-world flight today by stopping over from Krasnoyarsk, Siberia, a little more than four hours after he had arrived there from Belovo, Siberia.

The aviator, who believes he still has a chance to establish a globe-encircling record despite setbacks by sickness, rain and plane trouble, arrived at Krasnoyarsk at 7.30 a.m. Moscow time (1.30 p.m. Thursday, Eastern Standard Time).

He was away again for an unreported destination at 11.55 a.m. (3.55 a.m. Eastern Standard Time) after a hurried attempt to repair the damage his red, white and blue "Century of Progress" suffered during the forced landing at Belovo early Wednesday morning.

Report Delayed

Reports to Moscow were delayed by slow communication facilities so it was not learned what his next objective would be, although it was presumed that he will try for a point from which he could take off on the transPacific leg of his adventure. His last scheduled stop before reaching Chicago is at Edmonton, Alta.

The trans had apparently recovered from nausea which had forced him to land, almost unconscious, at Belovo when he departed from the miners' settlement, waving his hand thanks to the hospitable Soviet authorities and people who had helped him.

Everything was ready for him on his arrival in Krasnoyarsk, and it was believed that his early getaway was made possible by the presence at the airport of an interpreter and the essentials he needed.

At Krasnoyarsk he had planned to effect permanent repairs on his large ship, full of which was broken during the landing at Belovo, near Prokopievsk. A leaking gas line, which caused him to inhale fumes resulting in an intense sickness, also had to be repaired.

FREIGHT IS LOWER ON ALBERTA COAL

The Alberta Trade Commissioner's Office at Toronto has been officially advised of the granting of a new rate of $1.45 per ton on coal shipped from Alberta to Ontario points. The new rate, which becomes effective on June 8, provides for a freight rate of $4.50 per ton, which is $1.25 lower than the rate that prevailed for some years past.

The new freight rate should have a stimulating effect on the movement of Alberta coal to Ontario during the coming fuel season and should put Alberta anthracite in making plans for a determined drive for a substantial portion of the Ontario domestic fuel requirements.

Meat is made up of small fibres about 1-500 to 1-400 of an inch in diameter, and up to about 1 1-2 inches long.

THAT "LIKE THE DICKENS" FEELING IS LIVER

Wake Up Your Liver Bile. Feel Fit. You Needn't use Calomel To Do It.

It's your liver, failing to pour out the vital bile needed to digest your food and make you feel on-off-colour.

Lack of bile means poor digestion. Food stays too long in your bowels and decays. Your system absorbs poisons. Then comes that awful gas, sour stomach, constipation, headaches and a down, miserable taste in your mouth and your skin looks sallow. Your whole system seems out of kilter.

How can you make this unhappy state go away? Not merely by washing side, mouth and bowels, but by getting your liver to pour out two pounds of bile juice into your bowels. Nature intended bile to do this job. That's why it's necessary to depend on bile to digest fats. Without bile, fat is undigested. It just decays and poisons you.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. You'll know them by their olive-like shape and yellow colour. Test their ability to make bile flow freely. See if they don't relieve you of that "Dickens" feeling. Take only as directed. 25c, 50c at all druggists.

ODDITIES IN THE NEWS

Philadelphia, June 9 (CP)— It was just another day for Mr. and Mrs. Fleix Smith, fighting their marital battles in court, until Judge Lewis asked them how long they'd been married.

"It's seven weeks,"— why we were married eight years ago today," gasped Mrs. Smith. "This is our wedding anniversary." The recitation failed to bring reconciliation, however.

PARIS, June 9.—(CP)—Lovers give the largest tips — so says Pierre Estignan, veteran taxi chauffeur who has driven 950,000 miles in his career.

They give largesse ranging from 20 to 40 per cent of their bills, instead of the traditional 10, he estimates.

Estignan drove one of the famous "coffee grinders" that carried French troops from Paris to the Battle of the Marne in 1914.

Columbia, S.C., June 9.— (CP)—After the body of an 11-year-old negro who had drowned had been sought by various means for more than 36 hours, an aged negro appeared with a bundle of corn fodder.

"Dis heah will show you whah he is," he said, tossing the bundle into the Congaree River

The hundred searchers leaving the bundle five miles to a boat landing, where the body was recovered.

GRAVEL ROADS MUCH BETTER

Highway Report by Department Shows Roads Reaching Perfection

Conditions for travel throughout this section of the Province during the week end will be good according to the latest report of highway conditions given by the Department. According to the report pavements have come through the winter very little deterioration, and gravel roads while rough are rapidly approaching their old perfection.

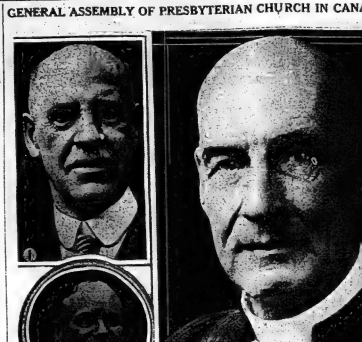
RESIDENTS WEAR MITTS TO PROTECT HANDS

Black Flies and Mosquitoes Still Plentiful in North

Little grecrase in the extraordinary number of black flies, gnats and mosquitoes who have been plaguing the north sections of the country during the past few weeks has been noted lately. In greater numbers than for the past many years, said to have been caused by the high water in swamps and lakes this year, the insects are hampering residents. On some farms the workers have been forced to suspend fly netting over their faces and wear mitts to foil the attacks of the flies and mosquitoes while they worked. Small chickens have been reported killed by the clouds who settle on them. In the city a number of residents have been waiting for their numbers to die down before taking up summer cantonment.



NOT BEING SENT

Hong Kong, China, June 9 (AP) —Eugene Chen, one time foreign minister in the Nanking government, denied today a report that he is being sent on a mission to Japan.

"As long as Japanese conscripts are on Chinese soil there will be no room for any Chinese mission of any sort to Japan," he said.

Good foliage is essential to the production of good roses.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY OF PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH IN CANADA MEETS AT PETERBOROUGH

At the opening of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Canada, Rev. H. H. Grant was elected moderator, succeeding Very Rev. Robert Johnston, of Ottawa. Dr. Grant, of Fort William is shown at top in centre; is known as "the sky pilot of the foothills" through his missionary work in western Canada. Dr. J. S. Shortt, of Barrie, Ont. (1), was also a candidate for the office. Very Rev. Robert Johnston, retiring moderator (3) delivered a stirring farewell sermon at St. Paul's church, Peterboro where the assembly is meeting on the eve of his departure for Belfast and the Pan-Presbyterian Alliance. Other notables at the assembly were: (4) Dr. A. T. Barr, pastor of St. Paul's church, Peterboro; (5) Gen. St. Pierre Hughes Oliaw, brother of the late Sir Sam Hughes, and former superintendent of penitentiaries; (6) H. R. Horne, superintendent of missions in Saskatchewan and Alberta; (7) Rev. Prof. David Watson, of New College, Edinburgh, Scotland, and Miss Claire Johnston, daughter of the retiring moderator.

Direct Offensive Against Depression by Gigantic Public Work's Program

By James P. Selvage, Associated Press Staff Writer.

Washington, June 9 (AP)—A direct offensive against the depression in the description applied in official sources to the $3,300,000,000 public works program which is to be undertaken almost with enactment of the legislation by the United States Congress.

The administration plans to release construction funds so fast that purchasing power will be shocked into activity. This artificial buying stimulus, officials hope, will in turn start industry moving and put workers back in their normal places. With this in view, exploratory work has gone forward to step with consideration by the legislation by Congress and 10,000 or more tentative projects are now in the hands of those who will administer the legislation.

Official estimates are that $1,000,000,000 judiciously spent is the sum the maximum in mass power will employ 1,000,000 persons, directly and indirectly, and it is the hope of the administrators to have this number at work by October 1.

In addition, officials are envisioning the return of 2,000,000 men to normal employment channels by fall and the view has been expressed that if jobs for these 2,000,000 can be obtained the usual fall pick-up in business might place as many as 7,000,000 back to work by the end of the year.

PRICE GOING UP

Ermindian, Turkey, June 9 (CP)— There's one sign of prosperity which is drawing no burrahs from most folk here. The price of wives is going up.

Parents who used to demand only $150 from suitors now demand from $250 to $300—$200 for their plaid-est daughter and $500 for their prettiest.

Ducks are voracious feeders, and it is necessary to supply roughage in the form of green feed, forage, or roots, liberally.

"SIMPLY JUSTICE" IS PLEA OF DEMOTED PROF. T. EAKIN

Cruel Stigma Must be Removed He says—More Debate

Peterboro June 8—A dramatic plea for "simply justice" was made to the Presbyterian General Assembly by Prof. Thomas Eakin, demoted last year from the principalship of Knox College, Toronto, to the main theological seminary of the church.

With 42 years of church service behind him, the tall, grey-haired ex-principal charged that his demotion last year was "illegal and critical," and that it contravened all rules of church law and all elements of justice.

The contentious Knox College debate opened suddenly yesterday on the first business session of the 59th General Assembly of the church. For two hours the discussion waxed, and finally was adjourned with no decision reached. It likely will be resumed today.

Reasons Suppressed

Prof. Eakin was demoted from the principalship last year and, at the same time, Prof. E. L. Morrow was dismissed from the college staff. The reasons for this double penalty were never made public, although apparently there was no question of theological beliefs.

The subject was injected into the limelight when a majority report of the college board of management recommended Prof. Eakin's reinstatement to the principalship. It termed Prof. Eakin's demotion "a flagrant violation of the fundamental principles of justice," and submitted that his reputation "has been cruelly stigmatized and his influence as a servant of the church seriously impaired."

On the other hand, a minority report of the college board of management opposed Prof Eakin's reinstatement. A step of that sort, it was submitted would create an "intolerable situation in the college, similar to that existing prior to his removal from the principalship."

Overshadowing all other speeches was that of the former principal himself. He said he did not seek sympathy—merely justice. All that the two-year debate, he said, had been given no chance to defend himself. The rules of the church had been made so many scraps of paper, resulting in a "cruel stigma" against his character and reputation.

Cruel Stigma

"I demand a vindication in like style, and as public as my degradation," declared Prof. Eakin, his voice shaking and his eyes filling behind his pince-nez glasses. "I appeal for the removal—no, I demand the removal—of the cruel stigma against my character."

Pointing out that he had been given no opportunity to defend himself, he said: "That was a cruel thing to do. If I had been the ablest dentizen of the underworld and taken before a magistrate he would tell me I was charged with such-and-such, but in this case I had no such charge read to me.

"This thing is eating at my very soul!" exclaimed Prof. Eakin, walking up and down behind the pulpit of the church. "Am I to come to the last hour of the church of my journey with an interrogation mark after my name? I cannot do that. I am proclaimed, his voice falling, "could be a monstrous cruelty."

Began in 1931

The Knox College situation broke into the open in 1931 when five students made charges relating to Prof. Morrow and the commission was appointed later, and its report to the Assembly last year resulted in the dismissal of Prof. Morrow and demotion of Principal Eakin.

Gas in the Stomach Is Dangerous

Daily Use of Bisurated Magnesia Overcomes Troubles Caused by Acid Indigestion

Gas in the stomach, accompanied by a full, bloated feeling after eating is almost certain evidence of too much hydrochloric acid in the stomach, causing so-called "acid indigestion."

Acid stomachs are dangerous. Too much acid irritates the delicate lining of the stomach, often leads to gastritis, accompanied by more serious troubles. Food ferments and sours instead of digesting, which in turn, which distends the stomach and hampers the normal functions of the vital internal organs, often affecting the heart.

The worst of folly to neglect acid stomachs or attempt to try to treat with ordinary digestive aids which have a neutralizing effect on the stomach acids. Instead get a little Bisurated Magnesia from any drugstore. Take a teaspoonful in a little water right after eating. This will drive out the gas, relief and bloat, sweeten the stomach, neutralize the stomach acid and prevent its forming into and stop sourness. Bisurated Magnesia comes in powder or tablet form, is harmless, inexpensive, and a fine remedy for acid stomach. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no fear of indigestion.

INDUSTRY TO BE HELPED BY FREE STATE

Loan of Four Million Set Aside For This Purpose

UNDER NEW ACT

No Reasonable Proposition Will be Turned Down

By Joseph Dennigan, Canadian Press Correspondent.

Dublin Irish Free State, June 9 (CP) Cahir — A fund of $4,000,000 has been placed at the disposal of the Irish Free State cheiftains to embark on new industrial ventures and grants may be made for production of weaving capital and equipment.

President Eamon De Valera's Republican Government had made this sum available under a new reproduction loan act framed by Sean Lemass, Minister of Industry and Commerce. Part of the money withheld from land annuity payments to the United Kingdom will be used in the gain.

Having created an almost impregnable tariff wall the Free State Government found those most anxious to take advantage of it were British industrialists, many of whom transferred factories to Dublin and threatened to create a hold on the country, which the government feared would be detrimental to the economic policy to which Mr. De Valera was pledged, stipulating 51 percent of capital in new concerns must be owned and controlled by Free State Nationals.

Notwithstanding this, however, Irish capitalists showed themselves slow to take advantage of the new order, pleading government assistance should be given to new enterprises. Now the government has decided to their demands by offering generous concessions to persons ready and willing to start industries of a basic character and Mr. Lemass has undertaken publicity, no reasonable proposition will be turned down.

MORGAN FIRM PARTNERS' TAX

Senate Empowered Probe to Study Individual Returns

Washington, June 9 (AP)— The United States Senate today empowered a committee investigating J. P. Morgan and Company to study the individual income tax returns of the firm's partners.

The vote came by voice after assertion as the Senate met, O. P. Van Sweringen in the meanwhile refused to his testimony before the committee on aid received by railroads and corporations in the gigantic rail ventures of himself and his brother.

The resolution was introduced jointly by Chairman Fletcher and Senator Steiwer to extend authority for the committee to inquire into stock transactions affecting tax payments.

Unanimous consent was given by the Senate for consideration of the resolution out of order and it went through within a minute, after Fletcher explained the committee's authority had been challenged.

There was no debate.

The Senate also adopted the Costigan resolution directing the committee to ask additional appropriation of $100,000 to carry its investigation through to the next session of Congress and covering other principal banks such as Kuhn Loeb & Co. and Dillon Read.

JUSTICE LOGIE MOURNED

Mr. Justice Logie of the Supreme Court of Ontario, is mourned by the Bar of Ontario. Locally he was well known as he had presided at a number of sittings of the Court in Hastings County.

He was one of the strictest of disciplinarians, a natural gift, which qualified him to become during the Great War the officer commanding No. 2 military district. Under his direction more than one hundred thousand men were recruited and sent overseas.

Justice Logie was a calm, analytical reasoner, but also demonstrated his belief that men on the bench were appointed to administer justice, not so much to interpret the law, Hamilton Spectator says.

He was an individualist of the best type, a man of manful character and his place will not soon be filled.

THE CHURCH

The Vancouver Sun a few days ago editorially made a plea for a proper appraisal of the place of the church. This comes with particular appeal as the time season of the year when church boards are meeting and business generally is being conducted. The Sun points to the immense amount of hard work connected with the building up and maintenance of a religious body. Despite discouragements clergy and laymen carry an unusual burden and "provide their communities with the most essential of human requirements."

The Sun shows that the churches of every faith and denomination are having a struggle these days. Victims of the depression, the churches still carry on and workers redouble their efforts. All this prompts the editor to note that the church is the greatest example in the world of non-profit co-operation, maintained because men and women have a spiritual urge and a common desire to be connected with an institution which links this earth and the hereafter, and which represents faith and symbolizes the highest aspirations of the soul.

The church is the great bulwark of organized society, it is the strong arm of the state. It makes possible social amelioration and progress and so avoids the pitfalls of revolution and anarchy.

Accordingly the need of the church is greater today than ever. The Sun concludes: "We are not trying to preach. We merely try to emphasize the importance of the church in the earthly scheme of things and especially in these times. And let us plead for an even more general recognition and appreciation of the work that goes on day by day, year after year, the work of sacrifice, devotion, and unselfishness."

BASIS MORAL NOT ECONOMIC

With colleges and universities turning out their thousands of graduates these leafy days, when all the world looks bright, despite sullen depressions and slumps, students are accustomed to hearing the voice of wisdom from their masters.

The graduates of these trying days are facing a testing time, but it is probably just as true that the trying time has been fitting them for their place in the world.

The other day Dr. Nicholas Butler told Columbia University commencement gathering that the old lie has been again emphatically proven in the past few years—that the basic order of life is economic. Events of the past four years have been particularly important as offering proof that the real question is moral, not economic at all. Where money has been taken as the foundation of the social order there have been "moral disaster" as well as his words and the message of today is that "the gain-seeking motive" must be subordinated to the ideal of human service.

This suggestion comes with special appeal at this time when it has been shown by one educationist after many students take courses in higher education to make larger incomes, even choosing callings for which they are not fitted. Dr. Butler emphasizes that money in itself has "no reality and but little value," and "until a condition can be brought about in which money is looked upon and treated as the symbol which it is and not as a commodity, men can never shake themselves free from the pitiful slavery in which they are so long described as the "money nower."

A possible dethronement of money as a result of the prostration and collapse of the past few years may even be a possibility, he said. Money is a symbol and if many only desired might be made of chips of wood quite as well as of gold or silver, or copper or printed paper. There is a vast difference between money as a symbol and evidences of credit and money as a commodity. Control of money and constant association with money is perhaps the most demoralizing of human occupations.

Now it is natural to grow old gracefully down by the shore of the Bay of Quinte, but how that would be possible in such a smoky, busy, bustling Toronto, with its monoxide laden air, folks rushing around looking for some place to go and when they get there wishing they had stayed where they were. WAYS WHEREBY TO OVERCOME DOUBT HABIT

Long Persisted in, Doubting Only Cured by Expert

BY LOUIS E. BISCH, M.D., Ph.D., Famous Authority on Health And Psychology

Probably no person exists who is so sure of himself that he never hesitates, even for an instant, before acting in his mind on any given problem. Everybody pauses to consider, at least momentarily, all pro and con before acting into action; everybody debates with himself more or less before making a decision; everybody thinks things over, weighs possibilities, and otherwise allows himself to doubt.

All of this, to be sure, is perfectly normal. In fact, the more intelligent we are the more we are apt we to follow the dictates of snap judgment. And the more we weigh, later, because of the added knowledge we possess, the more, really, do we become doubtful.

When a virtue is exaggerated, however, it becomes a fault. Particularly is this true of the habit of doubt.

To be reasonably doubtful, especially where important issues are at stake, is a distinct mental asset that acts like a brake upon rash, quick and superficial thinking. But when doubt assails an individual to the extent that it prevents him from ever making up his mind, leaving him helplessly confused and without power to act, then the habit assumes the proportions of a real menace and speedy correction is indicated.

The number of individuals so afflicted—and it matters little in the aforementioned article and gets a credit check, only to repeat the performance of doubt all over again the following day.

This, by the way, is not an exaggerated illustration of "folie de doute". Even more extreme cases are cited. Suffice to say, whether the doubting habit be as marked as this or not, it is a drain on, as well as a disturber of, the mind which may soon render its possessor ridiculously ineffectual.

What, you ask, can a person do who is afflicted with doubt? Two things.

If the doubting habit has persisted for years and to a marked degree, probably nothing short of a thorough mental analysis by an expert will bring about recovery.

If, on the other hand, the habit is less marked, persistent practice in certainty will sooner or later oust the doubting mania helter-skelter.

By practice in certainty I mean that wherever you have cause for doubtful you must at once do something, even if it is not closely related to the doubt that has fastened itself upon your mentality.

Suppose, for example, that you, like the woman whose case I cited, are in doubt about a dinner engagement you have for tonight. First, don't hesitate overlong. Then buy something, anything. In other words, shunt your stream of mental energy away from mental paths and into motor paths. This will relieve the doubt feeling at once.

To be sure, the doubt attempt will not cure you of doubt. Repeated efforts are necessary to cure doubt, which is really mental torment, with actual, however—keep it up—and self-mastery. "I know thyself," quality, is bound to be yours!

LOOKING BACKWARD

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

JUNE 9, 1913

This year has an eventful one in the history of the Tabernacle Methodist Church or this city as far as several of its esteemed members are concerned. Fifty years ago in the year 1863 the Rev. Amos Campbell and the Rev. J. Egan entered the Christian ministry. They are now on the superannuated list and in good health they are celebrating their golden jubilee. Rev. Dr. Carman, the general secretary of the Methodist Church, who is a member of the Tabernacle congregation and of the quarterly official board of that church, has had fifty-six years of service. The only other minister in point of years of service is the Rev. Dr. Griffin, treasurer of the superannuation fund of the church, with sixty-four years of service.

There was a heavy frost last night and tomato plants were in danger of destruction. Mr. John Harris, gardener, lighted several fires in the garden in order to warm the air in an attempt to save the plants. He worked all night keeping the fires burning and the protection is said to have been a success.

STARLINGS AGGRESSIVE AROUND CORBY PARK

Fierce Warfare Between Bird Families Now Noted

Believed to have been a victim of a gang of aggressive starlings, who have been making the park their home for the past month, literally, a crippled robin with both eyes missing from their sockets, and with a badly gleabed wing, was picked up from the foot of a maple tree in Corby's Park early last evening by a Charles street resident, and taken to his home. It is thought that the robin will die however, being unable to feed itself in its sightless condition. According to bird lovers in the city, other crippled robins have been picking up on the city streets during the past few weeks, with eyes missing and in a crippled condition from the attacks of starlings. Fierce warfare has been reported waged in Corby Park by the birds, the starlings having cleared out the other birds from the park, and, according to reports left by picnic luncheers, the starlings have declaring the park their own.

COUNTY NEWS

PRESENT GIFTS TO YOUNG COUPLE

On Friday evening June 2, about two hundred and fifty friends and neighbors of both the bride and groom-to-be gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Mumby in honor of their daughter Mabel to present her with a miscellaneous shower.

The numerous gifts were very useful consisting of granite, china, linens, glass, pyrex, silver, wickerware and several envelopes containing money which showed the high esteem in which Mabel was held in the community.

About ten o'clock the gathering was called to order by Mr. Ernest Sarles who acted as chairman for the evening. The following program was enjoyed by those who were able to hear it because of the large crowd. A solo by Mr. John B. Hagerman, piano duet by Misses Ethel and Mae Clements, solo by Miss Frances Jeffrey "A Basket of Old Fashioned Roses", vocal solo by Mrs. Lindsay Tanner "They Cut Down the Old Pine Tree." A humorous reading was given by Miss Muriel Sine "Matrimonial Warning." A duet "by Mrs. Eddie Colden and Mr. Roy White "Mohawk Valley." Duet by Mrs. John B. Hagerman and Mrs. Frances Jeffrey, Solo Miss Frances Jeffrey "Danny O'Grady."

The bride and groom-to-be were seated before a table laden with miscellaneous gifts during the programme and addresses. After the programme an address from the members of Salem Sunday School was read by Miss Lela Johnston and a silver fernery presented by Miss Josephine Sine.

Harold, Ontario, June 2, 1933.

Dear Mabel:

In view of your coming marriage we the members of Salem Sunday School have gathered here this evening with other friends to show our appreciation and gratitude for your loyal service.

You have been a willing and cheerful helper in all activities of the church work. As you are not leaving the community we sincerely trust that you will continue to worship with us.

This gift is presented by your Sunday school as a slight token of the high esteem in which you are held as organist by all its members.

In rendering it we give expression of our gratitude and extend sincere wishes for a happy married life.

Never doubt or fear or falter
If you find the way grows hard
God has promised He will strengthen then
If you will His way regard.

Members of Salem Sunday School.

Then followed an address from the community which was read by Mrs. Eddie Colden as follows:

Dear Mabel and Albert:

This happy crowd has assembled here to spend a social evening before you embark on the sea of matrimony.

Mabel, we could not let this occasion pass without showing some appreciation of the many services you have rendered. Among the interests have been that of the church and by no means the least of all. We are glad you are not moving out of our midst as then we may still enjoy your company.

Albert, you are no stranger having lived in the community for a number of years. We most heartily congratulate you on your choice. Our wish is that God's richest and choicest blessing may follow you both throughout your wedded life.

As a small token of your esteem we ask you to accept these gifts and may they serve you well amid the sunshine and showers of life and ever remind you of your friends.

Signed on behalf of friends and neighbors Lela Johnston, Violet Cockell, Letha Colden, Edna Heagle, Ethel Clements, Roma Mumby, Bernice Rollins, Lindsay Tanner, Vera Wright.

After the addresses both Albert and Mabel thanked the guests for their kindness and for the many useful gifts.

Mabel also thanked the Sunday School members for their gift. All were invited to visit them in their home.

The gifts were unwrapped and the names of the givers were read.

A lunch of sandwiches, cake and coffee was served by the young boys and girls which was heartily enjoyed. Late in the evening the gathering dispersed to their homes.

Ontario School for Deaf is en fete at Garden Party to Demonstrate Work of Pupils

Classrooms All Open And Work of School is Viewed

INCREDIBLE

All Pupils Dressed in Natty Uniforms of School

Ontario School for the Deaf was en fete last night on the occasion of a demonstration of work by the pupils followed by a garden party. Hundreds of Belleville citizens availed themselves of the invitation to be present and spent a delightful evening as guests of the School.

Throughout practically the building with its colored lights brilliantly illuminated and the visitors were grouped on the lawn and on steps of the main building for the grand march which opened the evening's program. Led by the Salvation Army Band the three hundred and sixty pupils of the school from the five-year-old babies who walked hand in hand with superintendent W. H. B. Peterely, to the senior boys, proceeded from the dormitories around the school driveway to the main entrance. As many of the pupils were in costume for their dances later and the others wore the trim school uniform, the effect was most pleasing.

The guests then assembled in the auditorium. The lure of the classrooms was strong, but the promise of visiting these later kept the crowd intact. Along the corridors of the building were samples of the handwork and whole classes of strange little creatures danced along one wall. The auditorium with its colors of black and gold was arranged for the demonstrations and dancing.

Principal Mr. Instructress, is to be congratulated for the complete success of this part of the program. It was a matter of astonishment and admiration how incredibly the people present last evening to realize that the children, who danced so gracefully, sang, and later talked in classroom demonstrations, do not hear a sound or make any of the sounds.

One had to keep assuring oneself that the dancers were really deaf so graceful were their movements in perfect time with music. In their colorful costumes they gave a dancing exhibition that hearing children might prove to distraction could hardly equal.

The program opened with tiny tots in a new form of "musical chairs," followed by tiny tambourine drills, the audience with their interesting dance. And as the program progressed, interpretative costumes of remarkable beauty, all made by the pupils, were displayed, the ballet slippers worn by the girls were the product of the shoe-making department. Irish colleens in traditional green costumed, sprang to gentle dances, Spanish senoritas, the girls as shepherdesses, the boys in European costumes, Scottish and Esthetic dances in flimsy yellow and black costumes, Hawaiian grass skirts, the charming dances made their appearance to dazzle the audience. The singing of the pupils in the dance, the skill of the young performers and the splendid musical accompaniment provided by Miss Hales, Miss Rathbun and Mr. Dennison added to the appeal of the program. In the sword dance by Miss Hales' class, the swords were which ornamented their costumes, which ornamented their costumes, and attracted much favorable comment.

The program, which was interspersed by teaching demonstrations was as follows:

PROGRAM

Ring-around-a-Rosie, Miss Parry's class. Curtsy Dance, Miss Sheffield's class and Miss Hegle's class. Shepherd Dance, Miss Code's class. Acrobatics, Miss Handley's and Miss Burt's classes.

Demonstration of classroom work in speech and lip reading. First year classes, Junior class, Miss Parry, Senior class, Miss Hegle.

Rose and Butterfly dance, Miss Tett's class. Vineyard dance, Miss Nurse's and Miss Rathbun's classes. Shepherd's Hound, Miss Nurse's and Miss Rathbun's classes. Highland Schottische, Miss Nurse's and Miss Rathbun's classes.

Demonstration of classroom work in speech and lip-reading. Second and third year classes, Second year, Miss Handley. Third year, Miss Nurse.

Irish dance, Miss Sweetnam's class. Bummel Schottiche. Miss Sweetnam's class. Trial Lilt, Miss Blanchard's and Miss Totten's Miss O'Connell's, Song and Band, Mr. Gordon's class. Shepherd's Holiday, Mr. Gordon's class.

Demonstration of classroom work in speech and lip-reading. Seventh year class, Mrs. Wannamaker.

Country Gardens, Miss Carroll's Bruce Parsons; Douglas Ashley; Dance, Miss Wannamaker's classes. Gypsy dance, Sellenger's Round, Mr. Blanchard's class.

Dance, He boys.

Demonstration speech work.

Advanced classes. High School classes, Miss Desmarais.

Flower dance, Miss Pasteur and Mr. Gordon's classes. Gavotte, Senior Girls, Miss Hales.

The classrooms, open for inspection, had a steady flow of visitors. The cheerful rooms, gay with all kinds of pictures and bright vases of flowers, told of happy class periods. The actual work of teaching the different grades was shown in series of classroom demonstrations revealing the progress by which the deaf child is taught to understand and to talk.

In one room a display of work in needlework, knitting and the useful arts learned by the pupils. The skill of the boys in basketry, weaving, carpentry and wood-working and in designing intricate mechanical devices in iron-work was shown. The handiwork of boys of nine and ten years of age, and women visitors who thought they were "handy with tools" all boys in the school take two years of manual training then specialize in some other branch. Interesting models may be taken home, for the cost of materials. Some exceptionally well made desks, and hand-made articles were much admired.

In other parts of the room, women found a display of sewing that made them despair of their own. All the garments for nearly four hundred children is done by the girls of the school and stockings to be repaired each week. Many fine dresses, fine clothes-baskets." Dresses and pajamas, underwear and aprons were completed while the smaller girls had pretty cotton dresses made for the well dressed doll.

The art work showed evidences of remarkable talent and careful training. Of particular interest was the drawing of linoleum cuts by the pupils who design and make their own linoleum cuts and can now supply cuts for illustrating the letterhead.

From the shoe department were samples of the craft of shoe-making and the open door of the Household Science Department invited inspection. Here the girls complete a practical course in all branches of household science.

A special class in rug making and basketry, showed beautiful specimens of exhibits, much coveted by the visitors.

The school children had a marvellous time mingling with the guests long after the usual bed-time. They chatted with those who paused to speak to them were ready to direct visitors and seemed the happiest lot of children in the world. The evident mutual affection between teacher and pupil at the school was shown in dozen of little instances.

To crown the enjoyment of the evening and as a final touch of the charming hospitality for which the staff of the school is noted the guests were told that refreshments were ready on the lawns and the hundreds present were served with a dainty lunch. The long buffet table was decorated with baskets of Spring flowers and small flickering candles and lemonade, sandwiches and cakes were served by the staff.

As the last guests reluctantly left the auditorium, the members of O.S.D. staff having cleverly managed to have brilliant entertainment for the children in smallest kiddies were being tucked in bed having failed to elude the attention of watchful teachers and waiting sandman

FIGHTS EXCLUSION OF DAUGHTERS FROM U.S.

Girls Refused Permission to Enter United States

Boston, June 9 (AP)—A father's fight to prevent the deportation of his two Canadian daughters from the United States, where he is a teacher in the public schools, ended in his home, was underway today.

Dr. Frederick Miles Rathbun Reilly, 21, and her sister, Genevieve, 17, both students in Mount St. Vincent College here, failure received entry here yesterday by immigration authorities when they arrived on the steamship Newfoundland to enter the country.

At a special hearing, immigration officials ruled the girls' passports and visas were not in order, and they were held in the East Boston immigration station last night to await deportation proceedings.

Their father, Wilfred A. Reilly, an instructor in the Boys' Trade School in Worcester, here, his wife, and two other children live, came here last night and began immediate preparations for a legal battle to enable his children to come to his home.

"OBEY THE LAW" STRONG, FORCEFUL DRAMA AT CAPITOL

The story of an easy mark who became a human firebrand—just such a screen drama is the picture "Obey the Law" which opens tomorrow at the Capitol Theatre. Peter Cavalle, Jack Holt and Lois Wilson are featured in the principal roles of the production, written for the screen by Arthur Caesar from the story by Harry Sauber.

In "Obey the Law" Cavalle portrays the role of an Italian immigrant who is at first with respect for the United States after he becomes a citizen that he cannot feel comfortably when he meets the viciousness of political terrorism.

He is enthusiastic for everything American that he almost becomes an easy mark for the vice-ring of big city politics, until he discovers the deathblows of "Big Joe" Ritchie, played by Henry Clive, boss of the 8th Assembly district, who controls the gang Carrillo then begins to rule.

"FORBIDDEN TRAIL"

"Forbidden Trail" is in reality a thrill packed read of romance and adventure. The picture, due tomorrow at the Capitol Theatre, is the latest Buck Jones—Columbia combination of outdoor action, with action stories and features such popular players as Barbara Weeks, Lloyd Whitlock, Silver Tip, Buck's fame, and Jack La Rue in important supporting roles in the cast.

Buck steps a little out of his thrill-packed "Hardy Comedies" in "Forbidden Trail" and plays a dashing young Texan, a modern, up-to-date cowboy who, with the almost human assistance of his famous horse, Silver Tip, performs practically single-handed whips a band of lost and cattle thieves into submission.

This double feature programme is made complete by addition of Chapter 9 of "The Devil Horse" and Canadian News.

The gift of dinnerware on Monday night will be known shortly. Tonight Clerta Swanson will appear for the last times in "Tonight or Never."

"DIPLOMANIACS" WITH WHEELER AND WOOLSEY AT BELLE

"Diplomaniacs," hailed as a hilarious burlesque on world problems at the present day, embroidered with modern numbers and interesting situations opens tomorrow (Saturday) at the Belle.

It is the first tuneful show to be built around the well known intellectualities of the peace conference and the international wrangling of some of its less notable delegates.

Its outstanding cast is Diplomaniacs headed by Bert Wheeler and Robert Woolsey, those irrepressible R. K. O. comedians, and Marjorie White, featured soubrette of the Belle, who sings Irving Berlin's "Hoosha". Miss White is a Canadian, a native of Hamilton, Ont. Phyllis Barry, who recently scored with Ronald Colman in "Cynara" supports the comedians.

The appearance of such well known screen players as Hobart Bosworth, Louis Calhern, Richard Carle and Edmund Breese and Edna Edwards, make the supporting cast one of the most notable of the season.

The production is lavishly staged, its backdrops rich in pulchritude, lake in an Indian reservation in Oklahoma, a ranch in Texas and its Apache rendezvous, as well as the Diplomatic Conference.

A group of 24 Hollywood beauties selected with the utmost care from the group appear in spectacular ensembles.

Splendid Shorts

A splendid array of varied and entertaining short offerings have been arranged to accompany on the same program including, the Paramount Publix production "Estates", first sensational pictures of great under-sea adventure since the days of Capt. Van Dyne's "The Campus Mystery", a gripping detective thriller, "The Mystery of Marie Roget" and "Alex Cup", introducing clever Canadian juggler, and the 3rd instalment of "The Jungle Mystery" a darkest adventure story will be introduced at the Saturday matinee performance only.

Wellman Arliss Tonight

The distinguished screen and stage star, Mr. George Arliss, will appear at the Belle Tonight, for the last time in "The Working Man", considered by his many admirers as one of his most pleasing vehicles. An excellent cast headed by Bette Davis, Gordon Westover, Hardie Albright and J. Farrell Macdonald appear in support of the star. It is a delightful entertainment, and well worth seeing.

Pocket gophers do not carry dirt in their cheek pouches, but they do carry it on the hole with their head and feet.

WHAT IS HOME WITHOUT A GARDEN?

Garening Hard as You Make It

Gardening can be made hard work, and many do so, choose, and on the other hand, it can be reduced to the class of light occupations. The latter is brought about by a very smart at working the soil and frequent short applications of soil to keep it in condition.

Killing weeds is only one object of cultivation. Even more important is keeping the soil open and porous and conserving the moisture. The first is to kill a weed before it starts growing. Hoeing lightly does the trick but will keep the surface soil stirred and prevent the germination of the weed seeds. The drier the land, the more frequent should be the cultivation. The majority of our vegetable crops need 60 per cent water at least, usually more than that. The roots of the vegetable, therefore, depends upon its having a sufficient supply of moisture all the time.

Hoeing will prevent the too rapid evaporation of the moisture in the soil and when it rains or after watering with the hose, get out the hoe as soon as the soil dries enough to be worked and break up the soil to keep the moisture in. Garden beds aches can be minimized by sexing the blade of the hoe is adjusted to suit your build. A blackmith can make an alteration in the angle of the blade in a jiffy and you can labor much more efficient, ly and easily.

A better cure for the hoe backache is to get a longer hoe.

It must be borne in mind that there are chickens, dogs, and rabbits at large in many communities and it is safest to have the garden fenced. A very cheap fence will do thoroughly and it can be well utilized to support beans, tall peas, tomatoes and cucumbers or even muskmelons. Mathematical experts have figured that an actual cash equivalent a well-kept vegetable garden will yield 15 times more than the average farm crop. Both are correct. But the soil must; have attention and the right kind of attention and the money latent in this soil at the same time.

WHAT IS HOME WITHOUT A GARDEN?

Gardening Is Hard as You Make It

Gardening can be made hard work, as hard as you choose, and no other kind can be made to ex- ed to the class of light occupations. The latter is brought about by an early start at working the soil and frequent short applications of toil to keep it in condition.

Killing weeds is only one object of cultivation. Every more import- ant is keeping the soil open and porous and conserving the moisture. The time to kill a weed is before it starts growing. Hoeing lightly from the start will keep the surface soil stirred and prevent the germi- nation of the weed seeds. The drier the land, the more frequent should be the cultivation. The majority of our vegetables consist of 85 per cent water at least, usually more than that. The quality of the vege- table, therefore, depends upon its having a sufficient supply of moist- ure at all times.

Hoeing will prevent the too rapid evaporation of the moisture in the soil and when it rains or after watering will help to get out of the hoe as soon as the soil dries enough to be workable. This will help to keep the moisture in. Garden pests can be minimized by storing that the blade of the hoe is ad- justed to suit your build. A black- smith can make an alteration to the angle of the blade in a jiffy and you can labor much more efficient, ly and easily.

A better cure for the hoe back- ache is to wear flat heeled shoes.

It must be borne in mind that there are chickens, dogs, and rab- bits at large in many communities and it is safest to have the garden fenced. Wi wire is an ideal fencing and can be put up until ready to support beans, tall peas, tomato- toes and cucumbers or even musk- melons. Mathematical experts have figured out that a small cash equiva- lent a well-kept vegetable garden will yield 15 times more than the same area devoted to farm crops. But the soil must have attention and the hoe, digs up the weeds and the money latent in this soil at the same time.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

NEW YORK - TORONTO - WINNIPEG

Markets mulled about in narrow range—Fever-ish trading pace slows down — Profit-taking in the Mines and Stocks at Toronto.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, June 9 (CP)—New buying lifted prices on the Toronto Exchange this afternoon after profit-selling had made the tone look a bit shaking in the morning session. Walker's common, Nickel, Smelters and some of the oils came back strong while volume improved as prices recovered.

The interlisted shares firmed uniformly with exception of C.P.R. which closed off 1/4. Smelting closed about even and Brazilian at 15¼. Por or Canada was a fraction higher.

Walker's common bobbed about sharply, between 18 and 18 and the close at 17¾ was practically the top. Distillers Seagram was off a fraction at 8¾ and Brewers and Distillers off 5 cents at $1.65.

Oils made a good showing, with International Pete up a half at 16¾. Banking institutions were stronger, new high prices for the year were recelled to Toronto General Trust, National Trust and Montreal and Dominion Banks. Heavy industrials were moderately active and firm were recorded for the bridge stocks.

TORONTO MINES

Toronto, June 9 (CP)—Profit-selling in the morning session was in areas in the afternoon was the order of procedure today on the Standard, Mining Market, gold and leading base metal shares recovered in the late morning going and the closing challed up earlier and some even recorded small gains. Rivers were firm.

Dome closed at $38.50 for a net loss of $1. Lake Shore was down 25 cents at $44.75. McIntyre was up $5 at $32.75.

In the base metals Nickel recovered nearly all early losses to close at $30, for a loss of only 10 cents. Hudsonbay was down $1 at $34.50, while minor losses were reported for Base Metals, Falconbridge and Coast Copper.

Secondary gold stocks held their ground well, price variations including a gain of 7 for Macassa.

Silver shares showed gains of 5 in Castle, and 4 in Eldorado.

NEW YORK

(By Victor Morgan, Associated Press Financial Writer).

New York, June 9 (CP)—Financial markets mulled about in a rather narrow range today and the recent feverish trading pace slowed down appreciably as traders and investors paused to consider the next look at home and abroad.

Canadian bonds were a trifle easier and the Dominion dollar eased fractionally to 99 3-16 cents. Mining issues reacted moderately after their recent spurt. Issues off fractionally to around 1-2 points included International Nickel, Canadian Pacific, Dome and McIntyre Porcupine.

Stocks generally displayed easier tendencies, although resistance was shown by some specialities and declines in the main instances were not too severe. Dullness accompanied the easing of prices. Wheat, corn and cotton were steady to firm and some improvement was shown by silver futures. United States government securities were steadily to slightly firm, but a number of secondary bonds were under pressure.

Many share leaders were off 1 or more than 2 points at the close although some recovered in interim rallies.

New York, June 9 (CP)— Stocks in the New York market late trading today, converting morning losses of fractions to 1 point or more into gains in a large proportion. Tobacco shares were strong. Case advanced 3 points, Reynolds Tobacco B, up to 1 to 3 included Harvester, National Cash Register, Liggett and Myers B, American Tobacco B, Sears Roebuck, U.S. Steel and New York Central were slightly higher. Trasters approximated 1,000,000 shares.

Barley, July 36 3-4; Oct. 38 1-4.

Livestock

Toronto, June 9 (CP)— Trading on the Toronto livestock market was moderate during the week with all supplies of cattle on the close. Runs of cattle and lambs were heavier this week while calves and hogs were in smaller volumes. Price changes were fairly general except hogs where a 10c gain was made. Cattle prices ranged 10c to 30c, veal calves 50c; lambs $1.50 while sheep and lambs are per cwt. compared with last week's closing level.

The cattle supply of 1200 head was too heavy for market requirements. Heavy supplies early in the week brought prices down 10c to 25c but closing prices were steady. Fed calves showing the greater decline. Butcher cows prompted 10c to 25c.

VERDICT IS NOT ACCEPTED

"Absolutely Ridiculous" is Comment of Presiding Judge

Haileybury, June 9.— A verdict which Judge Hartman at first flatly refused to accept with the terse comment that it was "absolutely ridiculous," but which through an oversight was entered officially on the court records, was returned by a jury at the Temiskaming General Sessions here Thursday afternoon. The finding will be taken to a higher court for review, Crown Attorney P. L. Smiley, K.C., said after the defendant in the case, George Dezeng, had been discharged. Dezeng, an electrician from Niagara Falls, had been accused of "highgrading."

The jurors had returned to the court for the fourth time before bringing in their verdict of not guilty, after considering the evidence for four and a half hours. W. C. Inch, defence counsel, at once asked that the finding be accepted to be told by the learned brother would be another trial. His honor was discussing the question of bail renewal for Dezeng when it was discovered the verdict already was formally recorded, enabling accused to be liberated.

Three-quarters of an hour after retiring after hearing the addresses by counsel and judge, the jury brought in a verdict that Dezeng was guilty of possession of the ore the police had found on him, but that it was not proved to their satisfaction defendant had known it was stolen. They recommended Dezeng "to the leniency of the court." His honor said that was no verdict, and the panel returned, although Mr. Inch maintained it meant the acquittal of the prisoner. Twice later the jury reporting they were still deadlocked but after dinner they returned a unanimous verdict.

FORMER JUDGE IS NOMINATED

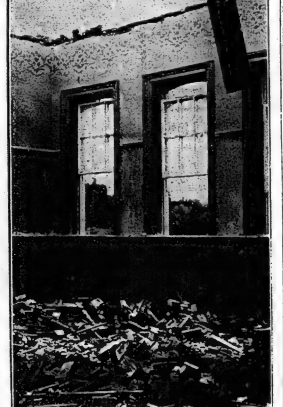
Contest Federal Seat as a C. C. F. Candidate

PRICEVILLE Sask. June 9—(CP)—Comparing his position on the Manitoba Judiciary to that of an "eagle beating its wings against the bars of a cage," Lewis St. George Stubbs, nominated co-operative Commonwealth Federation candidate in the Mackenzie Constituencies told an audience here he was happy to be free—free to speak his mind.

The former Manitoba Judge, removed from the Bench last week by a Federal Order-in-Council repudiated the idea he was entering politics to gain revenge on the government.

"I shall not attempt to interject my personal matters in the forthcoming campaign," he stated. "There is no thought of revenge in my heart. I am politically minded and I am seeking political honors for that reason alone."

SIPHONED GAS AND IS GIVEN PEN TERM



Grimsby Indian Found Guilty of Theft Near Wellington

John Doxtator, 28, an Indian, of Grimsby, was sentenced to two years in Portsmouth Penitentiary when he appeared in Picton Police Court this week. Doxtator was charging with stealing gas from a car in the garage of J. L. Reid, near Wellington, early in May. Doxtator was siphoning gasoline from the car tank with a rubber hose when seen by an employee of Mr. Ross who gave chase. Doxtator fled leaving his own car. It was later apprehended in Trenton. He had served previous terms at Guelph Reformatory, Burwash and Portsmouth Penitentiary.

Railway's Chauffeurs Have No Accidents

MONTREAL, June 9.—More than a score of employees of the Canadian National Railways whose duties require them to operate motor vehicles of the streets of Montreal have established a record of no accidents during the past twelve months and have been awarded medals for the achievement of this feat. All of the departments of the Company represented by these drivers are members of the Province of Quebec Safety League.

LITTLE TOTS BURIED AS ROOF CAVES IN

Directly in the path of one of the most severe thunder and lightning storms in the province during the past few years, the roof and brick chimney of the Bell public school, near Milton, was blown in and the 20 pupils buried under three feet of debris. The children were all injured, some seriously, although none was killed. Above, taken shortly after the accident, shows pile of bricks, laths and mortar on the floor of the schoolroom, under which the tots were buried.

MAIN STREET

Ramblings . . .

THE SLICE—

All winter long, chafing under the restraint of snow covered fields, a resident of the city had practiced long and faithfully with his golf clubs, driving the little pill against a heavy mat in his basement. Technically his stance, swing and grip were just about perfect, and he could keep his eye on the ball at any part of the swing. Even the horrible slice that he had developed last summer was missing. He could drive a pin with the ball into the hearty mat. The other day the gentleman burst out with clubs and bag in all the glory of his plus fours and brilliant sweater and carefully teed the ball someone in the mixed foursome handed him—and then took a healthy swing, the first of the season. The ball soared high in the air in a perfect drive, took a gentle dip, and then circled back toward the group like a swallow on the wing. Changing its mind it veered at right angles to the fairway and disappeared into a clump of bushes. The old slicer! Amid the raucious laughter of the group the gentleman strode silently off the greens, headed for the car, threw his bag in and then drove away. He still does not know that he had been given one of the many trick golf balls weighted with a lead ball off centre inside it, so plentifully supplied this year to the duffers by the jokesters of the local clubs.

THE FISHERMEN—

Feminine fancy has turned to the fishpole, and daily on the wharves and docks south of the city may be seen the fair contingent wielding poles with the best of them. Formerly almost considered a prohibitive pastime to them, the sport has been given great impetus lately, and the women are just as enthusiastic over it as any man that has ever handled a pole and dangled a tempting hook to lure the finny perch. The game they are after is small. It may even be uninteresting to many, but as a means of passing an afternoon, the sport of rod fishing for perch, sunfish and other smaller fish ranks high. For years this class of fishing has been a pastime for men only. There was the hook to bait with the inevitable crawly worm. There was also the messy task of untangling the flopping fish from the lure after he had been landed. But neither you now daunts the fair sex. With the apparent increase in numbers lately it is not improbable that before long sporting goods stores of the city will feature fishing togs for women. There may even be special poles divided at the butt into little compartments for compact, powder and powder puff so that the fair one may be able to powder her nose while waiting for a bite.

ELECTRIC BAIT GATHERING —

There is one man in the city who does not depend on watering the lawn of an evening to be sure of earthworms for the next day's fishing. From a few spare parts picked up around the home he has made himself an electric worm finder that does the trick rapidly and surely. Two metal spikes are connected to a dandid wire which runs from a common electric light socket to the house current. At intervals of several feet apart the spikes are shoved into the lawn in front of the house and the current is turned up. Shocked by the electricity, the worms bob out of the ground and are easily picked up in sufficient numbers to satisfy a whole crew of fishermen. The machine has now become a community affair.

FOOLING THE SPARROWS—

A friend tells of a neighbor making a request for old worn-out razor blades of the safety type. The neighbor explained that he was planting a garden and needed the blades to keep the birds away. He was particularly bothered with the sparrows coming in and stealing the seed.

"But how will old razor blades keep the sparrows away?" the friend asked in surprise.

"Paint 'em green," answered the man. "Stick 'em up all over the garden—edge up—about a quarter of an inch. Down comes the sparrow—tries to swipe the seed—cuts 'is blinkin' throat. Easy."

Increase is Shown In Ship Loadings

Halifax, N.S., June 9.—The season which recently closed at Halifax has shown a considerable increase in cargoes handled by Canadian National Railways steamships. Bermuda-British West Indies, Australia and New Zealand trade, according to H. A. Seely, Assistant Marine Superintendent of the Company.

There have been notable increases in the amount of tomatoes, vegetables and citrus fruits arriving from Bermuda and the West Indies, while outward bound cargoes for Australia and New Zealand have also shown a decided upturn.

Week End Telegraph Messages Popular

MONTREAL, June 9— The new custom of sending formal week-end and other invitations by telegraph became so wide-spread in Canada that the Canadian National Telegraphs has laid in a stock of telegram form paper and envelopes especially dedicated to this type of service. The forms are decorated with the picture of a swallow on the wing and are tastefully printed. The custom was started in the United States and is well on the way to complete acceptance by the social world.

T... blond girl was seated next to Judy.

"What a life," the blond girl exclaimed suddenly.

"What?" Judy said.

"Awful life. Work all the time."

"... Judy stopped. She didn't know what she should say now, but she knew she was supposed to say something.

"Work all day like this, six wrong hours and hours, get nothing, do it again—all so half a dozen men can listen in another room and say, 'Oh, no, no, no. She won't do at all!' the girl said. all in a breath.

"I—You see," Judy managed, "it's my first time here."

"Oh." The blond girl opened her eyes, now; sat up started at Judy, looked at her clothes, nodded, grinned. "Tenderfoot, huh?"

"Yes, I guess so."

"You won't last."

"Why?"

"Nails and see," the girl said cryptically.

Now another girl detached herself from the line at the desk, came across the room, very erect, shoulders high, her eyes that her clothes and her hair were right. She had very dark hair, her eyes were sharp and black. She studied herself in a mirror back of the bench. She opened a compact and applied more rouge, deftly, quickly. Then she smiled at herself and sat down. She looked at Judy.

Judy felt her cheeks burn, under this slow, insolent stare. The girl had no right to look at her that way. To be so patronizing without saying a word; to be insulting without even changing her expression. Judy wanted to tell her so. To say "I don't like you either. You're not so wonderful!"

"That's the great Lona Burdette," the blond girl said. "Watch out for her. She's poison. When she wants to be. She—"

She stopped. There was a commotion at the other end of the bench. girls were jumping up, following a round little man with a bright bald head.

"Come on now," the blond said. "The murder begins. This way."

Judy followed, along a hall, through a big door, along another hall. Lona Burdette led the way. As though it were her right. Judy followed the others in. An amazing—by high room, long and wide with a shiny, polished floor, with lights hanging from the ceiling.

At one end, through a panel of glass set in the wall, Judy saw and dimly a half-dozen people, leaning over a table. At the other, high up almost to the ceiling, she saw a plate-glass window and many people sitting beyond the window, looking down. She felt small and unimportant. Now she was pushed into a small iron chair.

"Past the microphone, back of the pane she saw Dick Mason."

Girls were all around her. A dozen girls. More. She counted quickly. Fifteen girls, besides herself. Sixteen, seeing the one job.

She studied them. The blond girl was all brightness, sitting up straight. Her eyes shining, her nonchalance forgotten. Lona Burdette was sitting on more roughly. One of the girls was talking to herself in a low voice; saying the same words over and over. Another put two big throat capsules in her mouth, grimaced. Another was flexing her thick black hair.

"Girls. Quiet!"

The round little man mopped his bald head.

"Girls!" he piped sarah.

A sudden deathlike stillness settled in the cavernous room.

"Now" said the round little man, "this is an audition for the Beauty Builder."

Nobody said anything. They all knew this already.

"Here," said the round little man, advancing straight toward Judy. "What's your name, young woman?"

"I'm—Judy. Judy—Allison."

"Elson, eh?"

Allison," she corrected.

"Elson," he repeated firmly. "Here, Elson. Take this."

He thrust a sheet of paper into her hands.

"Well?" he questioned.

Judy stared at him. She looked at the other girls. They were all watching her—and she thought that in all their faces, in their eyes, she saw a desperate gleam.

Judy stared, hoped, wished. No use. She couldn't see Dick Mason anywhere.

"Well?" the round man snapped now. "Get busy young woman. Get busy!"

"But I—I—" She felt faint. Mustn't look like an amateur. Mustn't act like an amateur. You have a nice voice." Dick had said. Mustn't act like an amateur. Don't let it through. Do it as though you'd done it a million times before. Where was Dick to help her?

CHAPTER TWO

Judy rose. She knew what a microphone was of course. And in the middle of the studio hung a round, black thing, suspended from cords. The microphone. She walked towards this, stood in the centre of the enormous room. She felt like the last woman in the world. The eyes of the other girls burned in her back. She held the paper, stepped a little to one side, stared at the round black microphone wondered, waited.

"Go on!" the round man said. His voice echoed up and down the hall, out the big room. "Go on, Allison!"

She stared at the paper.

"Good morning," it said. "This is the Beauty Builder speaking. Every morning at this same hour, I bring you the newest facts about the newest fashions in hats in dresses, in shoes in cosmetics, all to help you. And every morning—"

The words faded out before her eyes. Past the microphone, back of the glass panel at the end of the room she saw Dick Mason. He was leaning forward, almost touching the glass. He was waving one hand. He was saying, "Read it. Go to it! Start! Show 'em!" He meant all he said in that brief talk last night. He meant, "Get the job girl. Get the job!"

She glared at the microphone. Afraid of that!

She turned a little on one heel. She glared at the other girls. Afraid of them!

She threw back her shoulders, put her head back.

"Good morning," she said, and the words sounded strangely flat and muffled to her. "This is the Beauty Builder, Every day— I mean every morning at this same hour, I bring to you the newest facts about the newest fashions in hats, in"

The round man was tugging at her shoulder. He was scowling, contemptuous, sneering.

"That's enough! Go back and sit down! Go back! Go on; you—the blond girl. Come on. You next! Snap into it."

The blond girl started to speak to the round man, stopped, grinned walked out the door, smiling. The girl with compact put more rouge on her lips, followed. And the girl with the pill. All, Judy, walking slowly. No confidence kept her shoulders square; no desperate gayety made her smile. The tears were in her eyes, she hadn't done anything. Couldn't even talk into a microphone. Couldn't even read without mixing up the words. Couldn't—

"Judy!" cried Judy!

It couldn't be anybody calling Judy Coudlin. Judy Allison. And she didn't hurry. If she didn't get out of there somewhere somewhere she'd cry so that every one could see.

"Judy! Wait, Judy!"

She turned.

Dick Mason came running toward her, down the hall. Smiling.

"Judy," he said, "you're swell!"

He seized both her hands. Her pocketbook dropped, but she didn't notice it. Dick Mason was saying more to pick it up. He was saying, "You're swell!" over and over, chuckling between the words. "You go it! I knew you could do it. I knew it!"

She managed finally to gasp, "But I—I—I'm still name, Judy-Miss Judy Allison. The Beauty Builder! Think of that!"

Her name on the air? Her real name spoken so that thousands of people would know Judy Allison? She couldn't let that happen. Why—but—but she didn't know anything about her and yet he'g got the job for her, for her and so much. But—

"Come on, Judy. You're having breakfast with me!"

Still breathless, still unbelieving, Judy followed Dick along the hall.

They sat a long time over coffee and toast and marmalade, and in that time Judy learned a great deal about Dick Mason.

That he was 26, which seemed very old indeed; for Judy was "just past" 20. That he earned $65 a week for "just talking." That he had been an announcer for two years. That he started out to be an actor, but "but I was a rotten actor", that, really, he finished college with the intention of being an engineer—"but I couldn't make a single column of figures come out right, and that's the thought radio announcers were funny.

"Very, very, very funny," he said seriously, shaking themselves gravely. Dressing up in dinner coats at 5.45 sharp—just to talk into a mike. Growing their hair long and getting arty and saying "for an hour as a fame. Ooh!"

He pointed.

"Amos 'n Andy." Dick said. "First time I've seen them here in months."

"Amos 'n' Andy."

Judy looked for a couple of men in blackface. She saw, instead two smooth-faced, casual, well-dressed gentlemen, giving their time about ordering, plunging suddenly into close conversation. They weren't laughing. Whatever they were saying it was plain that neither was being funny.

"I thought—I mean—"

"I know." Dick Mason chuckled. A very nice chuckle, Judy thought. "Funny, the ideas you get about radio people, isn't it? Especially hearing them. Why, there's a nice lady in Canada, who sends me neckties and pyjamas just because my voice sounds like her son's voice. He never came back from the war and she still insists I must be her lost son. And—"

There's Le Grys and his wife. The license Bailey, the singer. And there's Ted Pearson, the announcer and—two of the three Doctors, Pratt and Sherman."

Dick became a walking encyclopedia of names of descriptions. And Judy's head whirled. So many people! Names you read in the papers names you heard spoken over the air with unction by announcers you wondered about, whose you'd heard and liked, or didn't like; famous people walking in and asking for cheese toast and orange juice, or pancakes and sausage; and not at all unusual, some of them not even well dressed.

The girl with the muddy tinted hair and the shabby imitation-seal coat. Dick said, casually, as he left, "she puts it all in the bank; she was almost starving until radio came along, trying to be a singer; she wasn't good in a concert hall or on the stage, but on the air her voice vibrations are just right and all the fans think she's marvelous; radio's like that." The others—

"Hello, Dick!"

Judy jumped. She's been so interested in Dick Mason, listening to the smooth, regular procession of words, she had forgotten that anybody else might talk, might come to the table that already she thought of as hers and Dick's.

"Hello, Elton."

Dick said it rather slowly not quite happily.

"Introduce me, boy. Introduce me!"

Judy looked up as the intruder. He was very well dressed. Curly light hair and dark eyes. An unusual combination. A pale yellow tie, a brown suit, brown shoes and a white shirt with long points on the collar.

"Judy—Miss Allison—This is Elton Hyde."

"How do you do?" Judy said coolly. Then in spite of herself she gasped. Then in spite of herself she gasped. Elton Hyde wrote without waiting for an invitation, the newcomer sat down. Leaned forward and looked directly at her. A waiter approach. A big brown pipe. Lit. Puffed. All without looking up. "Hurry. I have to be on the air in 15 minutes." Then to Judy, "I haven't seen you around here before."

Miss Allison just came down for an audition." Dick said, still with that nice chuckle in his voice. Judy could see that he was smiling politely, that he enough to know this man well; but she knew he resented the intrusion. In spite of herself—being woman—that pleased her. Having known Dick Mason such a little while it was nice to think that he wanted to be with her alone, that he wanted no other man to talk to her.

"Oh. You're going to be with us then? Good. Good. Good."

"I—Really I don't know."

"Of course."

"Oh no. Talk." She laughed a little. "That is, I guess I'm to talk a little. That is, I guess I'm to talk. Mr. Mason says I have a tryout and I thought I didn't have a chance. I've been auditioning for all the parts for. But Mr. Mason says they liked my voice, and I'm going to get a try at do the program. A while at least."

"Swell." And it's mighty kind of Dick to help you. Yes, sir, Dick —mighty kind—"

Elton said nothing. And Elton Day continued to stare at Judy, not unpleasantly. But as though supposed she should look away, should chill and be quiet. Judy wondered. Went in his eyes, as though he were laughing at her laughing at her laughing at herself and at Dick, and at everything. Judy felt her cheeks burn. She had trouble lay straight ahead.

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was smoking and thinking in the sitting room the other night. According to P. Willis Hinkle's article in today's paper, Pop thinks, apparently, that a man is the master in his own home is no more than a figure of fun in a baseless foundation, it's the true state of affairs in 9 cases out of a possible 10. It certeny the true state of affairs in this house, she said.

Well, that's a snatch of insulting news, pop said, and he said, Will you please do you mean to sit there with a strate face and deny that you're the master in this house? Do you mean to say you dont always get your own way in every single point and particle? she said.

I didn't say so, but now that you mention it, why not? pop said, and he said, Well at all the things to say, of all the innuendoes to insinuate. You must be living in a world of dream if you dont realize that every single thing around here is according to your wishes and your slightest unexpressed thaut is the law of the land. Can you deny that, Wilyum? she said.

Well, ahem, that is to say, ahem, pop said, ahem ma said. That's nothing but evasion, you know very well it's true. But you're just got one of your contrary streeks, and I wont submit. Now Wilyum Pelham you'll admit this very minnit that you're the master in this house or sits make you put on your hat and take me to the Parsons to see Lorry Harling's new picture, and you know how you object to Lorry Harling. Well, well, speak up, she said.

You win. I rule this shack with a rod of iron and a voice of thunder, pop said. MRS. TOWRISS ADDRESSES W. I. OF PHILLIPSTON

ROSLIN—The Phillipston Women's Institute held their regular meeting in the Zion Church on Monday afternoon with the Roslin Women's Institute was invited. Those attending from Roslin were, Mrs. D. Lake, Mrs. H. Stills, Mrs. H. Palmer, Mrs. F. Grey, Mrs. G. Ish, the Misses Wilson, Mrs. M. Fargey and Mrs. W. Copeland.

Mrs. Stevenson, the retiring president of Phillipston Institute, presided, and the meeting was opened by singing the opening Ode followed by the Lords Prayer in unison.

Mrs. Ish, secretary, the newly elected president in a few well chosen words welcomed the visitors. "O Canada" was sung and Miss Mildred called upon and spoke briefly.

The singing of the National Anthen brought the meeting to a close. Afterwards the ladies of Phillipston Institute served a delicious lunch.

A soft ball game between Sidney and Roslin was played at Roslin on Monday evening. The Roslin team won the game by a large majority.

The Women's Association of the United Church held their June meeting at the home of their president, Mrs. Clarence Palmer on Wednesday afternoon.

"I want my Telephone put back, please!"

ALMOST daily people who discontinued their telephones during recent months are ordering their service restored. They found that the small cost of the service had been repaid many times each month in convenience, in time and actually in money saved.

Others missed the close and personal contact with friends made possible by telephone service. Still others mentioned the loss of many pleasant, impromptu social gatherings when their friends were unable to reach them by telephone.

It is all true — what these subscriber friends of ours say. Telephone service costs so little and its value is so great that it really doesn't pay to try to do without it.

Max Baer Crushes Schmeling With Flurry of Brawny Fists Scoring a Technical Knockout

Leaves German Helpless in 10th And Referee Stops Fight

56,000 ON HAND

First Time on The Floor For Schmeling in Five Years

(By Gayle Talbot, Associated Press Sports Writer)

New York, June 8 (AP)—A roistering young blade from out of the west, with thunder in his brawny fists and all the "killer instinct" he has any use for, stood today as a threatening menace to Jack Sharkey's heavyweight crown.

Victor last night over Max Schmeling by a crushing tenth round knockout before 56,000 spectators pop-eyed with amazement, Max Baer of California, established himself greatest young heavyweight to crash the big scene since Jack Dempsey whistled down Jess Willard at Toledo.

"I'm going to whip Sharkey—right?" he shouted as a shower swept away every trace of the combat. Not one of the vast crowd that saw him floor Schmeling with a murderous right and then, a few seconds later, leave the former champion hanging on the ropes, helpless, will miss the point.

A minute and 51 seconds of the tenth round had gone by when Referee Arthur Donovan stepped forward, motioned to Jit Baer's hand and spare the game German further punishment. Limply, and ready to defend no guard down and his eyes glazed, Schmeling was an open target for a haymaker he might have done lasting injury. There wasn't a chance of saving from the massed thousands in Yankee Stadium.

Eyeful for Sharkey

The scene was an eyeful for Jack Sharkey and Promoter Mike Jacobs, both of whom peered attentively from ringside chairs as Baer, a far greater fighter than he had been given credit for, battered down his man. One or the other, the victor in their championship fight later in the month, will get a chance to sample the Baer dynamite, and it is doubtful now that either relishes the prospect.

"I don't know what happened," said the dazed Schmeling as he sat disconsolate, removing his ring togs. It was evident, the sudden, one-sided conclusion of the combat, five rounds before the scheduled limit, had left his shell-shocked.

"He wasn't hurting me, so I got careless and dropped my guard. Wham, I thought a house had fallen on me."

It was the first time Schmeling ever had been on the floor since he first came to the United States five years ago. He had built up a good deal of stamina on the stiffest punches, but he hadn't run into a right like the one Baer was looking last night.

The only blemish attached to the young Californian's triumphs was his frequent use of the clinch. Now and then straight warnings from the referee and razzberries from the crowd. Baer used it at times like he was punching a bag, when he backed Schmeling into the ropes and beat away at him calmly, brutally, but the audience forgave him that after the big climax.

Manager Confident

So confident was Baer's manager, Arcil Hoffman, of the ultimate result that he sent his superbly conditioned young man into the battle with absolute orders not to open up until after the fifth round. That despite the odds were as high as four to one in Schmeling's favor as the fight time.

Baer, however, couldn't resist the temptation to wing a few, and in the first two rounds he launched a two-fisted attack that beat his unsmiling antagonist all over the ring. That satisfied him, and Schmeling, taking advantage of the let up, crowded in with a short, sharp attack that won him his only three rounds of the fight, the fourth, sixth and seventh.

Then came the fireworks. Starting the eighth, Baer really began coming over the mountain. He rushed out with a mean look on his face and he socked Schmeling with everything in the book.

In the ninth he nailed the German against the ropes twice and measured him with terrific wallops to the jaw. When Schmeling's guard went up, Baer dug into his middle. The referee parted them.

Baer wasted little time finishing his man in the tenth. They came out at a clinch in mid-ring, when the Californian's right darted out like the head of a cobra and thudded on the point of Schmeling's jaw. Down he went.

Baer sailed into his battered rival with a flurry of punches. A left doubling him up, and a right sent him clumping against the ropes in a neutral corner.

The crowd paid $260,000 to witness one of the most sensational battles in recent years and to assure a big profit for Jack Dempsey in his first big promotorial venture.

Spying on Sports

BY

Central Press Canadian

WHEN NEARLY 100,000 fans stampede two New York ball parks to view the Yankees and the Giants play a couple of games—the specter of another of those famous "hubward" or "interborough" world series looms ahead.

And that is just what has happened.

Last Sunday 61,000 crushed into Yankee stadium to watch Ruth and company kick the Philadelphia Athletics around. Another 34,200 battered their way into Ebbets field, Brooklyn, to watch the Giants and Dodgers settle their differences.

That makes a few hundred shy of 100,000.

Those mob scenes are reminiscent of the days of 1921-1923 when the two Gotham clubs were slugging over all opposition in both leagues. And those mob scenes, incidentally, will be back in 1933, mean that the two New York clubs are playing ball and may go places.

THE YANKEESS have been the class of the American league since the season began. The Philadelphia, Cleveland clubs have had a couple of good challenges but the Ruppert Rilles have mowed them down just as they have all they have into view.

Look at the Athletics.

The Mackmen were riding high when they invaded Gotham. Enthusiasts were giving them a chance to beat out the Yanks. They were in the full bloom of a fine winning streak. And then the Yankees smacked them down—and A's haven't been the same since.

The same harish treatment accorded the Athletics when the Chicago club, flushed with victory, came to Gotham.

It still looks like the Yanks in the American league. And the Bronx is visioning another glimpse at a world series.

THE GIANTS are not the favorites for the Yankees are, but the Ferriers have, since the season began, been playing just as consistent baseball in the National league.

The St. Louis Cardinals are listing nicely—now. But they were sour in April. The Pittsburgh Pirates gave us a fine run, but have faded—at least temporarily. The Chicago Cubs continue to look like in and outers.

The rest of the senior circuit's clubs definitely are not contenders.

Steady baseball very likely may win a pennant for Bill Terry and his Giants. And if they win it is almost a sure shot that the 1933 world series will not be a side attraction—as Windy City fans had hoped—of the Century of Progress in Chicago.

Hope, the world series will be a subway ride from the Bronx to Manhattan and back again.

GOLF FACTS
NOT THEORIES!
By
Alex J. Morrison

ALEX MORRISON says:

You may feel that you are all wrong in many parts of your swing but actually you can go wrong only in two places. That's away from the ball or during the initial move of your downswing.

The initial moves in starting back and in starting down are what might be termed crises in the swing.

When you make the first move in the backswing properly a good backswing is assured and you have done 90 per cent of the job of making a successful swing.

The remaining crisis is mainly a mental test which you can pass successfully by keeping your chin back.

SKEETERS ON WAY TO TOP OF STANDING

Rochester Moves up to Within One Game of Top

LEAFS WIN

Break Six Game Losing Streak Defeating Senators 6-3

(By Herbert W. Barker, Associated Press Sports Writer)

Slowly but surely the Jersey City Skeeters, undergoing a complete rebuilding process, are moving upward in the International League standing. At their present rate of progress a first division berth is not beyond the realms of possibility.

Their fourth successive triumph yesterday, a 6-4 win over the Montreal Royals, sent the Skeeters into full possession of sixth place and left them only half a game behind the fifth place Royals.

Jersey City found Bill Dietrich easy and pounded him out of the box in the second inning, scoring four times in the first inning and another in the second. Joe Cascarella went the route for the winners, allowing seven hits, among them home runs by Urban Pickering and Tom Winsett.

Rochester Redwings assaulted Bruce Cunningham and Guy Cantrell for 14 hits, including a home run by Mickey Heath, beat Baltimore 7-5, and moved to within a single game of the league leading Newark Bears, who were shut out by Buffalo 6-0. Bob Perham led Rochester's attack with three hits and would have had a fourth had he not forgotten to touch first base when he tripled. Fritz Ostermueller was the mate for the winners.

Fred Fussell was in great form as Buffalo beat Newark. The veteran southpaw allowed only five hits and never was in trouble. The Bisons, meantime, found two Newark pitchers for ten hits, including Ollie Tucker's home run, and moved into a virtual tie with Albany for seventh place.

Albany surrendered to the Toronto Maple Leafs 6-3. The Canadians breaking a six-game losing streak bunched three hits with four bases on balls and an error for all their runs in the sixth. Ralph Birkofer blanked the Senators until the ninth when they knocked him out of the box with a five-hit barrage that produced three runs.

GIANTS WIN

Cards Only Few Points Behind Giants For First Place

(By Hugh S. Fullerton, Jr., Associated Press Sports Writer)

Philadelphia fans, who have been figuratively shedding tears over the failure of Jimmie Foxx to live up to the ground beast they made for him when he clouted 58 home runs last season, apparently can dry their eyes.

Jimmie hasn't done any damage to Babe Ruth's home run laurels yet, but he looked very much like the slugger of 1932, who made serious threats along those lines, when he blasted two home runs into the chick of the fight at the expense of the mighty Yankees yesterday. The first three times he went to bat Foxx crashed home runs. He landed in five ladies and was a leading figure in the 19-hit attack that gave the Athletics their 14-11 victory.

Another Philadelphia-New York game was decided on long distance slugging as the Giants turned back the Phillies 7-6. Mel Ott's 7th homer of the season and Hank Danning blow after four baggers by Homer Freeman and Fred Lindstrom brought in the other Giant runs.

American League

Washington's Senators out loose against Boston with 17 hits and a second game of a double header to win 12-3 after they had "blown" a 4-0 ground in the sixth inning of the opener on walks by Al Thomas. The win break gave them second place in the American League and moved Boston back behind the six game winning streak of the Chicago White Sox with an 11 inning triumph.

St. Louis Browns continued Cleveland Indians' skein to five games by pounding out a 5-3 decision.

In the only real mound duel, Dizzy Dean of the St. Louis Cardinals outpointed Lonnie Warneke of the Chicago Cubs, pitching only three hits to win 2-1. The victory kept the Cards a few points behind the Giants while Chicago lost a good chance to take third place when the Pittsburgh Pirates suffered an 8-2 setback at the hands of the Cincinnati Reds.

AMELIASBURG WIN 1ST GAME

Carrying Place Dusted Off by a Score of 6-3

Mountain View, June 9 (Special)—Amelia's baseball team with three runs in the sixth innings the Ameliasburg softball team won their first game of the season in the Ameliasburg Township League, which was released this Carrying Place nine by the score of 6 to 3 on their home ground last evening.

Will Cretney, late elongated first baseman of the Belleville Nationals, belonged to the village by the winners and although he was nicked for some ten hits, kept them well scattered throughout the contest, who laboured on the mound for the visitors, started a steady game but was afforded rather poor support in his team mates who literally loosed the game away by numerous ball and field endeavour-ing to head-off pass runners.

The line-ups:

Carrying Place—Harris, Green, C. Hicks, Hicks, Westfall, Green, Bunnies, Herrington and Henderson.

Ameliasburg — Snider, Tyler, Crosby, Adams, Tyler, Dixon, Corfield, Ferguson and H. Crosby.

BETWEEN INNINGS

BUMP HADLEY today is a greatly improved pitcher over what he was a year ago. The Brown ace is a formidable flinger, again. Last season Hadley led the big leagues in defeats, suffering 21 setbacks.

LON WARNEKE is one of the few Cubs who is holding his own. The Chicago batsmen, who looked so good before the season began, haven't been doing well. But the youthful pitcher is twirling great ball.

LLOYD NEWKIRK, property of the New York Yanks, is right now pitching for the St. Paul American association club, may be another Three-Finger Brown. He has but three fingers on his pitching hand, having lost the fourth in a mill accident.

BROOKLYN DODGERS have scored but one run in 51 innings this season. There is the chief reason the Flatbush Flock failed to show in the big top in contentions. And they've been shut out numerous times, too.

JIM WEAVER, Charley Devens and Pete Jablonowsky are three former Yankee pitchers who are giving the Bronx Bombers plenty of mound strength in their battle for the championship of the pennant.

BILL TERRY is one of the few managers who does not believe in benching a ball player when he is in a batting slump. Gabby Hartnett, who received many of the boos which were hurled at Bill last season knew just where the ball was coming in," says Gabby.

ERIC M'NAIR'S return to the Chicago Cubs' infield will probably club far more formidable than it has been. He's one of those players on other American league teams.

RACE MEET TO BE HELD

No Change in Classes And Racing Should be Formful

Mayor George H. Roe, popular local race horse starter, was officially named as starter for the harness races to be staged at the Exhibition Park on Wednesday next, when the Belleville Fair Board met at the regular semi-monthly meeting last evening.

Following the usual routine of business the board at once swung into action to make preparations for the race meet. The advertised classes the 2.00, 2.16 and the 2.26 classes will be adequately filled according to information handed out by Secretary Ketcheson. Chairman Harry Ketcheson reported, that the track was in excellent racing condition and he personally expected the greatest days racing in the history of local harness racing circles.

Owing to the fact that the government will not furnish judges for the fair, the board were forced to engage their own personal judges this fall. After some little discussion President Robt. Mitchell assured the board, that plenty of competent judges were available in Eastern Ontario, from which the judges for the Belleville Fair could be picked.

The secretary informed the meeting, that the fair prize list book would be out for the exhibitors early next week.

Chairman Jack Clarke of the midway reported that the new gidaway to be presented at the 1933 edition of the Belleville Fair would be the largest and best ever to grace an amusement lot. Ten rides for both the young and the old have been assured Mr. Clarke. All other chairman reported favorably in their departments and left an air of optimism regarding the 1933 Belleville Fair.

Tommy Armour Shoots Record Round of 68 to Lead the Field

National Open Golf Contest on at Glenview, Illinois

(By Paul Mickelson, Associated Press Sports Writer)

Glenview, Ill., June 9 (AP) —One of the greatest shotmakers of them all, Tommy Armour, had his competitors all but rubbed off the map today with a record-breaking five shot mortgage on the United States Open Golf Championship.

The silver Scot, his irons and putting stinging the same sweet tune that long ago placed his name on golf's hall of fame, pulled his coup on the big prize market of golf yesterday by storming in with a record 68, that not only broke the course record for the North Shore championship layout but sent him five strokes ahead of the field after the first 18 hole round engagement, with Walter Hagen and six others tied at 73. James Johnstone of Toronto, sole Canadian entrant was among a dozen tied with 78's.

Fifty-four holes were left before the end of the big battle and most of the favorites were grouped well up but it looked like another crown for Armour, winner of the title at Oakmont in 1927. No one in the 34 years of play in the open ever held such a margin after 18 holes, although two of them, Walter Hagen in 1914 and Ouimet and "Wild Bill" Melhorn in 1920, had slaughtered the field by firing 68's in the opening round. Olin Dutra, the towering scout from California, took a fight stroke lead at Fresh Meadow with a 69 only to toss it away.

Pace-setters until Armour came home, the six deadlocked for second place, included two amateurs, Neil While of Topeka, Kas., and Southern California, and Maurice McCarthy, Jr., of Cleveland, and four well known professionals—Hagen; Henry Cluci of Flushing, N.Y.; Craig Wood, Deal, N.J.; and young Johnny Revolta, of Menominee, Mich., a star of the winter tournaments.

CURRENT SPORT

Knocks and Boosts

President Max Swanzion of the O.S.B.L. has ordered a special meeting of the league executive to be held in Kingston directly following next Wednesday's Peterboro-Kingston game in the Limestone City. The meeting has been called at an opportune time especially with the umpiring situation taking such a prominent part in the local League affairs just now.

Peterboro and Kingston will naturally be represented at the meeting and it follows, that the Belleville Nationals's executive should move their entire personnel to the Limestone City for the occasion. Not that numbers mean anything at such a meeting but, in union there is strength. Indeed Charlie Meagher and his associates will have plenty to say when the meeting is called to order and he wants to have plenty of moral support behind him.

Undoubtedly the question of umpires will be the main item of business discussed. Here and now we take the stand, that regardless as to the financial status of th league mental umpires must be retained by the league if the season is to be completed. Occasionally the home umpire system has passed the acid test but of late, and we are not only referring to the recent games played in the league, the umpiring system has been worse than terrible. Two special reasons can be blamed for the entire situation, first the clubs were entirely wrong in sheepening the umpires by offering them a mere pittance; second the clubs supplied the names of men to act as officials who were incompetent, were not proven umpires and lastly do not even know the rules of the game. For instance was club recently submitted three names to the league because they were unemployed, so the team executive state. Such proceedings should be carefully probed.

Regardless as to the feelings of the clubs, the fans or any one concerning no blame of the umpiring situation can be laid at the door of "the league executive, President Swanston or Secretary Thompson, as the team delegates voted on all questions, while the league mogulsat back and let the representatives of the various clubs decide their own business. If any kick is coming it should be laid at the door of the team delegates themselves.

Although twenty six teams have signifing their intentions of playing soft ball in the Kiwanis League, less than half this number have completed the registration of their players. Team managers and captains are asked to complete and turn in their players' registration cards at once. Failure to do so will result in the suspension of the players concerned.

Although the schedule can be drawn and play commenced, Physical Director Ralph Sherry said last night that the schedules until he is sure that all the teams entered show that they meet business by completing the registration of their players.

After spending the training period in this city with his string of harness horses, Louie Bennett shipped out on Thursday for Quebec, where race meet is being held next week. The action of Mr. Bennett is regretted by the horse committee in charge of the race meet to be held in this city next Wednesday as he was depended upon to enter at least four horses in the various classes and especially was the 2.09 pace and to allow Walter Stone to show his class. If it appeared that Mr. Bennett was willing to take Walter Stone in this class and observing that the racing might be tough, Louie pulled out. Mr. Bennett promised he would stay for the meet but apparently is seeking greener fields. Well the racing is tough in Quebec.

Secretary Richard D. Ketchenson states, that regardless of the action of Mr. Bennett, the race meet will go on as billed next Wednesday with the three classes, 2.09, 2.16 and 2.25 and that there would not be a dearth of horses as many horsemen have promised to come from Kingston, while a few western ones will be on hand. The purses are not as large as they have been in former years but no doubt the racing will be just as fast.

When the Toronto Royal Arsenum softball team takes the field against the local Delaney Bros. team on the Victoria Park diamond this evening, they will have an opportunity to compare the relative strength of local Toronto softball, for that the Men's Senior loop is entered in the O.S.A. the league should engage in such exhibition games so as to test their strength. The Royal Arcanums are reputed to be one of the strongest senior softball teams in Toronto so Saturday's tilt has all the markings of a real game as the Bearcats are travelling in high gear just now.

Some time ago Lou E. Marsh sports editor of the Toronto Daily Star, attracted the attention of sport lovers throughout the province relating to baseball players being paid in the O.B.A.A.A. following the word "big broadcast" in Toronto hockey circles, when Billie D'Alesandro of the Marlboro Club broke O.H.A. hockey activities wide open and bared the some rather embarrassing facts, perhaps Mr. Marsh's baseball references, will be forgotten that the probe was suggested to detract attention from "shamateurs" in hockey? When D'Alesandro took the witness stand he sure "spilled the works". Incidentally we understand that Les Tice, of the local Doherty A.C. hockey team, may be converted to Pictou where he will take charge of a gasoline station for the Cities Service Oil Company in the near future. (Who's next).

Starting with practically nothing Manager Bob Redner has whipped the B.A.A.A. Juniors into a fair sort of a junior baseball club in less than two weeks. The ranks of the 1933 championship team are completed through losses due to players being signed by other clubs. The club officials went so far as to consider disbanding but after reconsidered their decision and named Bob Redner as manager. With one or two more additions to their ranks the association kids may make things rather interesting for the other three clubs in the local junior loop.

BAER AND DEMPSEY PLAN TOUR TO COAST

Combination of New And Old Dempsey Likely to Draw

New York, June 9 (AP) — No grass is going to grow under Max Baer and Jack Dempsey can help it.

With the Californian's name now a sports headliner, Dempsey plans a whirlwind exhibition tour coast to coast, starting within the next 10 days. Max Baer will box and Dempsey will referee. The combination of the "new Dempsey" and the old one is expected to draw large—and profitable — crowds across the country.

Plans are only tentative, but Dempsey indicated today the tour might start at Buffalo, swing through the middle west and finish up the west coast.

Dempsey plans to seek a match for Baer in September with the winner of the coming Sharkey-Carnera fight.

Experiments have proved that potato beetles are more readily killed immediately after hatching than at any other time.

BRITISH DEBT DISCUSSED AT WASHINGTON

British Message Upon Debts Presented Orally to President Roosevelt

Informal Conversation on Debts at White House

PART PAYMENT?

Validity of Debts May Be Symbolized by Instalment

Washington, June 10 (AP) —Sir Ronald Lindsay, the British Ambassador called at the White House last night and presented orally a communication from his government on the war debts.

At the State Department this was described today as an informal conversations, apparently not fulfilling the demand for a formal request which Mr. Roosevelt has made the first condition of any move toward revision.

Details of the conversation were withheld, but meanwhile advices from London said the government there might offer to pay a portion of the $75,250,000 instalment due next Thursday as a token of the regard as to the validity of the debts.

Would Show Chief

Gen. Francesco Di Pinedo

Desire to show Italy's Benito Mussolini what a mistake Il Duce made in curtailing the military career is believed to be behind the plan of Gen. Francesco De Pinedo, who is in the United States awaiting the plane in which he intends to attempt to shatter the world's long distance non-stop flight record. De Pinedo once Italy's air hero, resigned his post and became a private citizen because he objected to being relegated to a position in Buenos Aires.

SOMERVILLE IS OFF GAME

U. S. Amateur Champion Takes 83 Strokes to Make Round

Sandwich, England, June 10 (CP Cable)—Rose Mandel Somerville of London, Ont., United States Amateur golf champion, took 83 strokes today to get around the 18 hole course of the Royal St. George's club and finish nine strokes behind the leader at the time Somerville's round was finished.

The competition was for the St. George's vase and present leaders are J. Sarazen, Douglas Park with 74, H. G. Bentley 76, and Douglas Grant 77. Jack Nash, Somerville's clubmate, also finished behind the leaders.

Somerville and Nash went to the first tee in white sweaters and caps and dark flannels, and though there was a fresh wind and the skies were overcast both were towels suspended from their belts.

Somerville took 41 for the first nine. His only real error however was on the 14th where he drove right into a bunker and found his ball almost buried. He kept his great explosion shot to get a four.

Washington, June 10.—(AP)—Adjournment tonight was the goal as the United States Congress strove to complete in but one session the monumental emergency programme of President Roosevelt, greatest Legislative production of peace time.

WEATHER

Toronto, June 10 (CP)—Thunderstorms have occurred in Eastern Quebec, Georgian Bay Province and the Lake Superior District, and light scattered showers in the western Provinces while in other parts of Canada the weather has been fair. It is not decidedly warm in Ontario and Quebec, and continues cool in Alberta with frost reported this morning in the vicinity of Edmonton.

Northern Ontario—Partly cloudy with showers or local thunderstorms tonight and Sunday; somewhat warmer on Sunday.

Ottawa and Upper St. Lawrence Valley—Fair and warm today and Sunday; local thunderstorms today; becoming variable on Sunday.

Lake Superior—Moderate to fresh southeasterly winds; partly cloudy and somewhat warmer; probably local showers or thunderstorms.

Kenora and Rainy River—Partly cloudy and warm; probably followed by scattered showers.

Manitoba—Partly cloudy, with much the same temperature; probably a few scattered showers.

Saskatchewan and Alberta—Partly cloudy and comparatively cool; probably scattered showers.

STEAMING HOT WAVE CAUSES EAST TO GASP

People Doubt Even Breeze And Rain Will End Spell

EGGS COOK IN SUN

Fatality Total at 125 as Result of Torridity

New York, June 10 (CP) — The eastern half of the United States still burning under heat that has felled men and animals, kept its fingers crossed today and waited.

It wondered if scattered thunder showers and stirring breezes really meant relief.

More than 125 people died in a wave of steaming torridity that rolled first over the middle west three days ago, and then over the Atlantic seaboard. Many of the deaths were directly due to the heat, some to related causes.

Pictures of eggs done to a turn on sidewalks and of youngsters sloshing in hydrant water broke out on front pages again. Heat records fell by the score.

The middle west enjoyed some surcease after heat that killed more than a score in Illinois alone, but the mercury returned to the southwest yesterday. In the New York area, thunder showers before dawn today interrupted the weary downward. In or near this metropolis six persons died yesterday, more than 40 collapsed, 20 horses dropped in the streets. Twenty-three persons have died in Pennsylvania as a result of the heat.

Living Carpet On C.P.R. LineatSoo

Sudbury Jnt. June 10.—CP.—Millions of caterpillars, forming a living carpet on the Canadian Pacific Railway right-of-way at Webbwood, delayed a freight train for more than an hour today. Railway officials stated that unless the pests decamp shortly steam blowers will be attached to the cabs of engines so the caterpillars will be cleared off the track before the locomotive touches them.

The train proceeding east towards Sudbury, ran into the same creature, but on this occasion were before had moved onto the embankment. When the train became great as it buttered.

NO COMMENT UPON VERIGIN

Immigration Officials at Ottawa Are Silent on Question

Ottawa, June 10 (CP)—Immigration department officials declined this morning to make any statements in respect to the arrival in Winnipeg of Peter Veregin. Officially, there is "nothing to say."

It is understood, it will be recalled was released by the Nova Scotia courts some little time ago on order to be deported by the Department of Immigration. It is also understood a reference was taken to the Supreme Court of Canada which will determine the effect of which was to declare the conclusions of the Nova Scotia courts improperly. Subsequently a warrant for the arrest of Peter Veregin was issued, and this has now been served.

NEW PEACE PACTS AIM OF JAPANESE WITH ALL NATIONS

Tokyo, June 10 (AP)—The Japanese government hopes to establish new peace pacts with all nations. As the same time it is considering whether it should take steps to counteract what; in some circles are considered British commercial policies inimical to Japanese interests.

U. S. Dollar Parity Forever, British View

London, June 10 (AP)—The opinion that there is not the slightest belief in the United States that the dollar would be returned to its gold parity was expressed today in a press interview by Ralph W. Morrison, Texas, a member of the American delegation to the world economic conference.

"If the dollar were returned to its old basis, there would be the greatest debacle in price ever seen," the American asserted.

"People who are now running from dollar securities and into properties would run back to money, and the fall in prices would be terrific."

Fatal Celluloid Plant Fire Probed by Authorities

Bennett Personality Severe by Choice Says London Press in Thumb Sketch

(By George Hambleton)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)
LONDON, June 10.—(CP Cable) —The arresting personalities of the Great World Conference, now only two days distant, flicker in thumbnail sketches across the London Press and Prime Minister R. B. Bennett, leader of the Canadian delegation, appears both in high appreciation and under criticism.

Lord Beaverbrook's Daily Express speaks of Mr. Bennett as one of the few business men who have made good in politics. "Mr. Bennett," says the Express, "continues to lead a severe life by choice. He does not drink. He does not smoke. He reads the Bible all the time. Like so many men who come from Eastern Canada where the winters are hard and the summers cruelly hot, he reads the Old Testament in preference to the new.

"His attitude is to call the cackle whatever success the Ottawa Conference had was due to him—and he antagonizing all those conferences addicts who travel from London to Geneva and from Geneva to Lausanne in order to ensure that nothing shall be done.

"Rumor is always marrying Mr. Bennett to some charming Canadian woman. Rumor also domiciles him in England awards him a peerage. He would make an exciting husband and a constructive peer. The chances are he will remain a single commoner."

But in the Laborite Daily Herald Professor Harold Laski, distinguished authority on Political Science, takes different views. "We are the have the privilege of Mr. Bennett once more," he writes. "Slowly during his years in Canada with the ambition to be a trans-Atlantic Mussolini but without the drive necessary to play the role.

"It was said. 'I think of Lord Palmerston, that he was all brag and bluster; Mr. Bennett is cast in a similar mould. But his star is rapidly on the wane. He returns to takes Ottawa eventually, even Mr. Bennett's enthusiasm is cast in a very minor key.

"He has not the personality to make him look like a big man. Endowed with confidence he not make up for lack of insight."

CELLULOID PLANT BLOWS UP, 9 KILLED

Sheets of Flames Shoot Into Bathers in River

75 INJURED

Search Continues Among Burned Houses And in River

North Arlington, N.J., June 10—(AP)—John F. Guidetti, Bergen County Prosecutor's Detective investigating the Celluloid explosion that added a thirteenth name known deaths, today announced that preliminary investigation of the disaster had produced evidence of incendiarism, and that two Elizabeth, N.J., men were being sought as material witnesses.

Operator Held

Guidetti said he had learned that Fred Hamlett, operator of the plant, held on a technical charge of manslaughter. He said he had been told by business rivals there would be a "bitter fight" to determine which of them would stay in the business after the fire.

North Arlington, N.J., June 10, —(AP)—Nine, perhaps more, were killed in the explosion and fire that followed and perhaps 75 were injured by terrific explosions which tore apart the celluloid plant, hurled seven houses and shot sheets of flame into a screaming throng of bathers.

The blasts, which occurred last night, are believed to have caused several other deaths. Many of the injured were in a critical condition.

Firmen began a renewed search of the Passaic River for bodies said to be found in the burning houses or in the Passaic River. The bathers fled to escape the flames. At least three of the dead are children.

The heat had brought scores of bathers to a small sandy beach at the plant of the Atlantic Pyroxlin Wastd Company, about 8 o'clock yesterday. The darkness descended, men, women and children lingered, splashing in the water.

Flames Shoot 200 Feet

Suddenly—an eye witness John Jackson, said—there was a roar and flames shot upward 200 feet. A blinding orange and flaming celluloid fell in showers. New sheets of fire soon followed.

Shrieks of people in houses nearby were echoed by the screams of bathers as the flames struck them. Scampering and leaping through their bathing suits aflame, many of them plunged into the river. Then a second explosion shattered the night. It was the blast of a gasoline tank. Fire rained anew, enveloping a garage and a parked car.

Several hundred persons fleeing, burning, by leaving clothing, were taken to safety by boat. Those bathers as the flames struck them. Scampered or leaping through their bathing suits aflame, many of them plunged into the river. Then a second explosion shattered the night. It was the blast of a gasoline tank. Fire rained anew, enveloping a garage and a parked car.

Several hundred persons fleeing, burning, by leaving clothing, were taken to safety by boat. Those drowned, police said.

Dies in Hospital

The list of dead were:

Mrs. Joseph Klitch.

Her daughter Mildred. 13.

Stanley Dale.

Mrs. George Dale, his wife.

A 2-year-old child, whose name was Applegat.

Another child and two adults unidentified.

No estimate of the damage was given, but it was said to be more than $100,000. Police expressed the opinion spontaneous combustion may have caused the explosions.

Alex. Scheinnost, operator of the plant, was held on a technical charge of manslaughter.

Mrs. Klitch, whose husband owns the building housing the Celluloid Works, died with her daughter in a hospital. The Dales died in one of the seven burned houses.

FUNNIES IN THE NEWS

CHICAGO, June 10—(AP)—Fred Mueller, the police said, was disgusted.

In the first place they reported, he tossed a brick through a clear store window, and added a handful of cigarettes which turned out to be phony.

When the police arrived he was resigned to his fate.

Gold Beach Ore. June 18. (AP)—A rattlesnake was killed by Randolph Merserey, old timer, riverman, as the reptile was swimming in the middle of the Rouge River. Merserey said that the snake was the largest he ever saw it was only by second time he had seen a rattlesnake swimming the streams.

MAE MURRAY ASKS DIVORCE

She And Two Other Women Put Russ Princes in News

LOS ANGELES, June 10.—(AP)—Russia's Romanoffs was back in the news again today through the agency of three of its once ruling clan.

Mae Murray, the original Nell Brinkley girl of stage and one of them.

Barbara Hutton, the Woolworth heiress, is marrying another one.

And the wife of the third, Mary McCormle, opera singer is going into the movies.

Action by Miss Murray, the actress, to divorce Prince David Alexandrovitch Cantacuzene, Russian dancer, in Reno, yesterday, is the second precipitate visit she made to secure quick action on the fourth of her marital bonds. The first time, in August, 1931, she thought it over for a few days and withdrew her complaint.

Yesterday's foray into court was punctuating with an even more vehement recital of alleged wrongdoings on the part of her husband than occurred the first time. Other formal complaints, however, charged physical violence. This time, she asserted, she separated from the prince only a few hours before she made a flying trip to a lawyer's office and discharged her burden of grievances.

RESIGNATION IS DEMANDED

African Gold Mine Chiefs Irritated by Mine Minister

Johannesburg, South Africa, June 10.—(CP Cable)—Irritation of the gold mining industry of South Africa over Pierre Duncan Colyn Burgh Stock Exchange today demanded the resignation of Minister of Mines Patrick Duncan on the ground he had misled the public regarding taxation of mining profits.

Mining companies claimed the taxation will net the government £12,000,000, instead of £7,000,000 as announced previously.

Chamber of Mines declared companies are unable to decide on dividend declarations until the situation is clarified and the claimed prices of gold shares were falling on the London Stock Exchange as a result of the government's action.

Earlier announcement of the taxation in excess of £8,000,000 would be a "crushing blow" to mines already hard pressed considered by those demanding his resignation.

CRUSHED TO DEATH IN MOVING FLOOR

Stratford, Ont., June 10 (CP) — Crushed by a section of a floor he was helping to move, Simon A. Miller, 64, of Cromarty, was killed last night.

Miller, who had operated a wagon shop in Cromarty 40 years, was attempting to move a portion of a dance floor when one of the sections collapsed on him. He is survived by his widow and a son, Lloyd, of Stratford.

MEASLES PLAY HAVOC WITH UNION SCHOOL

Stratford, Ont., June 10.—(CP)—An epidemic of measles has struck the children of the Union School section of Hibbert Township and the School may be forced to close for lack of attendance.

The register contains the names of 36 pupils but practically all have been stricken with the malady and one lone pupil was present when the school bell rang yesterday.

The school about eighty miles east of Woodstock is in charge of Miss Porter Fisher.

CANADIAN PLANE CRASHES IN FLAMES

Sweeping Fire Destroys Machine Near Ottawa Airport

Ottawa, June 10 (CP)—A Canadian Airways plane, piloted by Pilot Officer Ralph Foster, crashed in flames on the Ottawa airport this afternoon. Foster was killed instantly.

The plane was on a test flight when it crashed. Eye witnesses said it was flying low when it suddenly burst into flames. Foster was thrown clear of the machine, but was dead when reached.

The plane was completely destroyed by fire.

NEARING END OF BAD TIMES

Quebec Premier Gives View on Shoe Industry

Quebec, June 10 (CP)—"I think we are really coming to the end of the hard times, we had in Canada since 1929," declared Premier L. A. Taschereau today, speaking of improvement in the shoe industry.

"The depression is certainly not finished but our tanning news is coming to us from all quarters."

"We have heard of improvement this week in the lumber trade and in the pulp and paper industry," the Premier added, "and this morning I have been informed that the price of hides, which were recently selling at 3 cents per pound, has gone up to nine cents, while calf skin has gone up from 35 cents to 85 cents. There must be more before we can be sure of prosperity," he added, "but when farmers realize that they are no longer forced to give away their goods, and can run their farms at a profit; when the lumberman can get a fair price for stroke of work for months is busy again; when the manufacturer can produce more and can sell more products; when the retail merchant can get rid of stock which threatened to rot on his shelves—there will be prosperity, and there is a big change for the better."

RUSH TO RESCUE FAILS

Brother Hayes Heroic Attempt to Save Douglas Conn

Stratford, Ont., June 10—(CP)—Waters of Forman's Creek, 11 miles southwest of this city today were the scene of tragedy when five-year-old Douglas Conn, drowned last night while diving from a bridge.

Young Conn went to his death after a desperate struggle in which his older brother, Arthur, 15, and Ernest Hayes, 16, tried to hold him up until the rowboat manned by Norman Conn, cousin of the boy, could be brought close enough to rescue him. When Harry McMurray was rowed to the Conn lads go and swim to the boat. Arriving at the spot they found the brother who sank in 16 feet of water.

Dick Philip Qualifies for 220 Yard Senior Final at Schoolboy Track Meet

Local Track Star in Heat Which Creates New Ontario Record

GREAT MEET

Keen Competition And Stars in Embryo Seen

Varsity Stadium, Toronto June 10 (CP)—A pair of records were shattered and a dozen others approached here this morning as more than 250 of Ontario's best schoolboy track and field athletes went into the final day of the provincial championships.

The record-breaking performances scored in sprint heats, bore promise of even better time in the finals. Dick Philip of Peel Bowden of North Toronto Collegiate stepped his senior 220 yard heat in 23.6 to lower the existing Ontario mark by a fifth of a second.

In his intermediate 220 yard heat Red Rogers of Simcoe was caught in 23.2 or a fifth of a second faster than the intermediate provincial mark.

Bert Pearson of Hamilton easily qualified in a 100 yard heat to defend the title he won a year ago. The Olympic star was ahead in 10.3 flat as he stepped in front of E. Gillespie of Port William, both qualifying for the finals.

Pearson withdrew from the 220 yard event, leaving Graham Lee of Hamilton Central Collegiate a strong favorite to win in the final. Lee qualified for both 100 and 220.

No Field Records

Field events failed to get near records in the opening skirmishes.

M. Walker of Harbord Collegiate, Toronto, won the junior broad jump with a leap of 19 feet 8 inches. Ken Knox of Windsor, was second.

J. Homer, of Vaughan Road Collegiate, Toronto, was victor in the intermediate shot put at 42 feet 6 1-4 inches. R. McAdam of Ottawa, was second and J. Parmer, Windsor third.

Border Cities sprinters came through their first heats in good style but the Windsor relay team, expected to be a strong contender for both junior and Lizzie. He captured his heats at both distances with ease. O. Rahkopf, of Hanover, also impressed observers as he qualified in the century.

Bobby Windsor, won his way to the intermediate 100 yard final, leading his heat in 10.4. Ron Greer, also of Hanover, was made a strong favorite for the sprints in the 220 yard division. The Belleville qualified for the finals in 220 yards senior, the best being a new Ontario record.

City and District News

RAMINGS RECEIVE COAT OF PAINT

In line with the repair work throughout the city now being carried on by the department of public works, the iron railings along the Moira River embankment north of the upper bridges are being given a renewal coat of black paint this week. Other matters have been busy on realistic traffic warning signs on the cross walks and curbs in the city, and renewing the middle strips on the main intersections of the city streets.

TIRE AND TUBE FALL FROM CAR

"Where's the car?"

At the local police station is a perfectly good tire, tube and rim on a wire wheel that was found on Coleman Street by Constable Evans early last evening.

The wire wheel with the inflated tire and tube attached, apparently fell off the side of a large truck as the wheel is a large one. It is thought that it came from the place on a fender as a strap and bracing iron are missing.

The police have the tire and wheel, so where's the car?

SHOES ARE TAKEN WHEN CHILD BATHES

Mrs. A. Woodhouse, 1 Emily St., reported to the police loss of her little daughter's shoes, which are believed stolen from under the upper C.N.R. bridge while the little girl was in swimming. The police are investigating.

50 YARDS OF STONE CRUSHED EACH DAY

With machinery humming in the city quarry at present, an average of fifty yards of crushed stone a day is being delivered from the large crusher, which is kept constantly in operation during fine days. It is expected that at least five weeks' work will be necessary in order to accumulate enough stone for the stock pile to keep up with road repair work later on.

DREDGING TO START NEXT WEEK

Governmental engineers are still at work in the harbor laying out lines and grades for the work of dredging which is expected to commence the first of next week. The dredge, tug and barges have been fitted out and put in shape for the long summer's work, that lies ahead.

R. A. M. TO ATTEND DIVINE SERVICE

Moira Chapter No. 7 R.A.M. is to attend divine worship Sunday morning at Holloway St. United Church, where the pastor the Rev. H. B. Neal will preach, and have charge of the services. Companions of Quinte Friendship Chapter No. 227 and companions of sister chapters throughout the district are invited to meet at Masonic Hall, Front St. at 10.15 A.M. to proceed to the church.

QUENCH GRASS FIRE AT DUMP

Firemen on the hottest day of the year yesterday, were called to the end of Foster Avenue just before three o'clock, where a grass fire had spread from the city dump at the foot of the street into the neighboring fields. Head of the hose was necessary to quench the threatening blaze.

MISS C. WHALEN IS PRIZE WINNER

Distinction was conferred this week on Miss Catherine Whalen of this city who was listed among the prize winners announced at St. Michael's Hospital training school in Toronto, on the occasion of the graduation of nurses this year. Miss Whalen was successful in gaining the coveted Dr. Norman Allan Scholarship for highest standing in principles and practice of medical nursing. The honor is emphasized by the fact that one of the largest classes in years were graduated this year.

CONCRETE CREW NOW DOWNTOWN

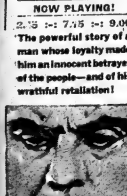
The concrete crew who have been working throughout the business sections of the city during the past week, renewing broken sidewalks, dug out into the Front Street section on Friday, where they will take up half a block many here, ken patches of street walk.

NEW SET OF TIRES PLACED ON SWEEPER

For the first time in six year's steady operation, the city street sweeper has been fitted out with a new set of solid rubber tires to replace the old ones which have become badly worn. Driver Fred Bly estimates that during the daily summer time rounds of the machine in that period a distance of some 20,000 miles has been covered by the machine on the city streets.

E. C. METCALFE NOW DESERONTO REEVE

In order to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Reeve Van Dusen of Deseronto Village Mr. E. C. Metcalfe, of Deseronto was elected Reeve at the village by acclamation meeting held there this this week. He will attend the June session of Hastings County Council on Tuesday June 13.



62 TENDERS FOR O. S. D. EXTENSION

Sixty-two tenders for the work of constructing new dormitories at the Ontario School for the Deaf, have been received by the Ontario Department of Public Buildings and Works were advertised some time ago, according to one local contractor who has also put in a bid for the job. Tenders are expected to be opened at Toronto on Tuesday when the award for the work will be announced.

BLOSSOM TEA A FINE SUCCESS

A wreath of fragrant flowers greeted visitors at the Blossom Tea held yesterday afternoon by Trinity Society. The artistic arrangement and the beauty of the blooms made the tea room a delight. The guests were received by Mrs. J. W. Kinnear, Mrs. Harry Hill, Mrs. Leo Riggs and Mrs. J. Buchanan. Mrs. D. Bews was hostess to the tea room and Mrs. John Cooke and Miss Mildred Cooke poured tea, with members of the society assisting in the serving. The lovely weather brought many visitors out to the tea and the event proved most successful.

STRAWBERRIES 25 TO 30 BOX

Featured Local Market Carried on Under Intense Heat

Fresh, home grown strawberries, selling at 25c and 30c a box featured Saturday's market.

Despite the rather intense heat during market hours there was a large crowd and business seemed to be on the upgrade. Butter sold at 24c to 25c a lb., two pounds for 45c, while eggs remained firm at 14 to 15c a dozen. Live chicks were 5c each, and young ducklings sold for 25c each.

Young broilers were the main item in the meat market, hundreds of these small friers were offered at from 50c to 80c a pair, according to weight. Other milk fed chickens of larger size brought from 60c to $1.00 each. Many bouquets of beautiful cut flowers, both domestic and wild, were displayed and added a touch of beauty to the otherwise drab market place.

Vegetables are additional ten cents higher per bag, bringing the price up to 85c. Large quantities of vegetables, such as rhubarb, beet greens, asparagus, lettuce, radishes and other green vegetables were offered at from 3c a bunch to three bunches for 25c.

On the south side of the outside market shed, cut into sore lengths, found ready buyers; hay sold at $11. per ton.

WHIRLPOOL FORMATION TO BE BLASTED OUT

Steam Drills Have Prepared Holes For Dynamite

Modern dynamite will blast out of existence this week a million year old prehistoric whirlpool formation in the rock at the city quarry, Dundas Street East. The hole men have been slowly working toward the location of the formation of the ancient whirlpool in the hard limestone, and this week steam drills have been penetrating their holes close of the sides of the ancient site. With the blasting of the rock which will follow, an interesting object that has been visited by scores during the past year will disappear.

POLLY ECHO WICKLOW ON WAY TO RECORD

Holstein Cow is Owned by Mr. Fred Hubbs, Bloomfield

Milk production history is believed to have been made by the mature Polly Echo Wicklow, purebred Holstein cow owned by Mr. Fred Hubbs of Bloomfield. The cow has given 103 lbs. of milk, 105% and 105 lbs. successive milking days this week, with twice-a-day milking. The highest production on record previous was officially recorded at 101 lbs., with three times a day milking.

This record does not stop there, however, for the same cow has given an average of 100 lbs. of milk for seven days. No special attention has been paid the animal, and she has been allowed the run of the pasture with the rest of the herd. Twenty-four pounds of grain a day has been fed her to help increase her production. Entered in the 305-day R.O.P. test she is expected to make a name for herself and her owner as a heifer. Polly Echo Wicklow was not in special demand and had changed hands many times before Mr. Hubbs secured her. The sire of her sire was a famous bull, purchased by Senator Hardy at a price of $6000.

ANYTHING BUT STEAK AND ONIONS NOT MEAL

Relief Applicant Needs Medicine, But Refers Meals

"Shake well, and take before meals," reads the label on the bottle of medicine which was handed out to the relief applicants at the Central Relief Office after applications had been made.

"Can't take the medicine," firmly asserted the recipient some time after the medicine had been handed over.

"Why?" questioned one of the clerks.

"Because it says on the bottle, 'take before meals'—we haven't any meals in the house."

Further questioning revealed the fact that the owner of the medicine considered steak and onions the only fit meal to follow the medicine.

ONE-ACT PLAYS GIVEN AT ALBERT COLLEGE PROGRAM

Pupils of Expression Department Complete Work of Year

Pupils of the Expression Department of Albert College, assisted by pupils of Mr. S. Anglin, took part in a program of high order in Memorial Chapel last evening. The attendance from the girls' lots of senior students showed the careful training by their director, Miss Ruth Lockhart and their own genuine talent.

Three one-act plays were given. In the first, junior students were seen in a Rose Pyleman fantasy "The Mermaid" with Margaret Truesdale as the boy Con, Jean Cook as the girl Tilly and Mary Green as the Mermaid. The naturalness of the actors and the way in which they entered into the spirit of the play made it delightful.

"The Jumble Sale", suggesting busy scene at theas popular bargain events had a note of pathos in it as a discarded garment recalls a whole chain of strong memories, and so familiar to the little community.

The characters included Catharine Smith as Peggy Chamberlain, Mary Vermilyea, Mrs. Barkington; Mildred Lloyd, Mrs. Richman; Jean Marshall, Mrs. Townsend; Helen Sulman as Mrs. Dixon.

The concluding play was the most humorous on the program, entitled "Between the Soup and the Savory" (by Gertrude Jennings). The play showed life in the kitchen with a cross section of life in the dining-room, the latter as interpreted by Aida, the maid, by her co-workers. The part of Marie, the cook, was taken by Helen Sulman, that of Aida, the maid, by Bernice Arbuckle, and Emily, the scullery maid, by Ina Scoccia in complicating matters considerably in her desire to create an impression that she is a "real cook"—Joan Marshall.

Selma Brant Maidens "The Two Grenadiers" and Frank Hichen "Home On the Range" completed a splendid program.

MRS. R. H. BELL REMEMBERED

Reception And Afternoon Tea at Bridge Street Church

The ladies—of the congregation of Bridge Street United Church held an afternoon tea in the church parlours in honour of Mrs. R. H. Bell, who was presented with handsome gift which is taken up the aisles on which she is held by her associates who are soon to miss her presence among them.

The guests were received by Mrs. Gilbert, president the Women's Association, and Mrs. Chas. W. Bishop, Mrs. Fred Deacon and Mrs. Howard Clarke invited the guests to the tea room where Mrs. E. J. Baker and Mrs. R. Farnsworth presided at the tea table.

Mrs. Bishop on behalf of the ladies read an address in which was expressed the affection in which Bell's leaving and recalling the pleasant memories spent with her. Mrs. Gilbert then made the presentation to Mrs. Bell of a handsome fur coat, an under fur bag and a bouquet of flowers.

Mrs. Bell made a charming reply saying that her contact in Belleville had been a happy one, during years she had spent and thanking her friends for their lovely gifts and expressions of good will.

An enjoyable program followed, the numbers including a duet by Mrs. Spalling and Mrs. Monckton, a reading by Ralph Morden and a vocal solo by Mrs. O. H. Stobie.

SOME RELIEF FROM EXCESSIVE HEAT GIVEN

Cool Winds Waft Gently Over City Homes

Relief came late last evening from the excessive heat, which held the city in its steamy, perspiring grip throughout the day, with the coming of nightfall cool winds replacing the blistering heat of the hot sun, which softened asphalt pavements and boosted soft drink sales to new high records. A drop of from the highest points 86 above on the hottest June day in years, to a comparatively low 58 late in the evening was registered by the mercury, a drop in temperature of eight degrees, over the high mark of Friday; cool winds also assisting in keeping the record temperatures down, although a brassy sun still shone from a clear sky. Weather officials laid the blame for the successive heat fell by citizens on Friday to the high humidity content of the air. Official registrations for the last twenty-four hours were given out Friday—high 86; low 64. High Tp. low, 56. Temperature of the water of Bay— 72.

IRIS SHOW IS HELD IN Y.M.C.A

Belleville Horticultural Society Has Season's June 21

Their first flower show of the season, the Iris Show, sponsored by Belleville Horticultural Society opened in the Y.M.C.A. last evening and will continue until a late hour tonight.

The exhibits are of a splendid quality although the total number of entries is not as large as in previous years, due to late season of the season. Blooms for competition in the exhibition combined to make a beautiful collection of these lovely flowers. The efficient judges were Mr. and Mrs. B. J. Mummings.

As one entered the Y.M.C.A. one saw a long table of single entries, flanked on either side by masses of blooms exhibited by local professional growers. The field Iris series and Givena, Florists, had splendid exhibits of irises and peonies.

Two beautiful baskets of early summer flowers were exhibited by A. R. Symons while Mrs. R. R. Mumingar exhibits of dwarf polyanthus roses and large baskets of irises are worthy of special note.

The winners in the competition last night received points towards the Graham Cup which will be awarded at the fall show. The prize list follows.

LARGE CONFIRMATION CLASS PREPARED

Archbishop O'Brien to Administer Sacrament

His Excellency Archbishop O'Brien of Kingston, arrived in town today to administer the Sacrament of Confirmation to a class of over one hundred and fifty at St. Michael's Church, the ceremony to take place tomorrow morning. This morning the candidates received Holy Communion in a body at seven-thirty Mass and this afternoon were examined by the Archbishop.

Moose Strolls Thru Gilmour

Residents of the village of Gilmour, Limerick township, were startled and excited this week when a large moose strolled thru' the village. Just what tempted the monarch of the forest to leave the wooded area is a matter of conjecture, but the fly and mosquito pest was probably the cause. Many residents of the village had never before had the privilege of seeing a live moose, being startled this morning at an early hour.

FOUND DEAD IN ROADWAY

Hartford, N.Y., June 10 (AP)—The bodies of two flashily dressed young men were found early today lying side by side in a field not far from the fashionable Westchester County village.

Each bag been shot in the abdomen and head, and in the pockets were found rolls of bills totalling $1,000.

Police were investigating to determine whether the men were killed by gangsters.

JAMES BROUGH IS INJURED

Falls From Truck in Trenton Injuring Chest

Trenton, June 10 (Special)—JAS. Brough, laborer, employed by J. J. McMullen, received injuries to his chest, right side of head and right forearm when he fell from a truck at the corner of Lorne Ave. and Dufferin St. The truck was owned by Mr. McMullen and driven by Mr. O'Malley. Cecil Belnap was on the truck at the time and he yelled to O'Malley to stop. Bernard Rouce, who was driving the car behind, called the injured man who was attended by Dr. E. A. McQuade.

Today Mr. Brough is progressing favourably.

Montrose Wins

Harry Coyon's Montrose softball eleven won their third straight game when they defeated LeBeau's Foreign Legion 6-4.

"Sir" Brant, the Legion hurler struck out ten batsmen and allowed only five hits. Two of the Legion mates playing errorless ball, but the errorless ball, but the errors came at the right time. Bruce Burtt started for Montrose and was relieved in the fifth by Thompson who kept the Legionaires from scoring any more runs.

The game was one of the best played on the local diamond this year, "Buck" Furnia hit for a circuit clout with Wells on, in the second stanza.

College St. School Wins

The big game of the season, between College and Dufferin School softball teams, was played yesterday afternoon for the championship. The College emerged the winner for the second year in succession by a score of 19-15. Dufferin came from behind a 17-1 score in the fifth to come within four of tying up the game, scoring seven in each of the two last stanzas.

The large crowd of school children who packed the stands and ropes and boos showed the importance of the game.

TRAINING HERE IMPROBABLE

No Credit Given Rumor Manitoba Deaf May be Sent Here

"Quite improbable," declared Mr. H. B. Petterjey, superintendent of the Ontario School for the Deaf, when interviewed today regarding the possibility of the local school being asked to take over the work of caring for deaf pupils in the Winnipeg School for the Deaf.

Rumors have been heard that the Manitoba School might possibly close this school term or some time in the future, and that the pupils of the school would be cared for by the Institution at Belleville which is under the Ontario Government.

According to Mr. Petterjey, the probability of such a change is remote.

Appropriations for the school in Manitoba had been made this year by the Provincial government to carry on the work, he pointed out and the capacity of the school has been increased - from $20,000 to $40,000.

Local residents will recall that over forty years ago, W. D. MacDiarmid of the Institute of the Deaf, left this city for the west, where he founded the present Winnipeg School for the Deaf.

England Offers to Pay Part of Debt Instalment in Gold as Gesture of Good Faith

Decision on Default Not Made Until President Replies

BANS SUBJECT

Debt Issue Not Part of Discussions at Conference

London, June 10. — The British government Friday night cabled a new war debts note to Washington, for communication to President Roosevelt.

The note was decided upon at a lengthy session of the cabinet, presided over by Prime Minister J. Ramsay MacDonald. The cabinet withheld its final decision on meeting or defaulting the June 15 payment to the United States until the President replies.

The government dispatched the war debts note after Secretary of State Cordell Hull, chief of the U.S. Red States delegation to the World Economic Conference, had rejected urgent efforts of Prime Minister MacDonald to inject the delicate war debts question into discussions during the parley, convening here on Monday.

Hull's rejection occurred at a luncheon with the Prime Minister, immediately preceding a prolonged session of the British Cabinet on the question of whether the government will pay or default the war debt instalment due next Wednesday.

The note, it was reported in reliable quarters, would offer to pay one-fourth of the $19,000,000 instalment as a gesture of good faith, or possibly one-half, entirely in gold. The Cabinet was understood to have approved such a gesture and was journed without further action on the June 15 payment, pending President Roosevelt's reply, expected promptly.

Secretary Hull's firm rejection of the Prime Minister's overtures came at a private luncheon at the residence of Ray Atherton, counselor of the United States embassy.

Hull told MacDonald that, while he appreciated the urgency of the debts question, he was forced to decline to discuss the subject because neither he nor any of the United States delegation to the Economic Conference had been authorized to say a word on that controversial problem.

The Prime Minister hurried off to the Cabinet meeting, but persons close to him made no attempts to disguise the fact that absence of a war debt settlement now will make the intricate problems before the economic parley highly difficult of solution.

Hull may confer with MacDonald again over the week-end at Chequers, the Prime Minister's country home in England. He said they had renewed their friendship made in Washington during MacDonald's visit, at today's luncheon. Only he, MacDonald and Atherton were present.

Hull likewise dodged the war debts question in an interview with the British press, but spoke again freely on his tariff program. He insisted that tariff reductions and currency stabilization must be carried out simultaneously to be effective.

The British, as one of their major proposals, intend to submit a recommendation immediately after the opening of the Economic Conference calling for the creation of a semi-ling permanent body to insure that the resolutions adopted at the conference adopts actually are put into effect.

Seek Exchange of Views

Meanwhile, members of the United States delegation held a meeting during the afternoon, and decided to seek an exchange of views with the chiefs of state of the principal nations before the conference opens Monday.

The full delegation, with the exception of Senator James Couzens, left by train on his way to London, at a meeting again tomorrow were expected to review the draft of Secretary Hull's speech to the World Conference in the light of the latest instructions from President Roosevelt.

His speech, it was learned, probably will emphasize the necessity for lowering tariff barriers on the assumption that the administration will have ample powers to push into effect a lower tariff program in America.

Century Old Log Cabin Moved from Hungerford to City for Centennial

Mr. Joseph Hart of the Township of Hungerford, has made an offer to W. C. Mikel, K.C., to lend a log cabin on his farm to the Centennial Committee of Belleville, to be used during the Centennial celebration next year.

The log cabin is now over a century old and was one time used as the home of the former owner of the farm. When the cabin is placed in position in the city arrangements will be made to receive old household utensils, tools and other articles that were used by our forefathers in other days.

Offers have come in from persons to be permitted to make use of the log cabin as an old time store for the sale of groceries, tobacco, etc. Some persons from the rural sections have expressed a desire to use it on the market from which to sell homemade cooking, homemade woven goods and homemade preserved meals.

It has not yet been decided just where the log cabin will be located, but every effort will be made to have it placed in a conspicuous position so that the people in the present day will be able to form some idea of the manner in which our forefathers lived.

Ottawa, June 10 (CP)—The continued rise in commodity prices and the increasing volume of sales in retail stores together with increased exports of two important commodities, wheat and wheat flour, and increasing price values and volume of transactions on the Canadian stock exchanges indicate the possible incoming of a tide of commercial and industrial prosperity in Canada, "This is apparent," according to a statistical review issued by the Department of Trade and Commerce.

Although production statistics are slow in reporting the renewed activities indicated by press despatches for the leading Canadian industries, early returns show that stocks are depleted and that production is on the upgrand the review continues.

Wholesale prices in May were over five per cent higher than in February when the lowest point since pre-war days was reached. The government index for wholesale prices for May was at its month last year and was the third highest since the corresponding consecutive month to show an increase. Retail sales in April were nearly 20 per cent higher than in February although, as the government index of retail sales is based on the value of sales, the increase in the cost of commodities would account for part of this increase.

For the ninth consecutive week both the value and the volume of transactions on the Canadian stock and mining exchanges have been on the up-grade.

Istanbul, Turkey, June 10—(AP)—Twelve persons were reported killed or injured and 50 others missing in the wreckage of a train derailment today as a result of the derailment of a section of the Taurus Express near Eskishehr.

The train was enroute to Ahanas. The derailment was due to floods, which had damaged the line.

DEPRESSION COLORS GONE

Toronto, June 10.—Gone are the depression blues, dark browns, drab greys and all the mournful colors men have worn during the past four years. David Dunlap, president of Tip Top Tailors Limited, the largest individual made-to-measure men's tailoring house in the British Empire, made this observation today in announcing the greatest spring business in their history.

"We have had to place re-orders for new shipments of gay colors —light lighter, cheerier shades of cloth," stated Mr. Dunkelman today. "It clearly reflects the better spirit which is showing itself everywhere. All the way from Vancouver to Halifax — in Edmonton, Regina, Toronto, Montreal, Saint John — our orders for spring clothes are the best we've ever had. We are employing 1,000 hands on full time. Our payroll for the first five months of 1933 amounted to $500,000.00.

"We are planning to keep business going ahead by increasing our newspaper advertising. We are convinced that better times will stay with us if we can help them improvement with spending money in our business and on our business. Newspaper advertising has done a real job for us and we are increasing our schedules."

CASE OF PROF EAKIN LEFT TO COMMITTEE

Select Middle Course After Two Days of Debate

12 SELECTED

Seven Ministers And Five Elders Will Review Whole Question

(By J. F. SANDERSON)

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Pictou, June 10.—The fate of Prof. Thomas Eakin, demoted principal of Knox College, Toronto tonight was in the hands of a committee.

Selecting a middle course after two days of acrimonious debate, the Presbyterian General Assembly today appointed a committee of 12 to review the whole contentious subject of Knox College administration, including the primary question of the reinstatement of the tall, greyhaired divine who was demoted from the principalship last year. Between now and Monday, the committee of 12—seven ministers and five elders—will review the case for and against the deposed seminary head. Climaxing a heated day of debate, the committee was named today at the suggestion of the moderator, Rt. Rev. Hugh Grant, Port William. It will study the whole situation over the week-end, reporting to the assembly Monday afternoon.

The Committee

The committee was named as follows: Rev. D. H. Marshall of Guelph; Rev. John A. Shortt, Barrie; Rev. S. J. Macarthur Moncton, N.B.; Rev. J. A. Ross, Saskatoon Sask.; Rev. J. A. Mustard, Toronto; Rev. Hugh Grant, Port William. It will study the whole situation over the week-end

PROBLEMS OF GOVERNMENT

At the annual meeting of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association this week, W. C. Coulter, the retiring president referred particularly to the problems which are facing the governments and spending bodies in these days. He noted that they were struggling under the legacy of optimism of previous generations which were convinced that Canada in a few years was to have a population of twenty or thirty million people and that the plain duty was to extend the civil services, expand government buildings, add facilities in education, plan extension of railways, build highways and reasonable and proper plan for a growing country which, however, was first checked by the war which shut down on immigration and changed the plans of the people so that the planning was actually far in advance of the needs.

The president goes on: "Unfortunately, governments have to continue collecting taxes to pay for these things. On top of this load were suddenly and heavily piled increasing annual expenditures for unemployment and relief. That practically all governments have been and are reducing ordinary expenditures is evident from their budgets, but these savings have been contrabalanced, more or less, by the cost of relieving distress. Taxpayers are justified in insisting on economy in governmental administration, but they should go further. They should recognize the facts of the situation and appreciate the difficulties with which leaders of governments are struggling, and, conversely, they should cooperate with the various governments by making specific and practical recommendations as to how unnecessary expenditures may be curtailed and also by refraining from asking for expenditures except on projects which can be justified economically until the anticipated improvement of conditions and consequent rise of prices enable taxpayers, without undue hardship to pay current taxes and to make provision for debt reduction."

DISASTERS IN NATURE

Disaster which has befallen Western Ontario with a toll of two millions in property loss fortunately did not touch the eastern part of the province.

The many disasters which have conspired ever since creation to make periodic or occasional storms worked their worst on Wednesday.

There is something so terrifying in summer storms with the accompaniment of lightning and thunder that a dramatic element is thrown into them which seems to be lacking in winter storms. The addition of the heat wave is practically always associated with these disturbances.

Wednesday's storm struck the countryside where the elemental rage had full sweep.

Such events are one of the drawbacks of summer heat and of this ideal climate, but fortunately they are rare in this province.

This is the time to pick up health and restored vitality, regard nerves after the worries of an indoor life, of almost eight or ten months.

APPRECIATION OF FEDERAL AID

In a day when endless requests for financial aid in relief are pressing upon the government it is pleasant to see in one city appreciation of what the government is doing for a municipality. This is in Oshawa. The Oshawa Times speaks of the real help the federal government has been to that place in taking off the hands of the municipality those who would be on the relief lists. But it is not only the relief which stirs the Times, for it notes that a new spirit cannot but manifest itself in the minds of the men themselves. "This means that these men have come to realize their responsibility to the city and themselves, knowing that they are no longer dependent on relief sources for their sustenance, but are earning it by the sweat of their brows."

Oshawa appreciates what is being done in itse behalf.

SEVENTEEN THOUSAND, FIVE HUNDRED DOLLARS for one page of advertising, one time, in a publication with headquarters in New York City, seems a lot of money to Belleville business men accustomed to the low price of newspaper space locally. It is a matter of circulation, and the large figure quoted at the beginning of this article figures down to a relatively small figure per thousand readers.

Just the same way with this Great Family Journal, its advertising rates per thousand are considerably lower than the combined rate of two-newspaper days —giving the advertisers more for their money and the readers a much better newspaper.

"MISREPORTED" the definition of that ugly word should be "the alibi for mistakes." Public speakers sometimes get so intoxicated with the exuberance of their own verbosity, as noted humorist once said, that they really do not know what they have said until they read the newspaper and if the report does not satisfy them they immediately say "Misreported," and the reporter takes the blame—generally without talking back, for among the meek and lowly of the earth, the reporter, the editor, and the newspaper proprietor are the meekest, apparently—but usually they do not always consider the "misreported" of sufficient importance to argue the question. Some men in public life seem to have the reputation to be frequently misreported, despite the fact that trained reporters with no other object on earth than to get the correct report, are straining every nerve to get their meaning. If all speeches were reported just as they are made there would be few unfurnished reading. It is said of Hon. G. Howard Ferguson among newspaper men that, although he has been misreported at times he never raised a "holler," but let it ride —one of the reason why the lads of the press of both sides of politics, always regarded Sir James as a good sport and played invariably to give him as square a deal as possible. Hon. Howard Ferguson was an "old-timer" with the newspaper boys and always took them into his confidence and tried to make it as easy for them as possible on political tours or in Queen's Park. Public men who claim to be victims of "misreporting" very often have themselves to blame—instead of regarding the newspaper man as their friend they too often regard him as an enemy trying to get them wrong, when in reality his strongest endeavour is to get him right, absolutely right.

SUSPICIOUS SYMPTOMS OF ULCERATIONS

Medical And Surgical Treatment For Ulcers

BY LOUIS E. BISCH, M.D., Ph.D., Famous Authority on Health Subjects

That quite without reason many persons are obsessed by fear of stomach ulcer is undeniable. On the other hand, there are also those who have such an ulcer, or are in serious danger of developing one, and are entirely without suspicion of what is going on.

An ulcer is an abrasion—a rubbing-off as to speak of small part of the lining of the stomach or intestines. Usually such an abrasion is quite small and seldom does more than one ulcer exist.

A stomach ulcer, however, is always to be considered a serious matter and those who know they suffer from such a condition, yet persist in disregarding the strictest orders in regard to it, are courting the worst possible kind of trouble. The danger lies in the fact that such a deficiency of stomach lining may enlarge and grow deeper, and the ulcer finally bores its way through the stomach wall and makes a hole. This is what physicians call "perforation". If prompt surgical help is not obtained a perforation may readily prove fatal.

Although ulcer of the stomach appears to be more frequent among women, ulcer of the intestines, that is, the beginning of the small intestine, where it joins the stomach—is more common among men.

It may be mentioned incidentally that the stomach lies on the left side, the rise on the left side while the duodenum or intestine is about eight or ten inches from the lower end of the stomach. The duodenum is really a U-shaped tube. It is in this intestine which oil-in-all, is some twenty feet long, that the greatest portion run small canals from the pancreas empty.

High-strung, tense, nervous types are the ones prone to ulcers. In this connection the hydrochloric content of the gastric, or stomach, juice is high.

Such increased acidity naturally irritates sensitive nerves. We may be experienced either before or after eating. The formation of gas is usual as well as unpleasant. The "heartburn" and nearly all ulcer patients give a history of having dosed themselves with bicarbonate of soda for months if not years.

Should one be subject to repeated attacks of indigestion it does not follow that an ulcer is present. Nevertheless such symptoms should put the patient on the alert and medical advice should be sought. Repeated attacks of nausea and vomiting are distinctly suspicious signs while vomiting of blood may be the indication of a serious condition.

Bleeding from stomach ulcer does not always however produce vomiting. Sometimes such blood appears in the stools, making them look dark, like tar. When the blood is vomited it is usually bright red in color.

Persons with stomach or duodenal ulcer soon look pale because the bleeding produces a secondary anemia. Sometimes loss of weight in addition should always lead the patient to have himself thoroughly examined with special reference to the stomach and intestinal functions.

Medical treatment may cure some ulcers. In others, only operative interference is indicated.

Dr. Bisch's Daily Diet Hint

Always cook pork thoroughly, especially in warm weather. The reason pork is not borne well by some people is because the fat lies between the individual fibres of the meat. Because of this the fat and protein are eaten together and their separation is difficult in the process of digestion. It is, on the other hand, the fat lies in a separate layer.

What London Parley Will Try to Achieve

Diagram shows at a glance the aims of the London economic conference

NEW YORK, June 10—What are the aims of the world economic conference beginning Monday in London?

Columns have been written, lectures have been given, diplomatic notes have been dispatched. Here is a simplified outline, telling at a glance the aims of the conference, which probably will last for months:

STABILIZATION OF CURRENCIES—A fixed ratio. This a pound may be established as $4 (or some such figure) against the dollar. Normally, trade is the basis of the pound against the dollar, but the dollar has depreciated since the United States went off the gold standard. It is likely that major currencies will be based against the franc as France has remained on the gold standard. In short, stable currencies will have to be found against which to base the unstable currencies.

RETURN TO GOLD STANDARD. If the majority of currency experts prevail, countries will unite to recommend a gold standard basis for all major countries again. The benefits, it is asserted, would be found in stable currencies by which international trade and exchange could be carried on without fear of constant dislocation.

INCREASE IN PURCHASING POWER OF SILVER. This would enable a billion persons in the Orient and the remainder of the world to enter into world markets for purchases, and would raise their standard of living.

REMOVAL OF EXCHANGE RESTRICTIONS. Thus permitting an easy flow of credit and trade.

TARIFF AND TRADE RECIPROCITY. The American delegation, under Secretary of State Cordell Hull takes this stand: The tariff war that has been raging, with its higher and higher duties (to shut out goods produced with depreciated currencies) and the quota restrictions have played havoc with world trade. Secretary Hull proceeds under the assumption that better and freer trade is the real foundation of prosperity. The United States will propose early in the conference a horizontal reduction of 10 per cent in world tariffs.

INCREASE WORLD COMMODITY PRICES. The whole world, particularly agriculture, has been suffering from the collapse of commodity prices. The only real means by which commodity prices can be sustained is through demand. (Many temporary measures have been resorted to, but always finally with a loss to the people as a whole.) The chief means of raising commodity prices is through bringing about conditions by which trade flows freely, men earn more and demand more.

CO-ORDINATION OF NATIONAL BANK POLICIES and practices. Losses from lack of concerted effort to regulate international banking, both that controlled by nations and by private bankers, have been large.

WORLD DEBTS. On this problem, a sore one not only to the American people but to the peoples of other countries, the American delegation is pledged not to speak. The whole conference, however, is likely to end in a whimper, if not bitter, discussion of intergovernmental and private rates.

CHAPTER THREE

"Are you an announcer?" Judy asked Elton Day.

"I? Heavens, no!" I can't stand listening to myself talk." Day said, with a pointed look at Dick Mason.

"But—" Judy began. She saw a flush on Dick's smooth face. So they weren't good friends!

"I write." Day said in very simply.

"Write? Books?"

"One only. So far anyhow. And no good either. But I'm working on another one. And writing radio stuff meanwhile. Tripe. Stuff about how to be beautiful and—Oh! Wait a minute! What's this program you're going to work on?"

Now Judy saw Dick Mason wry, really angry.

"What—it's called the Beauty Builder."

Judy stopped. For Elton Day had thrown back his head and begun to laugh a great, cheering laugh that made people at the other tables turn and stare, that made the waiter grin—that seemed to make Dick angrier every moment.

"That's marvelous!" Elton Day managed at last. Nothing less than marvelous! Because—Guess what, Miss Allison?

"What?"

"I write the Beauty Builder, I write the stuff you've got to read, a new program a just star and We'll have to spend a lot of time together. We certainly will. Thank you, Dick. Thanks a lot. Because you couldn't have got a nicer person for just the sort of character I want to write—Isn't that right, Miss Allison?"

He became suddenly business-like. But Judy wasn't fooled.

"I'm afraid I can't talk about it much right now," she said.

She ought to say "Dont you see? I'm Dick Mason's friend. I'm his private secretary." But she couldn't say that. She could only be desperate, Jr. She needed this chance. And she'd have to work with Elton Day. He's to get along with him to take his suggestions.

"Oh ahead Judy," Dick said, smiling at her. "Don't worry a very anything. Trying out a new announcer, or voice, or whatever it is. Not on me. I'll see you at the teacroom, Dinner?"

"I'd love to have dinner with you," Judy said gravely. Funny Judy, thought, after all these months of being alone to be in the centre of a situation like this! Two handsome men both wanting to talk to her; and she didn't even know one hadn't some man before. And—Silly little fool! Judy said to herself again. But there is just being kind to you, and the other really wants to get you started right because the program means more money for him if it goes well. Silly little conceited fool! Why can't you grow up? Get over being a small-town girl. Stop thinking you're so nice. You're not pretty really. Although you are very very lucky. So—

"Thank you, Dick," she said softly. "Thank you. Oh, a lot more than I can tell you!"

"That's all right. I wanted to do it.

Dick stood up, looking a little abashed a little unsure. So young, after all! Judy thought, looking at him. Really just as much at sea in the midst of all this—in spite of his apparent self-confidence, she she.

"But I'll try to make good on the job, Dick," she said. "Honestly I will. I'm going to wire my father and just say 'No.' Mighty there in Civil Cargo." Just like that!"

She laughed, at her own vehemence. And Dick grinned too. And then he took her hand. Almost as though he didn't want to let go. Judy thought in spite of herself. And then she said to herself again, "Silly little fool! Conceited!"

"Good-by," Dick said, not looking at Elton Day.

"Good-by, Dick!" Elton said, grinning. "See you soon. On the Big Town Hour tonight. Got some stuff to talk to you about."

"All right," Dick said curtly. Then he handed the hovering waiter a bill, nodded, smiled at Judy again, and disappeared.

"Nice boy," Elton said now.

"Nicest I've ever met' Judy said warmly.

"But—see here, young woman! You've just met me, too, you know."

"I know," Judy said rising.

"Oh! That puts me right in my proper niche on the wall, doesn't it? Well, people have changed their minds about me before. Can happen again. Won't you, sit down?"

Judy wondered if she shouldn't have gone with Dick, if she should be here with Elton. She didn't know much about situations like this, or how to handle them; all very well to see in a play or read in a book about the sort of woman who is always poised always in control of the men who are with her—but sat wrong when you are as young as Judy Allison. She sat down.

" Oh By Dickie!" Elton said, Grinning, "See You Soon."

"More coffee?

"I don't think so."

"That's a very smart girl, Coffee is not good for me. A pause. I think three cups of black coffee every night."

"But why—if it's bad for you?" "Because it's bad for me, I suppose. Same reason I fall in love."

"Oh."

Judy felt more sure than ever that she should have gone with Dick Mason. Not one word she could really object to not one thing that wasn't just light talk, and yet she felt more was coming.

"How about those continuities, Elton Day said suddenly, in an entirely changed voice an utterly business-like voice. "See here, Miss Allison—what's your idea of the character secretary?"

"I don't know anything about radio really. Not, no, I like writing, and in they handed me a—"

"A continuity. Script if you like Jr.

"A continuity. And I read it through being told what I thought of it. So—"

"So, usual, the dumb bunnies gave you no chance at all to get set to write. Well, that hurry's away anything. Trying out a new announcer voice, and they're the first on me. I'll see you at the teacroom, Dinner?"

"I'd love to have dinner with you," Judy said gravely. Funny Judy, thought, after all these months of being alone to be in the centre of a situation like this! Two handsome men both wanting to talk to her; and she didn't even know one hadn't some man before. And—Silly little fool! Judy said to herself again. "Oh, What about me?"

"What?"

"You told me it was a setup for me, didn't you? Said you'd already rigged it for me?"

"I've changed my mind."

"Oh."

Lona took out her compact, rouged her lips breafully, studied her eyes a moment, then snapped the case shut savagely. Judy saw she was fighting hard against anger, that her hands were shaking. "Poison," the blond girl said. Now Judy could believe it.

"Give me the air, will you," the girl snapped suddenly at Elton Day. "For some new kid from the country? Pull that on me?"

"Wait," Judy said. "I don't know what this is all about. But surely I don't want the job if it were already promised to you. I'm sorry."

"Ah!" Lona turned away quickly. "Never mind, girlie, she said over one shoulder. "I'm not interested in you. Keep it. But you——" She stopped closer to Elton Day. "You with you have to answer to me," she said. "And don't forget it."

Then, very quickly she walked away.

Judy felt it was time to look at Elton, to say something, to say anything. The tense silence frightened her. And, looking without wanting to look she saw Lona stagger to the doorway and was staring back. She saw malice in Lona's face, and danger. Her body could look at her in that way. She had never thought about this girl her enemy; she did not deserve to be one. She knew had only half rose, and then she felt Elton's thin hand on her arm.

"Sorry," he said curtly almost as an order.

She obeyed.

"Why—no," she began. The words were waiting. "What right have you to give me orders? What right have you to put me into a situation like this? Whatever it is, I've been given no chance to be spoken for Elton was talking without looking at her, unconsciously.

"You mumb blame me. I didn't know she was your friend. Not that I barely know the girl."

"Judy" Judy asked. Ahd again. "Oh!"

"No."

"But she seemed to know you very well indeed."

"Of course. They all do."

"They all?"

"Judy," he said, and now he looking at her directly and Judy felt he wanted her to believe him.

"Listen to me please," he went on. "Please. Then if you want to go, I won't try to keep you any longer. But let me tell you about Lona Lona."

"Why?"

"Because you ought to know. Because she's dangerous."

"Dangerous?"

"Just that. Lona Burdette gets a lot of radio jobs. Does about five programs a week. And does it well But that's not all. She's a trouble-maker." She's just that. She'll get two people, just gossiping. Just saying that to her own previous to the job if you tried. And—Well digging around and making trouble, she does. He waved his hand. "No use going into details. But watch out for her. She has you in mind, I believe that. You got a job she wanted. And not only because you got it. She hated it. And thought nobody else could give competition. Most of the regulars don't. Because she's got pull. Because she knows ten much about some of them. and she's too clever for the others, and——"

"That's about all you don't ever tell her anything. And don't let her find out anything about you."

"There's nothing to find out" Judy said stoutly. "And I'm not afraid of her."

"Of course you aren't, Judy. But watch out, all the same. If she ever gets a chance——"

"She won't. She wouldn't, anyhow. Girls now." Now he laughed.

"No" he laughed at her innocence. "Girls? Try that on your dog. Then as I see them. They're no fools, not the ones I mean. They want jobs, and they'll go to any length to get jobs. And they get them. Burdette did, most of all. She's bad medicine, that's all I'm warning you."

In spite of herself Judy felt a faint and growing fear. The girl had gone to such lengths to discredit so sure she could do whatever she wanted to do.

Judy got up. She picked up her handbag. Then she found that Elton Day was before her, holding a chair for the way.

"Let me go," she said.

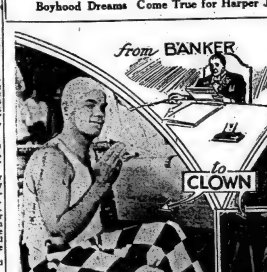
"No."

"People are looking at us."

"They can't help it. You're so beautiful."

"Uh——"

He took her arm. With a quick gesture he extracted a roll of bill, from his pocket, dropped one on the table, and led her the while to keep the change. Now he led Judy the table, toward the door. Judy, helpless, her face scarlet, her head swimming, found herself being led toward the corridor and toward the elevator.



She saw a woman near the elevator, Lona Burdette. The girl looked at her, smiled, nodded, contemptuously with enormous insult in her cold green eyes. So much insult that Judy started toward her, to say something, to do something to do, only knowing she must do something, must drive fear out of her heart by action, now at once.

Banker Spends His Annual Vacation Masquerading as Clown With Circus

Boyhood Dreams Come True for Harper Joy Two Weeks a Year

The first dab of grease paint in Harper Joy's transformation from banker to clown.

Harper Joy, centre, with two funny friends

By RICHARD H. SYRING
Central Press Canadian Writer
SPOKANE, Wash., June 9.— Any day now, Harper Joy, local investment banker, expects to be called from his annual vacation. Then he embarks on a summer holiday trip, probably the most unique in the world.

Harper Joy spends vacation with a circus. For the past four summers the 38-year-old Spokane banker has realized the Utopia of his boyhood dreams—to be a circus clown—and has performed each summer during his two weeks' vacation. While some vacationists languish in rocking chairs on the front porches of summer hotels, or acquire coats of tan at the seashores, Joy, a college graduate travels with a circus, living with the other clowns. To him it is the ideal way to spend a vacation, his mind free from cot, pon-clippers, bearish stock markets and yards of statistics. The smell of the tanbark, the animals, and the thousand and one spangles of the performers constitute an adventure, ous fortnight for him.

His Break Now

Any time from the first of June on, Harper Joy is ready for his vacation. Now he is vice president of his banking firm, he can take his vacation when he pleases. And that time depends upon the schedule of whatever circus which visits the northwest. By the time the circus has neared Spokane, Joy has bid his business associates goodby and kissed his wife and three kiddies and that he'll be back home in the allotted time.

Then it's the sawdust trail for "Harp" Joy, whose name implies the happy disposition which is his own. Harping Joy is the biggest thrill he gets out of life—for two weeks every year.

Last summer, receiving no pay, he worked as hard as any of the other punchinellians in the circus. Three or four numbers a day is his quota. He is known as a "producing clown," because he originated his own stunts. The circus is his host, providing him with transportation, food and lodging. He can take his pack of circusses, since he received invitations from them all.

His Hobby

"I'm not ashamed that I'm a circus fan and get a genuine thrill out of being a clown," Joy says. "Everyone has a different idea for a vacation; I'll take mine with the circus.

"The big tent is my hobby and it seems just as sensible for a business man to be crazy about the circus as for grown men to be collecting old coins or stamps. Other men may make collecting historical data their hobby.

"With my hobby I know that I make people happy. Nothing can erase from my memory the smiles and happy laughter that we clowns have caused from children, especially when we've visited hospitals. Crazy eh? It is a, I'm going to keep right on being crazy because I'm happy and I can make others that way."

Try This One

Joy has his own philosophy about the circus. He declares: "I am continually asked how a fellow can get the nerve to join a circus. This is the answer. Wait at the front door until all the cash customers have gone in, and see the little ring of kids standing around, wishing they had the price of a ticket. Then go up to the window and buy a hand full and distribute them. There'll be plenty of gratitude. If that isn't better than living on the reputation of having donated the largest colored-glass window in the corner church, then I don't know immortality."

In Spokane, Harper Joy is known to thousands. During the day they know him as a hard-working investment banker, with the latest stock or bond information on the tip of his tongue, ready to reel off yards of statistics. Maybe, in the evening, they'll find him at some charity entertainment, dressed in a fashion conforming to the dictates of a clown. He makes people laugh in his banker, which, on one newspaper editorial said, is something remarkable for a banker these days!

Me and pop was taking a wawk before supper, me asking a lot of questions and pop answring about half, and after a while he said, For a boy blessed with the normal means of locomotion it seems to me you have a most unnecessary habit of dragging your feet. Every time I ask you're not on pleeses now, why dont you lift your feet when you wawk and put them down one in front of the other in an orderly manner? he said.

If everybody dragged their feet when they wawked do you think it would seem natural just because everybody did it? I said, and pop said, If everybody did it you'd probberly come across with something much more valuyble.

What do you think I'd do, pop? said, and he said, I know what you're doing now, you're dragging your feet again, like a couple of confounded snow plows. If you had to pay for your own shoe leather you mite be a little more careful of it. And what do you supose people are going to think of you wawking like that? If a boy looking for a job came scuffing and scooching into my office I'd send him scooching right out scuffing in double quick time. If he didn't move his feet properly in the first place he'd get the scuffles and scooches with his branes too. What would you think of a boy like that, pop? That how does this look? he said.

And he started to give a imitation of one scuffing his feet, being a pritty good of a imitation, and I said, O, it looks funny, but it's a habit I've got now and see if people tern around and look at us on account of it, and pop said crazy or something.

Please me if I dont seem eager to join in your innocent pastimes, pop said, but I remember the first time you drag your feet something is going to happen to you, and you wish you hadn't and if you're anxious to discover what you know how to find out, he said.

The result being I wawked perfeck the rest of the week.

Mr. and Mrs. E. V. Tilley entertained Friday evening the staff of the local Royal Bank of Canada. The occasion was a farewell evening to Miss Helena MacDonald who leaves the bank's employ today and becomes a bride in the near future. Miss MacDonald was the recipient of the felicitations and well wishes of her friends in the bank. Mrs. McNairn, accountant of the local Bank of Commerce, on behalf of the staff, presented the bride-to-be with a silver vegetable dish and a set of sterling teaspoons. Cards and dancing followed and a delicious lunch was then taken. As ever, on like occasions, Mr. and Mrs. Tilley proved ideal host and hostess.

Weddings

QUINN—GOULETTE

A pretty June wedding took place at the Roman Catholic Church in Renfrew on Monday of this week, when Vernon Gerald Quinn and Miss J. Quinn were united in marriage by Rev. Father Francis Quinn, brother of the groom. The latter is well known in Tweed having been born and raised there until a few years ago. He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Gene Quinn. He is employed at Renfrew where the young couple will reside. The bride was formerly a member of the Bell Telephone staff at Renfrew. Miss Lucille Gay of Newboro acted as bridesmaid, while her husband, a twin brother of the groom, acted as groomsman.

GUIDES HAVE CLOSING PARTY

Girl Guides of Company Three enjoyed a closing party at the residence of Mrs. W. J. G. Graham, Trent Road, on the guests being Guides who had done good work during the year. A jolly programme of swimming and games concluded with a delicious supper out of doors.

The Brownies of the Company presented their Tawny Owl, Dorcas Walker, with a Thanks Badge. Joan Blaiklee receiving her first class badge and her Brownie wings which will enable her to "fly" to Guide, next fall with full honours. This is the first time a Brownie received her wings in several years. Edith Harvey received her three year star and the following their service star, Peggy Harvey, Joan Watson, Margaret Worrell, Muriel Turner, Barbara Graham, Margaret Pratt, Barbara Leslie and Freda Ritch. Gold bars were presenting to Edith Harvey, Peggy Harvey, Barbara Graham, Barbara Leslie, Muriel Turner and Margaret Worrell.

ELLIOTT ROOSEVELTS REACH PARTING OF THE WAYS

"Incompatibility" is blamed by friends of Elliott Roosevelt, 23 son of the U. S. president, and his wife for their impending divorce. Young Roosevelt, who is general manager of a west coast airline, is expected to establish a residence in Reno. He recently flew to Tucson, Ariz. to meet his mother and escort her by plane to California. Mrs. Roosevelt is the former Betty Donner, daughter of a Philadelphia steel magnate. The couple have been separated since last year. An agreement as to the custody of their child, William Donner Roosevelt, born last November is believed to have been reached. Above, recent photo of the couple and inset, at the time of their wedding, Jan. 18, 1932.

GOOD MANNERS

Fashion Flashes

A spring tonic that will do wonders in the new hats. It never fails to chase away the blues; especially if the hat itself is blue. A new model is a straight sailor with a medium high crown. It is in high lustre light blue satin and is stitched and banded in black. There is a black veil with light blue and white dots.

Turn all heads with a costume made of different shades of blue. A new combination is a sky blue blue woolen and skirt of navy blue woolen, while the blouse is in medium blue chiffon. The jacket has a waistlength collar of blue fox. The hat is dark blue straw.

Something new in the world of slumber clothes is a nightie trimmed with silver ribbon. The gown is of white sheer crepe, gathered and belted at the waistline. The boat-shaped neckline is gathered onto a silver ribbon, with a large silver bow over one shoulder, spiling bands of silver ribbon bordering the deep armholes.

Leave off furs if you can; a capelet with your coat when warmer weather comes, a cost of fine novelty ribbed woolen in dark Chinese red is sold with a tiered cape of ruffled ribbon in a slightly lighter shade. Good to wear with evening things too, as it's detachable.

Always out o' nights is a most useful little fur jacket. It is made of ombre white galyak and has an all-round border of azure blue fox fur. It goes with white, black or blue frocks beautifully.

Just between the hat of felt and the straw hat is the bonnet of fabric. A new one that you will wear now is a small sailor cloche fashioned of dotted swiss in white dots on a blue ground. For contrast it is banded with red grosgrain ribbon.

The Way of Condiments

When you serve yourself to condiments, such as mustard, catsup, and so forth, put the condiment on the side of your plate. Then, after you've cut off a mouthful of meat, or whatever the food may be, take a small portion of the condiment on the tip of the knife or fork, and put it on this mouthful of food.

Don't smear the condiment over the food, and then cut it.

Once Overs

Sure, you are going to do those little jobs around your home, "one of these days".

But if you are like most men it can be months, even years, before you wake up to the fact that you are pledged to give certain jobs your attention.

First of all you don't like the sort of effort involved.

You are not particularly interested in having the improvements made.

You have lived so long without them, why not continue to do so.

Of course the plans should really be carried out, you know that.

They would improve your property, and perhaps protect your property.

And they would please certain members of the family.

But at times you get intensely irritated at the family group because they grow insistent that you attend to these jobs.

You are waiting to "feel like" doing the work.

What's the hurry.

When the inspiration comes you will go contentedly about it.

You know you won't, unless urged to do so, and then, to coin a phrase, you may get it done some way, but not as well as if you were more personally in it.

Just what is it you are stalling on today?

There is something, is there not?

Copeland Pure Food

Many Tempting Dishes Improved By Using Maple Syrup or Sugar

There are many interesting pictures in the papers these days. Not so long ago I saw photographs of maple trees being tapped. Of course these scenes are familiar to persons who have lived in the North. To the city-bred individual they are novel. They mean new shipments of maple syrup. To the housewife they are reminders of tempting dishes which include maple syrup and maple sugar.

Maple sugar is obtained by boiling the maple sap. The hot syrup is run into moulds, allowed to cool and solidify. The sap obtained from the tree contains only 2 p. c. sugar. The maple syrup contains about 64 p. c. of sugar.

I am often asked why some maple syrup is labelled "maple syrup" and other containers, "maple sugar syrup". One is made directly from the sap. The other is a syrup made from maple sugar.

Sap syrups are usually milder, sweeter and have a more pleasant taste than sugar syrups.

Sugar-cane syrup is made by evaporation of the juice of the sugar-cane. Sugar syrup is made by dissolving the sugar in water and then boiling this down to the consistency of syrup.

Maple sugar and maple syrup are mainly sold in the form of cakes or griddle cakes. They are also suitable for frostings and used to spread on warm layer cakes. In any form, they constitute a tempting addition to the dessert course. Maple sugar was the only sort of sugar known to the early American colonists.

Contrary to a popular notion sugar is not important and neutralizes but a few acids. Fruit is lacking in the diet, undernourishment, loss of weight, and weakness occur. Sugar is an "energy food".

By this is meant, it supplies heat and energy to the body. When the body burns up energy by physical or mental exertion, the loss must be replaced by energy-producing foods, such as sugar.

I need not remind the mother that the excessive use of maple sugar or syrup is not wise. In too large quantities it becomes difficult to digest and interferes with the normal appetite. If I did not tell you this, you might have occasion to scold me. But each of us has a "sweet tooth" and the introduction of sugar into the diet is overlooked.

There is no objection to the moderate use of maple sugar and maple syrup. The addition gives variety to the diet and its ease of digestion make it an important food. It makes the diet tempting, palatable, varied and well-balanced.

SHANNONVILLE W.M.S.

The ladies of the W.M.S. of Shannonville United Church were entertained at the home of Mrs. Fred Barlow for their June meeting on Thursday, the 8th June 1st.

Mrs. Ph. - Knight acting Organ Leader for the year of the meeting, which opened by singing hymn "Blessed Assurance". Mrs. Dyer, Devotional leaflet was read by Mrs. Damon Hinchey. Minutes of last meeting reciting were read and approved. Roll was then called twenty-three members and one visitor being present.

It was decided to invite some of the neighboring societies to a meeting in July. The church on June 15th and plans were made to serve refreshments in our visitors who respond to the invitation.

A letter was read by Mrs. Frank Dodge from Miss Minnie Lee of Charlie Cole by her niece who is missionary to Miss Minnie Lee.

Mrs. Charles Liddle the peace secretary gave a suitable reading on the Church and Peace. Mrs. Dies gave the temperance reading. Mrs. Knight read an interesting letter from our missionary Miss M. Claire telling of her trip out to take up the work again after her furlough. A solo by Mrs. Damon Hinchey was much enjoyed by all present. Mrs. Knight then read the Study Book. Collection was then taken two collectors were chosen and the flower fund one dollar and fifteen cents. Social collection was taken up and seventy five cents. After the business meeting Rev. Knight conducted the meeting with prayer. Lunch was served and the meeting and a pleasant social time enjoyed together.

When the skin is dry and flaky, powder will impart a clouded appearance to the complexion. Cold cream can be used as a foundation base, if it is thoroughly wiped away with a soft cloth or bath towelling. Women too often find fault with powder when the trouble is a dry skin texture.

Advice to the Lovelorn

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Why is it that some men, as soon as they are introduced to a girl, feel obliged to hand out a line of high-powered love-making? They act like book-agents who have one foot in the door and have not a second to lose. I don't like this crash-and-carry-on method, and several of my girl friends agree with me.

I like to meet a man, size him up, discover whether we have anything in common or not, and make my own decisions about him, without his trying to rush me off my feet. But these boys act as if love were insurance, or a vacuum sweeper, or something they were trying to sell.

Irene B.

Another correspondent, signing herself Martha, writes: "The other evening I lost all patience with one of these so-called-love boys, and asked him what was the big idea? He seemed puzzled at the question, and said: 'I thought girls liked to be made love to that way.' I told him that perhaps some dateless sisters who never have a break might like it, but that a popular girl preferred to get her bearings and exercise some power of choice."

A third girl, less familiar with the ways of men than Irene and Martha, is also the victim of one of these apparently ardent suitors. Her letter says she has "finished with love", which is of course not true. Only as an aftermath of her recent unhappiness.

Grace, for though herself, tells me she's the wallflower type, but no girl of nineteen is that. It takes a certain kind of a woman to be a wallflower to establish roots, and Grace she says she hasn't transplanted into something else. Grace is a little shy and inexperienced, and after a while she'll laugh and be thankful the young man was such a dunnard, even if she were.

Then was the usual whirlwind love-maker. They met at a party and he began laying seige to her in a manner that to her was wholly new. His fun lasted for a week, and at the end of that time she believed herself engaged, and told a few friends. Then he sought young play-boy left town and Grace, not having really been interest, and he would always be her friend.

Naturally, she is cut to the heart. "The young love fakir was the first man I had ever met since, and, brief as the whirlwind affair was, I had come to love him dearly. The realization that it was just a young man's fun is bitter for the moment."

But, honestly, how would Grace or any other girl like it if all a man did down to something that was only a game with him? He was serious, and he thought, when he began to make love to this quiet girl, that she wasn't serious either. He imagined it was a game with her.

Though Grace may feel that her heart is broken, in time she will come when she will charge off this affair as one of life's "successful calamities".

Relaxation Magic Aid To Beauty

Learn And Practice Art of Banishing Fatigue

BY HELEN FOLLETT

Does the old treadmill get you sometimes? Do you catch a glance of your self in the mirror, wonder what has happened to your face? Perhaps it needs a little massage, a little relaxation. Do a flop, go limp, close your eyes, and rest for fifteen minutes. The human machine can expend only a certain amount of energy; then it must have an opportunity to recharge. Relaxation fans. Pallgas forms poisons that make the eyes burn, the head ache, the nerves go twitchy. The woman who drives herself beyond her strength is the one who is crowded with wrinkles ages before her time.

What is being done with ringless fingers should be practiced by the hold. There can be many rows across the rear of the head, or only a single row. Now and then you go into huddles back of the ear, and then you sweep them up and down tiers at one side, the other and, remember, the same number of finger pattern or marcel. Narrow ribbons bands are nifty but, as they interfere with comfort, any hat wearing should be confined to evening festivities.

When two chins dwell where one should be, pin your face to a heavy cream, proper massage and treatment is necessary. Lift the face at night, pat in the cream. Then with the fingers, thumb and thumb, roll gently. This treatment breaks down fat cells. To avoid flabbiness, follow with a brisk light tapping motion. Every morning apply ice cold water, apply witch hazel with cotton. Let it dry on. Hold the head high; that's important.

The woman who has formed the habits of sleeping with her head extended is the one who will hold on to the youthful silhouette. It is a mistake to rest with shoulders thrown back. Interfere with normal breathing, contracts the chest, and creases in the throat. Never, if you have a friendly feeling for your face, sleep with a pillow under the cheek. Makes wrinkles.

An Easy Way to Loveliness . . .

Summer is a time when daintiness is an absolute necessity to Feminine Charm. No "half-white" dresses, no costume marred by spots, must be allowed to spoil your picture. Avoiding such disasters is simple. Send soiled garments here at once to renew their beauty, the cost is trifling.

INFLUENCE OF GOOD PICTURES STRESSED

The Home and School Club of King George School held their last meeting until the fall term on Friday evening. The President, Mrs. Scott being in the chair. Mr. Kelly's room was the winner of the picture contest. The programme consisted of a solo by Miss Hall and a very interesting address by Mr. James on the influence of good pictures in the home and in our schools, and the benefit children receive from Picture Study. He also showed the Club some very interesting reprints of a collection he made, while on a tour of Europe last year. A vote of thanks was given to Mr. Kelly to Miss Hall and Mr. James. The meeting closed with the National Anthem.

No, mother, no!

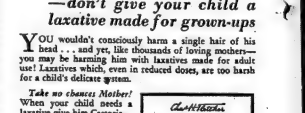
—don't give your child a laxative made for grown-ups



YOU wouldn't consciously harm a single hair of his head . . . and yet, like thousands of loving mothers—you may be harming him with laxatives made for adult use! Laxatives which, even in reduced doses, are too harsh for a child's delicate system.

Take no chances Mother! When your child needs a laxative give him Castoria—the laxative made especially for children.

Castoria is a pure vegetable preparation. It contains no harmful drugs—no narcotics. It does not gripe. It is not nauseating. And children like to take it.

Castoria is absolutely safe and sure. It is inexpensive, too — even for eleven-pay-olds — purchase the new family size bottle.

LIBRARY CORNER

The personal narratives of men who have risked their lives in the carrying out of some important work or in some notable adventure, make up the volume "Tales of Hazard", edited by H. C. Armstrong. Here are adventurers of every type, the sailor, the explorer, the soldier. Admiral Evans tells of his journey with R. Scott in search of the South Pole. Major P. C. Wren, of his early days in the Foreign Legion, Admiral Gordon Campbell, author of "My Mystery Ships", of his Q boat battles with German submarines, Commander Stoker, of his submarine adventures through enemy minefields to the Dardanelles. An interesting touch, is the story of Kapitan Ernest Haahpn, employed as an officer in the German U boat division, showing the enemy's side of the submarine warfare. These stories are notable for the spirit of bravery and comradeship revealed throughout, even in the face of defeat and failure.

"Lyric America" an anthology of American poetry, 1630-1930, contains poems selected from the works of some two hundred and sixty poets. Alfred Kreymborg, himself a poet of note, has edited the anthology with judgment. The volume ranges from the poems of Anne Bradstreet, poet of the Colonial era, to the poems of Nathalia Crane, twenty-year old poet of our day. The changes in patterns and styles of poetry through the years have been as apparent as the changes in customs and dress. From the stately lines and themes of Bryant, Poe Whittier, Longfellow, Lowell have evolved the poets of today. Edna St. Vincent Elliot, T. S. Eliot, H. D. Stephen Vincent Benet, who are rapidly carving a niche for themselves in the hall of fame.

"Around the Small Lawns" by Sid. G. Hedges will solve a problem and introduce many new forms of recreation. To most people the only lawn game that presents itself is tennis, and for many lack of space hinders their plans. Mr. Hedges revives discouraged spirits, however, by presenting a variety of available games which rival tennis for popularity. The game described answer the problem of both many and few players. There are net games as well as others with such unusual names as Tennilo, Miniten, Loriot, and Diabolo. The book should prove useful in providing novel amusements for picnics, parties etc.

Brazilian And Distiller y Issues in Demand in Short Session—Cheaper Gold Shares Advance Under Accumulation—N ew York Remains Steady And Firm

TORONTO MINES

Toronto, June 10—(CP)—Some of the cheaper gold issues came forward today to usurp attention on the Toronto Stock Exchange, trading bulking heavy in Kirkland Lake, Reno and Macassa and all three moved ahead. The senior golds lagged except for a moderately heavy turnover in Wright Hargreaves and Teck Hughes while Nickel and Edwards were inactive.

The big golds moved within a narrow margin. Lake Shore closed at 43.00 down $1. McIntyre was up 25 at $36.00. Hollinger was steady at 10.00, Hollinger weakened 10 to 10.50 and Dome was off 25 at 10.50.

Nickel and Noranda held about steady, the former at $19.85 and the latter at $34.00, down 20 cents. The cheaper Base Metal shares showed no price changes of importance.

In the silver Eldorado was unchanged at $2.00, while Mining Corporation lost 5 to $2.30 and Hispaniola at $2.45 was steady.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO June 10.—(CP)—Brazilian had the spotlight on the Toronto Stock Exchange in to-day's short week session. About half the total trade was in this issue and the price advanced to 18 3-4 a gain of 1 5-8. A report something is being accomplished towards arrangement of Brazilian Exchange and the cost of foreign exchange funds ahead was heard as the reason for the flurry.

The rest of the market was quiet and several issues pushed on quietly to new 1933 peaks. C.P.R. was up 1-4 Point Canada at 13 3-8 were up 1-8 to 1-4 each while Mickel was off 50 cents and Smelters quiet and slightly lower.

Distillery issues exhibited considerable steam and Walkers Common gained 1-2 to 18 1-2. Distillers Seagram 1-4 to 9, while Distillers and Brewers weakened to 3 1-4. Gains were predominated among the beer stocks, Brewing Corporation issues, Canada Malting common and, fractionally.

Oil shares maintained firmness except for a loss of 1-4 for International Petr. Imperial and British American closed at 12 1-2. Four Canadian Marconi issues unchanged in new high this year industrials, gains going to Hamilton Bridge Class A preferred, Steel Car, Standard Steel, Canada Wire and Cable "B", Page Hersey and Steel of Canada "B".

NEW YORK

(By Victor Eubank, Associated Press Financial Writer)

New York, June 10 (AP)— The stock market shuffled through its latest session today without any great amount of enthusiasm or pessimism, trading was rather aggregate, ties tended to balance further rise in industrials and the general tone was moderately irregular. Trading volume continued with transactions approximating 2,500,000 shares.

A satisfactory freight car loading report and optimistic implications of U. S. Steel's bullish views were about in line with expectations. Commodities generally continued to improve, bonds drifted irregularly lower. The dollar again weakened in foreign exchange markets.

Various industrial issues were included in the day's number of ties, but a number of the utilities found followings. Among the latter were inclinations to around points were Consolidated Gas, Unified Corporation, Public Service of New Jersey, Columbia Gas and North America.
